Ascap Says No Music Permits Are Cancelled

All Lapsed at Midnight; Hold Unless Voided

Music licensing agreements between exhibitors and the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers expired at midnight last night, but renew themselves automatically unless terminated by either party.

E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, reported yesterday that there was "not a single instance of cancellation of existing contracts between the society and exhibitors" this year. The current pacts were agreed upon a year ago after negotiations between a national exhibitors' committee and Ascap officials resulted in a compromise of new licensing schedules prepared by Ascap which represented, exhibitors said, increases ranging up to 1,000 per cent.

Herman Starr, vice-president of Warners, who was recently elected a director of Ascap, is in St. Louis for the trial of the Government's con-

Circuits and Union Optimistic on Pact

Hopes of concluding negotiations on a new local wage scale with Local 306 were voiced by theatre representatives yesterday as they prepared to meet with union officials early last evening. Indications were that the meeting would continue to a late hour.

It was stated that efforts would be made to complete a classification of theatres as to size and prevailing admissions first, after which negotiations on the new scales for each classification of theatres would be opened. Several theatre representatives who were to attend the meeting were optimistic over chances of an agreement.

A scale of $1.86 an hour has been agreed upon for RKO and Loew's houses. The negotiators are now concerned with scales for theatres other than RKO and Loew's.

Labor Terms Are Relaxed In NRA Pacts

Opposition of Industry Causes Rule Change

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, Sept. 30.—Recognizing the opposition of industry to further control of labor conditions, details of the procedure to be followed with respect to voluntary codes, in which must be incorporated provisions recognizing employes' rights to bargain collectively, made public today by the White House, make provision for the adoption of fair trade practice rules, without labor conditions, under the Federal Trade Commission Act.

The regulations require that, to secure such exemption from the anti-trust laws as the Government may still grant, industries must file voluntary codes under the amended NRA, in which they must include the labor provisions of Section 7 (A) of the act.

However, it was made clear, the door is not closed to the adoption of simple rules of fair practice under the Trade Commission Act, no provisions as to labor being necessary in such agreements.

Jurisdiction over both types of code will be vested in the Trade Commission, but in the formulation of agreements under the NRA the Recovery Administration will participate in the consideration of the labor provisions.

The sale reduced Pathe's 49 per cent stock interest in Du Pont to a 35 per cent interest.

The report states that capital surplus has been charged with $1,009,328,

Fox Met Fees May Go Over $750,000

Applications for fees for services in connection with the reorganization of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses may aggregate more than $750,000, an incomplete compilation of applications left with the Federal court yesterday by attorneys, creditors' committees, the trustee and others indicated.

A hearing on the applications has been set for tomorrow before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. The Fox Met reorganization plan made provision for final reorganization expenses of $500,000 aggregate. Reductions by the court in the amounts applied for are expected to bring the total of the applications within this figure.

Irving Trust Co., as trustee of Fox Met, asked for a final allowance of Early End Foreseen For Mexican Strike

Mexico City, Sept. 30.—Early end of the theatre strike of the National Federation of Theatre Workers, stirred up by a demand for higher wages and the threat of American distributors to withdraw from this market unless something were done about high taxes, is predicted.

The withdrawal has been postponed until Oct. 15 to permit a study of the situation by a committee made up of various industry branch representatives and the Government. Distributors show no interest in the strike.

Court Denies Delay; Trial Starts Today

Effort at Postponement Is Overruled

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—After several previous attempts to launch an immediate trial on indictments against Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Abel Carey Thomas, George J. Schaefer, Ned Depinet and their companies—Warners, Paramount and RKO—the Government today was successful in having Federal Judge Moore set Tuesday morning as a definite starting time for the anti-trust action filed against these defendants and their companies.

Judge Moore also overruled an application for continuance filed by Warners and later joined by Paramount and RKO after a full day's argument on motions.

A postponement was sought by Warners on the ground that Thomas is a key witness, but cannot testify

Agreement Reported Set by Para.-FWC

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager of Paramount, who is here for the Government's anti-trust suit, today declared his company's difficulties with Fox West Coast had been straightened out.

Ralph C. Li Beau, Paramount's Kansas City district manager, is here for talks with Agnew.

Los Angeles, Sept. 30.—The difficulties between Paramount and Fox West Coast are understood to have revolved around percentage terms and flat rental prices for the circuit's subsequent runs. F. W. C. has been playing no Paramount product with the result the chain has now fallen behind on releases.

NACC Is Seen on Way Out on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—The N. A. C. C., which grew to threatening proportions during the past two months, will soon fade out completely, according to a statement from one organization leader today. The first move toward this end is due this week, when the advisory council will file a request with the National Labor Relations Board asking the withdrawal of a petition filed last week requesting all soundmen be permitted to vote on which labor organization they want to represent them in collective bargaining.

The decision of the advisory council, which is considered impotent because of non-affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, was taken following careful investigation over a period of weeks.

Paramount Holding Minnesota Houses

Paramount has no intention of giving up 75 theatres in Minnesota operated for some time past under a partnership arrangement with Hamm & Charles, it was declared yesterday by Y. Frank Freeman. It is the partnership that has been given up.

The agreement expired on Sept. 28 and the houses are now being operated by Paramount through L. J. Ludwig and John J. Friedl under the supervision of the home office.

Grainger on Trip

James R. Grainger, general sales manager of Universal, left on a sales trip yesterday which will take him to Chicago, Omaha and San Francisco. From that point, he will go to Hollywood for a week at the studio and return east via Dallas, New Orleans and Atlanta.

Universal has sold more contracts thus far this season than in the same comparative period last.

Got No Complaints

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—Ned E. Depinet today denied having received any exhibitor complaint over "Top Hat." He contends this picture is not on last year's program, as claimed by various exhibitor associations in widely spread territories, and that RKO promised only two Astaire-Rogers on the 1934-35 schedule. "The Gay Divorcee" and "Roberta" were delivered.

because he was described as suffering from arterio-scelerosis, which was defined as hardening of the arteries and thrombosis, which was stated to be apoplexy. Warner counsel submitted affidavits from three New York physicians who, during the past few months, have examined Thomas and outlined an analysis of his illness.

One doctor said the Warner legal head may be able to testify in two or three months provided he was given mental and physical freedom for this length of time.

Russell Hardy, prosecuting the case for the government, put on the stand for one hour Robert Emmett Kane, head of the surgical staff of De Paul Hospital and also on the staffs of St. Mary's and Barnes Hospitals here, in addition to being chairman of the St. Louis County Old Age Commission, to detail the condition described by Thomas' doctors.

Doctor Testifies

Kane testified that, according to Thomas' symptoms, he will never be able to testify either in court or by deposition and that to force him to do so would shorten the Warner executive's life. Kane disagreed with the inference contained in one of the three doctors' affidavits that Thomas will be able to stand trial in two or three months, contending that no one can tell what effect arterio-sclerosis and thrombosis may have on Thomas within the next few weeks. He pointed out that even the doctors who have examined the Warnerite do not indicate Thomas will ever be able to return to work.

After being examined by Reed at length Kane left the impression that to bring Thomas to trial would jeopardize the latter's life. Hardy told the court that it is plain "that we can never bring Thomas to trial. All they are trying to do is to delay the case until Thomas dies so there won't be a case," he said, to which Reed replied, "Then, why don't you dismiss the indictment against him?"

Reed, Jacob M. Lashly and William R. Gentry then pleaded to put the indictment trial over until after the equity case, scheduled for tomorrow, is heard. Reed offered to bring three doctors who examined Thomas from New York to testify. Gentry said Paramount was entitled to examine Thomas and Lashly stated the government has during the past few weeks insisted on trying the preliminary injunction before the criminal action. Samuel Fordyce also took the same stand as the others. Jeffries, in a special plea, stated that the government has suddenly changed its plans and decided it wants the indictments tried.

In again denying the plea to put the case over to follow the equity hearing Judge Moore said "there is some way of finding out what happened at meetings which Thomas attended." Hardy said that much of what Thomas would testify to "is irrelevant and that Starr and Sears are important witnesses." Reed then said, "We are ready to go to trial under very unfair and unjust conditions."

Hardy Criticized

Jeffries made a last minute effort to get the judge to rescind his ruling until tomorrow to give him additional time to amend the petition for continuance. The court said, "Unless the government counsel consents I will not disturb the order of the calendar." Hardy again refused to change the order, declaring he was ready. Reed then made a formal motion to dismiss the indictment against Thomas because of the government's attitude that he will never testify. Moore said it was up to Hardy, who declined to consider it.

Jeffries criticized Hardy for his adamant attitude.

Hardy told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that the government will be through with its case in four days. Jeffries is on record as saying that the defendants will take from four to six weeks.

George Schaefer, who was absent today, is expected here tomorrow. The government is prepared to start in the morning. There is no indication what witnesses will be put on the stand at the outset. About 30 jurors were dismissed today without a panel being obtained. The selection of jurors will be resumed tomorrow morning.

Under the present set-up of the calendar the equity case will follow the trial of the indictments, indicating that the executives here from the east and west are due for an extensive stay. Meanwhile, the legal batteries of the three companies involved are separately going into session tonight, presumably to prepare for tomorrow's opening. Hardy indicated during the latter part of the hearing that the defendants may take an appeal from Judge Moore's decision to the circuit court of appeals. Whether this move will be taken was not apparent tonight.

In arguing for denial of continuance of the criminal case, Hardy pointed out it would have to go over until the March, 1936, term, if granted. The offense charged in the suit is a misdemeanor and is punishable by one year in jail, $5,000 fine or both.

Demurrer Denied

Judge Moore denied a demurrer filed by Lashly at the morning session, on the ground of insufficient fact in the bills of particulars presented by Hardy. Judge Moore had overruled RKO's motion for additional facts. The denial followed objections by Hardy. Representing the various Warner companies were Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell Sears.

Former U. S. Senator Reed pleaded not guilty on the indictments for Warners, while William Gentry, local Paramount attorney, did likewise for Paramount and George Schaefer, and Lashly for RKO and Ned E. Depinet, president.

In his application for continuance Reed said Warners had about $4,000,000 invested in the Ambassador, New Grand Central and Missouri, and described the company's history in the local theatre field.

Hardy took the stand and detailed a conversation he had had with Reed on Sept. 7, when Reed asked for adjournment after receiving word of the serious illness of his sister, who later died. Hardy tried to point out that this was the only reason for asking the delay. Reed examined Hardy and finally brought out that at the time the equity case and not the criminal action had been scheduled. Hardy objected several times to questions thrown at him by Reed, but was overruled every time.

Hardy, in trying to fix a certain date when he saw Judge Thornton at a Delaware beach in an effort to get a judge to hear indictments during the summer, related how Samuel Fordyce, local Paramount attorney, had visited the same judge that day. Fordyce later asked Hardy on the stand what his motive was for bringing his name into the meeting with the judge at the beach, and Hardy answered it was only to fix the date of his own visit. Fordyce made it clear his meeting with Judge Thornton was an entirely outside matter.

spiracy charges against Warners, RKO and Paramount, and during his absence no moves to compose differences between Warners and Ascap will be made, it was stated on good authority. Warners have threatened to withdraw from Ascap as a result of the differences.

Ascap yesterday issued its annual survey of NBC and CBS radio programs which showed that during 1934 the 85 leading song numbers were played a total of 1,255,669 times by the two principal networks. According to the report "Love In Bloom," from the film "She Loves Me Not," led with a total of 24,374 renditions on 674 key broadcasts. "All I Do Is Dream of You," from "Sadie McKee," and "Carioca," from "Flying Down to Rio," were second and third, respectively, in number of times rendered over the air, according to the report.

The report is cited by Ascap in substantiation of its contention that "radio must pay for the performance of music a sum sufficient to compensate for some of the losses in sheet music sales." The report shows that sales of sheet music on "hit" songs in some instances is one-fourth that prior to large scale national broadcasting.

Gotham Denied Stay On "Seas" at Dorset

Justice Edward S. Dore in Manhattan Supreme Court yesterday denied a motion made by the Gotham Amusement Corp. to restrain M-G-M Distributing Corp. from delivering "China Seas" to the Dorset.

In his decision Justice Dore said: "It appears from the complaint itself that the defendant has contracted to supply the picture to the Dorset for exhibition. No claim is made that the Dorset had a knowledge that the contract between itself and the defendant violated any rights of the plaintiff. The theatre is not a party to the present action."

Variety Club

Omaha

OMAHA, Sept. 30.—SID MCARDLE of Film Transport upset local dope by winning the first annual golf tournament here at the Field Club.

He not only won the $8 driver, first prize, but also the sweat shirt given for low medalist.

The tourney was marred somewhat by an accident which occurred to ROY PALMQUIST, Paramount salesman, who was struck in the eye by a bouncing ball. PALMQUIST was felled and knocked unconscious. A doctor, who had joined in the tourney, revived him. PALMQUIST withdrew from further play with nothing worse than a badly blackened and swollen eye.

HARRY FRANKLE, salesman for United Artists, was the unhappy driver of the ball.

About 40 exhibitors, branch managers and salesmen participated.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"I Live for Love"

(Warner)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—Although offering several novel and whimsical touches, the story's lightness holds this picture to average classification. Dolores Del Rio, as a Latin stage star, and Everett Marshall, radio singer, fight when placed on the same air program. For the publicity value Berton Churchill, Guy Kibbee, Allen Jenkins and Hobart Cavanaugh, as the business managers of the couple, change the feud to a romance, then reverse their tactics when the pair actually fall in love. The lovers separate again, but reunite when they discover the ulterior motives of the interferers.

Lightly directed by Busby Berkeley, these situations become entertaining although the ultimate outcome is never doubtful. To cover the slim plot the picture features several tuneful numbers, which Marshall sings well and offers a singing novelty in which Eddie Conrad, with Shaw and Lee as musical stooges score laughs.

Miss Del Rio wears clothes that will delight feminine patrons and handles her role with dignified distinction. The original screen play by Jerry Wald, Julius Epstein and Robert Andrews has amusing lines which Kibbee, Jenkins and Churchill deliver skillfully. The production by Brian Foy is good.

Production Code Seal No. 1,075. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Rainmakers"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—In spite of the fact that a drought is a grim tragedy in a large part of the country, Wheeley and Woolsey use it as a comic background, leaving their antics on dynamite-loaded locomotives as the film's best exploitation angle.

Woolsey, as a fugitive rainmaker, picks up dirt farmer Wheeler in the middle of a dust storm which blows Wheeler's house away. They go to California, where Berton Churchill and George Meeker are gypping farmers with a plan to bring water to their parched crops. Woolsey plans the crash of two locomotives to draw a crowd necessary for the operation of the rain-making machine. The locomotive engineers leave when dynamite is discovered in the coal. Wheeler and Woolsey become engineers and a wild chase over mountain grades provides the main comic sequence with a terrific explosion bringing rain.

Henry Spencer is good as a bewildered banker, Dorothy Lee provides the romantic interest in the story by Fred Guiol and Albert Treynor and the screen play by Grant Garrett and Lester Goodwins. Fred Guiol directed and Lee Marcus produced. Even Wheeler and Woolsey fans will have to stretch their enthusiasm for this one.

Production Code Seal No. 1,268. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Public Menace"

(Columbia)

A combination of romance, newspaper reporter excitement and gangster pursuit, this repeats a tried and old formula in story construction. It rates as average entertainment material, suitable as half of a double bill where they like action, police guns and newspaper atmosphere.

Featured are George Murphy and Jean Arthur, with Douglas Dumbrille and George McKay in chief support. Murphy, newspaper reporter, who thinks he is good, is assigned to cover a ship arrival. Taken in by a girl aboard who wants to get ashore, he permits her to marry him and loses the scoop which results when gangster chief Dumbrille, escapes from the ship.

The girl tries to help him when he is fired, but succeeds in making matters worse, causing Murphy to be the laughing stock of the town when he writes an erroneous story about the gangster's death which the girl had framed to assist him. Eventually, however, Murphy succeeds in capturing Dumbrille, with the aid of the girl, and gets his job back. Of course he is no longer interested in the divorce he was going to get.

Production Code Seal No. 1,118. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Popular Science"

(Paramount)

An effective compilation of modern scientific miracles in domestic, engineering and kindred fields, this short done in Technicolor is certain to appeal to all audiences. From a microscopic examination of plant life it proceeds to a portable biscut baking oven, detailed manufacture of power cables and their construction, to the marvels of the new Boulder Dam. Because it is timely and of general appeal it is highly recommended. Production code seal, No. 1,052. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Ohio Savings Gain Heavy During Year

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30.—One of the favorable straws in the Ohio wind is the increase in savings deposits in banks operating under state charters.

According to a report just released by the State Banking Department, the increase in five major communities during the past year were: Cleveland, $51,468,233; Cincinnati, $19,776,368; Toledo, $17,811,962; Akron, $9,789,659, and Columbus, $2,388,589. Early Sales Studied On K. C. Protection

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 30.—Tentative approaches to independents on new season product by distributors indicates Fox Midwest has purchased a "mild" form of protection, which consists largely of prior runs, and this not in every zone. The zones themselves apparently are not very definitely marked out.

W. D. Fulton, operator of five independent houses, pointed out that this form of protection would not be disadvantageous to the independent operator. Jay Means, operator of the Bagdad and Oak Park, can't see that any undue advantage is going to accrue to the buyer of protection.

Under the present schedule there are too many day and date runs, Means believes.

"I don't think I could play successfully behind a 15-cent house," Means says, "but, on the other hand, I don't think it is going to hurt me to play a week or so behind a 20-cent house. Even a difference of five cents between two theatre admissions doesn't make the difference to the public exhibitors fear it does.

"When a person wants to see a picture he picks out the picture he wants to see."

Emanuel Rolsky of the National and St. John, vice-president of the ITO, says he will oppose zoning if he can get support among independents.

One by-product of zoning, in Rolsky's opinion, will be a hike in film rentals due to exhibitors bidding against each other.

"Cookie," Amateurs Set Louisville Mark

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 30.—Leading a general upturn, with the arrival of cool weather and the general excellence of the fall product, "Here Comes Cookie," with Major Bowes' Amateurs on the stage, broke all records at the Rialto, with a gross of $11,000. This figure is sensational for this town, and $7,500 above par.

"Alice Adams" was also big at the Brown, grossing $4,000, and will be held over another week. "Mary Jane's Pa" and a stage show at the National drew better than any previous week, lifting the gross at that house to $4,200, $1,200 above par.

Films Not Touched By Security Ruling

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Issuance by the Securities and Exchange Commission of regulations granting a temporary relaxation of registration requirements to holding companies will have no bearing on the Twentieth Century-Fox situation, it was said today by officials of the commission.

It was explained that the new regulations apply to holding companies in the utility field only. Further, it was pointed out, no public offering of securities has been involved in the film merger. If, after the merger, the company offers securities to the public, registration will be required.

Reorganization Study Is Practically Complete

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. — No film companies other than Paramount will be studied by the Securities and Exchange Commission in its investigation of reorganizations which some months ago brought to light details of profits made by members of protective committees and others.

Officials of the commission said today that they have practically completed their investigation and are now engaged in collating the material gathered in preparation for the writing of the report which they are to submit to Congress next winter.

It was explained that while there were several mergers in the picture industry, the investigation was of a general nature and it was felt that a study of one case would be sufficient to disclose conditions. In general SEC sought to take one case in each of a number of industries.

Chance Games Hit Downtown L. A. Theatres

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—Bank nights and various types of giveaways formerly confined to outlying districts are now sweeping the downtown section as a result of court decisions favoring Bank Night in patent infringement suits in several states.

Fifteen subsequent runs have been signed and an equal number is expected, according to Ray Olmstead, manager of Affiliated Enterprises. Contracts with F. W. C. become effective Oct. 15, Olmstead says.

Far West Exchanges, sellers of Movie Sweepstakes, have signed up eight Warner subsequent runs, two of which are in Seattle, and also have signed two independents, one in Burbank. Two more local houses have joined in Gift Stamp giveaways, making the total 11 for this stunt.

Court Permits Delay on Warner, Para. Pleas

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—Although the Government stubbornly refused to agree to any kind of continuance of the criminal anti-trust suits against three major companies and their executives yesterday despite persistent pleas of former U. S. Senator James A. Reed and Samuel B. Jeffries, Warner special counsel, another effort was more successful today.

In a surprise move by Reed and Jeffries, Warners sought a one-week postponement during an informal conference in court with Judge George Moore. Participating were U. S. District Attorney Blanton, special assistant U. S. Attorney General Russell Hardy, Samuel W. Fordyce and William S. Gentry.

Moore refused the request and then

A report on the Donovan offices' findings during its two months' study of the Erpi pacts and the licensing situation here and in Hollywood has been completed and will be delivered to Sarnoff at once, it was said. The RCA head returned from a two months' European trip yesterday and is expected to decide shortly whether further action is warranted.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

INTERESTING to record, even if the date is late, is the verbatim comment of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, at the recent Ampa luncheon to Martin Quigley. Interesting because his remarks, personal and official, shower high praise on this industry and because they may serve to silence outside criticism here and, not less importantly, in England over the G-Man cycle which has been accused of resolving itself into nothing more than a new gangster series with blazing guns transferred to the hands of Government operatives. . . .

This is Hoover:

"I want to take this opportunity to express to you publicly not only my official, but my personal appreciation of the obligation which I feel to you for having created a great public sentiment of law enforcement consciousness, counteracting in great measure that wave of crime consciousness that had permeated the American public for many years. There are three great factors in this country which mold public opinion—the press, the radio, and the motion picture. I hope that the men charged with the direction of these three industries fully appreciate their great responsibility to the safety of our country and the preservation of our institutions. I want to say here and now that I have never viewed a single inch of film that carried one expression of disloyalty to our Government, and that, I believe, is something of which the motion picture industry may be justly proud.

"While the Federal Bureau of Investigation has carried on a relentless and diligent war against the forces of lawlessness, I fully realize that the success which has been ours could not have been attained had we not had the support and backing of all law-abiding citizens, and to attain this support and backing, public sentiment and enthusiasm had to be created. Therefore, to you gentlemen today I wish to pay tribute and to give to you my thanks for having performed one of the most unselfish acts of public service in bringing to the millions of Americans today a true picture of the efforts of law enforcement agencies. You have portrayed in the recent series of pictures dealing with the so-called G-Men a type of law enforcement officer of whom any true American may be justly proud and you have brought through the medium of your industry to practically every home in America a realization that crime truly does not pay.

"I well know that the accomplishment of this result required much work and effort upon your part, but you should feel gratified and satisfied in knowing that you have performed one of the greatest services for your country that has yet been performed."

A further feather in the celluloid cap along identical lines is that incident wherein Hearst Metrotone News photographed the six banditti who recently killed Edwin Esposito, a collector for the B.M.T. transportation system in Brooklyn. The clip reconstructed the crime in narrative form, was shown in the usual course of events in Philadelphia where a patron identified Salvatore (Duke) Scata as one of a gang which had murdered a patron of the Idle Hour Cafe in that city. The charge that films foster crime must of necessity fade considerably in the light of these two incidents. . . .

Happenings such as these serve to further focus attention on the social aspects which are inherent in films. There are obviously and at least two phases to this industry. One has to do with the normal job of making and selling entertainment. The other, which in no general discussion of motion pictures can hope to be obliterated or even overlooked, deals directly with their broader aspect. For films, it seems elementary to point out again at this late date, wield an impossible-to-ignore influence for good or for evil. The general direction in which they are pointed by the industry can be only one and that, we take it, needs no labeling by this department. . . .

While some there have been who have been wondering exactly how to reduce Charlie Pettijohn to a definition, it took Hoover on that same Ampa day to do it neatly:

"I want to say here that he is indeed not only a most capable and effective lawyer, but also a rather novel individual. He seems able to withstand the siren voices of Hollywood and safely to navigate the somewhat overheated labyrinths of politically infected Washington. Through all of these temptations and mazes of activities he comes out still a wholesome and real fellow and I am happy to take this opportunity to call him my friend."

The day's embarrassment: News department routine called for the whereabouts of Leslie Howard, just in from his English holiday via Quebec. The Warners, for whom he stars, were not quite certain. A quick canvass of some leading hotel registers revealed exactly nothing. Occurred the thought to check with the drama department of The New York Times, which, whether you read it or not, you must concede readily is a pretty good newspaper. The thought was then transferred into action without divulging who was making the call. Came the reply:

"Call MOTION PICTURE DAILY. You certainly can find out there". . .

Center Open Tonight With a Film Policy

The Center, 3,400-seat house on Sixth Avenue, smaller sister and companion theatre to the Music Hall, opens tonight as a first run film house, after having been closed since Sept. 14, when "The Great Waltz," stage play, closed after 44 weeks. The last pictures to play the house were "Little Man, What Now," and "Sisters Under the Skin," played on a double bill, on July 6, 1934.

"Here's to Romance" will be the opening attraction this evening, with the picture's star, Nino Martini, appearing in person. B. A. Rolfe and his orchestra will furnish the music with some scenery planned, singing talent, a quartet and the like, but without actual stage presentations. An electric organ will be used with the orchestra. Continuous performances at prices ranging from 35 cents to 85 cents will be the policy. "Here's to Romance" was reviewed in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Aug. 26.

European Business Gaining—Reisman

Phil Reisman, vice-president in charge of the RKO Export Corp., returned yesterday on the Majestic after two months abroad, and reported business good throughout most of Europe.

In London, especially, he said, theatres are busy. The improvement he noted he foresees as continuing. During his stay he visited Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France and England. He closed deals with Radio Cinema in Paris and with distributors in Belgium and Holland, among others.

Warners Congratulated

The Shakespeare Association of America, through its president, Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, has congratulated Warners for its production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in a letter to Will H. Hays, president of the M. P. P. D. A. The production is seen as increasing the study of Shakespeare's works.

In addition, the committee's petition asks $55,370, plus $2,816 interest, for loans to meet its expenses, and $20,241 for additional disbursements. It also asks that a reserve fund of $1,500 be set aside for future expenses.

The law firm of Beekman, Bogue, Leake, Stephens & Black, which served as counsel to the committee, asks for a fee of $125,000 and expenses of $1,926.

Milton C. Weisman, receiver of Fox Theatres and proponent of the Fox Met reorganization plan, asks for a fee of $75,000 and remuneration for disbursements amounting to $24,509.

Charles W. Littlefield of Dawes, Abbott & Littlefield, counsel to Irving Trust Co. as receiver and trustee of Fox Met, asks for a fee of $110,000 and $601 expenses. Irving Trust asks a fee of $75,000.

Kresel Asks $50,000

Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., trustee under the Fox Met mortgage indenture, asks a total of $20,575 for itself and a $55,000 fee and $64.41 expenses for its counsel, Larkin, Rathbone & Perry. Isidor J. Kresel, counsel for Weisman, asks a fee of $50,000. Percival E. Jackson, attorney, representing Fox Met bondholders, while not specifying a particular amount, sets forth in his application for allowances that he put in 135 hours on the Fox Met reorganization and that his customary fee is $50 per hour, or a total, on that basis, of $67,500. He also requests remuneration for an estimated 50 to 100 hours' work by his office assistants, which might bring his total application to approximately $75,000.

Archibald Palmer, attorney, representing Fox Met bondholders, asks $40,000 as a fee and $255.60 expenses. C. Frank Reavis, attorney for Si Fabian in the presentation of an unaccepted plan of reorganization for Fox Met, asks a fee of $15,000 and expenses of $1,054. Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, auditors, ask a $600 fee.

A hearing on the applications has been set for today, but indications are that it may be postponed pending the return from a European vacation of Federal Judge Julian W. Mack, who has had jurisdiction over Fox Met's rehabilitation processes.

action by eight bondholders and a bondholders' protective committee claiming deposits of $3,142,100 of $4,500,000 outstanding first mortgage and leasehold bonds. They claim that if the new reorganization plan is made effective it will be controlled by three bondholders with claims for $5,500, and state that a reorganization plan has already been worked out by 75 per cent of the security holders.

U. S. District Judge George H. Moore has set Oct. 15 as the time for a hearing.

Third Suit Started On Warner Control

A third stockholders' suit in which charges of mismanagement and squandering and wasting of funds are alleged was filed in the New York Supreme Court yesterday by Harris Pepper against Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

The plaintiff set forth that he was the holder of 125 shares of common stock and that he intends to include as defendants in the suit past and present directors. Pepper asserted that the assets of Warner Bros., including over 175 subsidiaries, have dropped between 1929 and 1934 from $230,000,000 to less than $160,000,000.

He charges that new subsidiaries are always being created and engaged in such unrelated enterprises as operating a radio broadcasting station and reclaiming silver. He further charged that the present board of directors is wholly under control and dominated by Harry, Albert and Jack Warner and they own more than 60 per cent of the preferred stock. He cited about 10 different transactions which he charged showed negligence on the part of the directors in the handling of Warner Bros. assets. Pepper is seeking to have the court ascertain the losses and to have a receiver appointed to compel the directors to make good the losses.

Besides the three Warner brothers, the following were named as defendants by Pepper: Waddill Catchings, Henry A. Rudkin, Abel Carey Thomas, Stanleigh P. Friedman, Morris Wolf, Sam E. Morris, Samuel Carlisle, Hyman Fabian, Walter Sachs, Irving D. Rossheim, Harold S. Bareford, Charles S. Guggenheim and Renraw, Inc.

"Harris Pepper is listed as the holder of 125 shares of stock. His action and others filed will face trial. It will be too bad for them all," said Friedman yesterday in commenting on the latest action.

Hearing on Sales Tax Is Adjourned

will be resumed in about 10 days or two weeks.

Although United Artists and Universal are the only companies whose local film revenue has been assessed by the city for the sales tax the levy would be applied to all local distributors in the event the city succeeds in establishing its contention that film rentals are subject to the tax. A city ruling to this effect, however, could be appealed by the film companies to the appellate division of the court.

The film companies contend that pictures are leased and not sold and that rentals, therefore, are not subject to a sales tax.

Reed and Jeffries asked for a delay until tomorrow morning. Moore also refused this, but with the provision that if Hardy should consent the court would grant it. The Government counsel agreed after some hesitation, providing all parties would give assurance they would be ready Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. This was done.

After the court had announced the continuance Reed, for Warners, and Gentry, for Paramount, stated that the move did not waive their claims for a continuance, but that they would be ready in accordance with the court's instructions.

This move by Paramount and Warner counsel stirred some conjecture as to its purpose. RKO counsel did not join in.

Hardy requested that records and files subpoenaed be checked. This was done. He then called for responses to subpoenas, with Allen L. Snyder the only one absent.

No Jurors Selected

Judge Moore said the equity case, an application for an injunction to prevent the defendants from continuing their alleged agreement not to supply film to the Missouri, Grand Central, Ambassador and Fox theatres, scheduled for hearing today, will be passed to await further order of the court. A hearing probably will be held immediately after the criminal trial.

No jurors were selected today, but this will be the first order of business Wednesday. Some predictions are that it will take two days to pick a jury. Thirteen or 14 are to be selected from a list of 27 called. Only 12 will serve, but under an act passed June 29, 1932, the court may direct the calling of additional jurors in its discretion, these to be known as alternates. One or two additional will be chosen to sit through the entire proceedings, so that in the event one of the regular jurors is taken ill, or dies, an alternate can replace the absentee.

H. M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell L. Sears, George J. Schaefer, Ned E. Depinet, the defendants, and a crowd of witnesses and jurors again jammed the courtroom.

Union Meets Continue

Further progress toward a final agreement with Local 306 on a new wage scale was reported by theatre representatives following a meeting which lasted until late Monday night. No meeting was held yesterday, but the theatre men expect Local 306 representatives to arrange a session for today at which, they believe, final phases of an agreement may be settled.

On the Lighter Side

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—SPYROS SKOURAS requires two seats in the courtroom. One he uses for himself and the other to rest his infected foot. He has to depend on a cane to get around and even has his attorney, WILLIAM T. POWERS, assisting him.

During the afternoon session Monday there was a sudden flash from the rear of the court room as though the elements were getting ready for a heavy storm. The joker was that HARRY WARNER was having his picture flashed by a cameraman of a local newspaper. And he wore his best Sunday smile, too.

NEIL AGNEW's colored shirts always get the comments. Contrasted with his white hair, they make an intriguing combination.

NED DEPINET and JULES LEVY are inseparable. So much so they even managed to wear the same color in suits—grey—yesterday.

IRVING LESSER is looking thinner these days. That's because of his diet.

MILTON B. ARTHUR says everything is going along smoothly on the coast. He describes it as "harmonious."

FRED WEHRENBERG, tucked in a heavy blue overcoat with a felt hat to match, was very much in evidence, saying hello to the gang.

RALPH LIBEAU, district manager for Paramount, expects to leave tonight for a tour of his exchanges. Which reminds us that the last time AGNEW was in court LIBEAU was beside him, as he was today.

All the Paramount folks are stopping at the Coronado, the Warners at the Park Plaza, but to RKO goes the prize for picking the swankiest hotel in town—the Chase.

Former Senator JAMES A. REED is a wit. Several times he had Judge MOORE and the invited guests in the court room giggling at his remarks, particularly during and after Dr. ROBERT EMMETT KANE's testimony on the three affidavits submitted by doctors in connection over ABEL CAREY THOMAS' condition.

For a moment there was surprise in court when RUSSELL HARDY stated that Ex-Senator REED had 25 attorneys assisting him in preparation of his case. But the consternation was short-lived when REED came back at HARDY and said:

"You know that isn't true."

DON THORNBURG, who operated the Family and Strand in Marshalltown, Iowa, before MORT SINGER took them over on a long-term lease, is attending the criminal trial with his wife. He met HARRY ARTHUR today and said he had some information to give him in connection with the suit. THORNBURG said he recently filed a conspiracy suit against major distributors because he couldn't get product and had to sell out.

SAMUEL FORDYCE, local attorney representing Paramount, and JAMES A. REED, who heads the Warner legal battery here, have a distinctive shade of white hair.

Wisconsin IEPA to Combat Protection

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 1. — Independent exhibitors here are disturbed over the report that Fox and M-G-M have assented to contracts submitted by H. J. Fitzgerald, general manager for Fox theaters here, which calls for more protection for Fox houses.

A committee of five members of the I. E. P. A. has been empowered to do anything necessary.

Registered letters have been sent to all local branch exchange managers and copies of these letters to the general sales managers of the film companies requesting that the committee be granted a hearing with branch managers on zoning and clearance before any new product is sold according to Fitzgerald's demands.

In addition to calling for greater protection, the schedule being submitted by Fitzgerald also claims protection of his Milwaukee houses over all theatres in Milwaukee county, Waukesha, Oconomowoc, Port Washington, Pewaukee, Hartland, Menominee Falls, West Bend, East Troy and Racine, it is said.

Kamen Sued on Contract

A suit for $79,000 alleging breach of contract was filed yesterday in the Manhattan Supreme Court by Betty Longacre against Herman Kamen, otherwise known as Kay Kamen, and Kay Kamen, Inc.

According to the complaint, the plaintiff charged that in April, 1932, Kay Kamen, Inc., hired her with reference to a contract which the defendant had with Walt Disney Enterprises of Hollywood concerning the use of Mickey Mouse on merchandise or other articles. She charged that the defendant breached the contract on Dec. 24, 1934. She further averred that she was to receive 50 per cent of the net profits of this relationship. The plaintiff says that she received only $21,000 and that under the agreement there is still due her $79,000. No answer was filed to the suit.

In commenting on the suit last night Kamen said: "There is no reason for the suit. It is ridiculous."

Variety Club

Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Solution of the problems of public utilities is of more than passing interest to exhibitors, declared W. A. ROBERTS, people's counsel in public utility matters, at the semi-monthly luncheon of the Variety Club.

Complication of the traffic situation and inadequacy of parking places are tending to keep people in the outlying sections, with the consequent development of other shopping centers, he said. He proposed municipally-owned garages.

The board of governors will hold a meeting on Oct. 4.

Looking 'Em Over

"Dr. Socrates"

(Warners)

The story of a young and brilliant doctor, who seeks to build a practice in a small and narrow town and who therein runs into romance, gangsters, G-Men and eventual triumph, this picture offers fast-moving entertainment, topped by the expected capable performance of Paul Muni in the title role.

Ann Dvorak and Barton MacLane are in chief support, she as the girl who comes unexpectedly into Muni's previously embittered life, and he as the tough gang leader who terrorizes a section and is brought to book, with Muni cleverly beating the efficient G-Men to the punch. It is well-handled entertainment with William Dieterle, the director, having made the most of his opportunity in putting punch and action into the picture.

Once again right and the forces of law and order win, but this time in a slightly different setting and with a somewhat different focus. Muni is disliked in town because he keeps to himself. He has difficulty paying his bills. Then after a raid, MacLane forces him to dress a gunshot wound, paying him with a bill which is later traced to the doctor. Miss Dvorak, hitch-hiker, is picked up by MacLane, forced to participate in a raid on the town's bank.

She is shot trying to escape, and Muni protects and helps her. MacLane needs Muni again and at the same time kidnaps Miss Dvorak, while the G-Men prepare to close in on the hideout. Muni frightens the gang with talk of disease and injects dope into each of them. Romance with Miss Dvorak and the respect of the town are his.

Pennsylvania Spots Use Sunday Trailers

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 1. — Between now and the general election in November, theatres will show one-minute trailers urging the electorate to vote in favor of Sunday shows. The shorts, while sponsored by Warners and made on the coast under the supervision of George Bilson, will feature stars from all of the lots in Hollywood.

Some of the independently-owned theatres are not expected to show the trailers, since they are lined up against seven-day shows. It is freely predicted that the referendum will pass without much trouble in the state's two leading cities, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, but the circuits are worried about the smaller communities.

Under the terms of the bill, shows on the Sabbath are a matter of local option entirely.

Yorke Resigns from Fox

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 1.—Gabe Yorke has resigned from the Twentieth Century-Fox publicity department, effective Oct. 15. Since Harry Brand recently took over the studio publicity department Yorke has been handling the department's exploitation division.

Mamoulian in Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—Rouben Mamoulian is here with a new stage production, "Porgy and Bess," for which George Gershwin penned the music. It is a Theatre Guild piece.

Short Subjects

"The Great Air Mystery"

(Universal)

Taken from the newspaper cartoon strip by Hal Forrest, which should in itself mean a good exhibitor buildup exploitation opportunity, this action yarn of "Tailspin Tommy," played by Clark Williams, has plenty in it for the youngsters in the serial line. The first three chapters of the 12 recount how Tommy and his buddy, played by Noah Beery, Jr., are hired to take air pictures of an oil field on a Pacific island, and of how they are beset by the menacing factors, headed by Mathew Betz. A dirigible crash at sea in a storm, dog fights between planes, crashes and anti-aircraft guns all serve to put into the serial real action of the sort which should bring the youngsters up in their seats. Romance is handled by Clark and Jean Rogers. Production Code Seal Nos. 1126, 1127 and 1128. Running time, each episode, 21 mins. "G."

"Bird Scouts"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

A novel idea, cleverly illustrated and executed, makes this color cartoon suitable for most audiences. With birds as scouts, the offering has them in camp. One lazy bird is punished by being confined in a cage and hoisted up a tree. A marauding cat attacks the remaining part of the troop and makes off with them. The confined bird escapes and goes to the rescue, causing the cat to almost drown. Saved from drowning by the good turn of the lazy bird the cat is grateful and becomes a good scout. Production Code Seal No. 0,506. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Amateur Broadcast"

(Universal)

Another in the current group of cartoons burlesquing the present amateur radio hour rage, this rates as average. Oswald, the Rabbit, is the announcer, and his amateurs include a kangaroo quartet, a lamb which cannot make the grade, and a one-man band in the form of an octopus. A tough looking frog seeks to hog the mike until he is neatly disposed of. Production Code Seal No. 940. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Beach Masters"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

An interesting bit of natural history. Breeding habits of seals on an island in the Bering Sea are the subject of this short. Photographed to fine advantage, it should be found satisfying to audiences. Exceptional shots of the animals in amorous, fighting and playful moments enlivens it. Altogether it should be of general appeal. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 1,308. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Monkey Love"

(Columbia)

The amorous problem of a monkey and his "heart" in the face of ferocious competition of a gorilla is the carbon copy that patterns the plot of this color cartoon. When the villainous gorilla molests the hero's sweetheart an army of vermin comes to the rescue. With the terror out of the way love pursues its course. Production Code Seal No. 1,014. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Hat" Leads St. Louis on $15,700 Take

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—"Top Hat" did here what it has been doing in key cities and smaller towns everywhere—led the first run takes by a wide margin. The $15,750 gross at the Orpheum was over normal by $7,250. It was held over.

"My Song for You" and "Dante's Inferno" also proved a winning combination, as the $18,900 take at the Fox was above par by $6,900.

"Dark Angel" proved something of an angel for the box-office at Loew's State with a take of $13,500, or $4,500 better than average.

"Bright Lights" and "Wanderer of the Wasteland," a dual at the Shubert-Rialto did $8,800, which is $2,300 above the average pull for that house, while "Storm Over the Andes" and "Old Homestead," also a dual at the Missouri, checked out with a total for the week of about $8,000, which happens to be that house's average.

"Diamond Jim" was within $300 of normal on a take of $3,700 at the Midwest, but "Two for Tonight," "Storm Over the Andes" and "Hot Tip" failed to make much of an impression.

Openings Continue In K. C. Territory

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 1.—Openings in this territory are numerous. William Wagner has reopened the remodeled Beldorf at Independence, Kan. This house is a landmark.

J. L. Binney has opened the new Binney in Pattonsburg. The house is completely new. T. H. Slowthower has opened the new Southern in Wichita, Kan. This house is of modernistic design. The Meade brothers have reopened the Meade in Kingman, Kan., after a remodeling job. Also, C. A. Bull has bought property and a building to erect a theatre in Hillsboro, Kan. At an estimated cost of $40,000 this town of 1,800 will have its first theatre. Commonwealth Amusement Corp. has opened the Royal at Trenton with Wendell Lenhart in charge.

Six Open in Middletown

MIDDLETOWN, O., Oct. 1.—With the reopening of the Sorg Opera House and the Strand last week, there are six houses in operation here with a combined seating capacity of 6,000. The population is 30,000, or one seat to every five inhabitants.

To take care of colored patrons, for whom a section is reserved in the balcony, the Sorg Opera House, which was reopened last week by the Gordon Theatre Co., employs a colored usher. This in addition to the corps of regular balcony ushers who look after the white trade.

The service is without precedent in this territory.

Add Nickel for "Gifts"

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 1. — Gift night in some of the houses here means an extra nickel added onto the admission price if you take the "gift."

Albie Booth, former Yale football star, and Harold June, who was with Byrd at the South Pole, act as master of ceremonies at Norwalk theatres for sponsored gift contests.

Chicago Agreement Due

Chicago, Oct. 1.—The clearance problem, with B. & K. wanting seven days between C week and first run, is due for early settlement. Independent exhibitors may threaten with a boycott of Paramount films if a satisfactory agreement is not reached. They claim moving the schedule ahead one week in A or B classification will not help. It is understood B. & K. is demanding and getting clearance in contracts with some exchanges, but independents claim this is illegal, and they will take the matter to court if necessary. A meeting is set for tomorrow to settle the matter. Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, here, says the local situation is healthier than anywhere he has been.

See Phila. Settlement

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The five-week disagreement between musicians and theatre managers is expected to be settled here today. The Earle opens its stage show on Friday and the Fox is bringing back shows Oct. 11. The Fox agreement is reported to call for 15 men all day with 20 men alternating on part time. The Earle agreement, similar, calls for fewer men. The demand of the union for more men employed on part time was the source of the trouble.

"Hat," "Melody" Big Portland Holdovers

PORTLAND, Oct. 1.—Two holdovers held up in a big way here. "Top Hat," in its third downtown week, was good for $4,000, over a first week normal by $1,000.

"Broadway Melody of 1936" was strong at $6,000 in its second week at the United Artists. This tops par by $1,000.

Total first run business was $31,200. Average is $24,700.

Stage Shows Return To Columbus; Held

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1. — "Folies Bergere," playing the RKO Palace last week, the first stage show of the new season at that house, held over this week. Although heavily exploited, including an $800 Neon sign on the marquee, the expense of which will be split with Cleveland, when the attraction plays there, the gross only went a trifle over the $10,000 mark.

"Hot Tip" was the screen feature. This week it is to be "Here Comes Cookie," plus the Baer-Louis fight pictures. An effort was made to transfer the show to Detroit for this week, but this was impossible, due, it is said, to union conditions there.

Lesser Signs Jessel

HOLLYWOOD Oct. 1.—George Jessel today signed with Sol Lesser as a producer-actor-author. His first assignment is to produce and act in "The Show Must Go On," starring young Bobby Green. Harry Arthur Expected To Be First Witness

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—Twelve jurors were definitely selected today to decide the anti-trust charges instituted by the Government and for which indictments have been returned against Harry M. The opening session today lasted six hours. At 5:30 court was adjourned, leaving two alternate jurors to be selected from eight to be called tomorrow.

Altogether 21 jurors were interrogated by both sides before final selections were announced. Two were challenged, one excused because of a bad cold and six eliminated by peremptory challenges.

Mexicans Threaten Theatre Closings

By JAMES LOCKHART

Mexico City, Oct. 2.—The Federation of Workers and Peasants, Mexico's strongest labor organization, asserts that it means what it says when it threatens to close all theatres in Mexico next Friday.

The move is aimed to help striking employees of American distributors who timed their walkout in the midst of negotiations to secure tax cuts from the Government.

The Confederation of Chambers of Commerce is urging that a mixed commission of Government representatives be named to investigate the plight of the industry and to reduce import duties on films in order to permit it to survive.

Wampas Winding Up As an Organization

Hollywood, Oct. 2.—The Wampas, coast press agent organization, came to an end here last night following a meeting of 40 members who were unable to suggest a plan to revive interest within the group and decided on a voluntary end. Dissolution plans will be formed immediately. The assets probably will be divided among the 65 active members. The Wampas started 15 years ago as one of the industry's strongest organizations.

Only 12 Films Are Banned Of 1,749 Viewed By Censor

Of 1,749 pictures — features and shorts — reviewed by the New York state censors during the year ended June 30, 1935, only 12 were rejected completely. Three of these were later revised and approved, according to the annual report of the Motion Picture Division of the State Department of Education, made public yesterday by Irwin Esmond, director of the division.

Eliminations were made in 225 films upon statutory grounds. Of the total number reviewed, 769 were features and 980 were short subjects, the classification taking all pictures having five or more reels as features.

There were 1,868 eliminations of scenes, sub-titles or dialogue. The statutory reasons for the eliminations were: 604, indecent; 628, immoral or tending to corrupt morals; 436, tending to incite to crime; 136, inhuman; 64, sacrilegious, according to the report.

In all, 8,745 reels, or approximately 9,000,000 feet of film were reviewed during the year.

During the year five appeals were taken to the Commissioner of Education. In three cases the division was sustained, in one case reversed, and one appeal is pending.

Total receipts of the division during the fiscal year were $238,613.39, as compared with $231,497.88 for the preceding year, an increase of $7,115.51. The expenditures of the division were $61,197.59, as compared with $60,827.09 for the previous year. The net revenue to the state, after deducting operating cost, was $177,415.80, comparing with $170,670.79 for the preceding year.

Few Cuts in Ohio

Columbus, Oct. 2.—Of a total of 557 reels reviewed by the Ohio state censor board in September, 541 of them were passed. This means that eliminations were made in only 16 reels.

Starr to Hold Ascap Post Until Year End

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—Herman Starr, Warner treasurer, said today he would remain as a member of the board of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers until Jan. 1 in an effort to straighten out the difficulties between the latter organization and Warners. If his efforts are successful, it was intimated, he would continue on the Ascap board.

Starr said that he had been informed

Theatre Tax Levies Jump In Manhattan

Manhattan theatre assessments have been boosted $350,000 for 1936 by the Department of Taxes and Assessments. This is a gain of $200,000 for theatres in buildings owned by film companies and a gain of $150,000 for theatre buildings alone.

Brooklyn theatre assessments declined $10,000 and on theatres in office buildings the levy remains the same. Assessments also were lowered $50,000 in Queens on buildings and theatres. In the Bronx there was no change. In Richmond there was a decline of $10,000.

Slight Hopes Held for New Industry Code

MPTOA Sentiment Veers To Regional Plans

Little or no possibility of the adoption of a voluntary trade practice code by the industry is seen by exhibitor leaders affiliated with the M.P.T.O.A., it was learned yesterday. This was made evident through scores of replies from regional exhibitor association members to an M.P.T.O.A. bulletin circulated during July, which asked for viewpoints and suggestions on the drafting of a fair and workable voluntary code. Responses to the bulletin have been pouring into M.P.T.O.A. headquarters throughout the summer and recently were gathered together and analyzed.

A preponderance of exhibitor thought, the analysis of the replies disclosed, saw no advantage to be gained by the industry through adoption of a voluntary code of doubtful enforceability, and many saw distinct disadvantages in an invitation to Federal agencies to take over industry regulation without compensating benefits in return. Distinct sentiment for a form of trade practice regulation

Wage Deal Program Is Presented to 306

Progress in the new wage scale negotiations with circuits was reported to a membership meeting of Local 306 in Brooklyn yesterday by the union's negotiating committee. The report included the recent agreement on a basic scale of $2.40 per hour for Broadway de luxe houses, including the Music Hall and Capitol, in place of the former $2.55 per hour rate. The agreement leaves only a scale for two-a-day and road show houses to be decided upon.

No meeting of the negotiating committee was held with theatre representatives yesterday but it is expected that what may be the final meeting will be called for some time today.

Stay Is Sought for Sweepstakes Makers

Injunction proceedings were filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Playmore Premiums, Inc., against Charles Streimer, doing business as the Streimer Ad Service. Also named as defendants were Charles Streimer and Abraham Schreiber, doing business as Weartex Products. The complaint of Playmore Premiums states that it is in the business of manufacturing a game called Sweepstakes (Lucky Game) and the necessary products used in the game since June 27, 1935. "Thereafter," the complaint avers, "the defendants without authority imitated the plaintiff's 'Sweepstakes'."

The defendants entered a denial and further declared that on June 6, 1935, Abraham Schreiber invented Sweepstakes and that Schreiber gave information concerning Sweepstakes to Seymour Stern and Seymour Premiums, Inc., in strict confidence, solely for the purpose of entering into an agreement for the sale of the game. The defendant asserts that in a breach of confidence Seymour Stern caused Playmore Premiums to be organized for the manufacture of Sweepstakes, as devised by Schreiber. The defendants further charge that Seymour Stern and Seymour Premiums, Inc., are intimidating exhibitors by threatening to enjoin them and to sue if they use Sweepstakes now being sold by the defendant. The defendants are counter suing for an injunction on their own grounds and also asking for an award of $50,000 damages.

School Head Praises Filming of "Dream"

Warners deserve commendation for filming "A Midsummer Night's Dream," states Dr. John S. Roberts, associate superintendent of schools in charge of high schools, in a letter to H. M. Warner.

Dr. Roberts was active in a movement for film betterment some months ago.

His commendation was contained in a letter accepting 1,500 complimentary tickets for use of high school students for the first matinee showing of the picture at the Hollywood on Oct. 10.

AFA Using Pickets To Aid Vaudeville

Times Square got something new in the way of picketing yesterday when the American Federation of Actors sent out a group of members with sandwich boards to urge people not to patronize theatres without stage shows.

which could be administered entirely within the industry and preferably through local organizations was revealed.

The replies showed complete agreement with the analysis of the problem of trade practice regulations made by Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, in the July bulletin and pledged support to the organization head in whatever reasonable program of self regulation that could be devised. Kuykendall was given an exploratory commission for the purpose of acquainting himself and the organization with responsible exhibitor sentiment on the subject and fashioning from his findings a report or recommendations on means of establishing workable trade practice regulations.

Kuykendall is now in Chicago in the course of a visit to association and exhibitor leaders in a number of key cities, where he will gather local viewpoints and report back to a meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. board to be called.

Want Local Groups

Exhibitor sentiment, responses to the bulletin discloses, is especially strong for the development of local organizations empowered to settle local problems with a minimum of home office participation. The idea suggests strong local exhibitor organizations with representatives designated to deal with local distributor organizations to which full authority has been granted by home offices to act in settling of controversies.

Widespread endorsement was voiced to that part of Kuykendall's July bulletin which stated: "We believe that no all-inclusive organization of this industry is practical or possible, but there is no reason why organized exhibitors should not negotiate and deal with organized distributors, both locally and nationally, attacking our mutual problems one by one and doing the best we can to reach honest, practical and satisfactory solutions and adjustments."

Lack of Advantages

The M.P.T.O.A. sentiment suggests a definite abandonment of the idea of adopting a voluntary industry code for reasons of impracticability and lack of advantages to be derived. It leaves the committee appointed by Code Authority in its last days as the only industry group interested now in a study of the formation of a voluntary code. J. Robert Rubin of M-G-M, chairman of this committee, said yesterday that the group had been inactive for several months past due to his absence in Europe during the summer and, thereafter, to other more pressing matters which had engaged several members of the committee. Austin C. Keough of Paramount and Harold S. Bareford of Warners, members of the committee, have been occupied with the Federal court action in St. Louis involving their companies. Rubin said, however, that the committee would probably resume activity later and make a report on its findings. He declined to give his own opinion of the desirability of a voluntary code.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Three Musketeers"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—Although this production is not lacking in swordplay or hard riding it, nevertheless, skirts some of the expected fiery dash and romantic flavor of the Dumas novel.

Walter Abel plays D'Artagnan with naive restraint, making the character less explosive and vivacious and more boyish. Ian Keith, as De Rochefort, has been made an arch villain, while Nigel de Brulier, as Richelieu, is an incidental tool as much a victim of Keith as Miles Mander, who portrays the King.

Musketeers Paul Lukas, Onslow Stevens and Moroni Olsen come closest to personifying the characters as conceived by Dumas although concentration on the plot incidents forces the audience to accept their close friendship, rather than see it developed. Margot Grahame, as Milady, contributes an outstanding performance, shading the character nicely and reaching dramatic heights particularly in one scene where she bests D'Artagnan. Heather Angel is well cast as Constance and carries the romantice theme with Abel suitably. Rosamund Pinchot, as the Queen, seems miscast.

The direction by Rowland V. Lee is intelligent and the chase sequences directed by Otto Brower are exciting.

The popularity of the Dumas novel should act as sufficient draw to assure the necessary grosses in most localities.

Code History Going Over to Next Year

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—No history of the film code will be written by the NRA until next year. It is being held up awaiting the investigation of the industry which is now being made.

The code history will be one of some 400 or 500 which are being written under a plan to make available a complete survey of the negotiation, operation and benefits of each code. The investigation is one of a dozen or more undertaken to study conditions under codes.

Original plans for the film industry study contemplated a complete investigation, but inasmuch as the NRA expires next April the scope has been reduced so that it may be completed by early December. As soon as the material developed by the investigation is ready the history will be written.

first engagements. Specific cases are "The Dark Angel," which played 10 days at Loew's State and Grauman's Chinese; "Broadway Melody of 1935," which was held a second week, and "China Seas," which was held over for the same period. "Top Hat," booked for one week at the Hillstreet and the Pantages, played four weeks.

Since all of these houses have been playing dual bills until recently, and without holdovers, product has not been held up for release to the subsequent run house. But, with these extended runs of single bills, operators are having to scramble for second rate films and are using giveaways.

Duals Gain Slowly In Denver Theatres

ones to use them constantly. Seventeen do not double bill at all.

In some neighborhoods, notably South Denver, double billing is in the minute minority. In North Denver all five houses double bill at least once a week, and some of them on two programs or more weekly.

In the first runs only the Paramount and Broadway have double billed since the first of the year, each of them five times. Harry Huffman, who controls these, as well as two other first runs, two downtown subsequents and a neighborhood, is opposed to double bills.

Famous Continues Duals

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 2.—Current scales and double billing are to be continued in Famous Players Canadian houses, according to J. J. Fitzgibbons, who is here for a convention of British Columbia managers of theatres.

Fitzgibbons said nothing had been decided regarding stage shows, but admitted there was a chance that occasional vaudeville bills and revues might be used here.

Discuss Dual Ban

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—Flint exhibitors will meet soon to discuss renewal of their agreement banning dual bills except on one change a week.

The agreement ends this month, and several of the smaller theatre owners, dissatisfied with the results, have definitely stated that they will not sign it again.

Starr to Hold Ascap Post Until Year Ends

by wire today of his appointment to the operating committee of Ascap at its meeting last Thursday in New York. Starr was in this city at the time of the meeting.

Warners, he said, have two points which must be ironed out before a decision can be made on the company's continuing as a member of Ascap. They are the classification of music publishers and the obtaining of a very substantial increase in revenue from the radio broadcasting of Warner-owned music. Warners control Harms, Remick, Witmark and a number of other music publishing subsidiaries, all members of Ascap.

Starr said he had attended only one meeting of the Ascap board, that of Sept. 19. He said that the organization is not after increases in exhibitor licensing rates and observed that the latter have the right to cancel their contracts with Ascap upon 30 days' notice.

Jury Picked As St. Louis Trial Starts

& Marco circuit, which is responsible for interesting the Government in bringing the criminal and equity actions here, is understood on reliable authority to be scheduled as the first Government witness when the trial actually gets under way tomorrow. It is understood Thomas K. Dysart will follow Arthur on the stand.

The greater part of tomorrow morning's session is expected to be taken up with the interrogation of jurors. During the last few minutes of this afternoon's session Frederick Wood, representing Warner companies and individuals indicted, objected to the selection of alternate jurors or impaneling extras on the ground the act of June 29, 1932, was unconstitutional. He was joined by William R. Gentry, acting for Schaefer and Paramount, and Jacob M. Lashly, representing RKO companies and Depinet. Judge George H. Moore overruled the objection immediately.

To Name Alternates

Although Harry Mannist, millinery manufacturing agent here, and Louis Miller, employed at a plant at Ironton, Mo., were the two remaining jurors on the list not to be called, District Attorney Harry C. Blanton suggested that the marshal call three others tomorrow and from this list of five two alternates will be named. Former Senator James A. Reed recommended that five or six additional men be called with Judge Moore agreeing. Again the court room was crowded with more than 100 witnesses, spectators, lawyers, newspaper and trade men in attendance. Sears' mother, who operates the Strand, Nashville, Ill., is here as an interested onlooker. Her son is one of the six film executives indicted.

Jurors selected are: Edward Panhorts, 55, in feed store business at St. Clair; W. H. Stubblefield, 41, in the local real estate and loan business; Bruce Bergman, 29, salesman in dairy business at Salem; H. C. Applegate, 78, of Richmond Heights, retired; Erwin Weber, 37, in garage business at St. Charles; George Fullerton, 62, colored, waiter at local York Hotel; Charles L. Krause, 70, retired; George Atwood, 31, bank clerk at Ferguson; Charles E. Calif, 44, salesman in local trunk firm; Otto G. Dietz, 62, general contractor; Joseph G. Eddy, 53, local real estate agent; Emil H. Lauter, 73, local coal salesman.

Reed challenged Edmund A. Schatzman, 53, local office manager of commercial radio company, on the ground that several years ago he had bought a $1,000 bond in the Ambassador Theatre Building, later selling it to his mother. Schatzman did not know whether his mother still had the bond or not. Russell Hardy challenged Henry J. Butler, 30, of local lighting and fixture company on the ground he owns 200 shares of Warner common stock. When interrogated earlier in the day, Butler frankly admitted he also possessed 50 shares of Loew common, but despite these interests both men asserted they would render a fair and just decision and that their stock interests would have no bearing in determining the case.

Peremptorily challenged were: Valley Reyburn, 51, local insurance broker; A. T. Chambers, 47, president of Dios Chemical Company of St. Louis; George Townsend, 47, unemployed, of Maplewood; G. A. Burns, 43, assistant manager of the operating department of the local Shell Petroleum office; Matthew F. J. Byrnes, local salesman of silks and rayons; Edgar E. Dierker, 37, unemployed salesman of Valley Park. In the list of those challenged without reasons it is noted that only two unemployed men are included. The two retired men, one 70 and the other 78, were kept on the jury.

Reed tried to disqualify certain jurors because of age but Judge Moore overruled him on this point. Oliver M. Evans, assistant manager of a local zinc company, did not show up while Chester P. Schaum of University City and L. M. Stewart of Webster Groves, were excused until Nov. 8 and Oct. 8, respectively. B. W Stemmrich of St. Louis was excused to Oct. 7, while Herbert P. Hirsekern of this city was granted leave until Oct. 14.

Blanton took about two hours this morning interrogating and examining the 18 jurors on various questions, principally if the men had ever been interested in the film business and whether they knew any of the witnesses, lawyers or others interested in the case.

Samuel Fordyce, acting for all defendants, spent more than Blanton's time in his examination of the jurors. After his first hour Judge Moore asked Fordyce to speed up matters. Fordyce then asked the 18 jurors if the case lasted three or four weeks would it work a hardship on them, to which all agreed it would except the colored waiter who said, "I'll go through with it."

Before dismissing the jurors, Moore cautioned them not to read newspapers or discuss the case with anyone. Harry and Milton Arthur, Jack Partington and Irving Lesser were not in court today, while every other principal witness sat through the protracted session.

On the Lighter Side

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—Every time someone has his picture taken something is bound to happen. The other day when Harry M. Warner had his photo snapped, the flashlight was mistaken for lightning. Ned E. Depinet was about to have his facsimile recorded when an explosion was heard in the corridor. The photographer, about to take a shot, accidentally let the flash bulb slip, but Depinet laughed it off.

Trial or no trial, grosses go on forever. Film men here for the court proceedings have by no means failed to observe the terrific business which "Broadway Melody of 1936" and the Louis-Baer fight pictures are doing at Loew's State.

Charlie Kurtzman is treating the visiting press royally. He handed the out-of-town newspaper and tradespaper men special courtesy passes for the F. & M. Ambassador, Missouri and Fox with a note on it "Good anytime until Nov. 1."

Renewals will be in order at the rate the criminal and equity cases are progressing.

Milton B. Arthur, who says he comes from the orange belt, says he's positively not going to send the gang here oranges. He is thinking of sending pineapples instead. Not the kind that comes from Hawaii.

Irving Lesser, Jack Partington and Arthur like to hike from the Ambassador to the Fox, both F. & M. houses. They are more than a mile apart and, incidentally, both are day-and-dating "She Married Her Boss" with "Thunder in the Night."

Many of the witnesses are mourning the fact that they will not be able to attend the World Series in Detroit and Chicago. One of the rumors which proved false was that Warners was trying to get a continuance of the indictment trial until after the series.

Cresson Smith of RKO sat by his lonesome. He makes a distinguished looking figure with his patch of grey hair.

Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr and E. K. Hessberg, are a threesome that sits together no matter in what section of the courtroom they manage to find seats.

Bing!

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—Out here where a man isn't a gentleman if he misses one of those broad-brimmed brass receptacles in hotel corridors and elsewhere a chew is a "chaw" and target practice is a fine art.

H. M. Warner discovered this in court yesterday, and today he is walking around bareheaded. His hat slipped to the floor.

Former U. S. Senator James A. Reed had another remark to direct to the court and he cast a swift glance across the floor. It was too swift, but his aim was perfect.

He apologized and tried to clean the inside of the hat, but gave it up with a good old-fashioned midwestern: "To hell with it!"

The janitor may have better luck.

Rhoden Sees Skouras

St. Louis, Oct. 2. — Elmer C. Rhoden, operating head of Fox Midwest, spent the day here conferring with Spyros Skouras and Lou Cox, the latter local division head. He also looked in on the Government anti-trust trial.

Ralph C. LiBeau, Paramount's division manager in this area, is back in Kansas City following talks with Neil F. Agnew.

Pictures Alone Seen Counting at Center

The invitational performance at the Center last night, prior to the regular opening of the theatre this morning, demonstrated conclusively that whatever measure of success this second and smaller of the Rockefeller Center theatres may enjoy, will depend on the screen and not on the stage.

B. A. Rolfe acted as master of ceremonies and, with his orchestra in the pit, variously introduced Louise Florea, the Viking Quartette and Phil Duey, all vocalizers. With both eyes turned up Sixth Ave. to the Music Hall, the sets were unimportant and small.

The feature, "Here's to Romance," proved banal in story and anti-climactic but strong in Nino Martini's singing. His several arias induced spontaneous applause. It was well deserved. K.

FWC Refuses ITO Plea on Giveaways

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—The I.T.O. here today made a futile effort to obtain a 10-day extension from Fox West Coast in the circuit's move to use giveaways throughout the local territory, it was learned following a meeting of the I.T.O. board and F.W.C. The extension was asked in order to call a meeting of all independent exhibitors for further study of the racket situation, which has reached a dangerous level in Los Angeles.

Harry Vinnicoff, I.T.O. president, said he will call a meeting of independents next Tuesday, when a complete report on rackets will be made and a course of action planned. F.W.C. executives feel that the independents had plenty of warning to halt the racketeering methods before the circuit retaliated and the circuit will not listen to future independent proposals.

Wrongful Transfer Is Charged in Suit

Charges of wrongful transfer of real estate and leases were filed in the Manhattan Supreme Court yesterday by Louis Schwartz, Jack R. Spratz and Samuel Weiss against Knickerbocker Theatres, Inc., Clinton-Apollo Theatre Corp., Emesco Amusement Corp., Greater M. & S. Circuit, Inc., M. & S. Circuit, Inc., 98-108 Avenue A Corp. and the Eastside Theatres.

The plaintiffs set forth that last year they obtained a judgment for $13,000 against the Greater M. & S. Circuit, Inc., and that subsequently in order to avoid payment of the judgment, the judgment debtor transferred its real property to the other defendants. The defendants have entered a denial to the charges.

First Division Adds To Its Sales Staff

Additions to the First Division territorial offices have been made involving the appointment of Sam Milberg, Albany salesman; M. C. Howard and W. M. Specht for the Florida and Georgia offices, respectively; Harry Goldman and Eugene Gross, salesmen at the Boston office; I. Levine at New Haven has been assigned to the Connecticut territory; Joseph P. Lefko, salesman at Cleveland; Tony Ricci and Jack Farkas, Long Island and New Jersey, respectively.

Morritt Davis, former salesman at the Atlanta exchange, has been made manager of the Charlotte office. At the same exchange, C. Alexander and G. Atkinson, have been appointed salesmen.

Andrea Sues RCA

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 2.—F. A. D. Andrea, Inc., filed suit here today in United States District Court against RCA for injunctive relief, charging restraint of trade and monopoly. It is charged that in 1919 RCA entered into conspiracy with various other companies to obtain a monopoly in radio apparatus and especially in the manufacture and sale of radio broadcasting receivers. Patent pooling is also charged. Andrea asks an injunction restraining RCA from refusing to grant it a license as to others, or a mandatory injunction requiring the defendant to grant such a license.

Local Control For Industry Rule Favored

MPTOA Said to Lean Toward a New Setup

The establishment of new field organizations by distributors, empowered to meet with local exhibitor representatives to hear and settle trade practice complaints, is favored by exhibitor leaders associated with M.P.T.O.A. as an integral part of any new plan for the voluntary regulation of industry trade practices, it was learned yesterday.

The new distributor field organizations would be neither a revival of the Film Boards of Trade nor of the old arbitration boards, but would, instead, comprise a representation of local exchangemen empowered by home offices to take independent action on trade practice complaints of a local character. Complaints involving national policy of any company, such as the payment of score charges, would be outside the jurisdiction of the local industry courts. The distributor organizations could be established in

Hearings Near End In Fox Stock Suit

Hearings on the Chicago Title & Trust Co.'s action seeking the recovery of $1,000,000 from William Fox for alleged defaults on the redemption of Roxy Theatre stock may be concluded today or tomorrow, attorneys identified with the litigation said yesterday. The hearings opened before Referee Sol Stroock last spring, and all of the sessions have been closed to the press and public.

Several months are expected to elapse following the close of the hearings before the referee makes his report and recommendations to the court on the testimony taken.

Company Union Fear Bars Long 306 Pact

The fear of being branded a company union will cause Local 306 to reject any proposal for signing a contract of longer than two years' duration with circuit operators here, a representative of the union said yesterday. Circuits are asking for a 10-year pact embracing the new wage scales which have been agreed upon, while Local 306 favors a one-year agreement. A compromise on a two-year contract is regarded as likely.

Indications are that with this point

Anti-Trust Cases Against Individuals Not Uncommon

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Indictment of individuals for violation of the anti-trust laws is by no means unusual, according to officials of the Department of Justice. Discussing the situation in St. Louis, where officials of companies have been named as defendants, it was pointed out today that all criminal proceedings involve individuals.

Officials further pointed out that criminal proceedings are started often. While figures for the fiscal year 1935 are not yet available, the department's report for 1934 shows that out of 10 cases instituted under the anti-trust acts, nine involved individuals, while out of 12 cases pending at the beginning of the year three involved individuals.

While a number of factors enter into the department's determination as to whether civil or criminal suits shall be brought, or both, it was explained, decision to engage in criminal prosecution largely hinges on whether the

Clearance Not Upset in K. C., States Rhoden

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—Just before he left for Kansas City to attend a meeting today of the board of Fox Midwest, which he regarded as routine, Elmer C. Rhoden, operating head of the circuit, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that all theatres are operating under the same availabilities as when the code was in effect.

Rhoden said that the clearance schedule hasn't been changed and that he has not up to this time seen the oft-reported, new clearance setup allegedly promulgated by independent exhibitors in his territory.

He did admit, however, that independent and other theatres with the same admissions as Fox Midwest houses have to bid for prior run on all product. He asserted that he would not play day-and-date with theatres he regards as competitive and charging identical prices. Rhoden said that for those houses he has designated as competitive to his, the exhibitor charging the same admission will follow him the day after his units get through with the pictures.

Italy Puts Shorts Under Dubbing Ban

ROME, Oct. 3.—The ban on foreign dubbing for imported pictures has been extended to shorts and a shift in tax has been made as a result. Under the new arrangement the dubbing tax on both shorts and features will be 10 per cent of the profits, with a minimum of 15,000 lira per feature.

Italian producers will be exempted from the tax up to five dubbings of 15,000 lira each, and the tax will be reduced 50 per cent for importers investing their profits in Italian films.

Giveaways Are Credited With Chicago Gains

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Exhibitors here admit freely that giveaways are not a legitimate part of their business, but they feel, nevertheless, that they have been an important stimulant and have made it possible to stay away from duals.

This is important from the financial standpoint, they insist, because they feel that duals would have put them back to where they were months ago —in the red.

Hundreds of local showmen say that had it not been for the giveaway games last summer they would have had to close. They maintain that the product they had to offer then was far from the calibre needed to attract patrons. More than 60 houses in Chicago which usually are dark during the summer remained open this year and were on the profit side of the ledger.

In the deluxe neighborhood houses which seat from 3,000 to 5,000 persons double features were profitable. This policy wreaked havoc among smaller

Bay State Theatres Watch Beano Attack

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Massachusetts exhibitors are watching Federal moves to crack down on Beano which has swept the state in recent months under the sponsorship of various charitable organizations. The prizes reached a new record high at a recent church party in Worcester.

Court Denies St. Louis Plea For Mistrial

Defense Counsel Object To Address of Hardy

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—Motions made by former Senator James A. Reed, representing Warners, and William R. Gentry, for Paramount, for a mistrial on account of the misconduct of Russell Hardy, Government counsel, which they alleged was designed to prejudice and inflame the passion of the jury, were denied today by Federal Judge George H. Moore. Also denied was a motion by George Leisure, RKO attorney, to dismiss the RKO and Ned Depinet indictments on the ground that the opening statements by Hardy showed no case against the defendants he represented, as a matter of law.

Many of the statements made by the Government's counsel were objected to by attorneys for the indicted individuals and companies and overruled by the judge. Likewise Hardy objected to a number of the statements

Para. Theatre Deals Will Require Weeks

Negotiations for the working out by Paramount of new operating agreements for the Hoblitzelle-Interstate, A. H. Blank and Kunsky-Trendle circuits will probably extend over a period of weeks, a high Paramount official said yesterday.

The Kunsky-Trendle operating contract was extended for 30 days from Sept. 28 to provide additional time for negotiating. Karl Hoblitzelle is now in Hollywood discussing a new Interstate agreement with John E. Otterson, Paramount president, and is expected to accompany the latter when he returns here late next week for final conferences with the company's theatre heads. These circuits, with the Blank group, are the only ones whose agreements remain to be set.

Estimate St. Louis Fees at $1,000,000

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—Defense legal fees in the Government anti-trust case will run about $1,000,000, it is estimated, with Warners stacking up as the heaviest contributor, RKO second and Paramount last.

It is reported ex-Senator James A. Reed's retainer is $100,000 and that of Bruce Bromley and Frederick Wood jointly of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine and Wood is identical.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

"MUCH substantial and clear-thinking opinion is for a code, voluntarily conceived and operated. But the case of having their cake with no desire to eat it is neatly blocked by advice of counsel. The lawyers are afraid. They are afraid because of the anti-trust laws which they view as too great a problem to hurdle. It is their analysis that formulation and functioning of a voluntary code will make its signatories themselves responsible in the event conspiracy suits are launched. . . .

"These suits are anticipated. One authority who knows the ins and outs of this industry and much about the brain processes which are part of it refuses to waver in his prediction that a deluge of legal actions is about to descend upon the heads of major producers and distributors, with or without code. This being at all true, the reluctance on the part of lawyers to recommend a move along lines of voluntary codification, carrying with it the perils they foresee, becomes understandable and at once regrettable. . . .

"The day when no control except through legalistic redress prevailed would mark a deplorable return to archaic methods. Voluntary arbitration may furnish the answer; many there are who believe so. Perhaps the Film Board system, in its old, or in revised form, may turn the trick; Charlie Pettijohn is sure of it, which we are not. Sentiment in the field is decidedly mixed, some viewpoints arguing strongly for a voluntary method of solving difficulties, others preferring the wide open era of some years back when might, which is buying power in this industry, ruled dictatorially and ruthlessly from its throne on high." . . .

If you should happen to be grouped in the faithful reader category, this may carry a faintly familiar ring. It appeared in this column as far back as June 24 when, the code legally disposed of by the United States Supreme Court, speculation was much of the moment as to the future deportment of this industry and its trade practices. It might have been written afresh yesterday when came to light a completely authenticated story demonstrating that hopes for a voluntary industry code were rapidly subsiding. . . .

Exhibitor sentiment, it appears, is "especially strong for the development of local organizations empowered to settle local problems with a minimum of home office participation. The idea suggests strong local exhibitor organizations with representatives designated to deal with local distributor organizations to which full authority has been granted by home offices to act in settling of controversies." Such is the reflected hope of various of Ed Kuykendall's M.P.T.O.A. affiliated units. Naturally, exhibitor associations, in their own area, want all the strength they can muster. Natural, then, is their sentiment suggesting "a definite abandonment of the idea of adopting a voluntary industry code for reasons of impracticability and lack of advantages to be derived." . . .

Understandable as well is the normal desire of New York and its home offices to maintain the sphere of their influence and authority throughout the field. That places one group pulling in one direction and the other, also in one direction, but not at all necessarily the same. It seems to us a necessity that some set of rules of fair play be set forth to which the industry and its component parts must subscribe if more disorder than now prevails is not to run unbridled. The code, with its faults, rated consideration for its merits. Largely, it was a hefty-sized policeman on duty much, if not all, of the time cloaked with the authority to preserve a reasonable semblance of peace and quiet. Apparently, this seems to be the sort of a business requiring patrolling. . . .

Zanuck Reorganizes His Producing Staff

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.—Darryl F. Zanuck has reorganized the Twentieth Century-Fox production staff in a way that eliminates supervisors and puts all pictures in charge of associate producers. William E. Goetz, as executive assistant to Zanuck, heads the new group.

At the Westwood plant six producers will function. They are: Nunnally Johnson, Raymond Griffith, Kenneth Macgowan, B. G. DeSylva, Henry Duffy and Bogart Rogers. Sol Wurtzel will have John Stone and Edward T. Lowe as his aides.

Chattanooga Sunday Openings Legalized

CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 3.—Sunday films have been legalized by the City Commission starting not earlier than Oct. 13. The vote on final passage was four to one with Commissioner of Education T. H. McMillan casting the only opposing ballot.

Ministers of the city appeared before the commission and argued against the proposal.

Phila. Musicians Settle

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The anticipated settlement of the difficulty between musicians and the Earle calls for six basic men in the pit and 20 on half time, or an orchestra of 16 at all times. The Fox has 15 regularly and 20 half time. The musicians originally asked two orchestras on part time, but the theatres refused due to rehearsal difficulty. The use of a basic number of full time men at each show is believed to have overcome this objection.

Mack returned yesterday from a six weeks' European vacation and is expected to set a date for the hearing of applications for more than $800,000 for fees and expenses in the Fox Metropolitan reorganization within the next week. neighborhood spots. At the present time, with the giveaway games, the big houses are filled several times a week, as are the smaller houses, and everyone is happy. When Bank Night awards reach a high figure grosses for one night often equal or exceed those of a normal week. The plan now in use, demanding that all who participate in the Bank Night award have tickets, has increased grosses to a great extent and now all standees hold tickets which are good for any other night they may wish to use them if they are unable to get in on the night of the drawing.

One of the important executives of a local theatre group which has 200 members said:

"If it were not for the giveaway games double features would come back and that would be no less than a catastrophe at this time. If the games hold up, we can expect to get squared away in good shape, because it looks as though the line of new product is better than we have had for some time and that is the salvation of the whole situation."

A check among theatres shows that interest in the various games has waned very little. While it takes a big Bank Night award to draw a heavy crowd, the average gross is still high and Screeno, which is used in each house twice or three times a week, continues to draw a steady patronage considerably over the average without the game.

While other cities are having legal difficulties over the games, Chicago theatres have had none.

California Expects No Tax Boost Move

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 3.—A special legislative session to raise funds to reduce the $79,000,000 expected California deficit may be out of the picture.

Controller Ray L. Riley and other sources predict the proposed special session will not come because anti-severance tax sources and anti-admission tax people were fearful blows might be struck at them. Both revenue sources were turned down by the last session of the legislature which ended here this summer.

To some extent the special session still depends on how strong are Gov. Frank F. Merriam's ambitions to be president or vice-president. If he has those ambitions and wishes to clear up his "own backyard" to avoid criticism, he must call the special session.

Town Argues Over Films

RIDGEFIELD, Conn., Oct. 3. — Town officials are split on the leasing of Town Hall for films. First Selectman Winthrop E. Rockwell is the leader of the opposition and doubts that the town would benefit from such a move. George G. Scott, town clerk, is leading the backers of the plan and takes the stand that citizens should not be forced to go to Bridgeport or Danbury when they want to see a show.

The matter is expected to be referred to the voters Oct. 7.

Basso Profundo

An anti-noise campaign is an anti-noise campaign even though a taxi bumps Leon Leonidoff's automobile.

Leonidoff, according to the police, expostulated in overtones somewhat resembling the fortissimo of the Music Hall organ, instead of using his customary vocal modulation.

Yesterday he sent word to Magistrate Klapp that he was rehearsing a ballet, and could he have a postponement? It was granted until Tuesday.

Individuals in Trust Cases Not Uncommon

Government believes there has been a conspiracy in restraint of trade. Civil suits usually are brought where a number of concerns join in activities which restrain trade in violation of the law. Civil suits may be settled by consent decrees under which the defendants agree to discontinue their illegal practices, but criminal proceedings, of course, terminate only with a verdict.

Since the enactment of the Sherman Act in 1890 to June of this year, the Government has brought a total of 419 proceedings, 235 of them civil and 184 criminal, of which 390 have been terminated, 66 of them only after appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. Of the 235 civil proceedings brought, 60 terminated in decisions and 100 in consent decrees. Of the 184 criminal proceedings, convictions have been secured in 92, involving 2,587 defendants, who were fined a total of $2,321,384 and sentenced to prison for terms aggregating some 446 months.

It was pointed out that these figures indicate that about 40 per cent of all anti-trust proceedings are criminal and that convictions are secured in 50 per cent of the cases.

settled the new pacts between circuits and Local 306 will be signed, probably within a day or two. The union's negotiating committee will meet next with the larger independent circuits, such as Skouras, Randforce, Fabian and others. The Roxy is also waiting to negotiate a separate pact.

Negotiations for the merger of Allied M. P. Operators' union with Local 306 are progressing slowly and may require several months, it was said.

Close Projector Deal

Walter O. Gutlohn, Inc., producers and distributors of 16 mm. films, yesterday stated he had closed a deal with the RCA Mfg. Co. to sell projectors to churches and other institutions on a dual contract. Contracts signed will include the booking of ten 16 mm subjects for non-theatrical presentation. Gutlohn stated he has the exclusive 16 mm rights to the product of various companies including Pathe, Monogram, Master Arts and Mascot serials. At the present time over 100 pictures are ready for distribution, he added.

KAO Seeks Details In Skouras Action

Keith - Albee - Orpheum and the RKO 81st Street through Leon Goldberg, treasurer, filed an application in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday for a bill of particulars from Skouras Theatres Corp. in the latter's action against the RKO theatre and Twentieth Century-Fox.

Goldberg's affidavit explains that the action is one for damages allegedly caused by the acts of the defendants, other than Twentieth Century-Fox, and that the bill of particulars was necessary in order to prepare for trial. The affidavit explained further that the plaintiff is seeking a specific enforcement of a contract between Skouras and Twentieth Century-Fox which will necessitate a permanent injunction restraining the RKO 81st St. from exhibiting any Twentieth Century-Fox picture until seven days after it has been exhibited at the plaintiff's Riverside, Nemo, Riviera and Japanese Gardens.

Goldberg is demanding that the counsel for Skouras state each and every occasion during the 15-year period preceding Nov. 21, 1931, that Fox pictures were exhibited at the plaintiff's theatres and numerous other detailed contract data. A hearing on the RKO application was set for today before Justice William P. Collins. Skouras has obtained a temporary injunction and his application to have it made permanent is scheduled for Oct. 21 or soon thereafter.

the players are being victimized by racketeers. Promoters sell the idea to charitable groups on a promise of 50 per cent of the receipts, it is said.

The games got their start when the Legislature legalized Beano, bridge and other games for money prizes where the proceeds are for charitable, civic, educational or religious purposes, but Federal officials point out that this does not affect the Post Office Department's power to bar the mails to anything concerning them.

Federal moves have not altered plans of the American Legion to hold a Beano sweepstakes, tickets for which are now being sold.

In the midst of the general agitation Ernest Michelfelder, assistant manager of the Capitol at Fall River, has been fined for conducting a drawing on the stage after selling numbered tickets.

Broadcast Mouse Talk

An international telephone conversation between Hollywood and Paris in celebration of Mickey Mouse's seventh birthday will be broadcast this evening at 6:30 (Paris Time) in France as part of the anniversary celebration now in progress throughout Europe. File Amity Judgment every exchange center, the M.P.T.O.A. leaders believe, and, with sufficient authority delegated to them by home offices, could adjudicate in joint hearings with local exhibitor representatives, virtually every trade practice complaint arising locally.

A judgment for $4,492 was filed yesterday in the N. Y. Supreme Court in favor of the N. Y. Amity Exchange, Inc., against Essenem Pictures Corp. for money due on contract to exhibit 49 features. The contract was dated June 1, 1934.

These views were expressed in replies to an M.P.T.O.A. bulletin issued last July which requested members of the national organization to state what they believed could and should be done by way of trade practice regulation following the demise of the NRA code. The responses disclosed an almost complete lack of confidence in or support for a voluntary industry code, but reflected the view that the bulk of trade practice complaints could be adjusted satisfactorily in the territories in which they arise by properly delegated groups of exhibitors and distributors, each acting in its own territory.

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, is now engaged in gathering additional views on trade practice regulation in a tour of large mid-western cities. His findings in the course of the trip will be presented in the form of a report and recommendation on M.P.T.O.A. policy on future trade practice regulations at a forthcoming meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. board.

"Melody" and Fight Held in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—Harold ("Chick") Evens, manager of Loew's State, is holding over "The Broadway Melody of 1936" for a second week. The Louis-Baer fight pictures also continue for a second stand.

The house, which has an average of $12,000, had approximately double this figure by tonight. The musical is running neck and neck with the take on "China Seas," which played during August and which did a big matinee trade because of the summer school recess.

The State last week finished celebrating its 11th anniversary. After "The Broadway Melody of 1936" a double feature comprising "O'Shaughnessey's Boy" and "Bonnie Scotland" comes in. Every now and then a twin bill is programmed at this house. Prices will remain as it.

Heiman Wins Right To Orpheum Appeal

Judge Murray Hulbert in Federal Court yesterday allowed the petition of Marcus Heiman, trustee in bankruptcy for Orpheum Circuit, Inc., for an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals from an order which recently denied the trustees' petition to bring certain suits on behalf of the circuit.

by Reed, which were overruled by Judge Moore. Hardy took about two hours to complete his opening speech, which was made from a series of notes, while Reed spent approximately three hours to read his typewritten statement, which was uncompleted when court adjourned at 5 o'clock. Reed will resume tomorrow morning, with counsel for Paramount and then RKO following. Judge Moore announced at the end of today's session that the trial will resume in Federal Judge Davis' courtroom on the third floor in order to accommodate the great number of witnesses, lawyers and spectators who for four days have crowded the small court on the fourth floor of the post office building here.

Because of the lengthy opening speeches by Hardy and Reed no witnesses were able to take the stand today and it is doubtful whether any will be put on tomorrow.

Reads Indictments

Hardy opened his two-hour talk to the jury by reading the indictments handed down last Jan. 11 against 10 companies and six individuals. He said the defendants tried to coerce, intimidate and compel Fanchon & Marco to sell the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central to Warners, adding after he read the indictments that this was not evidence but simply an outline of the facts of the case.

The Government counsel stated that the three companies, Warners, Paramount and RKO, represented more than 50 per cent of the entire film business and that their combined assets amounted to more than $660,000,000. Reed objected to this as immaterial but was overruled. RKO and Paramount then noted their objections. Continuing, Hardy asserted that the film industry is the sixth largest, following which objections were made by defense counsel and overruled by the court.

"Warners is the largest of the three groups," Hardy stated, "and has six corporations and three individuals indicted. The company is in business about 12 years and in 1934 produced 16 per cent of all first class pictures."

Warners have assets of more than $168,000,000, Hardy said, and again objections by Reed and other defense counsel were overruled. The Government then stated Warners have 581 or more of the finest theatres in the country and again objections by Reed, Gentry and Jacob M. Lashly were denied by Judge Moore.

Hardy Traces History

Hardy then started to relate the history of the various companies and also the positions of various individuals indicted. He took Harry M. Warner's history first, stating that Warner was president, director and official of Warners and its subsidiaries; that he has been engaged in the business for 30 years or more and that he is a powerful and dominant figure in the industry. Herman Starr was next. He was said to be vice-president and director of Warners, president of First National and one of the principal executives of the corporation. Hardy stated Starr was in the business 20 years and his connection with the case centers about real estate and bond dealings.

Abel Carey Thomas, according to Hardy, is a director and secretary of Warners, a lawyer and general counsel, and has been with the company 11 years. The government lawyer said the evidence will show that Thomas has taken a leading and aggressive part in the case.

Gradwell Sears was described as western and southern sales manager for Warners, which includes the local territory, and has been in the business about 15 years or more.

The second group named by Hardy was Paramount, which he said has three corporations and one individual indicted. The special assistant attorney general then stated "These Paramount companies are part of a gigantic corporate cluster," and got no further when Gentry interposed to make an objection, which was overruled. Continuing, Hardy added that Paramount in 1934 produced more than 15 per cent of the first class pictures and has more than 12,000 theatres. Objections were again made and overruled. The government attorney declared that Paramount has more theatres than any other company in the world, to which Gentry vehemently objected. The court sustained Hardy, who then held that Paramount has $405,000,000 or more. This statement brought another objection by Gentry, which was overruled.

The special assistant attorney general asserted that at one time Warners and Paramount, through a subsidiary, were engaged in exhibition at the Ambassador, Missouri, and Grand Central, and until August, 1934, Paramount pictures were used at these houses. George J. Schaefer was described as vice-president, general manager and a director of this company and in the industry 12 years.

RKO was the third and last analyzed by Hardy, who started by saying, "This group is part of a gigantic cluster," to which Lashly voiced objections which Judge Moore overruled. Lashly objected on the ground that there is no testimony in effect to support the statement, which he regarded as highly prejudicial and made to inflame the passion of the jury. In 1934, Hardy continued, RKO produced 13 per cent or more of the first class films and this company, he said, has assets of $92,000,000 or more. Reed then took the floor to object but got nowhere. RKO has about 100 theatres, the Government lawyer said, and again Reed objected, with Lashly joining in, declaring Hardy's statement was "manifestly improper." Moore again held in favor of the Government, which continued by stating that until August, 1934, RKO films had been shown at the three local houses.

Hardy then declared Depinet is president of RKO, that he has been in the industry 25 years and that he has furnished active and indispensable and effective assistance in the alleged conspiracy to crush out of business these three theatres.

Local Field Analyzed

After his brief resume of the indicted individuals and corporations Hardy went into the history of the local theatre field, declaring the evidence will show that Warners wanted to take the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central away from Allen Snyder and F. & M., who had won in the bidding for the leases after Warners and Paramount, which had been operating the trio under a subsidiary, dropped them. To accomplish this purpose, Hardy said, Warners obtained the assistance of RKO and Paramount. The government counsel then outlined many of the details of various deals made in regard to three theatres; the part played by Skouras Super Theatres in 1928, and bringing the picture up to date. When Hardy used the word "legerdemain" Reed objected and was sustained. The former Senator was also upheld on an objection to Hardy's reference to "the acts being continued up to now by the defendant."

Mistrial Motion Denied

Summarizing, Hardy declared that last year the three defendant companies produced 48 per cent of all first class pictures, which are necessary and indispensable for the operation of first run theatres. He then added that film rentals paid each year totaled $220,000,000, to which objections were made and overruled. He then asserted that 72,000,000 feet of film is shipped each year. After this Reed strenuously objected on the ground the statements were outside of the indictment and moved for a mistrial because of misconduct on the part of the prosecutor. Judge Moore overruled the ex-Senator again. When Hardy said the evidence will show that "the three defense companies combined in a conspiracy," Frederick Wood made a motion for a mistrial, claiming the Government was trying to prejudice the jury and again Judge Moore refused to grant a new trial. Before closing, Hardy stated there are 86 theatres in St. Louis, seven of which are first runs, 10 second runs and 69 subsequents.

On the Lighter Side

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—Gradwell L. Sears' mother, who operates the State, Nashville, Ill., is constantly by the side of her son during the trial now unfolding in Judge Moore's Federal Court, Part 2.

The judge's office is on the third floor of the old Post Office Building, but the courtroom itself is on the floor above. Yesterday, Mrs. Sears was in happy spirits in the corridor during the lunch recess and in the group were Sears, George J. Schaefer, Jules Levy and Ned E. Depinet.

Judge George H. Moore is now a Motion Picture Daily reader. An airmail copy of Wednesday's edition engaged his attention for five minutes during a court recess this morning.

U. S. Marshal William B. Fahy of the eastern division has charge of the court and manages to keep a quiet audience during the sessions. E. H. Musgrave of Carutherville, W. A. Jacobs of Monroe City and Champ C. Steers are the three bailiffs assisting the marshal.

Spyros Skouras was out of sorts yesterday morning when his infected toe started paining him. As soon as he was relieved a bit he changed and was his old self again. His right foot is swathed in bandages which makes it necessary for Spyros to have a patch of leather cut away near the large toe.

Harry M. Warner was in a bad way for a smoke during one of the recesses yesterday. Herman Starr came to the rescue. He broke his only cigar in two, giving Warner the smaller half. Both strolled the corridor of the fourth floor happy in their solution to what promised to be a nicotine problem.

Louis Phillips, lawyer for Paramount, and I. Levinson, lawyer for Warners, were officially introduced to Judge Moore in court yesterday morning as members of the New York City bar.

Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy and Cresson E. Smith are fastidious patronizers of the Hotel Statler's food during the lunch periods. While the World Series is on, this hotel has a "graphoboard" which gives play-by-play action of what is taking place on the diamonds in Detroit and Chicago.

However, it has all been arranged so that the latest scores find their way into the courtroom periodically.

Joseph Garrison, local branch manager for Universal, is one of the many who makes a dive for Motion Picture Daily as soon as it drops off the New York plane. Some of the boys, including Maurice Schweitzer of Paramount and Harold W. (Chick) Evens of Loew's State couldn't believe they could get such fast service on delivery, but now they know better. They're convinced.

Reports are current that Harry Arthur plans to reopen the New Grand Central on Grand Ave. with duals, second run, shortly. Arthur couldn't be reached for checking.

H. W. (Chick) Evens, manager of Loew's State, is a daily visitor. He hasn't been summoned, but just drops in at Judge Moore's court to greet old friends. "Chick" has been here for five years now and recalls the days when Arthur Schwartz, who writes the music for the lyrics Howard Dietz concocts, was a fraternity brother at New York University.

Psychic?

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—Erwin Weber is in the garage business in St. Charles. Aside from a knowledge of transmissions and crankcases, he must also be psychic. And this is why:

He was part of the panel drawn in the Government trial. Interrogated by Samuel W. Fordyce, of counsel for Paramount, as to whether or not he had talked over the case, Weber replied he had and that he had told his friends he was afraid he would be named for the jury. He was right after all.

afternoon session for his dissertation to the 12 jurors and two alternates, the defense attorneys made another attempt to get the Judge to declare a mistrial, but without success.

Prior to introducing Warner, Starr and Sears to the jury, Reed, in his opening remark, said, "This is a battle between two groups of motion picture men and the Government has seen fit to side with one group. From the evidence we will prove that the ones in conspiracy are those represented by the Government."

Prejudice Charged

Reed said that the franchise with Skouras Super Theatres was a loan terminated at the time Skouras lost the three theatres involved; that Skouras Super Theatres was unable to pay rent to the landlord or film rentals and that instead of Paramount and Warners trying to destroy the theatres they put up more than $500,000 to keep the concern running. He said the three leases were made in boom days at an annual rental of $500,000. When the houses began to lose money in 1929, Paramount and Warners poured money into the company until they could do no more. He said film rentals for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central were not paid and when the franchises were canceled Skouras Super Theatres owed the two distributors more than $500,000,

Several times during Hardy's talk objections were made on the ground that the Government was trying to prejudice the jury because of the great wealth of the companies. Moore put an end to this type of objections by saying "It's no crime to be poor and it's no crime to be rich."

A number of times during Reed's lengthy speech, Hardy made objections that the points being stressed were outside the issue. Moore said he could not tell until later and as a result the former Senator continued reading the typewritten sheets.

Alternates Selected

Reed delved into the complete history of Warners, relating how the four brothers, Harry, Albert, Sam and Jack, formed the company in 1923, how Vitagraph was purchased for distribution purposes a year later and how in 1925 the company became interested in the experimentation on talkers. He said Warners' initial investment in this city totaled about $3,500,000 and that later the company put more money into the local theatre field. A great deal of time was devoted to the history and connection of Harry Koplar in local theatre companies, with Reed pointing out the difficulties Warners have had in their business relations with him. During the last half-hour of his talk, Reed became so impassioned that he stamped his left foot and waved his hands to emphasize certain points.

Only two five-minute recesses were granted today and it was indicated by Judge Moore that all sessions hereafter will end at five instead of the usual four o'clock.

Harry Mannist, 52, agent for a millinery manufacturing firm plant here, and Oliver Brueseke, 48, circulation manager of a monthly druggist's publication here, were selected as two jury alternates after five others had been interrogated from a list of seven. Louis Miller, 44, employed at a manufacturing plant at Ironton; J. Russell Bley, 29, a local agent for the New York Life Insurance Co., and Edward H. Lewis, 68, local retired post office clerk, were dismissed after examination, while Robert Fenwick and N. R. Wreden, local men both, were not examined.

Reason 1 Played recently by Great States, Warner Brothers and Essaness in one theatre in each circuit—as a test of pulling power—picture did so well it was played in all the other houses. Business was 15 to 25 per cent above average.

Reason 2 All theatre managers reported picture was better received by audiences than when originally released.

Reason 3 There's a vast audience eager to see "IF I HAD A MILLION" for the second time. In addition, there are untold thousands who have never seen the picture who will welcome an opportunity to see it for the first time because they've heard so much about it.

Michigan Meet Delayed

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—Because several national leaders cannot be here and also because other conventions will crowd hotels, Allied of Michigan has called off the annual convention set for Oct. 21-23 and will soon set another date, probably during the latter part of November, according to H. Congressman Samuel B. Pettengill, author of the Allied-sponsored anti block-booking bill, has agreed to come in November.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Wings Over Ethiopia"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.—Fascinating glimpses are given of the last unconquered kingdom of Africa, a vivid beleaguered land which has been little more than a headline in newspapers to most people. Interesting from start to finish, it should be a drawing card in all communities now that the Italo-Ethiopian war is on.

Shots from a Swiss airplane show the sun-drenched Mediterranean, the curved port of Alexandria, teeming native life in Cairo and Port Said, Luxor, in contrast to barren cliffs rising sheer from the desert which guards the high domain of Haile Selassie, 8,000 feet above sea level.

The trip to the interior shows the customs of savage tribes, including ceremonial dances and branding of children's cheeks, and makes vivid the impenetrability of the ravine-ridged hinterland. Addis Ababa is shown as a curious contrast of primitive direct action and modern equipment.

Impressive is the mobilization of barefooted troops, clothed in everything from white cotton robes to uniforms decked with precious stones, rich fabrics, waving lions' manes. Abrupt trials of murderers, their unceremonious execution, the gracious dignity of Selassie's palace, wailing of native rhythms from modern brass bands, and many other informative and humorous subjects grip the interest.

Maps at the beginning show the importance to Britain of Lake Tsana, source of the Blue Nile.

A narrative by Garnett Weston is excellent and is well delivered by Gayne Whitman. The film has ready-made exploitation on all front pages and will not disappoint.

Production Code Seal No. 1,565. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Stormy"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.—Tapping the same emotional wells as "Sequoia," this distinctive and dignified production has definite heart appeal. A simple story tells of Noah Beery, Jr., table boy, and his love for a colt, foal of a racing mare.

Befriended by J. Farrell MacDonald after a train wreck in which the colt breaks loose to join a wild herd on the Painted Desert, young Beery raises the colt to stallionhood, and helps MacDonald fight his brother Fred Kohler, who is intent upon destroying the herd. In an attempt to roundup the horses Kohler is caught in a blind canyon and is trampled to death in the stampede.

A romantic theme introduces Joan Rogers, Kohler's daughter, whose link with Beery is their mutual love for horses. Henry MacRae produced and the direction was by Louis Friedlander. Both are decidedly class.

The scenery on the Painted Desert is used to the limit and the photography of Dick Fryer attains heights seldom reached, particularly in the stampede sequences in which hundreds of horses are pictured galloping in clouds of dust.

Beery and Miss Rogers show great promise for the future. George Plympton and Ben Graumon Kohn, who wrote the screen play from Cherry Wilson's novel, have done an intelligent job. The Arizona Wranglers provide musical interludes in keeping with the spirit of the picture. As a strong novelty feature, this looks like definite box-office, particularly after word gets around.

Production Code Seal No. 1,204. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Pluto's Judgment Day"

(United Artists)

An extremely clever Mickey Mouse cartoon in Technicolor, this has Pluto, reprimanded by Mickey for chasing a cat, dreaming before the fire. His dream, of capture by the cat world, and trial before a cat judge and jury, eager to "get" him, and his descent into a pit of fire as punishment makes for unusual color effects and excellent cartoon entertainment. Pluto is cured of cat-chasing. Production Code Seal No. 1024. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Amateur Theatre of the Air, No. 2"

(Radio)

This second issue of the Major Bowes series is an effort of exceptional merit. Excellent camera work and cutting aid in putting it over. A one-man band, revue put on by children, a barnyard sequence and other acts are shown to their best advantage. Timely and with good musical accompaniment, it should be welcomed by most audiences. Highly recommended. Production Code Seal No. 0,559. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Stars of Tomorrow No. 2"

(Columbia)

Following the cycle of amateur hour shorts, this effort is merely a copy of a standard form. N.T.G. is the master of ceremonies and introduces his various acts. They respond with bewhiskered gags, get the gong; then follows the next. The usual assembly is present, hill billies, a torch singer, impersonators and part of the Hollywood Restaurant review. No production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Home Work"

(Radio)

The comedy element is introduced in this effort by young Delmar Watson as Leon Errol's son. Errol is a general information bureau. Getting home from the office, his son gives him a school problem to work on. Visiting neighbors help in a troublesome manner. The solution of the problem winds up the affair. It is good standard comedy fare and should be well received by general audiences. Production Code Seal No. 950. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

"Star Gazing"

(Columbia)

The Radio Rogues' imitations are the redeeming feature of this otherwise ordinary comedy. With their hotel being rapidly emptied the Rogues are hypnotized by one Svengarlic, who makes them put on an all-star show and then do some pocket-picking. The Rogues do better when they are not made up and presented to look like their imitations. Production Code Seal No. 1,113. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

Hopes Gaining For a 10-Year Operator Pact

Local 306 Negotiators Reported Divided

A 10-year agreement on the new wage scales negotiated by Loew's and RKO with Local 306 is believed likely to materialize despite some opposition within the union's ranks to a long term pact, it was learned yesterday.

The negotiating committee for Local 306 originally favored a one or two-year agreement, but is now reported to be divided on the question, with a possible majority favoring a longer term and some supporting the circuits' request for the full 10-year pact. Advantages of a long term pact to the union are said to be the guarantee it affords of continuous employment without encroachment by new operators' organizations and the elimination of lengthy and costly negotiations on the expiration of short term pacts.

A decision on the term of the new agreement is expected within a few days. The scale for two-a-day houses has been set at $15 for three men for each performance instead of the former $18. Broadway de luxe house scales are set at $2.40 per hour for 18-hour days as compared with the former $2.55 per hour for 12-hour days and the Class A houses at $1.80 instead of $2.12½.

Negotiations for scales for independent circuits will be begun on Monday with Randforce first on the list.

Skouras Operators' Deal to Be Delayed

Regardless of what terms other circuits may work out with Local 306, Skouras theatres will make no deal until William T. Powers, that circuit's lawyer, returns from St. Louis, where he is attending the anti-trust trial now under way there.

This may mean a delay of several weeks unless Powers finds the time to fly in during the anticipated week-end recess.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Reported on excellent authority, but unconfirmed by either party, Emanuel Cohen is expected to sign a deal whereby pictures made under his own personal banner will be released through Columbia. The first will be the outside picture

Skouras Says All Details of FWC's Para. Bookings Are Set

St. Louis, Oct. 4.—Corroborating the recent statement by Neil F. Agnew, sales manager for Paramount, that the distributor has straightened out his disputed issues with Fox West Coast, Spyros Skouras, operating chief for National Theatres, of which Fox West Coast is one subsidiary, told Motion Picture Daily that all details of the product agreement were completely worked out on Sept. 28.

Skouras said that the F.W.C. houses are now playing Paramount product. Special contracts are being printed for this deal and others for subsidiary units of National.

It will take several weeks before the actual agreements are signed.

Delay on Met Stock Buy May Be Sought

Fox Theatres Corp. may ask for additional time in which to make a decision on the exercise of its option to purchase 50 per cent of the stock of reorganized Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, creditors and stockholders were advised yesterday.

Fox Theatres has until Nov. 2 to decide whether it will acquire the 50 per cent stock interest by payment to United Artists Theatre Circuit of $275,000, or dispose of its option to the latter company for $150,000. A hearing on a Fox Theatres' stockholder application for an order to show cause why the receiver for the company should not be directed to exercise the option has been set for Oct. 8 before Federal Judge Martin T. Manton. If no agreement can be reached by Fox Theatres' creditors at that hearing, the application for an extension of time beyond Nov. 2 may be made.

Goldstein $127,000 Claim Is Approved

A report by Special Master John E. Joyce disapproving a plan for the settlement of the Samuel and Nathan Goldstein claim of $127,500 against Paramount was set aside in an order signed yesterday by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

In his ruling Judge Coxe said, "It seems to me that this is a fair settlement of a confused situation and I

Studios in Rush on Ethiopian Material

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Studios are casting about with a rush for Ethiopian material. Paramount kept a crew working 24 hours a day to cut "Wings Over Ethiopia," so that prints could be turned out and shipped east by plane.

Julius Klein, recently assistant to Carl Laemmle, is busy on "Black Cargo," which has an Ethiopian background, and others are expected.

Chicago Clearance Row Stirs Feeling

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The booking war here broke out afresh today with independents trying at morning, noon and night meetings to set November releases. If clearances demanded by B. & K. are accepted by exchanges, independents say they cannot book more than a few days in advance of showings.

As exchanges have already closed deals for new product, they face the possibility of a suit if they adopt the B. & K. policy. Independents want present clearances continued and feel a change cannot be made until next season, if then.

Aaron Saperstein is in New York. His return tomorrow may settle the problem, or the system may be disrupted with chaotic conditions resulting. Intense feeling has been stirred.

Barthelmess Talks Producing Venture

Proposals for Richard Barthelmess to head a new producing organization are being discussed here by the actor but the probability of anything materializing is remote at this time, Barthelmess said yesterday.

Admitting that he had had discussions with Erpi concerning a producing venture, Barthelmess added that these "had been going on for 18 months" and were "so cold now I'd forget about it."

"I'm rather frightened of the idea," Barthelmess said of the proposals.

Testimony of Arthur Opens Hardy Attack

Prosecutor Puts F. & M. Head on Stand First

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—Harry C. Arthur was the first witness to take the stand today as the Government began its case against three distributors and six film executives indicted here on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust act. The operating head of Fanchon & Marco and president of its subsidiaries here was on the stand for two hours this afternoon with Special Assistant Attorney General Russell C. Hardy examining him. Arthur did not complete his testimony today.

Attorneys former Senator James A. Reed and Frederick Wood for Warners, George Leisure for RKO and William R. Gentry for Paramount on numerous occasions objected to questions put to Arthur by Hardy, some of which were overruled and others sustained. Particular objections by defense counsel which were sustained by Federal Judge George H. Moore included the intention of Hardy to

More Witnesses May Get St. Louis Calls

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—Additional witnesses are expected to be called from various sections of the country by defense counsel as soon as Russell G. Hardy, government prosecutor, completes his side of the anti-trust suit.

He is expected to finish his arguments and interrogation of Government-subpoenaed witnesses about the middle of next week. As soon as he does this, defense counsel will know whom they will be interested in bringing to the local scene to testify on their behalf.

So far there are about 30 to 35 witnesses attending the trial. There is no advance indication as to what this number will reach before the trial is over some time next month.

Poole Resigns from Pathe Directorate

Arthur B. Poole has resigned as a director of Pathe Film Corp. but continues as treasurer, it was learned yesterday. Charles L. Stillman of "The March of Time" has been elected a director to fill the vacancy. William C. Stettinius, Baltimore banker and brother of the vice-chairman of U. S.

Mexico Sympathetic Strikes Called Off

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—Government mediators have induced the Confederation of Workers and Peasants to call off the nationwide sympathetic strikes designed to close 730 theatres for the purpose of aiding the striking employes of American distributors.

This removes one of the difficulties from a situation that had been becoming increasingly complicated for some time. The strike started following a demand for increased wages in the midst of distributors' efforts to induce the Government to cut its film import duties. The distributors threatened to quit the market Oct. 1, but postponed action to Oct. 15 following the appointment of a mixed committee to study the tax situation.

lead questions to the witness, introduction of a trade paper of March 6 which contained a story of a war between Warners and Fanchon & Marco in St. Louis and Arthur's knowledge of how many first class pictures are produced by the eight major companies each year. Objections were also sustained by Moore when defense counsel asked that on whatever conversations Arthur had with certain film executives the testimony should be limited to those attending the conference without inclusion of other indicted companies or individuals.

Arthur Describes Interests

Arthur started by describing his theatre interests here and also his relations with Allen Snyder, which started in January, 1934. He was questioned as to whether he knew Harry M. Warner, George J. Schaefer, Abel Carey Thomas, Gradwell Sears and Ned E. Depinet. Hardy asked for a definition of prints and how they reach their point of destination. After an objection by Wood was overruled Arthur stated they are sent to some central point in each section of the country. He proceeded to explain the setup of distribution and functions of local exchanges. Asked how many films the eight majors produce annually, Arthur answered it was 360 and again objections by defense counsel were denied.

Hardy then interrogated the witness on conversations he had with Thomas, Sears and Herman Starr, to which Gentry made strenuous objections on the ground that there had been no evidence introduced that Paramount or its officials had any connections with them. He was upheld on this point as well as on the reference made by Hardy to certain companies as conspirators. When Gentry again won an objection as to what was said in a meeting with Depinet, the Government counsel asked Judge Moore to excuse the jury while he argued this point, claiming he could not continue.

Tells of Meeting Sears

After a brief pro and con during which Judge Moore said he did not know whether Hardy had laid the proper foundation to introduce this evidence, the Court permitted the Government to continue and said he would advise the jury not to consider the conversation Arthur had with Warner executives as relating to Paramount or RKO men. Arthur then told of his meeting on March 6 with Sears, who had two New York daily trade papers on his desk which reported a war in St. Louis between Warners and F. & M. He asked Sears what the stories were all about. Starr, who was at the session, admitted the story was true, Arthur said, and upon further questioning the F. & M. head stated Starr told him, "We're sorry, but Fanchon and Marco will have to be sacrificed. You upset our plans and we will have to destroy the bondholders' committee of the Fox Ambassador, St. Louis and Grand Central, as well as yourself."

"We have nothing personal against F. & M.; we've always liked them, but we have to teach the bondholders a lesson. We have an equity in those houses and we have to get the bondholders," Arthur asserted Starr told him, adding: "We're sorry, but you're the lambs that will have to be slaughtered."

Arthur stated he asked Thomas, who was also at the meeting, if he could suggest something so that F & M could get out of the situation, as he had not known Warners were interested in the theatres.

Offer Turned Down

Thomas said, according to Arthur, he was sorry that the best he could advise was for F. & M. to walk out of their investment in St. Louis. Arthur stated he told Thomas that if he took his advice Allen Snyder, who was associated with F. & M. would sue him.

Arthur then offered to turn the houses over to Warners but the gesture was rejected by Thomas who declared, "We are going to get the bondholders' committee. Thomas Dysart, receiver for the theatres, is trying to perpetuate his job and so is David Levinson, counsel for the committee."

Another offer was made by Arthur and again turned down. This time Thomas said that Edward L. Alperson of the Skouras office had just made him a proposition to take the Missouri. This deal likewise was declined by Thomas who made the following comment to Arthur in connection with it: "We are also going to break those Greeks too." When Spyros Skouras, sitting at the left of the room with his infected toe resting on one chair and holding his cane in his left hand, heard this remark the expression on his face changed in a flash and the grip on his cane tightened. Thomas then told Arthur that Warners had a deal with Skouras, the F. & M. head testified, about a year ago in connection with Super Theatres Corp. and now Skouras had gone into partnership with F. & M. Arthur asserted he denied this as false and that Skouras had never been and was not affiliated with him.

The F. & M. president said he incidentally mentioned Harry Koplar's name during the conference with Sears, Starr and Thomas and when Thomas heard it he called Koplar "a little rat" and said Warners were going to break him too. Arthur declined to mention another name called Koplar because of ladies being present but upon the insistence of Judge Moore he said Thomas told him Koplar was "a ————." Arthur said he pleaded with Thomas, "We are perfectly willing to get out; we only want to save our investment." Thomas asserted, according to Arthur, that the best thing for F. & M. is to walk out and forget it ever made Warners a proposition.

Recounts Depinet Talk

Upon further prodding by Hardy, Arthur testified that Thomas said, "We're going to take any house we can in St. Louis and run our pictures as well as those of other companies. Further we'll make sure you go broke even if we have to install a dual policy at ten cents so that this will assure your losses." Arthur then added Thomas stated that the opening gun to be fired would be the opening of "Wonder Bar" at the Shubert.

The F. & M. executive estimated his conversation with the Warnerites took two hours. He also testified that Thomas said the first thing Warners would do in its fight here was to oppose the reorganization plan of the bondholders and impress upon the Court that the only ones who could properly operate the theatres were Warners.

Jack Partington, an executive of F & M, also attended the meeting in question and he also implored the Warner men to call off any war they might have with his company, Arthur testified. Partington told them that F. & M. was willing to do anything Warners wanted them to but this was refused, Arthur said.

A story appearing in a trade paper was introduced and objected to as immaterial, incompetent and injurious by Gentry and Wood, who were denied the objection. Arthur read the headlines and then the story itself.

After Leisure had objected to Hardy's leading of the witness Arthur recounted a meeting with Depinet at the latter's office when he had been told that the RKO product was sold to Warners in St. Louis after the RKO president had promised it to F & M. Depinet gave as his reasons, according to Arthur, the fact that "they put the pressure on me and they are our biggest customer. We had to do it."

Reed Opens Session

The F. & M. executive ended his testimony today with a description of his meeting with Schaefer, who likewise advised Arthur of the sale of Paramount product to Warners. Arthur testified Schaefer said that Warners threatened to upset Paramount's reorganization plan in Detroit and that "we are carrying Detroit on the books for $14,000,000 and cannot afford to take chances." Arthur then commissioned Schaefer to talk to Harry Warner and try to help him out.

The morning session opened with the 72-year-old ex-Senator Reed resuming his opening speech where he left off yesterday. He reviewed some of the ground covered the day before. He emphasized in his statement that Harry Koplar was the man in the background of the Snyder-F & M-Arthur bid for theatres which was finally accepted by the bondholders. He added that Koplar's scheme was also to try and control the second runs and drive Warners out of St. Louis.

"Indicted Wrong People"

Continuing, Reed said: "There is a conspiracy in this case on the part of Koplar to destroy Warners and their associates as the evidence will show." He declared Koplar said his interests would have all the product at their mercy and that he had "Warners over a barrel and they would have to come to him and do business on his terms."

They had a combination here, Reed said the evidence will show, but the government indicted the wrong people. If there wasn't Warners wouldn't

On the Lighter Side

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—The courtroom is knee deep in lawyers. Here they are, $1,000,000 worth of counsel in Judge GEORGE H. MOORE'S court every day, although few witnesses and visitors realize the full calibre of the legalistic battery on hand:

SAMUEL W. FORDYCE, WILLIAM GENTRY, WALTER H. MAINE, LOUIS PHILLIPS and AUSTIN C. KEOUGH, more interested in the Paramount angle than the other two; JACOB M. LASHLY, MELVIN H. ALVIN, GEORGE LEISURE, WILLIAM DONOVAN, WILLIAM MALLARD, GORDON YOUNGMAN, who are representing RKO; Ex-Senator JAMES A. REED, SAMUEL B. JEFFRIES, ARTHUR E. SIMPSON, JAMES TAYLOR, BRUCE BROMLEY, FREDERICK WOOD, RUSSELL DORE, ROBERT W. PERKINS, I. LEVINSON and JOSEPH HAZEN, lined up on the Warner side; WILLIAM T. POWERS, SPYROS SKOURAS' attorney; ERNEST L. WILKINSON, HARRY ARTHUR'S legal advisor; RUSSELL G. HARDY, WILLIAM BENHAM, HAROLD L. SCHILZ, JOHN S. CLAGGETT and DWIGHT L. SAVAGE, representing the Government, in addition to District Attorney HARRY C. BLANTON.

WARNER, GRADWELL L. SEARS, HERMAN STARR, GEORGE J. SCHAEFER and NED E. DEPINET have preferred seats. They don't sit with the motley mob of witnesses and visitors. They park themselves within the gates and get a close-up of what many view as the most important trial in the history of the business.

HARRY M. WARNER says he gets to bed at 11 every night and feels great by so doing. He also feels happy that he doesn't have to look at pictures each evening, which he asserts tires him out back home where you read what's going on here during the trial.

JOSEPH BERNHARD, operating head of all the Warner theatres, is scheduled to appear on local ground within the next week or so. Just visiting, unaccompanied by any subpoena.

have been driven out of business here. He then explained how Warners took measures to lease the Shubert Rialto as an outlet for their own product and then because of the dual feature situation entered into deals with RKO and Paramount for product, later taking the Orpheum to use the films that were not shown at the other house.

Gentry assumed the floor next and made his opening speech on behalf of Paramount and Schaefer. After delving into the corporate structures of the Paramount companies indicted, Gentry said the evidence will show that Paramount, which owned half of the stock in Skouras Super Theatres, put in $250,000 to keep the company running and when Paramount itself began to have its own financial difficulties it could put no more into the local circuit. He stated that Skouras Super Theatres owed $200,000 to the distributing company on unpaid film rentals and that on July 29, 1932, canceled its franchise with Skouras, which had not lived up to its provisions.

"Warners Good Customers"

Following this, Paramount made deals with Tom K. Smith for the Ambassador and Grand Central and with RKO for the Missouri, which the latter company had been operating. He asserted the franchise was a personal privilege and provided it would not be assigned to anyone else without the express permission of Paramount. When Skouras Super Theatres lost the houses, that ended the arrangement, he said. "Warners were good customers of ours," Gentry declared. "They paid their bills and knowing the situation of the other interests as we did from experience we exercised our right to choose our customers. We did for the Orpheum and Shubert." He concluded with: "the evidence will show Paramount had no part in any conspiracy, did not help to crush anyone out of business nor do anything unlawful. "We will ask a verdict of not guilty," Gentry said.

Cites Trouble With Koplar

Jacob M. Lashly, representing Depinet and RKO, centered his opening speech around Koplar and the company's many dealings with him. He said the evidence will show that RKO had a lot of trouble with Koplar, who was with Famous Amusement Co. at the time. He declared that the distributor had a contract for shorts and newsreels for the St. Louis which provided for a weekly rental of $275. When the house closed for two weeks for alterations RKO couldn't collect $550 and to this day hasn't. He said the St. Louis owes RKO more than $4,000. Lashly said RKO didn't want to do business with Koplar but when he brought in two guarantors a contract was signed and as a result "all we got when we tried to collect the $4,000 was a law suit."

Lashly added that when Arthur came into the picture he asked for reductions of $100 a week on the shorts and $250 on the features. Arthur claimed, according to RKO counsel, that the St. Louis had lost $33,184 while Koplar contended the deficit was $75,000, of which $50,000 was due to RKO product. He then mentioned the alleged trouble with Koplar on "Little Women," which was sold on percentage. After Arthur got Depinet to agree to switch RKO product to the Fox, Lashly claimed the product was double-featured with stage shows at forty cents and not advertised properly. He concluded with the statement that Depinet made a fair and reasonable deal with Warners and sold to the best customer in an open market.

KRS Continues Its Probe into Booking

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Kinematograph Renters' Society is continuing its general probe into booking alignments and action in several quarters aside from the Gaumont-Hyams and Odeon situations is possible.

Absence of any new statement from K. R. S. is construed as indicating details of the Hyams three-theatre deal with Gaumont proved insufficient to alter the association's policy. The original ban imposing restrictions on bookings therefore stays.

Ohio Preparing Film Library for Schools

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.—Anticipating a new film field in classroom work, Dr. E. Leslie Bowsher, recently appointed state director of education, and ex-officio head of the censor board, told the Better Films Council that a state film library will be established, with films available to all Ohio schools for the cost of postage. They will be of the 16-millimeter, silent type.

Out of the approximate $100,000 additional annual revenue to be derived from the increase in censorship fees from $1 to $3 per 1,000-foot reel, an estimated $40,000 annually will go toward the building of the library, he said.

"None of this free advertising which commercial interests have foisted off in the past as educational will creep into our film," Dr. Bowsher declared.

think it should be approved. The settlement not only disposes of the Goldstein and G. & B. Theatres' claim, but also preserves the Rivoli Theatre at Chicopee, Mass., as part of the Paramount system. I am advised that unless this settlement is consummated the Rivoli property will be foreclosed with a strong probability that there will be a deficiency which will form the basis for a claim against the Paramount estate. The trustee and the new Paramount company are strongly in favor of the settlement and as it will end the pending trial I believe it should be approved."

Ascap Shifts Its Policy on Legal Attacks

Will Await State Moves To Collect Taxes

In what would be a reversal of policy on resistance to state legislative attacks directed at the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers, that organization is considering abandoning its plans for testing the constitutionality of such legislation, it was learned yesterday.

The alternative policy under consideration is one of defense rather than of aggression. If adopted, Ascap would make no move to test the legality of the various state laws imposing heavy taxes on music licensing organizations, but would defend itself against moves to enforce the laws by collection of the taxes. Legislation of this kind has been enacted by Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana and Wisconsin, but, to date, no effort to collect the state taxes has been made.

Ascap originally stated that it would test the constitutionality of the Georgia tax legislation, which provides for a levy of $1,000 per county on music licensing organizations operating with-

Circuits, 306 Not To Meet Here Today

No meeting of circuit representatives and the Local 306 negotiating committee will be held today because of the Jewish holiday. The two groups will reconvene tomorrow to settle final details of the new wage scale agreements, the most important of which is the length of time for which the new agreement shall run. Indications are that the union will agree to the circuit's request for 10-year pacts, despite some sentiment within the local for a shorter term.

Wage scale negotiations with independent circuits are also scheduled to begin tomorrow.

Talk Legal Move on Detroit's Film Ban

DETROIT, Oct. 6.—Attorneys for the Cinema Guild, under the auspices of which the Russian picture, "Youth of Maxim," was to have opened a week's run at the Art Institute last Friday, are considering action against Police Censor Joseph Kollar, who confiscated the print following a preview and banned showings here.

American Legion heads and other civic leaders attended the preview and branded the film propaganda for Communism.

Kollar had approved the film for showing to members of the guild, but revoked the license and confiscated the print when the showing was widely advertised.

Dubbing Test Goes Over in Japan Houses

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Sept. 23.—Dubbing in the Japanese language has just been tried successfully in this country for the first time and importers are studying the results closely. Paramount is going to dub two more immediately, and if it works, all foreign pictures will have to go for it, it is predicted.

The first feature with a Japanese sound track was Harold Lloyd's "Feet First." It was a sensation.

Heretofore Japanese titles have been superimposed, and they are difficult to read.

Toho Chain Houses, a big importing firm, is following Paramount's example by dubbing two French pictures, "Maternelle" and "Verdun Souvenirs d'Histoire." Paramount's next two with Japanese dialogue will be "Four Hours to Kill" and "Ruggles of Red Gap."

After a cycle of gangster films, audiences here are going for detective story pictures in a big way.

New film control regulations in Korea require that after Jan. 1 one third of the footage of the total number of features shown must be Japanese. At present the requirement is one fourth. Foreign distributors are making strenuous efforts to readjust their contracts as a result.

Verbal Clash Of Attorneys Marks Trial

Hardy, Defense Counsel In Sharp Exchange

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—Two distinct flareups between Defense Attorneys George S. Leisure, representing RKO, and Frederick L. Wood, for Warners, and Special Assistant Attorney General Russell G. Hardy, and a spirited recitation by Wood of the part former Division Administrator Sol A. Rosenblatt played in effecting a settlement of the local trouble after the indictments had been handed down against three companies and six individuals on alleged charges of conspiracy in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act marked an exciting three-hour session here yesterday during the trial of the indicted parties.

Leisure was the first defense counsel openly to voice his dissatisfaction with Hardy's procedure. This happened while Harry C. Arthur of Fanchon & Marco was on the stand for the second time in the proceedings, giving testimony in connection with meetings he had with Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Distributing Corp. and Jules Levy, RKO general sales manager. The RKO counsel told the court that

Imperial's Third Is Set

An increased budget for "Rich Relations," the third production on Imperial Pictures' new schedule, has been approved as a result of "encouraging" franchise distribution, according to Lew Berman of Imperial Distributing Corp.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

A COMPARISON of the statistical fabric contained in the current report of the Motion Picture Division, State Education Department, better known as the New York State censor board, with that of the previous available period is interesting. Also in it there are conclusions, stacking up naturally and inevitably, which reflect warmingly and favorably on the status quo of the industry. The latter day report covers the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1934, and terminating June 30, 1935; the earlier, for the identical period a year before. It is on this basis that what follows intrigues. . . .

Currently, 1,868 eliminations were made in the 1,737 features and shorts submitted for censorship. This compares with 2,195 the year before. Hopeful sign, No. 1. But get this: 604 deletions in the total bit the dust on the charge they were indecent; last year, it was 838. Scenes or subtitles or dialogue viewed as "tending to incite to crime," totaled 436; last year, 511. "Immoral or tending to corrupt morals" were 628 cuts in the latest available account of censorship stewardship; last year, 752. "Inhuman" material latterly ran to 136 eliminations and this was an increase of 57, however, while those items generally classified as "sacrilegious" jumped from 15 last year to 64 this. . . .

This year twelve pictures were rejected in toto, but three were subsequently revised and licensed. Last year, the verboten list ran to fifteen, of which two were revised and later approved with eliminations. Dramas in the latest fiscal period were less objectionable through censorial eyes, for eliminations in this type of product were held to 130 films, comparing with 147 last year. The same conclusion seems logical where comedies are concerned. Forty-two of this type experienced cuts; last year it was sixty-two. Similar figures for other classifications are these: Comedy-dramas, seventeen this year, twenty last; serials, eight and seven; educationals, four and four; cartoons, one and four; scenics, twelve and twenty-two; novelties, one and three; miscellaneous, ten and seventeen.

Obviously, product is getting better. Obviously, the credit for the improvement can go to one and only one source which is Production Code Administration. Scoffed at and scorned when it was not ignored or forgotten, the self-imposed regulation which the major industry adopted for itself originally has, since its reinforcement, demonstrated its inestimable value to this business. The code is inextricably yet properly woven into the structure of this industry there to remain as long as service and results are recognized. . .

Pitt Reopening with Four-Hour Program

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6.—Morse and Rothenberg, New England theatre operators, have taken a six months' lease on the Pitt and will reopen this week with the lowest scale in the downtown sector. Not only that, but they're presenting what is probably the longest bill ever offered here.

In addition to a double feature, the house is also offering five acts of vaudeville, a program that consumes more than four hours. Prices are 10 and 15 cents in the afternoon and 15 to 25 cents at night. The opening bill includes a revival of "Scarface," "She Had to Choose," with Larry Crabbe and Sally Blane.

Warner Club Dance Set

the testimony was confusing and asked that Arthur be more specific as to the time and place the alleged conversations took place in New York. Judge George H. Moore agreed with Leisure and instructed Hardy to have Arthur try and fix the time and dates as closely as he could recollect.

Arthur then related a conversation with Depinet at the latter's office in the RKO Building during which the F. & M. head asked why RKO's product had been sold to Warners, to which Depinet said, according to Arthur's testimony, "I don't think they'll take it. It may be just to pull you in line."

Reed, Gentry Object

Hardy then questioned Arthur as to what he meant by "pulling into line" to which Leisure objected and was sustained. Arthur was in the middle of another conversation when Leisure was about to get up. Hardy, seeing this, told Leisure to give Arthur a chance to finish before raising an objection. This started the initial flareup. Leisure asked Judge Moore to instruct Hardy to make his remarks directly to the court instead of across the room. The Judge so instructed Hardy, who then proceeded to examine Arthur.

The second and last flareup came shortly after, when William R. Gentry, local counsel for Paramount, and former Senator James A. Reed objected to the admission of testimony on what took place at a meeting among Arthur, Attorney General Samuel G. Cummings, Hardy, Rosenblatt, Robert W. Perkins, Thomas K. Dysart and Ernest L. Wilkinson at the attorney general's office in Washington in May, 1935.

The two attorneys objected to conversation at this meeting being introduced as testimony. The jury was temporarily dismissed while the defense attorneys and Hardy argued the matter before Moore. Hardy objected to Perkins' presence during the argument but he was overruled because Moore said Perkins was an attorney in the case. However, other witnesses were asked to leave the room.

Details Washington Meeting

Leisure and Gentry argued that the meeting in question took place after the indictments and what was said then could not have a bearing on the case. Hardy then read what allegedly transpired at the Washington meeting. While this was going on Gentry objected to the press listening and recording the events on the ground that the jury would read the story and it might prejudice their minds. Hardy said that would be a violation of the court's instructions not to read anything about the case. Judge Moore stated he did not want to clear the reporters from the room.

After Hardy finished reciting what allegedly had transpired at the Washington session, Wood took the floor and vehemently criticized Hardy for the way the latter casually mentioned Rosenblatt as a New York lawyer. An argument ensued between Hardy and Wood, with Moore settling it by telling Hardy to permit the Warner attorney to continue.

"Hardy," Wood told the court while the jury was still out, "has concealed the activities of Rosenblatt in the settlement made with the knowledge of both the Dept. of Justice and Hardy himself." Wood stated that Rosenblatt effected the settlement with the encouragement of the Justice Dept. and at this point Hardy again tried to stop Wood, but Judge Moore told the Warner legal representative to continue. Hardy again arose and begged for five minutes to explain his side, as he could not understand the purpose of Wood's talk.

Wood then remarked to Hardy "you will know the purpose of what I am saying if you are capable of understanding."

Wood declared that Rosenblatt, who was a coordinate member of the Government branch, was missing here, although "he is the only person in the world who knows everything that took place in this circumstance."

Rosenblatt Mentioned

"The reason why he is missing is perfectly obvious," Wood contended. He added that, "the Government reneged on the settlement and Hardy knows that."

The Warner attorney then asked why Rosenblatt was not included in the 47 Government witnesses subpoenaed, if the Government desired to have the circumstances known.

"Rosenblatt would put the Dept. of Justice and Hardy in a bad light as an impartial witness," Wood asserted. Hardy then said, "We'll call him, I'm willing to put them in a bad light," meaning the Government and Dept. of Justice.

Wood then described Rosenblatt's job as NRA Administrator as one which called for him to settle disputes among members of the film industry. He said Rosenblatt acted as an umpire not on the suggestion of Warners, and the first thing the NRA Administrator did was to go to Hardy for consent to dismiss the indictments if the controversy were settled. Wood here emphasized again that everything Rosenblatt did was with the knowledge and consent of the Government, but the Government "never will tell in advance what it will do."

"Do you want to know what I said to Rosenblatt," Hardy asked Wood, to which the latter replied, "Your statement would carry very little weight with me. You will have a chance to say yours before I get through."

Continuing, the Warner attorney, who yesterday was more active than he has been on any other day since the trial started, declared that Perkins never approached anyone to dismiss the indictment in view of the settlement, but that Rosenblatt came to Perkins after he had worked out the arrangement to accept it. He added the various parties mentioned were all called together at the attorney general's office at Rosenblatt's request and that Warners never offered a settlement.

Arthur Resumes Testimony

Wood openly charged Hardy with getting Perkins into the conference as "a trap for this evidence."

Reed followed his fellow Warner counsel, saying that Warners didn't originate the proposition. The Government and all the others did.

"We said we were ready to accept the settlement made by the Government and that we were not guilty of anything. Because Rosenblatt had worked out a plan for industrial peace we were willing to go along. Arthur wanted a lot of money before he would accept the plan worked out by Rosenblatt." Hardy said this did not occur at the meeting which he attended but Wood retaliated, saying, "You have four witnesses against you, Mr. Hardy, including Rosenblatt."

After the defence counsel finished their objections to admittance of testimony reported to have taken place at the Washington conclave, Hardy, in rebuttal, said he was astonished that Wood had questioned his good faith.

"I have no reason to conceal any fact in this case," Hardy said. "It is my duty to see that the whole truth is presented. The only reason why Wood refuses to let us introduce this highly and incriminating evidence is apparent."

During the first hour of the session Arthur picked up where he left off the day before, when he was relating an interview he had with George J. Schaefer. At this meeting, said Arthur, Schaefer agreed to intervene and promised he would try and talk to Harry M. Warner about the matter of dropping the reported theatre fight in St. Louis against Fanchon & Marco.

Arthur testified he had been in the business about 20 years, and had been associated with six film companies in jobs ranging from salesman to branch manager.

He then went on to say that in 1920-25 he had been general manager of Fox West Coast, from 1925-27 president and general manager of Pacific Northwest Theatres, in 1927 southern division manager of the above merged circuits, in 1930 general manager of Fox Theatres, in 1932 president and general manager of Arthur Theatres, which had leases on Fox New England theatres in 1933; vice-president of Fanchon & Marco (a post he now holds), which owns leases on 13 theatres. He also owns personally half of Cobart Theatres, in which Marco Wolff has the other 50 per cent. This circuit has nine theatres on the coast.

Hardy interrogated Arthur on the local theatre situation during the past three years, linking the various first runs and the product they have bought during this period. The F. & M. theatre head then discussed a meeting with Neil Agnew, sales manager for Paramount, which had to do with the booking of "Belle of the Nineties" at the Ambassador here. He also stated that he was forced to keep the Grand Central closed for six to eight months because he couldn't get product.

Rosenblatt May Be Called

Because he was uncertain of admitting as evidence a conversation Arthur had with Levy and also remarks said to have been made at the meeting of various executives at the Dept. of Justice office, Judge Moore held in abeyance his decision until the records in previous cases are checked over the week-end.

Arthur will probably finish his testimony on Tuesday, when the trial resumes. He then will be cross-examined by the defense lawyers. From present indications each of the attorneys from RKO, Paramount and Warners will question the Fanchon & Marco executive on statements he has made. This is expected to last until Wednesday afternoon, if not later.

Whether or not Harry Koplar and Rosenblatt, who appear at the moment the two most important witnesses for the defense, will be summoned could not be learned. Some say they will be put on the stand but no definite announcement has been made.

On the Lighter Side

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—Reports are around that the two cases will take about two months. Hence, Warners, RKO and Paramount are negotiating plenty of business on the local scene. The daily telephone tolls run into large sums as the activities of the three companies are conducted largely from this point.

At the end of the month, the various judges and offices of the local Federal courts will move into a new building. There's no telling whether the indictment trial will finish up in the Post-office Building or not.

Former Senator REED's opening statement was read from a script running 64 pages. This did not include the additional remarks he made subsequently.

IRVING LESSER missed the session on Friday, but HARRY and MILT ARTHUR wouldn't say why. MILT had reservations for the World's Series in Chicago and Detroit and had to dispose of the tickets because he could not attend. His tickets for coast football games went to his wife and family.

Judge MOORE is catching up on the film business. He asked for a copy of last Monday's MOTION PICTURE DAILY. He got it in less than an hour after the request.

There are five sisters and five brothers in the ARTHUR family. HARRY, Sr.—not the New York HARRY—is still going strong as manager for two F. W. C. theatres.

Nobody went home over the week-end. While plane service out of here is good, witnesses and others were afraid to take a chance.

HARRY M. WARNER was all smiles in court Saturday. He showed pictures of his grandchild.

CLAUDE EZELL, here en route to Kansas City, says he has a big Bank Night deal on for all Europe and South America.

Got Venue Change

Injunction proceedings by Playmore Premiums, Inc., against Charles Streimer, doing business as the Streimer Ad Service, in the New York Supreme Court do not constitute a new action, but merely represent a change of venue so that the action might be tried in Manhattan, not in Queens County where the suit was originally filed. So states Arthur Beaudry, attorney for Streimer, who adds the original move for an injunction against Streimer was denied in Queens.

"Crusades" in Hub

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—"The Crusades" opened here Friday night to a capacity crowd at the Majestic. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" goes in the same reopened theatre later. The advance sale is said to already approximate over $7,000. Harry Browning, M. and P. advertising chief, is heading the exploitation with Harry Brown of Paramount as resident publicist. Kleig lights and gala banners made the affair a brilliant one.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Remember Last Night"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—Junior Laemmle again demonstrates his showmanship precision in producing this murder mystery-melodrama which slyly burlesques screen killings, not by having one murder but a score of them. Tongue in cheek flavor makes this film palatable, gay and full of fun.

When Sally Eilers' husband is found dead in the home of Robert Young and his wife, Constance Cummings, has a "hangover" from the night before, Edward Arnold from the district attorney's office and stooge Edward Brophy are called in and do the Sherlock and Watson. Follows the murder of Gustave von Seyffertitz, criminologist, who uses a whirling light disc to hypnotize and reveal the subconscious mind. Monroe Owsley, enmeshed in the net, commits suicide. Jack La Rue, chauffeur suspect, is killed. Gregory Ratoff is knifed by a hijacker. The final finger is placed on Reginald Denny, whom nobody suspects until Arnold tells all and laughs it off at the finale.

The entire cast romps through its roles alternately kidding and convincing the audience for good effect. Particularly comic is "Pip" Treacher, an English butler, tripping over American slang. Arnold makes a first class "dick."

The screenplay by Doris Malloy, Henry Clock and Don Totheroh, adapted from "Hangover Murders," a novel, is well pointed for satire.

James Whale's flair for macabre fun is evident in the direction. The production is well-dressed and well photographed. Exploited for its laughs and eerie queerie mystery this should result in good box-office takes.

No production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Eagle's Brood"

(Sherman-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—This second of the Hopalong Cassidy series concentrates on action with two killings at the start and more later.

Addison Richards and his gang murder a traveller and his wife in a highway robbery, learning later from the victims that they are the slain son of William Farnum, reformed bandit, and that they overlooked George Mari, the couple's child and only eyewitness to the tragedy. Fearing vengeance from Farnum they determine to kill the boy, who has meanwhile been found by Joan Woodbury, a dance hall girl. Farnum is turned back by William Boyd, as Cassidy, because the police still seek him, and leaves only when Boyd promises to return his grandson personally. Boyd with Jimmy Ellison then seek the youngster. Miss Woodbury is killed by Richards before she can reveal where she has hidden him. Boyd and Ellison then pick off the gang members one by one until young Mari is finally located and restored to Farnum.

Director Howard Bretherton pictures the straight dramatic story well. Occasional comedy is ably contributed by George Hayes. The Sherman production is excellent and the photography of Archie Stout is above average. Doris Schroeder and Harrison Jacobs, who wrote the screen adaptation of the Clarence Mulford novel, did a commendable job. The picture will satisfy all lovers of hard riding and straight shooting.

"His Fighting Blood"

(Ambassador)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—Good trick riding by Kermit Maynard and effectively photographed chase scenes give added value to this tale of brotherly devotion and the Northwest Mounties.

Maynard plays a noble backwoods brother who goes to jail when his young brother, Paul Fix, steals some jewels. The confession of a dying man clears Maynard of blame. Instead of preferring charges against him for shielding a murdering thief, the warden tells Maynard he is a fine fellow and sets him free to become a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Fix has not kept his promise to go straight and Maynard finds himself on the trail of his own brother. Fix remains a whining villain to the last possible moment when, on what can only be a whim, he takes a bullet in the back to save Maynard's life.

Joseph O'Donnell adapted from the story by James Oliver Curwood. Sig Neufeld and Maurice Conn produced and John W. English directed. Polly Ann Young plays the heroine, and featured are Ben Hendricks, Jr., Ted Adams, Joseph Girard, Frank La Rue, John McCarthy, Frank O'Connor, Charles King, Jack Cheatham, Edward Cecil and Ted Lorch.

Ascap Shifts Its Policy on Legal Attacks

in the state. The step was to have been taken in an effort to remove the tax legislation from the Georgia statutes and to invalidate similar legislation in other states by having a precedent, if the test proved successful, in the event of necessity of appeals to the U. S. Supreme Court.

It is now learned that with no move having been made to enforce the new legislation by any of the states which have adopted it, Ascap will probably abandon its plans for a test case in Georgia. If this is done the organization's policy would be to ignore the adverse legislation where it exists unless and until moves to collect the taxes provided for are made. Ascap, however, still has the Georgia legislation under study and, while a test of its constitutionality is now regarded as unlikely, steps may be taken late this month to effect an exchange of agreements with the state government which would minimize the burdens of the tax for Ascap in the event of enforcement of the new law.

To Appeal Game Ruling

FALL RIVER, Oct. 6.—An appeal from a local court decision holding Broadway Handicap to be a lottery has been taken to the Superior Court by Philip Smith, who owns a New England theatre circuit, a local independent exchange and the cash giveaway game. Smith says that his Broadway Handicap will continue to operate here pending the appeal. Distributors of similar premium schemes claim the handicap decision does not affect them.

"Gold Mine" Quits N. E.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—James Kennedy, who left the Bank Night distributing organization recently to start Gold Mine, his own box-office game which lost a patent infringement suit to Bank Night, will not appeal the infringement decision and will return to Bank Night as a New England salesman. An agreement has been made that Bank Night will not sue users of Gold Mine.

"Hat" Strong In 2nd Week At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6.—Three houses made creditable showings, led by the Penn, which took $11,500 on a second week with "Top Hat." That gave the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers musical around $35,000 on the fortnight.

At the Fulton, getting under way again after a three-month shutdown, the Baer-Louis fight, rather than "Welcome Home," brought in a first rate $5,200, while at the Warner "Smilin' Through" and "Here Comes Cookie" took an excellent $5,500.

"Ginger" was a disappointment at the Alvin and was pulled after five days to a weak $3,500 and the Stanley likewise took it on the chin with "Annapolis Farewell" and a stage show, doing just a little better than $12,000.

Total first run grosses were $37,700. Average is $41,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 3:

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Hands Across the Table"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—Setting a new pace for fast-moving comedy, this picture clicks rapidly with laugh topping laugh. Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray give swell performances, bringing vitality to interesting characterizations.

Miss Lombard, cast as a manicurist, subscribes to the philosophy that marriages should be made for financial gain. MacMurray, scion of an impoverished family once wealthy, holds like views. Inadvertently forced to share the same apartment, the pair fall madly in love, but fight desperately to restrain their emotions.

MacMurray is engaged to Astrid Allwyn, debutante. Miss Lombard is courted by Ralph Bellamy, wealthy invalid. Each concedes the other's right to form a financially profitable alliance, yet struggle to prevent marriage. True love triumphs finally after complications introduced lightly for comedy values.

The screen play by Norman Krasna, Vincent Lawrence and Herbert Fields from Vina Delmar's story grabs all opportunities for developing the characters logically revealed by sparkling dialogue. The supporting cast, including Ruth Donnelly, Ferdinand Munier and Marie Prevost, is uniformly good. Mitchell Leisen's direction is expert throughout and Lloyd Sheldon's production handles the delicate moments with tact. All elements indicate the picture is headed for high grosses.

Production Code Seal No. 1,460. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"It's in the Air"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—Jack Benny, box-office air ace in a farce about chiselers chiseling on other chiselers, is ably supported by Ted Healy, Una Merkel and Nat Pendleton in a broad comedy revealing Benny's pleasing personality in light romance.

Benny, smoothie wanting to go straight, is maneuvered into a gigantic stratosphere flight. Grant Mitchell, referred to as "W. R.," and motivated by unselfish patriotism, is inveigled into participating. Mitchell, bombastic tycoon sensing profits, then promotes his big business pals, who seek an opportunity to exploit their beer, salami and paprika, also patriotically.

Caught between Healy's nonsensical jocosities and the wifely love of Una Merkel, Benny goes through with his stratosphere flight, Healy accompanying him as Pendleton, burlesque Federal dick, pursues them.

A sequence in the balloon as an eagle screeches with Healy removing and replacing his clothes as the tycoons wail and wait, is uproarious. Healy is riotous. All ends well.

Chuck Reisner brings out Benny's attractive qualities, emphasizing the laughs all the way. Byron Morgan and Lew Lipton did the original and screen play. Harry Rapf produced. Laugh values and Benny's name assure good results and audience satisfaction.

No production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Guard That Girl"

(Columbia)

With something of a mystery flavor and centering about a will and an heiress, this rates as fair entertainment, with Ward Bond, Florence Rice, Arthur Hohl and Robert Allen featured in a cast which offers little in the way of marquee selling opportunity for the exhibitor.

In the expected atmosphere of an old house on an estate various complications develop as Bond and Allen, young private detectives, are hired by an attorney to guard Miss Rice, who, at the lawyer's orders, is posing as the heiress, to save her from the harm he says has been threatened by grasping relatives.

Warnings come in the form of arrows and the girl is told to give up her right to the estate of her father. Bond, Hohl, also a detective, and Allen finally solve the mystery, with the assistance of Lobo, a police dog, who plays an important part in the conclusion. Romance involves Bond and the maid, who turns out to be the real heiress, and Miss Rice and Allen.

Production Code Seal No. 1,256. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Bricker to defend the state. The bill became a law July 16. Windels Answers in Bofan Tax Cut Case Corporation Counsel Paul Windels filed a return in the Manhattan Supreme court yesterday to the application of the Bofan Amusement Co. for a reduction of its assessment from $570,000 to $450,000. The Bofan company had objected to the assessment made by the Commissioner of Taxes and Assessments.

The corporation counsel asserted that the assessment of $570,000 was not erroneous. He confirmed the amount and stated the total assessment, with improvements, was $1,570,000. Trial and application are pending.

Louis Missouri Theatre, Inc., operating the Missouri, and St. Louis Ambassador Co., which operates the Ambassador.

Frederick Wood represented Warners. Samuel B. Jeffries, another Warner attorney, asked for postponement until tomorrow, but Moore ordered the arguments to proceed to save time. Because he was unprepared, Jeffries did not argue the motions.

Leahy, who was the first to present an argument, stated that Koeln and Blair were not parties to the action and that the documents sought were not relevant or material to the case. He asserted that the only paper Koeln has is the lease with the Eden Co. for the Fox. He added there could be no reason for the application and that Warners were trying to do one of two things, attempting to annoy these people "who are perfect strangers to the case," or to conduct a "fishing expedition."

Called "Search Warrants"

As for the other subpoenas, he declared that whatever those named had done could not throw light on the conspiracy alleged in the indictment.

Wilkinson, following Leahy, declared that the groups he represented were not parties to the cause and that the documents sought could supply nothing relevant to the case. His clients, he said, are not charged with playing any part in the alleged conspiracy. He described the subpoenas as "search warrants." Some of the four corporations are foreign to Missouri, he said, and have transacted no business in the state.

Wilkinson told the court that one of the defense attorneys had told him the supoenas were "foolish, but all a part of the game." He cited several cases, which, he said, were similar, and in which deliverance of the papers had been denied on the ground that the requests were "too broad."

Wood, following, pointed out a case where a judge would not pass on a motion to quash a subpoena for records, but had left the matter of materiality to be decided upon cross-examination of a witness. He pointed out another case where a clerk had been authorized to issue subpoenas without application to the judge.

Wants Files Available

Referring to Wilkinson's assertion that the summonses were "too broad," Wood said that he wanted the records and other data in court so that when Arthur is cross-examined the files will be available to avoid suspension of the trial until they are produced. He called the attention of the court to the fact that the records had been called for after Arthur had testified Friday and Saturday, and said defense attorneys wanted to check up on the testimony, particularly with reference to leases and film contracts.

"F. & M. is the enemy in this camp," he said. "They actually are the people behind this prosecution. Arthur is the man who personifies all the companies subpoenaed by Warners and he is the man who is trying to send these men," meaning Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell Sears, Abel Carey Thomas, George J. Schaefer and Ned E. Depinet, "to jail for his own private gain."

There was no actual trial today, due to a postponement granted because of Yom Kippur.

Other defense counsel, listening to the arguments today, included former Senator James A. Reed, Jacob M. Lashly, Robert W. Perkins, William Mallard and some assistants. Special Assistant U. S. Attorney General Russell Hardy and his four associates were not in court.

During the last half hour of the session there occurred a little byplay. Leahy was answering Wood's citations when he noticed Reed, Perkins, Wood and Jeffries in a huddle and having a laugh. He stopped and said: "I pause until either the conference or the admiration is over," to which the 72-year-old former senator replied: "It's not admiration."

The court joined a half dozen spectators in the laugh.

On the Lighter Side

St. Louis, Oct. 7.—Harry C. Arthur is the wit of the witnesses here.

Al Zimbalist, who was formerly attached to the Warner home office department under S. Charles Einfeld and who is now with the St. Louis Amusement Co., operating a string of neighborhood houses here, hasn't been at the courthouse yet, but manages to make the rounds of the various hotels nightly to visit film executives from the east.

Al yearns for New York and contemplates returning there shortly.

Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy and Cresson Smith gave the eastern executives a treat the other night by screening at the local RKO exchange "The Three Musketeers" and the Louis-Baer fight films.

Several evenings before this screening, the RKO officials held a special midnight screening of "The Last Days of Pompeii" at the Orpheum.

Spyros Skouras was among those who attended and the next morning he thought so much of the picture that he raved over it to Federal Judge George H. Moore.

William Feldstein, local U. A. manager, is a Government witness. He has been on the job only about nine months, having been shifted from another U. A. exchange. Harry Scott, who had preceded Feldstein, was also subpoenaed, but he has not been seen around these parts and no one seems to know where he is.

It looks as though the Paramount, RKO and Warner executives will have to extend their reservations on present suites at the Coronado, Chase and Park Plaza, respectively, for another month. The original notice provided for 30 days.

Mort Blumenstock should be in court more often while he is here so he can receive his telegrams. On the day Motion Picture Daily published a story he arrived here and spent the morning listening to the trial, a telegram for the Warner theatre advertising head was delivered in the court room, but Mort was not around. It was marked personal and none of the other Warnerites would accept it.

Harry C. Arthur wanted to make a trip to New York with his brother Milt, and Jack Partington, by plane over the week-end, but changed his mind. He said he had checked with the Weather Bureau and flying conditions were not so favorable Saturday. The real reason is the trio couldn't get seats.

The preference shareholders' committee which has been opposing the scheme of reconstruction of General Theatres Corp., Ltd., has again circularized shareholders asking proxies. A counter circular from the directors asserts that the committee has misquoted the judgment of Justice Eve (authorizing the reconstruction) and promises a full statement soon.

The reconstruction, the essence of which was the continuance of Gaumont British management of G. T. C., will come into the courts again shortly on the appeal of the preference committee against the judgment of Justice Eve.

"Thunder" and Fight Good in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—Best business of the week was pulled by a sleeper at the Fox. After "Redheads on Parade" slumped last week, the house booked in "Thunder in the Night," backing it with the Baer-Louis fight films. The latter was a definite magnet for the masculine trade and the house got $19,500 on seven days, a top-notch figure above normal by $7,500.

"Broadway Melody of 1936" clicked well, though not so big as expected, with $15,000 at the Stanley and was held a second week. "Top Hat" kept building in the second week of its second run at the Karlton and grossed $6,300. It was held for a third week. "Dark Angel," in its second week at the Aldine, grossed $9,000 and was given a third week.

"The Bishop Misbehaves" hit the skids at the Boyd and was yanked after five days, when it got only $6,500. The Earle, without a stage show, about broke even with $9,500 for "I Live for Love." British 20% Quota Becomes Effective

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 8.—The 20 per cent exhibition quota under the Cinematograph Films Act became operative Oct. 1. For the first time, exhibitors are compelled to show the same percentage of British films that distributors are required to handle. The 20 per cent became applicable to exhibitors on April 1. The 20 per cent quota is a final form, operating until the Act, as it at present stands, lapses in 1938.

Exhibitor agitation for a reduction to 10 per cent, based on the necessity of a "safety margin" between distribution and exhibition quotas, has been active for some time.

Defense Attorneys Score Point at St. Louis Trial

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8.—Counsel for Warners, RKO and Paramount each won individual victories today when Federal Judge George H. Moore sustained objections made by them against the introduction of conversations as evidence in the indictment trial against these companies, their subsidiaries, Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell Sears, Ned E. Depinet and George J. Schaefer for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The trial today entered the second week with a resumption of arguments begun on Saturday on the admission of a conversation which transpired at Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings' office in Washington on May 17 last, during which former NRA Division Administrator Sol A. Rosenblatt called in Robert W. Perkins, counsel for Warners, and told him of a settlement made in connection with the St. Louis theatre situation.

Pettijohn's declaration was made in reply to the query, "Will arbitration come back and, if not, why not?", which was put to him by George P. Aarons, head of the Independent Exhibitors of Philadelphia, who served as toastmaster for the Film Carriers' luncheon meeting yesterday.

Defense Wins Argument in St. Louis Case

the court recessed for lunch at 12:45 Warner attorneys, Ex-Senator James A. Reed, Frederick L. Wood, Perkins and Samuel B. Jeffries walked out of the room with a decision. Earlier, George S. Leisure, representing RKO, introduced citations in connection with objections he made Saturday against admitting a conversation Harry C. Arthur had with Jules Levy in the latter's office. Because of the short notice Government counsel asked for time to look up citations in rebuttal. This was done during the mid-day recess and when court reconvened at 2 P. M. Dwight L. Savage, one of Russell Hardy's associates, presented an oral argument why the conversations should be allowed. Leisure countered, reading the numerous citations he brought in and after an hour Judge Moore sustained the objection on the ground that Levy had no right as an agent of his company to relate or discuss anything that had happened in connection with the sale of RKO pictures to Warners here.

Gentry Gains Point

William R. Gentry, local counsel for Paramount, also came through with flying colors on a similar objection regarding Neil Agnew's talk with Arthur about the disposition of Paramount films to Warners here. He said, as had the others, that the meeting in question took place after the events concerned and that such conversations had no bearing on the case. Hardy opposed Gentry but after a few minutes of argument the judge sustained the Paramount attorney.

Before the court started to hear the pros and cons on the meeting which took place in the attorney-general's office Judge Moore announced the quashing of Warners' subpoenas duces tecum for all records, files, leases, film contracts and other memoranda sought from Arthur, Harry Greenman, Charles Kurtzman, F. & M. Theatres of Missouri, Inc., lessee of the St. Louis, which is closed; the Eden Theatre Co., operating the Fox; F. & M. Stageshows, Inc., Franchon & Marco, St. Louis Missouri Theatres, Inc., operating the Missouri; St. Louis Ambassador Theatre, Inc., which has the Ambassador; Allen L. Snyder, and Edmund Koeln and James T. Blair, receivers for the Fox.

Asks for Lease

Ernest L. Wilkinson, who represents the first three individuals and four corporations and John S. Leahy, attorney for the other two corporations and three individuals, yesterday argued the matter and presented citations to the court. Wood represented Warners at the session.

Although denied the various records because the subpoenas were too indefinite, Wood, on cross examination of Arthur this afternoon, asked the first government witness to produce the lease of the St. Louis, the Fox and booking records of these theatres in addition to the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. Arthur said on the stand that he would only produce them if compelled to do so. Wood asked the court to instruct Arthur to produce them and he was ordered to produce them tomorrow morning.

The session today again was a verbal battle ground between Hardy and the defense counsel and twice Judge Moore had to order the attorneys to proceed in an orderly manner. Hardy voiced objections to persistent interruptions by the defense counsel while he was answering the charges by Warner, RKO and Paramount attorneys in connection with the Rosenblatt conference last May 17 in Washington and his examination of Arthur. Hardy took every opportunity later to raise objections to Wood's cross-examination of Arthur. It was a nip and tuck affair all day with the defense legal staff impatiently waiting the first opportunity to take the floor to prevent certain references by Arthur from going into the record. Hardy himself was ready several times to get to his feet to stop Wood from asking Arthur specific questions which he claimed were outside of the issue involved in the indictments.

Hits at Rosenblatt

In defending himself from defense charges, Hardy attacked the former NRA division administrator as "an officious interloper" who was not responsible to the Dept. of Justice when he negotiated the settlement. He added that Rosenblatt was a stranger to the Dept. of Justice. He stated to the court that Wood knew that the NRA was unconstitutional because he was the attorney in the Jacob Schecter poultry case, which defeated the NRA in the United States Supreme Court.

Perkins intervened at this point to make it clear to the judge that Wood was not retained by Warners at the time. Reed then got up and queried, "Did the Dept. of Justice think the NRA unconstitutional when it went to the Supreme Court to fight for it?"

"I have been accused of bad faith and encouraging Rosenblatt to make a settlement," Hardy said. Perkins, from his seat, called out, "You did." Then Hardy continued, "I have the privilege of this court to answer this charge." Judge Moore agreed and let him proceed.

Jury Not Present

Arthur and the jury did not sit in on the morning session, during which the arguments took place.

Hardy brought out the fact that Perkins at one time was attached to the Dept. of Justice and the Warner counsel admitted it. This was many years ago.

Wood declared that in the cases cited by Hardy a confession of settlement made by a defendant in an alleged conspiracy case and who approaches the prosecutor is not admissible under the laws of Missouri. The Warner attorney said that, "this is the only case in the United States I have heard of where an officer of the Government solicits a defendant to do something and then the special assistant to the attorney general tries to have the conversation held as evidence against him."

"Warners did not ask for a settlement. It was offered to them by Rosenblatt, and although Warners did not agree with the arrangement they were willing to accept it, hoping the indictments would not be pressed for trial," Wood said.

Just before court convened and Judge Moore handed down his deci-

St. Louis in a Closeup

St. Louis, Oct. 8.—The scene is the court of the Honorable George H. Moore, judge of United States district court for Eastern Missouri. It is here that the case of the United States versus Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell L. Sears, George J. Schaefer, Ned Depinet and 10 companies and subsidiaries with which they are affiliated is being heard. These men are under indictment for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Numerous pictures of past judges which hang so solemnly on the walls lend character and dignity to the surroundings where the criminal trial is being conducted.

It is a few minutes after 10 A. M. and everyone in the courtroom rises as the judge makes his entrance. While the many defendants, witnesses, attorneys and spectators are on their feet, Bailiff Champ Charles Steers intones the perfunctory ritual of declaring "the honorable district court of Eastern Missouri is now open for the transaction of business."

The Case Is Called

The crowd sits down.

There are two other court matters which are disposed of in quick order.

The case of "the United States Government against Warner Brothers, et al" is called.

Judge Moore has on his tortoise-rimmed glasses. He looks down into the court room and the panorama before him shows Russell Hardy, Harold L. Schilz, John S. Claggett and Dwight L. Savage, government attorneys all, seated at a large table which runs the length of the judge's bench. To the right of this table is the official court stenographer seated at a desk by himself.

He is a young man, not more than 35, it is safe to gather. On the left is the reporters' table and six newspaper and trade men have their notebooks, pads, and pencils ready.

In back of the government table, which is laden with four heavy brief cases spread out, are three fairly large tables for defense counsel. George Leisure, representing RKO; Former Senator James A. Reed and Frederick Wood, acting for Warners, and William R. Gentry, local attorney for Paramount, occupy the first seats.

Leisure sits at the first table to the left. Behind him is Jacob M. Lashly, local counsel for RKO, and in back of Lashly sits Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Distributing Corp. Leisure is of reddish complexion which makes an intriguing contrast to his golden hair and Roman nose. Lashly wears a grey suit to match his hair while Depinet wears a dark blue suit that very well becomes him.

Blue Serges Popular

Wood is an aristocratic looking man, wears pince-nez glasses. His peppery hair is flat and he likes to cant his chair so that it rests against the table and he can sit at an angle in the air. Behind him is the distinguished-looking Samuel W. Fordyce of the local legal firm of Fordyce, White, Mayne & Williams, one of the attorneys representing Paramount. He has a shock of white hair that finds its only competitor in that of ex-Senator Reed. Back of Fordyce is Louis Phillips of the Paramount home office legal staff. He also wears rimmed glasses. He has on a blue suit and is preparing to take down a series of notes.

Wood, who already has his chair propped in a comfortable position, is waiting for activities to get under way. Robert W. Perkins of the Warner office legal staff, is near him. He also dons glasses. Wears a blue serge suit.

Reed is at the extreme right. He has on a blue serge suit. Blue serges are popular here. His ruddy complexion makes an unusual contrast with his silky white hair. He has a cigar in his mouth, which he enjoys chewing with considerable relish, a large yellow pad on the table and pencil in hand. There are four panatella cigars wrapped in cellophane in his upper jacket pocket. They jut out so that they can be seen without any effort. Reed doesn't offer any of them around. He sits there talking to Samuel B. Jeffries, local Warner counsel.

Looking around the room one sees in the unoccupied jury box at the left of the court, in swivel chairs, Clarence M. Turley, Spyros Skouras, with his leg propped on a chair, William T. Powers, Harry C. Arthur, Jack Partington, Milton B. Arthur and Jules Levy. The jury panel on the right is occupied with the dozen individuals in whose hands rests the fate of the indicted.

Hardy Engrossed

Glancing further about the spacious room reveals Neil F. Agnew, Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, I. Levinson, Gordon Youngman, Gradwell Sears, his mother, George J. Schaefer, Austin C. Keough, Cresson Smith, Louis Ellman, Charles Kurtzman and a number of the local exchange managers.

Hardy is engrossed in some papers and, when the court finishes with two incidental cases which precede the film trial, the Government attorney removes his horn-rimmed spectacles, rises and calls Arthur to the witness stand. Arthur takes his place and after a few questions by Hardy is asked if he sees Levy in the room. He says yes. Hardy asks Levy to stand up. He does, forsaking the comfortable seat for a moment, crouches and takes up his squatting exercise where he left off. While Levy is standing, he is the cynosure of the entire court.

Points Out Warner

Arthur is then asked if he sees Warner, Yes, he does, but since H. M. isn't asked to stand up, he remains seated. Hardy then directs Arthur to point him out, which he does. The same for Sears and Starr and the trial is on.

It goes on for almost three hours. Now it is 10 minutes to one. Arthur resumes his position in the witness chair. The judge notices the time and says that he has been asked not to hold court Monday because of the many witnesses and counsel who are of the Jewish faith and wish to observe Yom Kippur. He says he thinks it's no more than right that he should acknowledge this and so orders the bailiff to instruct the jury and witnesses that they are dismissed until today.

sion, Leisure told the court that if the Washington discussions were admitted he would ask for a severance on the part of RKO since no representative of that company attended the meeting. He said that if such conversations were permitted to go into the record it would be prejudicial to his clients.

Reed then took the floor and declared that it was Rosenblatt's job under the NRA as division administrator for the film industry to iron out difficulties within the business. He added that before Rosenblatt asked Perkins to accept the settlement the NRA official had already talked to the attorney general and the bondholders of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. He concluded with the statement that Warners were innocent of any wrongdoing but they were willing to go along in the hope the indictments would not go to trial.

Arthur, Levy Excused

Arthur and Levy had been sitting in the court in the afternoon during the arguments on the admissibility of a conversation Levy had had with Arthur at which he (Levy) is said to have stated, "I didn't do it but I don't know if I wouldn't have done the same thing."

When they were noticed both were asked to leave and they promptly complied.

After Judge Moore upheld RKO's objections, Gentry asked that Arthur's conversation with Agnew at the latter's office also be withheld from the jury and record. He referred specifically to the meeting at which Agnew said to Arthur, according to the latter on the stand, "We had to sell Warners in St. Louis. They threatened to upset our reorganization plans in Detroit. Warners are our biggest customers."

Testimony Stricken Out

Arthur testified that during a July meeting with Agnew he offered Paramount $75,000 against a percentage for second runs at the three theatres, this in contrast to $71,000 Paramount received the previous year. Arthur stated further under oath that Agnew accepted the deal. The F. & M. head also tried to get first runs but he testified Agnew said that he had a deal on with Warners which had an Aug. 15 deadline. Agnew expressed the hope, Arthur said on the stand, that he could do something for him and that Warners might not take the deal for the Orpheum and Shubert Rialto, inasmuch as Paramount had asked the same prices as they had received for the other two big houses. Arthur testified that when he came back after the deadline date with Warners he learned from Agnew that the deal had been closed.

When he returned again and tried to close the deal for second runs, Arthur testified Agnew told him Warners were objecting to F. & M. getting the product. Arthur then told the court that when he returned another time he learned from the Paramount sales executive that he couldn't get the product on any run.

However, all this testimony proved in vain as Judge Moore sustained the objections by Gentry and the whole conversation was stricken out.

Arthur was questioned by Hardy about a meeting he had with Cresson Smith, western division manager for RKO, in regard to second runs. Arthur testified that he offered Smith $55,000 for the product in the form of a guarantee instead of percentage and Smith said he would accept. Arthur said on the stand he met a similar experience here and when he spoke to Smith again later the latter told him he couldn't get the pictures because Warners objected. This, however, was admitted to the record.

Leisure objected to Hardy's leading the witness by saying "with regard to" in his questions. Hardy stopped his examination and told the court, "We'll never get through with this case if I have to confine myself to a particular subject matter."

Within Court Discretion

Judge Moore answered both attorneys and said it was within the discretion of the court to decide this. The judge said he had let Hardy do this but would not permit him to do it again, following which the Government counsel acted accordingly.

Hardy then tried to bring in on examination of Arthur the conversation of another meeting between Levy and Arthur but excluding the references to which objections were sustained earlier.

The F. & M. head testified Levy told him with respect to the reason he couldn't get RKO second runs, "What are you going to do when they put a gun to your head. Warners are our biggest customers."

Leisure and Reed voiced objections to the introduction of a conversation between two not in the line of duty.

Judge Moore then asked whether the testimony being given touches a past event. Leisure said yes. Hardy said no. Reed then made a motion to strike out the testimony and the court sustained him. Hardy took exception to Reed interfering when the company he was representing was not involved in the particular question, but the judge ignored the protest and ordered Hardy to continue.

Wood took up his cross-examination of Arthur at 4:15 P.M. He interrogated the F. & M. chief on the various theatres operated by Arthur personally and the corporations in which he was interested financially. Arthur said in two houses in Santa Ana, two in Anaheim and one in Fullerton, all in California, and that Cobart had a 49 per cent interest and F.W.C. 51 per cent in one Long Beach and one San Jose house, that Cobart had a half interest in the Studio, Phoenix, the other half being owned by two independents, that he had a 75 per cent interest in both the Studio, Prescott, Ariz., and Boulder, Boulder Dam, Nev.

Wood tried to find out what personal interests Marco Woolf had in a number of theatres in which Arthur was not identified but Hardy objected on the ground Woolf was not a defendant or witness in the case. Judge Moore sustained the Government on this point.

Moore Orders Records

Wood then brought his interrogations to Arthur's interests in this city from early 1934 up to date and asked him to bring leases, film booking records and exhibition contracts on all local theatres under F. & M. to court tomorrow. Hardy objected and was overruled. Upon suggestion by Wood, Judge Moore ordered Arthur to produce the records.

Shortly after, Hardy made another objection as to the materiality of certain documents requested. Wood appeared nettled and asserted, "Your Honor, do you mind telling Hardy to stop advising this jury what is material and what is not. He should be admonished on his conduct." The court did not act on this suggestion.

There followed several other questions by Wood to Arthur on leases and film contracts. When asked by Warner counsel if he had the film contracts in St. Louis, Arthur said he believed he had them in New York but would get the papers if Wood wanted them. Wood said he did.

The session ended with a laugh. Arthur was still on the stand when Wood asked if he would produce film contracts for the St. Louis and Fox. Arthur, without opening his mouth, nodded and smiled.

Arthur will resume on the stand tomorrow and when Wood gets through with him the Paramount counsel will begin an interrogation of the testimony the F. & M. head had made when he was directly examined by Hardy.

Youngclaus Expected

William Youngclaus, who operates in Grand Island, Neb., and has an anti-trust action pending, is expected to attend the local trial within the next few days. Max Roth, midwest division manager for Columbia, dropped in at the session today and left tonight for Milwaukee after conferring the greater part of the night with Clarence D. Hill, local company branch manager, who has been subpoened.

Thomas K. Dysart, head of the bondholders' committee for the three theatres involved in the local action, is expected to be the second government witness. He has been in the court since the trial began, awaiting his turn.

Ontario Tax Holds At $240,000 Level

Toronto, Oct. 8.—The Ontario Government has apparently reached the "saturation point" in the greatly-increased amusement tax which went into effect June 1. The deadline appears to be $240,000 for a month's collection because the total levy has been close to this figure for three of the four months since the new impost became effective. The take for September was approximately $239,000.

That the amusement business is suffering because of the levy is shown in comparisons with 1934. In September last year the tax total was $68,000, or an increase of $25,000 over August, 1934. The Government take of $239,000 for the past month was less than $9,000 greater than for August. In past years the normal jump in theatre business for September over August has been around 50 per cent. The Ontario tax reports this year indicate an increase of less than four per cent.

Two Executives Join Para. Studio

Hollywood, Oct. 8.—Changes in Paramount personnel today place two more former Fox department heads in executive positions, according to an announcement from Keith Glennan, Paramount operations manager. Walter Quinlan, former Fox electrical department head, was signed as electrical superintendent, and O. C. Stratton was placed in charge of properties. Quinlan replaces Earl Miller. George Bagnall, treasurer, and John Zinn, casting director, were both Fox executives.

It is reported that Winfield Sheehan definitely will join the Paramount studio at the conclusion of his European vacation.

Players Buy Peace Bonds

Jean Muir and Anita Louise, players in Warners' "A Midsummer Night's Dream," bought $25 worth of bonds yesterday in launching a drive for the sale of $1,000,000 of non-redeemable peace bonds. The sale is being directed by Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War.

New General Theatre Plan Before Court and debentures—for each $1,024.82 of indebtedness, 10 shares of capital stock of the new company, with warrants to purchase one and three-quarters units of capital stock of Twentieth Century-Fox at $60 per unit on or before Oct. 1, 1936, and at $70 per unit on or before Oct. 1, 1937.

To holders of notes and accounts payable—for each $1,024.82 of indebtedness, seven and one-half shares of capital stock of the new company, with warrants to purchase one and one-quarter units of capital stock of Twentieth Century-Fox at $60 per unit on or before Oct. 1, 1936, and at $70 on or before Oct. 1, 1937.

To holders of preferred stock—for each 10 shares, warrants to purchase one share of capital stock of the new company on or before Oct. 1, 1937, at $12 per share.

Is Committee Plan

To holders of common stock—for each 25 shares, warrant to purchase one share of capital stock of the new company on or before Oct. 1, 1937, at $12 per share.

The plan was submitted by a committee made up of Arthur Loasby, chairman; Edward C. Delafield, Harry S. Durand, Lloyd S. Gilmour, Arthur Peck, Conrad H. Poppenhusen, Seton Porter and Ray W. Stephenson. This committee, which now calls itself a reorganization committee, has been functioning since Feb. 10, 1932, as a protective committee.

General Theatres went into receivership Feb. 29, 1932 in Delaware and Daniel O. Hastings was named receiver. On March 1, the day following, Hastings was also made ancillary receiver by the U. S. District Court for the New York Southern District.

During Hastings' administration obligations of the company totalling $54,193,627.93 at the time of the receivership have been reduced to $47,812,790.72.

Many changes also have been made in assets as a result of the reorganization of Fox Film Corp. and its subsequent merger into Twentieth Century-Fox; the receivership of Fox Theatres Corp.; the sale of Loew's, Inc., stock held by the Film Securities Corp. and the subsequent liquidation of this company. Due to suits pending against All-Continent Corp., controlled by William Fox; the suit of the Chicago Title & Trust Co. against Fox on his guarantee of Roxy Theatres Corp. stock, and suits of All-Continent and Fox against General Theatres, various contingencies are left in the proposed reorganization.

Subsidiaries Named

At the time of the receivership General Theatres directly controlled as subsidiaries the following: National Theatre Supply Co., International Projector Corp., Theatre. Equipment Acceptance Corp., J. E. McAuley Mfg. Co., The Strong Electric Corp., The Ashcraft Automatic Arc Co., Hall & Connolly, Inc., lamp manufacturers, and J. M. Wall Machine Co., Inc.

It secured control of Fox and Fox Theatres through purchase of Fox's Class A voting stock in both at the time of his financial difficulties, but this control in turn was largely responsible for the undoing of General Theatres when Fox Film ceased to pay dividends.

The Fox Film and Theatres stock was pledged to the Chase National Bank with other stock for loans aggregating $20,389,769.85. The bank agrees to return the collateral in addition to loaning the new company $2,000,000, if the reorganization is approved by the court without changes which it cannot accept.

It is expected that copies of the plan and agreement will be available soon at the City Bank Farmers Trust Co., the depositary named in the plan and agreement.

Al Lichtman To Quit Post As U.A. Head understood, however, that formal announcement of his resignation will be made on Wednesday following a meeting of the United Artists board of directors.

Nathan Burkan, attorney for Charles Chaplin, a member-owner of U. A., reached Hollywood tonight on The Chief. Mary Pickford, another member-owner, is due here tomorrow from the east and will go directly to the meeting of the board.

In the meantime, Lichtman, when questioned about his resignation which is viewed as inevitable, tonight stated he had nothing to say, but would make an announcement at the proper moment.

It was learned authoritatively from studio sources that Lichtman has spent no time on the U. A. lot since his reported verbal tilt with Goldwyn. He also said tonight he had not given thought to future identification with any other company, although reports current again tie him in with a special post at Twentieth Century-Fox. Goldwyn, thus far, has refused to make any statement.

It was reported last night the Loew circuit had determined not to play "Barbary Coast," latest Goldwyn release, because of terms insisted upon by the producer.

Whether or not this was a factor leading to the differences between Al Lichtman and the producer could not be learned.

Kent Scoffs Report

Queried about coast reports linking Al Lichtman with Twentieth Century-Fox, Sidney R. Kent, who returned from Europe on the Berengaria last night, said:

"Forget it. There is nothing to it."

Steuer Fee to Referee

Justice Edward S. Dore handed down a decision in the Supreme Court yesterday sending to a referee the matter for determining the fee for attorney Max D. Steuer in connection with a suit brought by the Knickerbocker Theatres, Inc., against Steuer for the return of $45,000. He also ruled that the fee could not be decided on the affidavit submitted and therefore the matter would have to be passed upon after it had gone before a special referee.

Pettijohn for Settling All Rows Locally

arbitration has been outlawed by Supreme Court decisions, and not arbitration as such, Pettijohn said that contracts which offer exhibitors no alternative but to submit their differences to arbitration are "compulsory." This can be avoided, he said, by offering two contract forms. Under the one form, exhibitors and distributors would agree to submit their differences to a "fair forum of industry men" for settlement. Under the second contract form the parties to it would not be subject to either the benefits or responsibilities of arbitration.

Urges Lawyers' Exclusion

Pettijohn made no suggestions as to how the local arbitration groups should be chosen or who should serve on them, leaving these and other considerations, he said, to those who are interested in furthering plans for the internal settlement of industry problems. He did state that arbitration groups should be made up of "reasonable and informed industry men interested in deciding what is right and what is wrong without invoking legal technicalities and complexities" and urged that lawyers be excluded from such boards.

"The only way that arbitration can be successful in this business is to keep the lawyers out," he said.

Pettijohn made but one reference to the Film Boards of Trade and that was to point out that they are still in existence, "performing a purely distribution service," and that they are not and never have been "arbitration boards." The old arbitration boards were separate and distinct organizations from the Film Boards, he said.

Tribute to Carriers

The Hays general counsel paid tribute to the Film Carriers Ass'n. and urged the members to keep their organization "active and compact" to assure the success of their business. He also complimented them on the services to the industry performed individually by the carriers in getting film to the theatres under many kinds of adverse conditions, citing the delivery of film during the San Francisco general strike of last year and throughout badly flooded districts in the south.

Ted Rodgers, president of the American Trucking Ass'n, also a speaker at the luncheon, said that under the new Federal Motor Carriers' Act trucking rates would have to be made known and that rate committees were now engaged in drafting schedules in all sections of the country. The rates would not represent unreasonable increases in any instance, he said. Rodgers also stressed to the carriers the necessity for safety in the operation of their trucks.

Managers of exchange operations for national distributors were the guests of the association at the luncheon. The organization's meeting closes today with the election of officers. The re-election of James P. Clark as president is regarded as a certainty.

opening is under way here, the picture will already have taken its bow at the Adelphi in London where tonight marks the premiere of the picture in that city as well.

"The Goose and the Gander" was a heavy grosser in spite of the competition. With Dave Apollon on the stage to help out, it garnered $7,500, over the line by $3,500 at the Circle. "Page Miss Glory" made an average $4,000 at the Apollo.

Hereafter Sprague will supervise layouts and plans for all productions, and Leahy will have charge of execution of production plans. Both will be solely responsible to Lubitsch.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Spanish Cape Mystery"

(Republic)

This is a good murder mystery, engrossing for the most part and never failing to hold the interest despite several sequences in which prolonged interrogating of suspects, which gets nowhere, threatens to wear on audience patience. The recovery from these sequences, however, introduces new lines of action which quickly compensate for the brief letdowns.

The story concerns the involving of Ellery Queen, an eastern detective, played by Donald Cook, in a series of house party murders during his vacation in California. Three men and a woman are found murdered 12 hours apart at the home of Stella Godfrey, a young heiress, played by Helen Twelvetrees. Cook, who has taken no part in the solution of the crimes up to the point at which suspicion falls upon Miss Twelvetrees, then steps in and sets the successful trap for the murderer.

The M. H. Hoffman production is nicely staged and well acted. Direction by Lewis D. Collins and photography by Gilbert Warrenton are good. Production Code Seal No. 1,167. Running time, 73 minutes. "G."

Baravele was signed to synchronize and to conduct, and the signing of Finston leaves him free to take over those duties.

"Hat" $8,200 Hit In Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 8.—"Top Hat" ran away with the bulk of the business here last week by garnering $8,200, more than double normal, at the Midwest.

All other houses suffered. "Alice Adams" was jerked after six days at the Criterion. In four days "Gay Deception," at the Capitol took $1,200, slightly more than half a seven-day average, and "Bonnie Scotland" and the Baer-Louis fight films went in for three days. The take on these also was $1,200.

Total first run business was $15,300. Average is $13,500.

Short Subjects

"Tricks of Trade"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

An exposé of the various tricks played on the unsuspecting public, this short, aided by the insanities of the Easy Aces should be found interesting by a large audience. It shows how racing "touts" work, how dishonest weight is measured out by stores and a radio studio showing how sound effects are made. Films come in when a train wreck is shown in miniature which is the best episode in the offering. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 1,308. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Scrappy's Trailer"

(Columbia)

With a sea-going trailer, the cartoon character of the title has a series of adventures, in the humdrum manner, when he stops for lunch out in the great open spaces. With fantastic compactness the trailer emits everything that makes for home-like comfort even to a cow and trees. A bear that somehow got himself into a tree breaks up the little affair and the expected chase and narrow escape wind up the routine offering. Production Code Seal No. 1,143. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Capital Idea"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

Mrs. Ace is taken on a somewhat sarcastic tour of the various buildings in Washington by her husband, but, nevertheless, an interesting offering is the result. Interesting shots of the highlights of the city include the three police forces, the various buildings and a tour of the Smithsonian Institution where emphasis is laid on the various gowns worn by the Presidents' wives at the Inaugural Ball. Recommended. No production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Diamond Jim," "I Live for Love" on a dual bill, brought the Roger Sherman just up to the normal line at $4,500. The College did somewhat better than par on the holdover of "She Married Her Boss" and "Atlantic Adventure," totaling $3,100. "Virginia Judge," together with Ina Ray Hutton on the stage, called forth a five-cent increase in prices at the Paramount, and took $5,600, against an average $4,800.

British Film Industry All Awhirl—Kent

ducers have gone crazy on negatives. The British industry will have to go through all of the diseases, such as overbuilding, through which we have gone here and have not yet solved. Eventually, however, it will be a good industry.

"Promotion is in full swing and money is very easy to get. Exactly because it is, my thought is that it would be well to proceed carefully. So far as we are concerned at the minute, we are moving on plans for the Elisabeth Bergner pictures, but nothing beyond that at this time."

Kent is undetermined about his immediate plans for the future. If Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, does not come east in the next few days, it is very likely Kent will go west.

Fox Theatres Stock Buy Ruling Reserved to acquire 50 per cent of the stock of Metropolitan Playhouses for the payment to United Artists Theatre Circuit of $275,000 or to relinquish its option and receive $150,000 from the theatre company. The exercise of the option would leave Joseph M. Schenck with 40 per cent of the new Fox Met stock and Keith-Albee-Orpheum with 10 per cent. Failure to exercise it would give Schenck 80 per cent and K-A-O 20 per cent.

A preponderance of creditor sentiment expressed at yesterday's hearing was opposed to the exercise of the option by Fox Theatres. Attorneys for U. A. Theatre Circuit and K-A-O also appeared to oppose any extension beyond Nov. 2 of the time in which the Fox Theatres' receiver may exercise the option, declaring that this was a part of their contract with the receiver and could not be disturbed by the court.

Extend Fox Met Claim

Federal Judge Julian W. Mack yesterday extended to Oct. 18 the time in which the receiver for Fox Metropolitan Playhouses may file exceptions to the $4,500,000 claim filed against it by Fox Theatres Corp. The claim has been settled by an agreement made a part of the Fox Met reorganization plan which grants Fox Theatres an option to purchase for $275,000 one-half of the stock of reorganized Fox Met or to forego the purchase and receive $150,000.

Wood Grills Harry Arthur In Cross-Quiz

Defense Charges Arthur Sought a Monopoly

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—Harry C. Arthur, first Government witness in the indictment trial of Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell Sears, George J. Schaefer, Ned E. Depinet, Paramount, RKO, and Warners and their subsidiaries today underwent a terrific grilling at the hands of Frederick H. Wood, one of the Warner attorneys.

Arthur was cross-examined by Wood for the third time and the all-day process was marked by a number of sharp remarks by Wood when Arthur, who claimed he was confused at the questions, offered to tell his story of the events asked about in the order in which they actually hap-

Hays Office Study Begun in 100 Keys

The M.P.P.D.A. is sending representatives into 100 key cities to gather information and to develop good will for films. The move is a continuation of public relations contact work begun last year. An effort will be made to obtain a cross section of reactions to the industry, pictures and the Hays office.

The results of the study are to be confidential, available only to the M.P.P.D.A. staff and directors. Lupton H. Wilkinson, assistant to Will H. Hays, and in charge of coast publicity, is in New York, planning to start on a southern tour late this week. Tom Pettey of the New York

Join Warners with Phila. Theatre Buy

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—Film Row today buzzed with the theory that the T.N.F.R. Realty Co., which just settled for the Tower, Nixon, Roosevelt and Frankford with the estates of William Freihofer and Fred C. Nixon-Nirdlinger, has a definite hook-up with Warners.

Just about a year ago Harry M. Warner was reported purchasing these houses apart from Warner Theatres, but he vigorously denied such report at the time. The real estate agent for the current purchaser, however, is Albert M. Greenfield & Co.,

Broadway Jammed For Record Opening

By J. M. JERAULD

Park Avenue moved over to Broadway last night for the opening of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Hollywood, and Eighth and Ninth and 10th Avenues moved over to watch the Park Avenue migration. Jamaica, Patchogue, Yonkers and North Jersey commuters apparently stayed in town to take a look, too.

It was one of those kind of openings that would make the Metropolitan Opera House manager burst a shirt stud with pride. Broadway hasn't seen anything like it—not since the depression, anyway, and memories grow hazy beyond that.

Policemen began to filter into Broadway in squads about 7:30 o'clock. A half hour later they were arriving by the truckload. The 47th St. Station was sending out reserves.

Four mounted officers rode up onto the sidewalk under the marquee repeatedly and pushed solid masses of humans back. Shortly after 8 o'clock both sides of the street were jammed from 50th St. to 53rd St. The backwash had the Capitol entrance choked up and buses from everywhere were finding it impossible to reach the terminal near Eighth Ave.

At that it was an orderly opening,

Premiere Makes Big London Impression

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Attended by one of the most brilliant and representative social gatherings in London's film and theatre history, with crowds milling in front of the theatre and a large white bust of William Shakespeare floodlighted in its niche in the facade of the Adelphi, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" had its British premiere here tonight.

Crowds on the Strand caused a traffic jam and special police were called out before and after the show.

There was not one presentation speech, and no reception. It was a straight projection with the main leads on colored scrims drawn as the picture opened. The showing was interrupted for a 10-minute intermission.

The feature undoubtedly made a tremendous impression.

Production executives regard the technique as miraculous. Undoubtedly the general view is that it is America's new high as a combination of magnificence on a large scale and artistry.

Royalty, the peerage and the intellectual aristocracy of England was represented in the audience.

Celebrities from the social and political strata included the Honorable

U. A. Accepts Resignation Of Lichtman

Board of Directors Acts At Coast Meeting

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—The resignation of Al Lichtman as president was unanimously accepted at a meeting here today of the board of directors of United Artists.

It is understood that Lichtman's successor in charge of distribution, if not in the president's post, is very apt to be Maurice Silverstone, at present managing director of British United Artists.

Disagreements between Goldwyn and Lichtman are said to have become acute last week when Lichtman declared that his rights under his contract had been infringed.

At the U. A. sales convention an official statement was made to the ef-

No 10-Year Operator Pact, States Basson

Statements by two prominent circuit officials yesterday that 10-year contracts had been closed by Loew's and RKO with Local 306 were promptly denied by Joseph D. Basson, president of the local.

The circuit officials who made the statements have been active in the new wage scale negotiations with Local 306 for the past two months. They declared yesterday that a definite agreement on a 10-year contract had been arrived at and that the new pacts would be signed as quickly as a few remaining "details" of minor importance had been disposed of. They asked that their names be withheld.

St. Louis Creditors Told to File Claims

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—Creditors having claims against the Theatre Realty Co., which operates the Fox here, have been requested to file petitions by Oct. 18 with James T. Blair and Edmond Koeln, receivers since Jan. 9, 1932. Failure to do so will bar any claimants from seeking settlements.

Circuit Judge O'Malley recently allowed attorneys and receivers fees aggregating $147,000. John S. Leahy and Guy A. Thompson are counsel for the receivers.

Benjamin F. De Agostino, president of Allied M. P. Operators' Union, has been denied an injunction by N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Dore against the Edjomac Amusement Corp., operator of the Eltinge.

De Agostino sought the stay on the ground that the Eltinge operators were not members of his union and that this was a violation of an agreement between the corporation and the union.

RKO Wins Order for Particulars in Suit

Justice Aaron J. Levy in the New York Supreme Court yesterday granted a motion made by Leon Goldberg as treasurer of both the 81st Street Theatre Corp. and the Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corp. for a bill of particulars in connection with the suit brought by the Skouras Theatre Corp. against Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. and the RKO theatre.

This suit alleges that the RKO induced Twentieth Century-Fox to breach a contract with the plaintiffs which was entered into on Nov. 2, 1931. Skouras was given five days to serve the bill of particulars and the trial of the suit has been postponed until five days after the bill has been served. Justice Levy's order requests the plaintiff to give details of its contract arrangement with Twentieth Century-Fox and mention every occasion during the season of 1931-32 that Fox pictures were exhibited in the Riverside, Nemo, Japanese Garden and Riviera. They are also requested to state the investments in the theatres mentioned other than the investment made by Skouras.

Report Bennett Not To Run Ascap Trial

Andrew Bennett, special assistant to the Attorney General, who was in charge of the prosecution of the Government's anti-trust action against the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers and other music licensing organizations at the start of trial of the action in Federal Court here last spring, will not be identified with the case after the resumption of the trial next month, it was reported yesterday in informed quarters.

Bennett plans to retire from Government service to enter private practice, it was stated.

Trial of the Government's anti-trust action against Ascap, the Music Publishers Protection Ass'n. and similar organizations, is scheduled to be resumed Nov. 4 before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard. Whether the Government will be prepared to proceed on that date in the event Bennett's absence from the case materializes is expected to be decided at a conference of attorneys with Judge Goddard within the next few weeks.

Otterson Back from Second Coast Trip

John E. Otterson, Paramount president, returned yesterday from his second visit to the west coast studio since he became head of the company. Otterson probably will remain here until the end of the year when he plans a European trip to look over Paramount properties and operations abroad.

During the next few weeks he is scheduled to oversee the drawing of new operating agreements for the Hoblitzelle, Kunsky-Trendle and A. H. Blank circuits, to replace those temporarily extended to Oct. 28.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—Mort Blumenstock has returned to New York after several days here, but is expected back next week for a special campaign on the opening of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Shubert-Rialto Oct. 24.

Purely Personal

JACK ALICOATE was the guest of the Off-the-Record Club which, according to constitution and bylaws, met as usual at "21" yesterday. The routine business was enlivened by a wire sent to Secretary RED KANN by BOB O'DONNELL, back in Dallas now. The text:

"Last week's honor guest takes this means of expressing his deep appreciation for the honor bestowed upon him, also including the stimulating effects recommended by HERMAN ROBBINS and SAM DEMBOW. In the event that there is an honor guest on this day, will appreciate your secretary ordering a generous libation and sending the bill for same to me. Regards to all of you and best wishes for the continued success of the Off-the-Record Club."

The board of governors instructed the secretary to wire O'Donnell and tell him emphatically among other things that there is always a guest of honor at every weekly meeting of the club.

H. BRIGGS, BILL HEARST and his wife; HUGO RIESENFELD, in from Hollywood for a spell; among those at JACK and CHARLIE'S yesterday for lunch, solid and liquid.

ARTHUR COLE, office manager of Paramount and Hays office contact on censorship in Kansas City, left for home last night. He came on for the National Film Carriers convention which closed at the Park Central last night and for meetings with Paramount and Hays officials. E. E. JAMESON of the Exhibitors Film Delivery and Service Co. and a director of the carriers' association goes by plane today. It's his own.

M. B. SHANBERG and GREGORY LA CAVA returned from their extended European trip on the Normandie.

ROSCOE KARNS, Paramount contract player, will be guest star on the Atlantic Family program over the Columbia network Saturday night from 7 to 7:30 o'clock.

pened. This happened twice and on the second occasion Wood curtly replied to Arthur's suggestion, "I'm a little afraid of your sequences."

Russell Hardy turned the tables on his first adversary today when he took every opportunity to object to debatable questions put to Arthur by Wood. Particularly was the Government counsel annoying to the Warner attorney when Wood was trying to get some information from Arthur about the terms and provisions of a lease on the Fox. Hardy jumped up three times in succession and was sustained in all but two objections. Wood didn't hesitate to show his disagreement to Hardy's continued differences on the questions involved and cast several devastating looks at the Government counsel, who was giving Wood a taste of the medicine he had taken for two days while he had the F. & M. head on the stand. Hardy was enjoying himself and more than once turned to his associates and had a good laugh.

Attorneys Cautioned

Once during the afternoon session Arthur lost his temper when Wood questioned him about not knowing what Warners wanted in the subpoenas which were quashed yesterday. Arthur called out to Wood, who was standing alongside of a juror, that the subpoenas demanded every available record his companies had and he didn't know which specific ones were wanted.

Federal Judge George H. Moore at this point said, "We'll never get through with the case at this rate." During the morning session the judge admonished the attorneys to conduct themselves according to the propriety of the court. This happened when Hardy almost got into a legal battle with Wood.

Hardy jumped up as Arthur was being interrogated on a number of leases and said to the judge, "I'd like to know what Mr. Wood is trying to prove." Hardy asked to argue the matter without the jury but Judge Moore called him to the bench, with former Senator James A. Reed, Robert W. Perkins and Jacob M. Lashly.

Koplar Named

Whispering below the judge's bench so that the jury would not hear, Wood told the judge that he was trying to bring out that "Harry Koplar and Arthur had worked out a program to establish a monopoly of first runs, to acquire possession of the St. Louis Amusement Co., which was a second run circuit, to drive Warners out of business and to use the power and control to dictate terms to all producers and distributors. If they could effect such a monopoly they would have Warners and other exhibitors over a barrel and could rule the town for purposes of extortion."

Wood continued to the judge, "Koplar was the originator of the plan, part of which was to drive Warners out and Arthur knew about this. Reed brought this out in his opening statement." After Wood had finished making the statement, he asked the court reporter to read it over again to Judge Moore, who finally agreed to let Wood continue.

When Wood began interpreting the terms of the lease on the Fox as to the $1,000 weekly payment to the owners of the St. Louis, which, according to the agreement, was to be kept closed, and Columbia and RKO product bought for this house switched to the Fox, Arthur showed his displeasure at Wood's reasoning. Arthur objected several times to the way Wood had figured and offered to help him out but the Warner attorney refused.

Before the session opened this morning, Judge Moore officially announced there would be no sessions Friday and Saturday. After a very brief argument by counsel the judge quashed subpoenas issued on behalf of RKO for records and various data of companies in which Arthur was and is interested. Ernest L. Wilkinson represented Arthur and Lashly the distributor.

Reed Wins Point

Senator Reed also won a point when he argued that Wood had the right to question Arthur on inferences drawn by Hardy under direct examination. Arthur brought in most of the records of his companies sought by Warners in the subpoenas which were quashed. He has a number of others in New York for which he has telephoned. The F. & M. head will resume tomorrow on the stand and it is unlikely that the Warner counsel will get through with him. It is probable that Reed, who wants to cross examine Arthur, will succeed Wood when the latter finishes his questioning.

Before Wood began his interrogation of Arthur, Reed informally discussed with the Judge the objections made by Hardy to some of the questions put to Arthur yesterday by Wood. Reed said that the reason Arthur had lost about $200,000 in the operation of the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central was that the houses were mismanaged, prices cut and duals shown. These things combined formed the reason Warners had a right not to sell to F. & M., he said.

Arthur then was cross-examined by Wood, who asked him: "Between 1930 and 1932 you held an executive position with Fox Theatres?"

"Yes," Arthur answered, "I was under contract to Fox Film, but they assigned me to the theatre department."

Arthur was then queried as to his knowledge at the time of the local theatre situation. Arthur said he knew Loew's had the State, Fox the Fox, RKO the St. Louis as first runs, but did not know Skouras Super Theatres operated the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central. After a few more questions on this subject Hardy asked Arthur a question to which Wood objected and was sustained. Arthur then discussed a conversation he had had with Spyros Skouras after the latter had sold out his local interests to Warners.

Testifies on Meetings

Certain questions in relation to the Warner deal for the purchase of Skouras equity in the Ambassador and St. Louis Amusement Co. were brought up in connection with the development of the first and second run situation here. It was brought out that St. Louis Amusement Co. had about 20 theatres at the time it was sold to Warners. Arthur was then queried as to whether F. & M. had an office in St. Louis about 1933. He said no, but whenever a unit played a theatre the production manager made his headquarters there.

"What is Marco's full name and also Fanchon's?" Arthur was asked. He said Marco Wolff is the brother of Fanchon Simon and both form Fanchon and Marco.

Considerable testimony was introduced by Arthur as to meetings held here and attended by Louis M. Cohen, Harry Koplar, Harry Singer, Julius Glazer, Emil Straus and several other local individuals, including Allen L. Snyder and John S. Leahy. While Arthur was being interrogated Hardy arose and said that one of the questions being asked was not proper. He added, pointing to Wood, "You're trying to bulldoze the witness."

Arthur then introduced a lease of the Fox, an order of the court and three modifications of the lease. Wood said on their production, "You could have saved a lot of time by having given us these when we asked for them." Hardy took exception to the remark and he was upheld. Arthur also produced the leases of the Ambassador and Missouri and then went into detail on matters in connection with them. Hardy again wasn't satisfied with the procedure of Wood and told the court, "Mr. Wood has spent four minutes on one question. It's a colossal waste of time."

The last objection was sustained and when Hardy saw that Wood was trying to get around it in another way he jumped from his seat and said, "Your Honor has already ruled on this matter."

The judge promptly retorted, "I can take care of myself." The whole afternoon was taken up by questions pertaining to the leases on the Fox and St. Louis. Wood tried to bring out what transpired at meetings Arthur had with Koplar and also separate conferences with John S. Leahy. Arthur several times confessed his confusion.

Arthur "Twisted"

Koplar's name was mentioned more in the afternoon session than in any other. Wood was trying to get Arthur to testify to the part Koplar played in F. & M. taking over the Ambassador, St. Louis and Missouri. Arthur stated under oath that before Koplar came into the picture he had talked to Leahy about a proposition and after he had accepted it by phone he later came on from New York to sign the deal. When he talked to Koplar, Arthur said he understood Koplar wanted him to go in on a deal. Later upon talking to Leahy, Arthur said, Koplar's name was mentioned and that was the first time he knew Koplar and Snyder were together on the proposition.

"What was Koplar's job?" Wood asked.

Arthur answered he was one of three managers at the St. Louis. Charles Kurtzman and Harry Greenman were the other two.

"What did Koplar do for his $52,000 a year?"

"He got $78,000," Arthur corrected, "and he gave the boys advice based on his experience. Not that they always took his advice."

After a barrage of questions concerning Koplar, Arthur said, "You've got me so twisted that I may have said Koplar did something I'm not so sure of." The F. & M. head pleaded with Wood to let him tell his story in his own way but it was no use. Just before he finished for the day Arthur said that he later understood that "Koplar was broke and that he represented a Dr. Probstein in the deal with Snyder."

Max Roth appeared in court yesterday with a blood red shirt, and did he take a carload of kidding from his fellow exchangemen?

Study Other Trust Suits

St. Louis, Oct. 9.—Investigators of the Dept. of Justice are studying suits filed by independent exhibitors charging conspiracy in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. Two cases being checked are complaints filed by a Hillsboro, Tex., exhibitor in the U. S. District Court at Waco against Robb & Rowley. Another is the Ruben Frels damage claim of about $250,000 against the Jefferson Amusement Co., filed in Dallas. The Youngclaus and Thornburg suits also are being studied.

John Boettiger, special assistant to Hays, recently completed a coast-to-coast tour, contacting eight key cities. Rev. Irving E. Deer, who recently resigned as executive secretary of the Kansas City Council of Churches, is engaged in contact work with church groups, as a member of the public relations department under Carl E. Milliken. He was responsible for the creation of a film bureau in conjunction with the Council of Churches.

As the result of a survey he conducted in Kansas City before joining the Hays organization, Deer concluded that censorship is of little value in producing better pictures, that parents should exercise more discrimination in the selection of films their children see, and that churches should adopt a method of supplying information on pictures being shown.

U.A. Resignation of Lichtman Accepted

fect that Lichtman was in complete charge of distribution, including sales, advertising, exploitation, with owner-members relinquishing the right to approve contracts.

It is understood that last week Goldwyn, reputedly dissatisfied with results on "Dark Angel" and "Barbary Coast," refused to accept Lichtman's approvals.

In the past Goldwyn has always demanded as high prices for his product as that obtained on any other product, except Charlie Chaplin's films. It is understood that Lichtman's activities have been hampered by demands that important sales matters be referred to the coast for approval. He is said to have felt that these demands infringed on his prerogatives.

Deny "Barbary Coast" Rift

United Artists yesterday denied any booking difficulties with the Loew circuit over "Barbary Coast," latest Samuel Goldwyn release, and declared the picture starts its dates Oct. 18 out of town.

U. A. Takes "Gentleman"

U. A. has closed a deal for distribution in this country of the Marcel Hellman production, "The Amateur Gentleman," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Elissa Landi. The film is now in production in England under the direction of Thornton Freeland.

Statements Vary on Fox Theatres Status

Contradictory testimony on the assets and liabilities of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses figured in the first day's hearing on the solvency of Fox Theatres Corp. before Federal Judge Martin T. Manton yesterday.

The hearings will be resumed today. They are being held to aid the court to determine whether or not it should sign an order to show cause why the Fox Theatres' receiver should not be directed to exercise an option to acquire 50 per cent of the stock of reorganized Fox Met. The order is being sought by a Fox Theatres' stockholders' committee and appears to be opposed by a majority of the company's creditors. Under the option, which expires Nov. 2, Fox Theatres may acquire one-half of the new Fox Met stock by payment to United Artists Theatre Circuit of $275,000, or may relinquish the option and receive $150,000. Creditors opposed to the action are of the opinion that Fox Theatres stands no chance of realizing a profit on the proposed investment for the next 10 years.

acting with Lionel Friedman, Inc. The theory on Warner participation is strengthened by the fact Greenfield has negotiated most of the company's local real estate affairs.

Acquisition of the Tower and Nixon would give Warners dominance in West Philadelphia, where rival interests, together with William Goldman, former zone manager for Warners, are rumored preparing an invasion. The purchase price of the four houses is given as $1,650,000, with $403,000 of it in cash. This is close to the figure mentioned last year in the deal denied then by Warner.

The houses involved have key neighborhood rank. The Frankford and Roosevelt are located in the prosperous Frankford district.

ITOA Talks Federal Probe in This City

Complaints of alleged trade aggressions against independent exhibitors here may be lodged with the Federal district attorney by the I.T.O.A., according to a statement issued by Harry Brandt following a regular I.T.O.A. meeting yesterday.

A committee of five was named and empowered by the meeting to file a complaint with the Federal official on unfair trade practices, alleged "conspiracies in restraint of trade are being perpetrated by the film companies," according to the Brandt statement. Members of the committee are Ben Romain, chairman, Al Cooper, Maurice Fleischman, Louis Schiffman and Joe Rosenzweig.

Aarons Not with IEPA

George P. Aarons, who acted as toastmaster at the National Film Carriers' luncheon meeting at the Park Central on Tuesday, was inadvertently identified as an official of the Independent Exhibitors Ass'n. of Philadelphia in yesterday's issue. Aarons is secretary of the M.P.T.O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware.

Broadway Is Crowded As 'Dream' Opens

distinguished by its dignity. The Hollywood had been sold out in advance to the English Speaking Union and tickets retailed at $11 per copy. That made it different from regular premieres—a little less colorful, perhaps, but impressive.

About 9:20 a shout went up along Broadway above 53rd St. and a stampede started. It was Anita Louise. Policemen on foot got lost in the scramble. Those on horses waved their arms and shouted. It took six of them to get the blonde player across the sidewalk.

Albert Einstein, creator of relativity, got as far as the entrance before his waving locks were recognized. He was received with cheers. He hesitated, apparently surprised, then smiled and S. Charles Einfeld rushed to the rescue and escorted him in.

Mrs. James Roosevelt Arrives

Samuel Seabury walked in, followed by Frank Buck, and not a flapper gasped. One man arrived under a beret and another had a green velvet evening jacket and red tie, but these were minor interruptions in a parade of solid dignity issuing from a line of limousines 10 blocks long.

Edward G. Robinson came in at 8:20. There were no microphones, none of the usual ballyhoo. Celebrities hurried in in droves and flashlight bulbs kept the place intermittently illuminated like a midsummer night's electrical storm. Adolph Zukor received a hand. Mrs. Boettiger, the President's daughter, was a sensation.

The big moment of the evening came when Mrs. James Roosevelt stepped out of a car escorted by Will H. Hays. A hush swept the crowd, then a burst of cheers. She paused, then flashed an extraordinarily magnetic smile and bowed. Broadway film openings had touched a new zenith. It was another red letter night in the history of Warners, recalling those two previous openings that left their marks on film history—Aug. 6, 1926, when "Don Juan" talked from the screen, and Oct. 6, 1927, when "The Jazz Singer" rendered film silence obsolete.

Art, Science Represented

Charlie Einfeld had set out to achieve something different. Here it was. A billboard campaign, the like of which hasn't been seen in years, had drawn the spectators; artistic advertising had impressed the more discriminating with the importance of a new venture in film entertainment; careful planning had brought out a new clientele.

Art, science, society, the professions were represented in profusion. Max Reinhardt, the producer of the picture; Sir Gerald Campbell, British consul general; M. H. Aylesworth, Joseph Bernhard, Jules E. Brulatour, A. E. Davison, Frederick A. Delano, the Marquis Henri de la Falaise, Sir Henry and Lady Grayson, Deems Taylor, Eddie Rickenbacker, Major Leslie Thompson—hundreds of well known personages paraded through the lobby without interruption.

The final outburst of excitement that nearly pushed the police into the side streets came when Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone arrived at 9:10. At the time John W. Davis was talking on the stage of the importance of the occasion and the pleasure the English Speaking Union took in sponsoring it. Reinhardt apologized for his English in the presence of such a gathering, and was received with cheers. Sir Gerald Campbell said he didn't know who he was supposed to represent, but supposed it was the country that had given birth to Shakespeare.

And the show was on.

Looking 'Em Over

"A Midsummer Night's Dream"

(Warners)

Encircle the date, October 9. For last night brought in an event of very major importance. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" took its bow at the Hollywood Theatre.

It was a substantial and a gracious bow and yet this reviewer is not at all certain but that it is the industry which should do the curtsying before that which was unwrapped on the screen and before the Brothers Warner who had the courage to step out of well-worn tracks and foray into realms of entertainment hitherto essentially untouched and untrammeled.

This "Midsummer Night's Dream" is an achievement in artistic endeavor. In the realm of pure fantasy, nothing like it has been seen since the industry, through growing pains and travail, steadily has crept up on its majority which, by this effort, becomes less of the illusive and far more of the fact.

With proper deference and reverence did the Warners approach their task. Max Reinhardt, whose standing in the world of the spectacle and the theatre should require no outline here, was engaged as general production overseer. Behind him and his vast experience was the production of the "Dream" in the Hollywood Bowl. Reinhardt wanted Nijinska for the choreography and got her. Erich Wolfgang Korngold was engaged to arrange the lovely Mendelssohn music. The entire resources of the Warner studio were turned loose and the result now comes to verify the initial judgment and the fortune spent in obtaining it.

In its breath-taking photography, shot through filmy and lace-like filters; in the arrangement of the ballet, heightened by the mechanical and technical wizardry of the camera; in its beautifully arranged and brilliantly played musical accompaniment, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" represents a new level in artistic and production standards.

In its acting, supplied by virtually the entire roster of Warner stars and featured players, the spectacle ranges from the excellent to something less. There is, for instance, Mickey Rooney as Puck. Mischievous and prankful, this Puck, to us, easily emerged as the highlight in the acting division. Mickey gives a remarkable performance for a youngster of his tender years. There are, further, Victor Jory as Oberon, the King of the Fairies; Ian Hunter, in a bit as Theseus, Duke of Athens; James Cagney, as Bottom; Hugh Herbert, as Snout; Frank McHugh, as Quince; Joe E. Brown, as Flute; Olivia de Havilland, as Hermia; Anita Louise, as Titiania, the Queen of the Fairies; Dick Powell, as Lysander; Ross Alexander, as Demetrius; and Jean Muir, as Helena. It is in about this order that this critical appraisal inclines to place them.

The slight story, if it must be told, concerns a comedy of love errors involving as it does Lysander and Hermia, Demetrius and Helena, Oberon and Titiania and tells how the love juice, administered by Puck, amusingly confuses the emotional issue with serio-comic consequences until the mischief is undone and the heart beats directed in the channel apparently ordained for them.

The high note of comedy which Shakespeare gave to his original play has been registered through the joint efforts of Professor Reinhardt and William Dieterle, who directed. Some of it is played broadly, most of it with genuine charm and well caught in the spirit of good-natured raillery which the Bard obviously intended.

To bring Shakespeare to picture theatre audiences is a logical development in the growth of the industry. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" starts what properly should be a cycle and starts it intelligently and well. This, exactly, is the element of service which the Warners have undertaken here. Their enterprise bespeaks thoroughly for their daring and substantial reward, it is to be hoped fervently, will be their due.

SMASH HIT

JUDGE Super X Negative solely on the basis of its reception by users. Placed on the market only a few months ago, it is already being employed in the majority of feature productions, as well as for various purposes of a special nature. Either of its striking advantages... greater speed, generally improved photographic quality... would have justified this swift, widespread adoption. N. Y. Critics "Go to Town" With "Dream"

Weight of Appraisal All For Film

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," which had a gala opening at the Hollywood Wednesday evening, yesterday had New York critics, in the main, going right down the line in unstinted praise of the Reinhardt-produced spectacle for Warners.

Rarely, if ever before, has any picture been submitted to such keen analysis and detailed review as the "Dream." In all instances, the criticisms themselves ran far over the space usually allotted for the appraisal of motion pictures.

In two instances, joint reviews by New York and London critics were published simultaneously. Malcolm Johnson covered the Hollywood opening, while Eileen Creelman, regular critic of The New York Sun, now in London, cabled her analysis following the opening there at the Adelphi. Gerald Breitigam, substituting for William Boehnel on the New York

Fox Asks Details in Infringement Action

A motion for a bill of particulars was filed in Federal Court yesterday by W. C. Michel, vice-president of Twentieth Century-Fox, in connection with a suit alleging copyright infringement brought by F. K. Kaplan, an artist, against the Fox Film Corp.

The complaint charges that "George White's 1935 Scandals" "contains a scenic effect which is in substance a copy of the cover design of the August, 1929, issue of the Theatre Magazine, copyright of which is owned by the plaintiff." The complainant is seeking a temporary injunction and an accounting. The defendant denies that there was any infringement. The plaintiff has also filed a request for a bill of particulars.

Joseph Bernhard, Warner Theatre head, yesterday denied the company was in any way identified with purchase of the Tower, Nixon, Roosevelt and Frankford in Philadelphia through the T. N. F. R. Realty Co. or any other company.

Kelly and Buckley Moved Up At U.A.; Name No President

Taking no action by way of naming a president to succeed Al Lichtman, whose resignation was accepted in Hollywood on Wednesday, the board of directors of United Artists yesterday moved Arthur W. Kelly and Harry D. Buckley up the line into the two top spots in the corporation's distribution affairs.

Harry D. Buckley

Arthur W. Kelly

Kelly, long vice-president in charge of foreign sales, was advised by telegraph that he had been promoted to assume charge of domestic sales as well, thereby placing him in complete control of the international selling activities of the company.

Buckley, who has been in charge of theatre operations, was named in charge of general corporate affairs with no specific definition as to duties beyond the inferences which might be drawn from the designation coupled with his new post.

In the meantime, Lichtman's resig-

Arthur Query Rouses Wood At St. Louis

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Frederick H. Wood, one of the Warner counsel in the indictment trial here, finished his three-day cross-examination of Harry Arthur, Government witness, at 3:45.

The session was marked by continued rivalry between defense and Government attorneys in addition to a series of laughs provided by Arthur this morning when he gave an analysis of certain pictures, spiced with his own remarks, and an outburst of temperament by Wood, who, nettled beyond restraint at the continued talking of the F. & M. head while he, Wood, was asking the court reporter to read a certain question, called out,

Branch Heads In Court, So Selling Waits

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Local exchange managers are meeting a temporary setback in closing up many of their important deals because of the anti-trust trial now in progress.

All branch heads with the exception of Ben B. Reingold of Fox have been subpoenaed and are spending mornings and afternoons in court, which leaves little time for business.

Theatres in St. Louis comprise between 55 and 60 per cent of the entire territory handled by local exchanges. The local deals are usually set last and about at this time of the year.

What some of the local sales executives can't explain is the fact that Columbia and Universal managers

David L. Loew Quits Loew's; In Roach Post

Becomes Vice-President; Roach to Expand

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.—David L. Loew today resigned his post as a vice-president of Loew's, Inc., to become vice-president of Hal Roach Studios.

Loew will assume his new post immediately, remaining on the coast permanently, but he will make a quick plane trip to New York on Saturday. Roach coincidentally announced an expansion program involving several hundred thousand dollars in studio improvements. Contracts for two new sound stages will be let within the next 60 days. Roach also plans to increase his director and actor personnel. The main expansion move is to begin shortly after Jan. 1.

Commenting on his new association, Loew said Roach is a man who perhaps has discovered and sponsored the rise of more present-day stars than any other individual in the industry, and having been close to Roach, has observed his success in the comedy field. Loew expressed the hope that Roach would be a leader in feature production, and gratification that he would have a part in the future development of the studio.

Loew explained his move into the producing end as simply moving his desk, as M-G-M will continue to release the Roach product. Roach pointed out that the studio needed another executive added to the personnel of the official staff and said he considered the acquisition of Loew as extremely fortunate in view of his experience.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.—Republic will add $1,000,000 to its production budget for the remainder of the season, says W. Ray Johnston, president. Over 2,500 deals for product, including the largest circuits and key runs, have made this possible, he says.

Sabath Committee Hears Zirn Charge

Twelve former bank creditors of Paramount Publix were charged with stripping the company of all its security assets two months before the company's receivership in testimony given by Samuel Zirn, attorney, before the Sabath Congressional committee for the investigation of realty bond reorganizations here yesterday.

Zirn referred to the Film Productions Corp. transaction, by which Paramount transferred title to 23 negatives to the new subsidiary of that name as security for new loans from the 12 banks. Zirn described the 1932 transaction as an "illegal manipulation." The attorneys represented small bondholders in the bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings of Paramount.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

"THEY"—that phantom group to which the birds whisper what's going to happen next—are at it again. This time, Universal is being tossed about with the slightest of regard for personnel and morale, exactly in the manner of previous stories over the years. It traces to the not so surprising resignation of Al Lichtman from the United Artists presidency what with the always difficult Sam Goldwyn to conjure with and the rapidly rising tide of reports following speculation about the location of Al's future hatrack. . . .

There is some reason to credit the report that Lichtman, failing to see eye to eye with Goldwyn, which worked in reverse as well, made his current trip west for the purpose of quitting and, while odds were around on Wednesday that the rift would be patched, the takers, as it developed, would have lost their money. At any rate that routed him out of the company where he had rolled up a distinguished record, leaves United Artists, by any appraisal, the poorer and unleashed guesswork as to what his new affiliation might be. . . .

In the vanguard of the rumors, which include a special sales post at 20th Century-Fox, presumably in charge of the personally-made Zanuck product, is the yarn linking his name with (1) Harry M. Goetz, (2) Eddie Small, (3) Sam Briskin, (4) Herb Yates and (5) Universal. Yates-Consolidated money, long a factor in the Laemmle company, is mentioned as the copious doughbags from which the funds for a buy reputedly were to be drawn. . . .

There is Bob Cochrane, here in New York and disturbed again by the latest disposal of the company via the rumor route. Yesterday, he said:

"I have heard nothing about it and I am certain it will be news to Carl Laemmle. Furthermore, I am quite sure that if any such proposal had been made, I should have learned of it directly and quickly enough from the president of this company."

There is Fred S. Meyer, former exhibitor and now a producer as well as big-time factotum in the studio affairs of "U". From Hollywood, he has this to say:

"As far as I know and I should know, there is as much foundation to this rumor that Lichtman, Goetz, Small and Yates are acquiring Universal as to all previous rumors combined. Everyone else, including the late Huey Long, has been named as a possible purchaser of Universal and it is only natural that anyone leaving a company should immediately become interested in buying this company. However, all such rumors are without foundation of fact."

Far less removed from resounding rumor factories, however, is the situation about RKO where the signs are pointing up now to that long-pending deal between Floyd Odlum and his Atlas Investment Trust and David Sarnoff. It was only a few days ago that "they" would have you believe Odlum had already signed the necessary documents with Mike Meehan, giving Atlas control of KAO, which is the most vital theatre branch in the RKO family tree. You can take or leave it, but here's a tip on what might be expected to happen, presenting this to you always cautiously and with generous elbow room for an out if nothing develops:

Any transaction which Odlum might strike with RKO will first include the parent company. With that arranged through purchase of RCA's interest in RKO, the next logical step then would concern Meehan and KAO.

In other words, the cart in its usual and normal position as it concerns the horse. . . .

Allied Men Ask Stay To Prevent Ousting

Before Justice Albert Conway in the Brooklyn Supreme Court there was a hearing yesterday on an injunction sought by Karl Sohnen and Lawrence Epstein, operators, against Benjamin De Agostino, president of the Allied Motion Picture Operators' Union, to prevent the union from ousting the plaintiffs from membership therein. Decision was reserved.

Sohnen said today that at several meetings of the union he had asked for an accounting of $160,000 paid in by the members to the treasury in dues, assessments and loans. He said that no accounting had been made. He added that he had been threatened at a meeting of the union on Sept. 2 last when he was told tht he was slated to be "polished off." He interpreted this to mean that he was to be beaten up.

On Sept. 3 he was ousted from his job at the Times Square, he says. On Sept. 4, Epstein was ousted from his job in the Canarsie in Brooklyn, he charges. This evidence was presented on their behalf by their attorney, Charles H. Levy. Murray E. Harsten, attorney for the executive committee of the union, said that the court had no jurisdiction in the case. He also said that the two members were now in good standing in the union until charges have been proven against them. Charges are to be heard later before a full meeting of the membership and until this meeting is held the court had no jurisdiction in the matter, Harsten insisted.

Detroit "Maxim" Ban Is Taken Into Court

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—Under an order signed by Circuit Judge Arthur Webster, Police Commissioner Heinrich Pickert and Police Censor Joseph Kollar must appear before Thomas J. Murphy on Saturday to show cause why they should not be required to issue a permit for the showing of the Russian film, "The Life of Maxim," at the Detroit Institute of Arts under the auspices of the local Cinema Guild.

Kollar originally approved the film for showing to members of the guild, but, when he discovered that it was being advertised for public showing, he cancelled the permit after holding a preview attended by American Legion heads and other civic leaders, who agreed that the film was subversive propaganda.

Seeks Appraisal of Fox Film A Shares

Orra B. Mead, as owner of 23 shares of Fox Film Class A common, has field a petition in N. Y. Supreme Court asking the appointment of three appraisers to determine the value of her holdings.

She objects to the Twentieth Century-Fox merger and the reclassification of stock which will result, and says she has demanded payment for her stock.

A hearing is scheduled for this morning before Justice Aaron J. Levy.

"Shut up," to the amazement of the court, the many witnesses, spectators and defendants present.

After Wood had finished shouting his command, Russell Hardy, Government counsel, turned around in his chair and had a good laugh with his associates. Almost every time Hardy had been sustained in objections to questions put to Arthur, former Senator James A. Reed rose and started an argument by referring to the record.

In all but one instance Federal Judge George H. Moore reversed himself, despite the fact that Hardy demanded that the practice should not be permitted to continue.

Gentry Examines Arthur

William R. Gentry, local attorney representing Paramount, began to cross-examine Arthur after Wood had finished, but cut his interrogation short for the day when Hardy objected to the introduction of references and conversations of meetings Arthur had with the Dept. of Justice in relation to the case. Hardy insisted that no one should disclose any information of contacts or conversations with the Government department officials and that this has been understood to be the law for more than 100 years.

Reed again took the floor and began reading citations, but Gentry asked to adjourn at 4:15 so that he could look up authorities on the subject over the three-day week-end. There will be no session tomorrow because of the dedication of a memorial in Nevada, Mo., for the late Senator William Joel Stone, whose son is presiding judge in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth District. Saturday, being Columbus Day, there will be no court session.

Questioned on Leases

Prior to the opening of the session this morning, Jacob M. Lashly, representing RKO, wanted to present new applications for subpoenas for various records supposedly held by Arthur and his companies on the ground specific material was mentioned. RKO subpoenas had been quashed yesterday by Moore, who stated, in essence, that they were too indefinite. The judge asked that they be submitted after the session, but when Arthur left the stand for the day no action had been taken. There probably will be oral argument on this subject Monday when the case is resumed.

Wood opened his cross-examination of the F. & M. head today by asking questions in connection with the lease on the Ambassador, to which Hardy objected and which Judge Moore sustained, declaring "there has been too much cross-examination on matter that has not been covered on direct examination. You gentlemen are familiar with the rule in Federal Court that cross-examination of a witness must traverse the examination in chief."

One of the big laughs of the morning came when Wood asked Arthur, "Was 'Of Human Bondage' a good picture?" to which the F. & M. head replied, "It was a piece of cheese."

"Wasn't it an outstanding picture?" Wood further queried.

"It was a piece of cheese," Arthur repeated, "and the subject matter should never have been shown."

Wood then started to read an advertisement on this picture when Hardy interjected and asked the Warner counsel to read it the proper way. After Wood finished this Arthur said, "We erroneously advertised it on the advice of RKO. We had no right to tell the people of St. Louis it was an outstanding picture. That ad was taken from a press book."

"Sluff" Interpretation

Some question arose as to the interpretation of "sluff" in connection with former bookings at the Ambassador. Arthur agreed "Belle of the Nineties" was a big picture, but he described "Handy Andy," which was the first attraction when F. & M. reopened the house, as a "sluff." Arthur said he presumed the Will Rogers picture was up to the usual of the late comedian's films, but it "flopped" at the box office. Other films and ads were discussed.

The subject was then changed to the local theatre situation. Wood started to take up the New Grand Central Theatre situation. Arthur said the theatre was closed when he took it although this was not the case when he began negotiations. Wood asked whether the house operated at a loss when it was open. Arthur said he understood the New Grand Central operated at a profit.

"Wasn't the Fox also operated at a loss?" Wood asked.

"I wasn't told so by the receivers," was the response.

Then the Ambassador and Missouri were brought up and Arthur stated that Spyros Skouras told him both were profitable. The F. & M. head also testified that Skouras during the last four years told him the Fox was the finest house here and that it still is today.

When Wood brought up the subject of admissions at the St. Louis when Arthur opened it, Hardy objected and was sustained. Reed then got up and told the judge that when Arthur was queried on direct examination the F. & M. executive said he lost a lot of money because he couldn't get pictures. Hardy countered, "This is not a damage suit." Reed admitted this and referred to the testimony. Judge Moore answered Reed, saying, "I can't see the ground for the admissibility of the testimony as desired. I fail to see wherein the Government's opening statement has laid any foundation for it and that certainly would be the only foundation for it." Reed showed Judge Moore the testimony and the sustaining order was withdrawn.

Asks for Film Contracts

At the opening of the afternoon session Wood asked Arthur for the film contracts the latter promised to bring in. Several were produced and those not immediately available Arthur said he would get from New York. The Warner attorney then continued with Arthur.

"Do I undertsand you to say that when you went to Warners on March 6, 1934, and had a conversation with Abel Carey Thomas, Sears and Starr, that Koplar was not interested in or associated with you in the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central?" Wood inquired.

Hardy objected and was sustained, but that did not satisfy Senator Reed, who argued the matter on the testimony by Arthur on direct examination. Judge Moore reversed himself again and the Government prosecutor became angry.

Much ado was made by Wood over an article appearing in Variety with a Los Angeles date line. The Warner attorney said, "You gave it out to the world that Koplar was one of your associates."

Hardy again objected and was overruled, but this time was insistent that the article be disallowed. He said "The honorable judge has reversed himself before and he could do it again."

"They have gone into all the ramifications of the Koplar situation. When are they going to finish?" Hardy remarked. "I suggest this subject be brought to an end in the interest of saving time, if nothing else."

Hardy Overruled

Hardy then stated, "It would be very injurious to the Government's case if these people are permitted to put everything in evidence unless we have the validity of the stories. Why don't they bring in the man who wrote this story. He's the best one who could tell them where it came from."

Just as Wood was about to read the story referred to, Hardy objected and was overruled. The positions of Koplar, Harry Greenman and Charles Kurtzman and their stock interests in the three theatres were developed by Arthur under examination.

"Have you any financial interest in the outcome of this case?" Wood asked Arthur.

"The financial interest is my existtence. If I don't get pictures I'm finished and I'm almost finished now," Arthur replied.

"If you get a conviction it would be to your profit and gain, would it not?" queried Wood.

"It may help me get pictures," Arthur answered.

"I have my very existence at stake," Arthur said. "I've been told that."

"If you gain a conviction that leaves you open to file a civil suit for three times the amount of damages," Wood asserted.

"I can sue at any time," Arthur responded.

"You knew that to be the law before you went to see Hardy in Washington?" the Warner counsel queried.

"No."

Government Sustained

"When did you find out?" Wood asked.

"When I came back my attorney, Ernest Wilkinson, told me." The F. & M. head stated he thought that if he won the indictment case he would be able to get back some of the money he lost.

Wood then made another query about filing a suit for triple damages and Arthur answered, "I'm glad to know it."

Hardy won another objection when he took exception to Wood's interrogation as to what Wilkinson had told Arthur in connection with the triple damage action.

"How soon after you talked to Depinet about RKO product did you go to Washington to get the Dept. of Justice interested in getting this prosecution started?" Wood inquired, and Hardy rose to object. The Government counsel was sustained and again Reed took the floor and brought up some points on the subject, following which Hardy withdrew his objection.

Answering another question of Wood's, Arthur denied he had made an investigation of the operations of the three theatres here before he went in with Koplar and Allen Snyder.

"On March 6 when you conferred with Starr, Sears and Thomas didn't you know Koplar had been very active in his hostility to Warners?" Wood asked.

"I knew Koplar had a lawsuit with Warners in St. Louis. No one ever told me. No one ever told me Koplar was the instigator of the actions which led to the appointment of a receiver for all Warner theatres here."

Bond Purchase Queried

"Didn't you hear that Koplar cost Warners $80,000?" Wood asked.

"No."

"Didn't you know that they were blackmail cases?" Wood inquired. Hardy objected, declaring, "It's most unfair. These suits were settled a long time ago."

Arthur said he met Samuel B. Jeffries, local Warner counsel, and told him he didn't want to get in wrong with Warners.

Referring to the bankruptcy of St. Louis Amusement Co., Arthur testified he thought Warners had lost whatever interest they had in the company.

"I thought it was all washed up and had gone the way of watered stock."

Wood then made mention of a fight by Warners to hold their interest in the circuit and his witness wanted to know what it was all about. Wood said, "I'm not asking you about the fight." Just as the Warner attorney asked the court reporter to look up the last question, Arthur kept on asking what the fight was about when the Warner counsel exploded, and at the top of his voice yelled, "Shut up."

Questions were then entered in connection with purchases by Arthur of $15,000 worth of bonds in Central Properties. This finished Wood's cross-examination.

During the Warner attorney's interrogation of Arthur, Wood stated that Skouras had lost more than $80,000 a little over a year ago in the operation of the Missouri and Ambassador. Wood also brought up again today the famous expression he attributes to Koplar about "having distributors over a barrel."

Wehrenberg Can't Attend

St. Louis, Oct. 10.—Fred Wehrenberg, head of the Eastern Missouri M. P. T. O. A., has been compelled to refuse an invitation to attend the Tri-States convention at Memphis Oct. 13-14 because of the Government case. He may reach the stand today.

Sales managers here have promised action in clearing up a current condition in oily prints in this territory, Wehrenberg said today.

nation is to take effect at once. In a statement made in Hollywood, but made public in New York, he said:

"I found it necessary to sever my connection with United Artists because my views did not coincide with the policies of one of its producers. My chief regret is that I must leave those loyal and efficient co-workers in United Artists who have worked with me for 10 years."

The statement further declared Lichtman will announce his new affiliation and future plans upon his return to New York from the coast in the next few days.

Speculation Runs High

Speculation ran high yesterday over his new association. Hollywood and New York reports linked him with a deal whereby, in association with Harry M. Goetz and Edward Small of Reliance, and Sam Briskin, he would assume control of Universal. Finances for the reputed purchase, which was completely unconfirmed, presumably would come from Herbert J. Yates of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc.

Kelly, now world-wide sales chief for U. A. has been in charge of foreign sales there since 1926. This will not be his first experience in the domestic field. He was long associated with Charles Chaplin and was active in the American distributing organization when Hiram Abrams was president of the company. English-born, Kelly first came to New York when he was 21 to represent the Frank J. Gould Enterprises. Four years later he was a director in 12 companies.

Buckley, also a U. A. veteran, broke into show business when, at 21, he was manager of the Garrick, St. Louis. After World War service, he became Kansas City branch manager for U. A., later assuming a like post in Los Angeles. He handled roadshows of "Robin Hood" and later was business manager for Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks. In 1926 he became one of three members of the executive committee of U. A. and currently is also vice-president and general manager of the United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.—Al Lichtman stated today he has not negotiated with 20th Century-Fox and Warners as reported. He will entrain for New York Saturday. United Artists announced there will be no more board meetings in connection with Lichtman's resignation and successor. It was reported that James Mulvey has an inside track on the job, with the board in perfect accord with any future move on the part of Samuel Goldwyn.

Lotts Gets U.A. Post

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Harry Lotts, Milwaukee U. A. manager, has been named head of the Chicago exchange to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Sam Horowitz. Joseph Hardman, Chicago salesman, becomes Milwaukee manager.

were summoned despite the fact that these exchanges, in addition to Fox, have been supplying the Fanchon & Marco houses with product during the past few years, as well as the two Warner houses, the Orpheum and Shubert.

Warners' main supply of film for the two houses comes from its own exchange, Paramount and RKO. M-G-M and U.A. product for many years has been supplied to Loew's State, yet Clayton Lynch of M-G-M and William Feldstein of U.A. are regular attendants at the Federal Court, morning and afternoon.

No one knows what to make of it, but the mystery will be solved when the men are put on the stand.

Exchange heads are reluctant to discuss any phase of the trial. That also goes for what took place preceding and after the indictments.

One of the managers some months ago met a company sales head from New York at the railroad station. Both engaged in a conversation and, according to a branch boss, that talk was taken down word for word by a Department of Justice man.

fore Federal Judge Martin T. Manton.

The hearing is being conducted to examine into the financial status of Fox Theatres Corp. in advance of a decision by the court on whether the receiver for Fox Theatres should be directed to exercise the option for acquisition of one-half of the stock of Metropolitan Playhouses. A majority of the Fox Theatres' creditors appear to be opposed to the acquisition.

Rogers brought out that claims against Fox Theatres had been reduced to approximately $8,000,000. Much of the testimony concerning the assets of Fox Theatres and the probable earnings of Metropolitan Playhouses was questioned by Archibald Palmer, attorney for Fox Theatres' creditors, in cross examination of an accountant placed on the stand by Rogers. Palmer contends that Fox Theatres should not be permitted to exercise the option because it is insolvent and because the investment offers little likelihood of profit and would be poor business judgment. The hearing will resume on Monday.

All branches of the Academy have accepted it except the credits clause, rejected by the Directors' Branch.

Favor Republic Pictures

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Independent Exhibitors of Massachusetts, Inc., the New England Allied unit, is urging its members to sign up for Republic product.

"If you are not included among those who have signed," the latest bulletin states, "we urge that you see Mr. Rifkin, Mr. Morey, or their representatives, and arrange for their pictures without delay. This is one independent company that we should all patronize because Republic pictures mean a lot to independent exhibitors in New England and all over the country."

Fox Appeals Judgment

An appeal was filed yesterday in the Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court from an order issued Sept. 10 denying a motion of Sidney Franklin for summary judgments in an action against Fox Film and Fox Movietone News, Inc.

Franklin, the bullfighter, had sought one judgment allegedly due as expense money for the arrangement of bullfighting exhibitions and the second as an assessment of damages on the ground that the defendants violated his rights of privacy is using photographs for trade purposes without his written permission. He originally asked $100,000 damages. The motion for judgments was filed in the Supreme Court on Aug. 19.

Ridder Tells Ampa Of Relief Problems

Problems of the WPA administration which he will take over from Gen. Hugh Johnson next Tuesday as administrator were discussed before Ampa members yesterday by Herman Ridder, one of the publishers of the Staats-Zeitung.

His chief problem at present, he said, was to get pay envelopes into the hands of those who need them. He promised there would be no more personalities involved in the conduct of the work. One of its important problems, he said, was to work out projects which can be finished before the end of the Federal fiscal year June 30. Later, he said, he hoped some plans could be made for what will happen when the $240,000,000 allotment has been exhausted.

In reply to questions about jobless members of Ampa and approximately 750 former advance men and agents for the legitimate stage, Ridder said these groups were "comparatively small" and that he hoped to get around to them after some of the others had been solved. At present, he said, he is trying to secure a modification of the rule against giving relief work to more than one member of a family, so that family acts can be employed in theatre relief.

Anita Louise was introduced by Herbert Crooker. The entertainment consisted of a burlesque fighter-manager act put on by Leo Wibberman and a partner. It drew a series of laughs.

Warners' Milwaukee Pool Causes Shift

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 10.—Pooling of the Granada, Warner south side neighborhood house, with Saxe's Modjeska under the latter circuit's supervision leaves Warner with three neighborhood spots here. The shift finds Joe Rosenfield managing the Granada as well as the Modjeska.

Gene Arnstein has been transferred to Warners' Juneau, with Louis Lutz, formerly manager of the circuit's Egyptian, going to the circuit's Lake. Jack Keegan, in addition to serving as supervisor of the neighborhood spots, becomes manager of the Egyptian. George Siefert, formerly at the Lake, has been transferred to manager of the circuit's Appleton, in Appleton, succeeding Al Sindlinger.

Warners also recently pooled its Appleton with Jack Silliman's Rio in Appleton. Silliman also operates the Avalon, local neighborhood spot.

Chicago's November Bookings Drawn Up

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Discussions of bookings were held today with B. & K. representatives absent. November bookings were set and sent to exchanges for approval on the old basis and without the additional seven days sought between C week and the first week of release sought by B. & K.

Exchanges will not be able to give B. & K. the extra week at present because contract commitments with other exhibitors have been made on the old basis.

There is a possibility that B. & K. may be forced to forego the plan for extra clearance until next year when new contracts will be drawn. Film Row is anxiously awaiting a statement as to the B. & K. stand.

N. Y. Critics "Go to Town" With "Dream"

World-Telegram, covered the attraction locally while Boehnel, like Miss Creelman, wired his reactions from the other side.

The dailies went in for a generous use of photographs. In addition, news accounts of the opening ran to considerable space. The New York Times, between the news story and the review, viewed the event as sufficiently important to devote almost four columns to it.

While the preponderance of critical opinion hailed the "Dream" as an event of major importance, pointing the way to perhaps a Shakespeare cycle in films, the critics did not fail in pointing up shortcomings as they saw them. There was practically no divergence of opinion on the merit of music, ballet and photography. What criticism was offered centered chiefly around the merits of individual performances.

Consensus of Reviews

A consensus of the reviews of all New York dailies follows:

American—Last night the classic Warner bid for cinematic immortality was triumphantly launched upon a thunderous wave of popular approval which echoed and re-echoed through the ermined, star-strewn aisles of the Hollywood Theatre.  It comes to us, therefore, as a cunningly wrought amusement in which all elements of popular entertainment have been mingled in a pleasant brew. Lusty, gusty, low-brow comedy is combined with tenderest romance. Rollicking, raucous laughter merges with the sighs of lovers. The ineffable beauties of a veritable fairy-land are offered in superb spectacle, as in counter melody the simple theme of this cinema symphony is played.  The players are superb. ***

Credit, too, to the Warners for courage, enterprise and vision primarily responsible for this achievement.

Daily News—There is so much that is exquisitely beautiful in the filming of the fantasy that it is a pity to be captious about it. ***

The picture is too long. It runs for two and a half hours, which is nearly an hour too long for any film, no matter how beautiful it may be. ***

But, on the other hand, the director has created some unbelievably beautiful effects with the camera and his background. ***

The cast works with beautiful harmony under the master's direction. James Cagney is superb in the role of Bottom, and Joe E. Brown, as Flute, is screamingly funny. Frank McHugh gives an amusing performance as the coach, Quince.

"Monumental Picture"

Daily Mirror— a monumental motion picture—an historic one. It has a fabulous magnificence — an awesome reverence—a stupendous cast and a sturdy director. It is big, impressive, mental, genteel, elevating. ***

The cast is a magnificent and costly one. Besides the Warner feature players, it includes the stars. Joe E. Brown, among these latter, stands out as the overwhelming Shakespearean actor, the young man who barks like a seal as he plunges into a pool and who incarnates, fully, the Elizabethan sense of fun. ***

The entire cast works hard and loudly, Mickey Rooney's "Puck" is particularly effective. Intricate ballets are an important feature of the spectacle.

Evening Journal— opens a new field for the magic of the camera  equisitely beautiful, enchanting both to see and to hear. In its thrilling spectacles, its brilliant use of music, it superb blend of poetry, drama, orchestration and choreography, the picture translates Shakespeare to the medium that can best do justice to the greatest playwright of them all.  Combines rollicking humor and gay romance with rhythm and movement and color. ***

Shakespearean scholars will find that the picture follows the original text faithfully. The rest of us, who go to the movies for entertainment, find here enormously enjoyable entertainment as well as artistic splendor.  The players are not only at ease in their roles but also give excellent performances. Particularly effective are the comedians, James Cagney, who has the role of Bottom, a part which tradition has heretofore insisted be played only by a fat man; Frank McHugh, who does the best work of his film career as Quince the Carpenter and Joe E. Brown, who offers a hilarious sequence in his impersonation of Thisby. ***

There is so much to see in the picture that no written resume could possibly convey its multitudinous enchantments. "A Midsummer Night's Dream," with its glorious music, is a magnificent achievement.

Films Can Do Shakespeare

Herald-Tribune— is a beautiful and expansive spectacle, imaginatively conceived and handsomely photographed, which captures to a striking degree not only the play's dreamlike mood of moonstruck fantasy but also the hearty and hilarious gusto of its Elizabethan clowns. Korngold's brilliant arrangement of Mendelssohn's music adds immeasurably to the beauty and entrancement of a definitely distinguished production of this gay and elfin satire on the court of true love. ***

Despite its faults the Reinhardt screen version of a "A Midsummer Night's Dream" proves with high conclusiveness that the photoplay can do not just a scene from Shakespeare but an entire play. ***

First of all, there is Joe E. Brown, who has never been one of this department's outstanding favorites. Now it is obvious that the only trouble with Mr. Brown has been that he is a Shakespearean clown born after his time. As Flute, the bellows mender, who appears as the maidenly Thisby in the play staged for the Duke of Athens, he is quite magnificently comic. That splendid comedian, Hugh Herbert, is likewise brilliant as Snout the Tinker. ***

Also worthy of enthusiasm are Frank McHugh, who has never been nearly so funny, as Quince, leader of the amateur actors, and Otis Harlan, Dewey Robinson and Arthur Treacher. These scenes prove to be vastly and freshly amusing. ***

With James Cagney's performance as Bottom we come to more controversial ground.

Morning Telegraph— a picture that is fairly breath-taking in its beauty, its effulgence and its general air of splendor and magnificence. It is a Shakespeare that even Shakespeare never dreamed of, it is a "Midsummer Night's Dream" that transcends all previous "Midsummer Night's Dreams," it is, in short, a picture to be remembered, to be cherished, and to be seen again and again and again. The screen has never done anything like it before. ***

Then, too, there is the cast. There is chiefly Mickey Rooney, a sprightly youngster, playing Puck with vim and earnestness and an amazing appreciation of the lines and meaning thereof.

"Good—and Bad"

Post— is as colossal in its faults as in its virtues. The latter may outnumber the former but they certainly do not outweigh them, and in the resultant colossus it is the mechanical genius of the screen wedded to Mendelssohn's music which Professor Reinhardt evokes as the supreme artistic gesture. ***

In its aerial passages "The Dream" has an exhilarating beauty, not only to the eye but the ear. Reinhardt has found the scope for his imaginative powers, and on the extended plane of the motion picture he has devised effects in rhythm and imagery which clearly show the understanding between himself and his medium.

It is in dealing with the plot sequences that "The Dream" dives to earth. For the simple fact is that the dialogue passages, with their frequent close-ups and static exchanges, are tedious, and the actors who play them show a total lack of uniformity in speech and style.

The curious result of this casting is a jumble of good, bad and indifferent acting; and there is not one dialogue scene which is not marred or ruined by at least one of the players. Dick Powell, whose Lysander is in evidence for most of the picture, easily outstrips all the other players in total wreckage. ***

And at the other end of the scale is Joe E. Brown whose comicalities as the coddling Flute are not only entertaining in themselves but are remarkably in the vein of the Elizabethan fool. Mr. Brown steals every scene he is in. * * *

Sun—(Reviewed in New York by Malcolm Johnson)—  a spectacle and a gorgeous one—a thing of shining beauty, a fantasy of delight, translating the poetry of Shakespeare into a visual creation through the magic of the camera. As a production, and considering it as a production alone, there are many who will unhesitatingly call this film great, containing much that is beautiful, unforgettable. ***

That this mood is retained, enhanced, is due in great measure to Erich Wolfgang Korngold's skillful arrangement of Mendelssohn's music and its perfect synchronization with the film to interpret the action. ***

The ballets, staged by Bronislava Nijinska and Nini Theilade, are breathtakingly beautiful. ***

To put it brutally, this cast, as a whole, does it badly. The players with few exceptions, are as though suddenly seized with stage fright in awe of their material.  They stumble, usually at headlong pace, through their lines, reciting them without conviction, like parrots. They seem to have no feeling for the meaning of the words, for the poetry.

Rooney Praised

(Reviewed in London by Eileen Creelman) — not only a spectacle but one of sheer visual and musical beauty. ***

It is a weird and unexpected performance that Mickey Rooney gives. ***

He literally holds the picture together. ***

In only two instances have the directors, Max Reinhardt and William Dieterle, been unfortunate in their selection of players. The vulgar grimaces of Dick Powell and Rose Alexander as the lovers, Lysander and Demetrius, are decidedly distressing. To compensate for this casting breach, however, are such grand performances as those given by Joe E. Brown as Flute, Hugh Herbert as Snout, Frank McHugh as Quince, and James Cagney as Bottom. ***

One cannot help but wish that Reinhardt had found a way of using more of the play itself instead of laying the emphasis on spectacle and comedy. ***

The spectacle itself is entrancing with a magnificent Korngold arrangement of the Mendelssohn music and the breathtakingly beautiful ballets by Bronislava Nijinska and Nini Theilade.

Times—Hollywood pursues the shapes and shadows of the unfettered imagination with courage, skill and heavy artillery. ***

Many of the elusive, dancing conceits of Shakespeare's lyric fantasy remain at large, though, and seem to hover about the screen hooting derisively at the cinema's determined bloodhounds. But Mr. Reinhardt has isolated some of the winged fancies and the photoplay caparisons them in rich and lovely stuffs. If this is no masterpiece, it is a brave, beautiful and interesting effort and it has magical moments when it comes all alive with what you feel when you read the play. ***

But the plain and distressing truth is that the screen, in the proud act of releasing the play from the shackles imposed on it by the proscenium arch, has the embarrassing miracle to perform of creating visual images which will catch the phantoms that lurk behind the words.

"A Masterpiece"

World-Telegram—(Reviewed in New York by Gerald Breitigam)—The American screen definitely put aside puerilities and entered upon man's estate with the filming of that magically beautiful portrayal. ***

The infinite capacity of the screen for giving rein to all the arts at one and the same time is nobly realized. Shakespeare's fantasy is presented in a prodigality of imaginative beauty never possible to the stage. Nor is the eye alone charmed but the ear as well—charmed by those great familiar lines spoken racily and without a trace of ham, and charmed, too, by Mendelssohn's music. ***

And this is a masterpiece—in which setting and acting and music, rendition of the lines, imaginative concepts, tellingly visualized by the camera and rich costuming, all blend into an harmonious whole.

(Reviewed by William Boebnel in London)— a beautiful and magnificent thing to see. There is nothing anywhere that can be compared with this offering for stunning camera work, intelligent treatment, lovely music and generous production as proof that the cinema is capable of producing great works of literature with taste, charm and discrimination. ***

But even if the production had none of the rare quality of Reinhardt it would still have sufficient reason for being in the performances contributed by James Cagney, Joe E. Brown, Frank McHugh and little Mickey Rooney.

It would be engaging to dwell at length on Cagney's qualities as Bottom, McHugh as Quince, Brown as Flute and the demoniac impishness of Rooney as Puck.

Or to remark on the sweetness of Anita Louise as Titania or the beauty of Verree Teasdale as Hippolyta. Or to comment on the fine performances of Ian Hunter, Olivia DeHavilland, Ross Alexander and Jean Muir. But, then, all the acting was good, even though one or two actors were ill chosen.

But all this merely reiterates the fundamental fact that "Midsummer Night's Dream" is a rare film—one that has full vitality and imagination.

To Sell Out Opening

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 10.—The 17 city managers for Warners here have taken over the entire house for the Wednesday night performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which opens as a roadshow at the Nixon Oct. 28. Each house official has agreed to sell 100 tickets to personal friends and will be on the door to greet customers that night.

Following the show the managers will have a party at one of the downtown night clubs. The idea was suggested by one of the managers at a weekly district meeting and was immediately taken up by the others without any solicitation from the higher-ups.

Metro Talking New Pact for Arthur Loew

Deal On, But Outcome Still in Doubt

Arthur M. Loew, in charge of sales abroad for M-G-M through Culver Export Corp. which handles that phase of the company's activities, either has been or will be offered a contract to continue in that post, Motion Picture Daily learned over the week-end.

The matter has been discussed, although its outcome is yet to be determined.

The resignation of his brother, David L., as one of the vice-presidents of Loew's, Inc., immediately was followed by speculation as to Arthur's plans. The question, therefore, was put squarely up to him and brought this comment:

"For the moment, I do not think I can say anything about my plans."

He readily acknowledged later that a contract had been discussed, but added no decision had been made by

Five More Seek Court Fox Stock Appraisals

Five applications for the appointment of three appraisers to appraise the value of Class A common stock of the Fox Film Corp. were filed Friday in the N. Y. Supreme Court. All five were submitted by the law firm of Blau & Polakoff. The applications stated that their clients were opposed to the Twentieth Century merger and desired to dispose of the stock held by them.

The applications were made by Munson G. Doremus, owner of 900 shares; Estele R. Gold, 100 shares; J. C. Vogeler, Jr., 200 shares; Arthur A. Eisele, 65 shares; and Charles F. Eisele, 300 shares. Hearings were set for this morning before Justice William P. Collins.

"Snatched" Banned As Title by Hays

Hollywood, Oct. 13.—Joseph M. Schenck has filed a protest with the Production Code Administration here as a result of the banning of the title, "Snatched," for a 20th Century-Fox production.

Schenck pointed out in his letter of protest that the entire subject matter of the picture had been approved by the Administration previously, and said that he thought banning of the title was improper.

Gov't Sees Anti-Trust Case Continuing for Five Months

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—Government lawyers, optimistic at the outset that the trial would proceed quickly, now expect the criminal action against Warners, Paramount and RKO and various of their officers, will continue for five months. They also voice the opinion that the injunction suit, a separate action, will run that length of time as well. The second is not concurrent with the first.

The trial, which enters its third week Monday, thus far has progressed at a snail's pace. Almost two weeks have elapsed since Russell Hardy, chief of Government counsel, made his opening address.

Harry C. Arthur, the first witness, has been on the stand for four days, the first day and a half for direct examination by Hardy and the other two and a half for cross-examination by Frederick H. Wood, one of Warners' attorneys. Last Thursday, Wood finished his interrogation of Arthur

Yates Denies Move To Take Universal

A denial of a report that Consolidated Film Industries would finance a purchase of Universal in association with Al Lichtman, Harry M. Goetz, Eddie Small and Sam Briskin was made Friday by H. J. Yates, head of Consolidated, on his return from the coast.

"There's nothing to it," Yates said. "I haven't even heard of the report, but there's nothing to it. Somebody may be trying to plant an idea, but I don't want it."

New Ohio Admission Tax Battle Planned

Columbus, Oct. 13.—Another admission tax campaign is being started by the I.T.O. of Ohio because the present three per cent rate expires in January and the 12 per cent schedule returns automatically.

A strong effort is to be made to convince the Legislature that theatres can't pay the increase, in spite of the fact that increasing state revenues will be one of the big problems before the next session.

One Man's Idea

The irrepressible Bob Goldstein says the latest World's Series in St. Louis was the worst on record.

"Why?" asked Joe Moskowitz.

"Because the film team couldn't hit what the Government men were pitching."

Para. Paid Out $50,000,000, States Zukor

More than $50,000,000 in dividends were paid to Paramount stockholders during Adolph Zukor's regime as head of the company, the Paramount board chairman told the Sabath Congressional committee investigating real estate reorganizations on Friday.

Zukor's statement was made in justification of his salary and bonus contracts with Paramount which netted him more than $2,000,000 during the "boom" years from 1928 to 1931. Zukor's earnings for those years were read into the investigating committee's record of the Paramount reorganization. Zukor said that he had "fought" for the contract which gave him a salary of $130,000 annually and a bonus of seven and one-half per cent of the company's profits after deduc-

B'dway Takes Low; "Big Shot" $29,000

Grosses along Broadway were weak in a number of spots for the week. "Little Big Shot" garnered $29,000 at the Roxy, but this was nothing to get excited about.

"Red Salute," in its second week at the Rivoli, took $10,000. "The Last Outpost," at the Paramount, grossed $22,000. "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," at the Capitol, was down to $16,500.

Atlas-Lehman Bond Buy, Sarnoff's Statement Point the Way

The prompt emergence of RKO from reorganization, with M. H. Aylesworth as president of the new company and Floyd B. Odlum as chairman of the board, is seen indicated in the closing on Friday of the deal by which Odlum's Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. acquired a substantial portion of RCA's holdings in RKO.

The presentation to the Federal court of a plan of reorganization for RKO was definitely indicated for the near future in a statement from David Sarnoff, RCA president and chairman of the RKO board, reporting the closing of the deal with the two financial concerns.

RCA's investment in RKO is estimated to have a book value of approximately $16,000,000. What portion of this investment was acquired by Lehman and Atlas was not made known, nor was the price paid. Early reports of the negotiations for the sale which were first broached early last spring had Odlum offering $5,000,000 in cash for the entire RCA investment and Sarnoff insisting upon a dollar for dollar deal. It appears likely that the sale closed on Friday involved not less than half of RCA's holdings in RKO. The deal also included an option under which Atlas and Lehman Bros. may purchase the remainder of the RCA holdings.

With or without the exercise of the option, Atlas and Lehman Bros. become a vital, if not a dominant duo, in the future of RKO. This is expected to be evidenced with the presentation of an RKO reorganization plan in the near future, which will undoubtedly be Hollywood, Oct. 13.—Following a meeting here of the board of directors of United Artists, it was reported that Mary Pickford was agreed upon as the next president of the company. She would succeed Al Lichtman, who resigned several days ago.

Miss Pickford and Nathan Burkan left Friday night for the east, although Lloyd Wright, Miss Pickford's attorney, canceled his trip to New York at the last moment.

FWC Gets Pasadena House in Dual Deal

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—After Ben Berinstein and B. H. Lustig had transferred the Tower, Pasadena, to the California Amusement Co., owned by Ray Miller and Robin Rowley, these two turned it over to F.W.C. in exchange for the circuit's Pasadena.

The Tower was the only Pasadena first run not controlled by F.W.C. Under the new arrangement F.W.C. has all the first runs and Miller and Rowley control all the subsequents.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THIS department, always looking askance at matters having to do with financial deals and such, labored under the weekend suspicion that the lawyers, bless them, had a good deal to do with the nondescript statement made public relative to the long-awaited deal between Floyd B. Odlum and his Atlas Corporation and David Sarnoff and his RCA's $16,000,000 investment in RKO. For it said something and then again it said nothing, the details, as far as they went, being readily available to you if you will flip this page back and read what it has to say. . . .

This transaction, launched before David Sarnoff left on his annual European junket on July 26, has been on for some time, interrupted at one or two points by guarded and, perhaps, inspired statements from those close to the Odlum throne that Atlas was no longer interested. That, in the light of what has happened, may be construed as business diplomacy designed to place the purchaser in the well-known position of playing hard to get. At any rate, Atlas, in association with the Lehmans, who have never been out of the RKO picture, is now the owner of a substantial portion of RCA's interest in RKO with an option to go all the way, if and when. This is what the official statement had to say for itself. . . .

There is, however, more to it than surface indications divulge. There is, for instance, the general understanding that, since Sarnoff is far more interested in RCA communications than he has been, or is, in RKO's films, that this sale, price unknown but originally placed at $5,000,000 for what RCA has on its books at sixteen, he will recede even further from the show business scene and maybe entirely out of a picture in which he has never been more than superficially active. There is to consider, also, the extremely strong probability that Merlin Hall ("Deac") Aylesworth, who reputedly first interested Odlum in RKO and has kept at it since, will issue forth as the bigwig of the outfit with authority sufficient and determination aplenty to make his association with matters filmatic a genuine and a real thing. It has been anything but that up to this point. . . .

It was as far back as July 29 that this space, bragging now, passed on the word that the Odlum negotiations were taking on temperature. It was on that same day and also in this column, furthermore, that there appeared the information that RKO's reorganization was rapidly assuming shape sufficient for presentation to the Federal courts. Friday's statement on the formal Odlum entrance into RKO comes as the authoritative verification. Then a month later—August 28 to you sticklers for detail—it was declared that "hot, like griddle cakes, is Floyd B. Odlum's interest in RKO and from it all something may develop." Then Friday, this column and this:

". . .; signs are pointing up now to that long-delayed deal between Floyd Odlum and his Atlas Investment Trust and David Sarnoff". . . .

When word of the Atlas deal gets about, the speculation hounds will be chafing at the bit. They will talk, at once, about a merger between Paramount and Radio since Odlum is interested substantially in the company of which John E. Otterson is the head and has two directors on that board on whom he can count for cooperation. One is Odlum and the other is John Hertz, a partner in Lehman Bros. who, we remind you, are now revealed as associates in the RKO transaction. Such a consolidation may or may not be, but, merely to prove something which requires no proof, this is how Hollywood, that far distant land, views the matter:

That Paramount would produce the average product.

That RKO would make the specials.

That Harry Sherman would make the westerns and the Class C product.

That this would bring into some sort of focus the idea of a General Motors to which Otterson, by the rumor boys, is supposed to subscribe. . . .

To those who read between and through events and like to think they are getting somewhere, the resignation of David L. Loew is no surprise. His new affiliation, as vice-president of Hal E. Roach, Inc., carrying with it implifications financial, is. And yet, on further pondering, the step lends itself to logical analysis. Henry Ginsberg, for some time now has been vice-president and general manager of the Roach company. For years a buddy of Loew's who had played not a small part in cementing the original arrangement by which Roach annexed Ginsberg, it becomes a normal deduction to draw that it was the latter who now figures in bringing about this new and potentially extremely important association. . . .

Because they are the kind of brothers they are, the buzz which followed swirled largely around Brother Arthur. What will he do, now that the one son of the founder of Loew's had determined to officially cut the knot that tied? The answer to that is yet to be written. Already apparent, however, is the desire of Nick Schenck, in whom the glow of an organization held intact shines warmly, to maintain Arthur in his present valuable position. And so a contract has been offered him, although it is ten months now since his last agreement expired. Those who seem to know a thing or two of Arthur and his reactions, without attempting, of course, to speak for him, privately insist he will continue with Metro; that there could be no more important job for him than his present post as foreign sales head; that his record, always aided by the calibre of product which is M-G-M's, is tops in the field overseas; that, because Dave has left, is no indication conclusive that Arthur must follow. . . .

Anent reports Al Lichtman will join Leo, Schenck says:

"The gentleman has not approached me on the subject and I know nothing about it."

What was Roxy doing in Otterson's Paramount office the other day? Or is it none of our business? . . .

him because "I first would have to see what it provided and what it had to say."

While no word was forthcoming from Loew's as to David M.'s successor as chief film buyer for the circuit, a post which the retiring executive assumed only a few months back, reports indicated Eugene Picker, his assistant, will be named for the post. Picker, son of the late David Picker, whose local theatres were purchased by the circuit some years ago, long has been identified with film buying for the chain.

Roach-Loew Partnership

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—The agreement between Hal Roach and David Loew is a partnership arrangement, it was learned here Friday. The future release of features other than those scheduled will depend on production plans of M-G-M and on market needs. Since this selling season is past, all new commitments will wait until after Jan. 1, it was learned. Loew left Hollywood by plane for the east yesterday, planning to stop over at Kansas City.

U. S. Expects Trust Suit to Go 5 Months

at 3:45 P.M. after a total of 10 hours. William R. Gentry, local legal counsel for Paramount, was about to start his transverse questioning when he got tied up in a technical knot, which will be argued Monday when the case resumes.

So far 40 hours were devoted to the trial in the first two weeks. In the first six days, most of the 25 hours were spent on objections by defense counsel to the indictments being tried ahead of the civil suit and to opening addresses. Only three hours were given over to Hardy for his direct examination of the F. & M. head.

"One Little Episode"

Arthur, who has yet to undergo a cross-examination by George Leisure of RKO counsel, has developed for the Government "a very small part of its case." It is "one little episode," it was stated. About 40 other Government witnesses have yet to take the stand, Department of Justice men state. Hardy is very anxious to have the out-of-town witnesses from Los Angeles, Chicago and New York go on as soon as possible so as to obviate business inconveniences. Although Thomas K. Dysart, head of the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central, was scheduled to be second, Milton B. Arthur or Jules Levy may follow the F. & M. executive. All 40 witnesses will be interrogated as it looks now unless the Government gets into evidence the testimony it seeks without bringing them to the stand.

Fees Reported at $1,000,000

Up to this point, the trial has cost the Government less than $10,000. Defense counsel fees are reported to total $1,000,000, exclusive of other expenses. Several executives have made two trips East at their companies' expense. During the first week, Neil F. Angew and Irving Lesser made the round trip. William T. Powers, Skouras attorney, went to New York and hasn't returned since. Agnew, accompanied by George J. Schaefer, Austin C. Keough, Louis Phillips, Irving Cohen and William Schneider, again made the New York trek, this time by train. The Paramount group will be in court again Monday. Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy, William Mallard, Spyros Skouras, Jack Partington and Irving Lesser left here by plane Thursday night and, after being grounded in Indianapolis for eight hours, landed safely in New York. They returned via the air route tonight. E. J. Hessberg, Warner attorney subpoenaed by the Government, left for Manhattan Saturday afternoon by plane to rush to his wife who is ill. He has been temporarily excused, but will be on call.

This is not the only item of additional costs facing RKO, Paramount and Warner executives. Each company has set up offices at local hotels where executives transact business over long distance telephone and with their local and district managers who come to the hostelries. Telephone calls are made to all parts of the country, but the greatest number go to headquarters in New York.

Paramount's suite on the 14th floor at the Coronado is the most expensive in the hotel. Queen Marie of Rumania occupied it on her last visit here. Paramount uses the rooms for living and business purposes.

May Appeal Case

The civil case, which goes on immediately following the criminal suit, is expected to be a prolonged affair in that the Government will submit more evidence than in the current trial. Rulings have been handed down that no testimony may be taken from witnesses on events after Jan. 11, 1935, the day the indictments were handed down. The temporary injunction action followed about six months later, thereby permitting introduction of incidents and conversations up to the time the Government filed the second action. The cost of bringing witnesses here will be paid by the defendants only in the event they lose the final decision.

If Warners, RKO and Paramount and their executives are convicted, they may appeal to the Court of Appeals, 6th District, which includes this state, Arkansas, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Indiana. If the defendants are given a favorable verdict by the jury, the Government may not appeal. However, if the defendants are found guilty and are reversed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, the Government counsel may appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court, a right also enjoyed by the defendants in addition to the Circuit Court of Appeals action.

Gentry will probably take two days on his cross-examination of Arthur. Leisure for RKO is expected to take the same amount of time, indicating that the Government's second witness may go on before the week is out.

Monday starts the third week of the trial. It is expected to be replete with the same display of temperament certain lawyers displayed during the first two weeks. The courtroom has its daily fill of witnesses, spectators and lawyers, some to watch ex-Senator James A. Reed in action and others to look in and see what is going on for their own private interest or enjoyment.

Industry's Greatest Show

William R. Benham, assistant to Hardy and who has been active in the investigation of the two cases, has been forced to spend most of his time in his hotel room during the last few days of the trial. He suffered a nasal hemorrhage which was aggravated by high-blood pressure. He is up and about again and expected to attend the court sessions more frequently this week.

It's the greatest show the industry has ever put on, according to many of the witnesses here, and undoubtedly will have a long, long run at the rate things are going, they say. Judge Moore and Hardy have both made statements to that effect in the record.

Optimism?

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—One of the best cracks made here came from an important sales head of one of the three companies indicted. He said: "We have a new drive on. Out of court by Christmas!"

tion of all charges. He pointed out that at the time the contract was drawn neither he nor the company had known that profits would be as large as they were, and that when business went bad after 1931 he voluntarily reduced his contract terms.

Zukor told the committee that his present salary is $80,000 per year, and that he has no participation in bonuses. In reply to a question put by a member of the committee as to the present condition of the company he said that Paramount is in "better and better shape every day."

"You're to be congratulated on the way the Paramount bondholders and creditors fared under that plan," the committee member remarked to Zukor.

Zukor "Had No Quarrel"

Zukor said in reply to another question that he "had no quarrel" with the 'financial crowd" identified with Paramount's history as a result of his executive experiences.

"I believe that everything they did was done for the best interests of the company," Zukor said.

Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers for Paramount for many years, who followed Zukor on the stand, estimated that his firm had marketed $100,000,000 in securities for Paramount and had earned in commissions about $1,300,000, "or less than one and one-half per cent."

Questioned by counsel for the committee about the election of John E. Otterson as president of Paramount, Sir William said that he had advised the reorganization groups against Otterson's election. Pressed for a reason, Sir William replied, "Because this is show business and should be run by showmen."

He added that there was "nothing personal" in his stand, that he had the "highest regard" for Otterson.

Thomas D. Thacher, special counsel for Paramount, who opposed the applications for $3,000,000 in reorganization fees last June, was another witness, as was Alfred Cook, of Cook, Nathan & Lehman, attorneys in the reorganization for the Paramount stockholders' protective committee.

B. & K. Turns Down New Clearance Move

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—November booking clearances set up Thursday at a meeting of independents have been turned down by B. & K. The big circuit insists upon seven days' clearance between C week and first week of release, and asserts the fact that Columbia, Paramount, Warner, M-G-M and Fox product is being played shows agreements have been reached with exchanges.

Exchange managers say clearance has not been promised and point to the fact that more than 300 deals have already been signed on the old basis.

Notice was served on B. & K. Friday by the Film Board of Trade that the extra week would not be allowed. Another meeting is scheduled.

proposed by or under the direction of the two. Atlas, either alone, or in conjunction with Lehman Bros., also will undoubtedly underwrite whatever new security issue is provided for under the reorganization plan.

The Atlas-RCA negotiations have been conducted throughout on the basis that, if consummated, Aylesworth would become the active management head of reorganized RKO. Nothing has been reported in the meantime to indicate that this understanding has been upset in any particular. It is believed likely that this would impel Aylesworth to withdraw as president of NBC. Also, with or without the exercise of the Atlas-Lehman Bros. option to purchase the remainder of RCA's holdings in RKO, it is believed that the substantially reduced investment of the Radio company will result in the replacement of Sarnoff by Odlum as chairman of the board of the new RKO company.

Atlas Dominant Factor

Atlas, by this move, becomes a dominant factor in industry financing and influence, having, in addition to its new RKO holdings, appreciable investments in both Paramount and Fox. Odlum is a member of the Paramount board, as is John D. Hertz of Lehman Bros., which also has an appreciable investment in Paramount. The investments of both were made during the reorganization of that company. Lehman Bros., however, were bankers for RKO for several years prior to the company's receivership in Jan., 1932, and had two representatives on the old RKO board. Indications are that they would also be represented on the board of a reorganized RKO.

The negotiations for the sale of the RCA interest were temporarily suspended last July, after having been in progress for almost five months, due to the departure of Sarnoff on his annual European business and vacation trip. Talks were resumed immediately upon Sarnoff's return less than two weeks ago, ending with the agreement of last Friday.

McDonough Here for Talks

J. R. McDonough, president of Radio Pictures, arrived from the coast Friday for conferences with M. H. Aylesworth and other home office executives pertaining to the sale of a large part of RCA's interest in RKO to Lehman Bros. and Atlas Corp. Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Distributing Corp., and William Mallard, RKO general counsel, also came on from St. Louis for the conferences. It is understood that reorganization plans for RKO were also discussed at the meetings.

McDonough will return to the coast in about a week. Depinet and Mallard are due back in St. Louis today.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Melody Lingers On"

(Reliance-United Artists)

POMONA, Calif., Oct. 13.—Edward Small here has produced a first rate attraction with acting honors shared by Josephine Hutchinson in her most exacting role to date and Small's baritone find, George Houston.

An exceptionally good supporting cast helps them make Lowell Brentano's gripping novel, written into a screen play by Ralph Block and Philip Dunne, into a natural. John Halliday, Helen Westley, William Harrigan, Walter Kingsford, Mona Barrie, Laura Hope Crews, David Scott and Ferdinand Gottschalk carry important roles splendidly with a hand to director David Burton for keeping the proper tempo throughout.

Miss Hutchinson's ability at the piano and Houston's singing, either of which would make the production click, together bid to make the picture talked about.

The story is powerful. An American girl, studying the piano abroad, meets Italy's opera public hero number one. He dies in the World War. Their baby loses its identity in a convent. The girl spends 18 years seeking the boy, meanwhile achieving fame as a pianist. A rich Italian couple has adopted the baby. Conflict over his career brings the most potent scenes with the mother finally triumphant, although the young baritone never learns of his foster parents.

The opening and closing scenes from the opera "Carmen" with father and son in the toreador role are splendid.

No production code seal. Running time, 150 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Guv'nor"

(GB)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—In his second British picture, George Arliss gets well away from the type of part usually associated with his name. His role is that of an unworldly tramp-idealist and its costume angle is the lack of it. Humor predominates in the story development.

From a French story, previously filmed in that country, the plot satirizes modern finance and the financial charlatan who floats companies on pie crust and promises. Arliss is an old down-and-out who, because his name happens to be Rothschild, is corralled by one of these gentry and made president of a bank, in the justified belief that his name will pull the public.

The financier is planning to do his dirty work on a widow and daughter owning a mine which he kids them is worthless. "Rothschild," in his tramp capacity, has been befriended by the daughter and puts a spoke in the crook's wheel by buying the property over his head. Presenting it to the girl, he takes to the road again.

Arliss is no camera hog this time. He leaves a good deal of the picture to others; his portrayal of the whimsical old tramp is a finished and appealing piece of work. That fine actor, Frank Cellier, is excellent as the banker. The satire will appeal most to big town audiences, but the sentiment has good general audience value.

Running time, 86 minutes. "G." ALLAN.

Clark in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—John D. Clark, general sales manager of Fox, arrived from New York Friday to spend a week at the studio. Following production conferences with Darryl Zanuck, Clark will make a four-week tour of exchanges.

During a short stop in Pittsburgh on Friday morning, Clark conferred briefly with Spyros Skouras at the airport. Skouras was eastbound from St. Louis.

"Shipmates" to Strand

"Shipmates Forever" will go into the Strand Wednesday. This is a Naval Academy film starring Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler.

Pitt Vaude Dropped For Triple Features

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—Because of differences with the stagehands' union, the Pitt, which has just been taken over by Morse and Rothenberg, has dropped vaudeville after a single week and reverted to a straight picture policy.

But this is a policy the like of which Pittsburgh has never seen before—triple features at the lowest scale in town, 10 and 15 cents in the afternoon and 15 and 25 cents at night. The management figured it could not operate with its inaugural policy of double feature and five sets of vaudeville under union regulations, due to the necessity of having seven musicians in the pit and as many stagehands backstage.

In the three weekly pictures at the Pitt there are one revival and two first run independents.

Kuykendall Sees Theatres Losing

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 13.—Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, stressed the increasing difficulty of both chain and independent theatres to make a profit, since all the money is going to producers, in an address on Friday before the Kansas-Missouri Theatre Association here. The directors expressed accord with the Kuykendall views.

Theatres cannot survive, said Kuykendall, if the situation continues. He expressed no opposition to percentage pictures, but said he regards the percentage amount as exorbitant. He urged exhibitors to organize a defense now against the increasing threat of regulatory and taxation measures, state and national. The directors elected John Stapel M. P. T. O. A. director from this district.

Tax Hearings Begun Early in Bay State

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Despite the fact that the legislature will not reconvene until Jan. 2, public hearings and other confabs on taxes are being held regularly. Joseph Brennan, secretary of the local M. P. T. O. A. unit, Allied Theatres of Massachusetts, has been representing the industry at many of these.

Sales taxes are a particular threat. One of these, directed toward theatre admissions and carrying a 10 per cent levy with a five-cent minimum, was shunted off last year.

Files Suit on "Love Me"

James Whittaker has filed suit in N. Y. Supreme Court against Columbia charging "Love Me Forever" is based on a scenario written by him under the title, "The Dove." Victor Schertzinger is also named as a defendant. Damages of $50,000 are alleged.

GB to Celebrate

GB will observe its first anniversary with release of "Transatlantic Tunnel" which the company admits at the outset is its most ambitious production to date.

The company's lineup has been placed with the Sparks theatres in Jacksonville.

'Broadway' Is $24,000 Wow In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—It was all "Broadway Melody" here last week, with the musical rolling up a sensational gross of $24,000 at the Penn, the best this house has had in some time. Normal is $10,000. Only a flood of product which has been piling up on the Penn kept "Broadway Melody" from a second week. However, it was moved to the Warner to continue the downtown first run engagement.

Only "Diamond Jim," among the other attractions, managed to make a satisfactory showing. It took $6,500 at the Alvin. "Here's to Romance" took a nose dive at the Fulton and was pulled after five days to a weak $2,800, while "Red Salute" and a stage show never got started at the Stanley, winding up disappointingly at $14,000. In its first week under a policy of two pictures and five acts of vaudeville, the Pitt did around $2,800, which was considered favorable under the cheap setup, and the Warner found the going pretty rough with "I Live For Love" and "Wanderer of the Wastelands," getting barely $4,400 in seven days. The bill was held over, since "Melody" couldn't open until the end of its Penn week.

Total first run houses were $51,700. Average is $41,000.

Skirboll Back on Job

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—Following a relapse from injuries he received in an automobile accident that killed his mother during the summer, Joseph Skirboll, manager of the First Division exchange, has returned to active duty again. A minor operation caused the setback.

Both of Skirboll's sisters, who were seriously hurt in the mishap, have left the Valley Heights Hospital in nearby Sewickley, Pa., and are now convalescing at their home in Cleveland.

Noones Made a Censor

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Joseph Noones has been named to the Department of Public Safety Sunday censor division. He used to be a motorcycle policeman and was injured while escorting Governor Curley.

"Solomon," Armetta High in Providence

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 13.—Henry Armetta, screen comedian, pulled $9,800 at the RKO Albee, coupled with "King Solomon of Broadway," for the highest take of the week.

Fay's was next in line with "The Case of the Lucky Legs" and a radio revue, which clicked for $7,200. Both of these grosses bettered par.

Loew's was down $700 from its $12,000 average with "She Married Her Boss" and "The Bishop Misbehaves" and the Majestic likewise fell $700 below its usual $7,000 with "Diamond Jim" and "Champagne for Breakfast." "The Virginia Judge" and "Streamline Express" caught $3,800 for five days at the Strand and were replaced by "The Big Broadcast."

PORTLAND, Oct. 13.—"Dark Angel" was the week's big grosser here. It ran $2,000 ahead of par on a take of $7,000 at the United Artists.

There was little excitement elsewhere among the first runs, but none of them went below normal.

Total first run business was $27,700. Average is $24,700.

"Diamond" Is Coast's High With $7,400

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—"Diamond Jim" was outstanding here last week. It ran up to $7,400, over normal by $4,200, at the Pantages. Its downtown showing at the Hillstreet was not so good, $7,200, but the Hollywood take copped anything among the first runs.

"Here's to Romance" was in the money at the 4 Star where it was on the profit side of the line by $1,750, the take being $5,000.

Talk 10-Year Operator Pact For Arbiters

Circuits-Union Studying Three-Man Board Idea

The establishment of an arbitration board of three members appointed for 10-year terms to settle wage scale controversies between the city circuits and Local 306 has been proposed, according to report, and is said to have met with considerable support from both circuit and union representatives.

The designation of such a committee is being considered, it is understood, as a result of a virtual abandonment by both the circuits and union of moves for a 10-year contract. Under the arbitration committee plan, according to report, wage scales would be submitted to negotiation by the customary circuit and union representatives every two years. If such negotiations failed to end in an agreement, the subject would go to an arbitration board of three members, one of whom would be designated by the circuits, one by the union and the third by mutual agreement of the two. The same three would continue as arbitrators for a full 10-year period.

The proposal, it is reported, is favorably regarded by both sides. Final action on its acceptance or rejection is expected within a few days.

Building Unions in Move to End Dispute

Avoidance of a jurisdictional fight involving all construction—studio sets and theatres—in the industry was reached late yesterday when a fight within the American Federation of Labor threatening to split building unions into two camps was adjusted.

The peace plan calls for the naming of a committee of six members representing each of the two building union groups with George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Clerks, as neutral chairman. In case of a tie vote he would vote. The committee will meet within 30 days if the plan goes through.

Dysart Follows Arthur On Stand at St. Louis

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS. Oct. 14.—Plenty of action marked the opening day of the third week of the criminal trial under way here. Harry C. Arthur, first important Government witness, finished testifying just before the luncheon recess; George S. Leisure, representing RKO, again moved for dismissal of the indictments against the company; Thomas M. Dysart, president of the local Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the bondholders' committees for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, succeeded Arthur on the stand; and the Government was denied its move to have only one of the Warner attorneys instead of both ex-Senator James A. Reed and Frederick H. Wood argue on objections.

Again the sessions were marked by a continued stream of objections by both defense counsel and by Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney. As a

Mexico's Theatres Import Own Films

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 14.—The picture shortage has become so acute here that some theatres are closed and the Finance Ministry has decided to allow theatres to import directly films other than those handled by distribution companies here.

The strike is still confined to employes of American distributors in spite of efforts of labor organizations to stir up sympathetic walkouts.

Exhibitors' imports are subject to a minimum duty of 35 pesos, about $9.70 per kilogram.

Foreign Political Censoring Gaining

Political film censorship in foreign countries to prevent public demonstrations has begun with the Vienna police prohibiting the showing of pictures dealing with the Ethiopian conflict.

In Panama, "Thunder In the East" has been withdrawn because the Japanese Consul protested in behalf of his country calling the film "quite offensive to the nationalist feeling of the Japanese Empire."

Woman President

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Mary Pickford reached here from Hollywood today en route to New York, where she will arrive Tuesday, and verified to MOTION PICTURE DAILY her election as president of United Artists. She thereby becomes the first woman to head a major distributing corporation.

Miss Pickford further declared Arthur W. Kelly and Harry D. Buckley will handle the business in the east with coast member-owners in charge of formulating policy.

She left for New York this afternoon to discuss plans with Kelly and Buckley. Jesse L. Lasky met her in Albuquerque, traveled east as far as Chicago and left again this morning for the coast. The first Pickford Lasky production probably will be a romantic comedy which the latter purchased on his recent visit to Paris. Francis Lederer will star and production will start in December.

Production Slips; 39 Features Going

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Studios continued to hum last week, although production showed a slight decline. Thirty-seven features and two shorts were in work compared with 39 features and four shorts the week before.

Columbia had four features shooting, three in preparation and five being edited. Fox had five, two and three; Goldwyn, two, zero and zero; M-G-M, five, zero and 12; Paramount, nine, two and five; Radio, four, four and four; Universal, four two and one; Warners, four, zero and 11; independents, zero, one and two.

Short subject production also dropped off. Columbia had one working, two preparing and two in the cutting room. M-G-M had one, two and two; Radio, zero, one and seven; Roach, zero, two and three; Universal, zero, one and zero; Warners, zero, zero and one; independents, zero, one, one.

Attorneys in Doubt on Erpi And Para. Pact

Ballantine, Harlan Give Views in Sabath Probe

An opinion that part of the Erpi contract is illegal was voiced yesterday before the Sabath Congressional Committee investigating Paramount and other realty bond reorganizations by Arthur A. Ballantine and John M. Harlan, both members of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, which served as counsel to the Paramount receivers and trustees for the two and one-half-year period of the company's financial rehabilitation.

The opinion was given during questioning of the two attorneys on details of the settlement of Erpi's $1,800,000 claim against Paramount in the reorganization proceedings. The settlement involved the issuance to Erpi of approximately $1,200,000 of securities of the new Paramount company and the execution of a new 10-year recording license agreement.

Ballantine and Harlan stated that a study of the Erpi contracts had been made by their firm in the course of the negotiations for settlement of the Erpi claim and that as a result of these studies it was believed that a part of the Erpi contract was illegal. The attorneys added, however, that this view did not alter the claim settlement terms because the part of the

Schenck Again Denies

Asked for comment on persistent reports Al Lichtman, former president of United Artists, would join M-G-M, Nicholas M. Schenck, for the second time in the last few days, denied any such plan yesterday. He said:

"Up to the present moment, I have not been approached by Mr. Lichtman and I have not talked to him. I have not seen Mr. Lichtman and I have not given the matter a single thought."

The current angle on the rumor had Schenck offering Lichtman the post of vice-president and assistant to the Loew and M-G-M president.

RKO Attorney In New Move For Dismissal

result of the intense humidity, witnesses, spectators, defendants and attorneys were very uncomfortable. At the start of the afternoon session Federal Judge George H. Moore permitted the removal of jackets, although he and Dysart, who testified for three hours, did not join the others.

Leisure has the right to move for dismissal any time during the trial or when the Government closes its case. He intends to submit a memorandum to the judge, who will then decide whether or not to hear arguments on the subject matter or deny or uphold the motion. The RKO attorney had been cross-examining Arthur for about an hour this morning and when he finished he entered his dismissal plea on the ground that RKO couldn't sell its pictures as the witness had entered into a deal with the Fox receivers, who had the right to take them all. The memorandum for Judge Moore may be submitted either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Did Not Sign Pact

After Leisure finished quizzing Arthur on a contract alleged to have been signed by the F. & M. head for RKO films at the St. Louis, it was revealed that Arthur had never personally signed a pact, although he accepted an assignment from the previous operators, which was later switched to the Fox with RKO's consent. Arthur was then questioned further by Hardy on redirect examination but the Government attorney didn't get very far due to the many objections raised by Reed and Wood, virtually all of which were upheld by the judge.

Although William R. Gentry, representing Paramount, had finished with Arthur last Thursday with a question to be settled this morning as to the admissibility of a conversation the witness had with George J. Schaefer, the Paramount attorney did not press the matter further this morning and rested his case where he abruptly ended on Oct. 10. He said that after looking over the testimony there was nothing he wanted to ask. His cross examination of the first witness was the shortest of the three defense counsel, lasting 23 minutes.

Joseph Grand Next Witness

With Warner counsel expected to complete its interrogation of Dysart tomorrow RKO and Paramount legal representatives in all probability will not cross examine him. During Dysart's direct examination by the Government and cross questioning by Warner lawyers, every time mention has been made of a meeting with Warner executives, RKO and Paramount counsel objected to inclusion of any inferences that these companies had any part in the sessions. The judge has so instructed the jury.

Joseph Grand, local counsel for the first mortgage bondholders of the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central, is scheduled to be the third witness, while Clarence M. Turley, real estate man here, and manager of the real estate for the reorganized company of the three theatres, is slated to follow Grand. The Government apparently has changed its plan to call most of the out of town witnesses first. Hardy feels he has set a certain procedure for presenting his case and to disrupt it at this time may throw him off balance.

Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy, Colonel William Mallard, Spyros Skouras, William T. Powers, Louis Phillips and Irving Cohen returned from New York yesterday by plane. Schaefer and his secretary, William Schneider, are due Wednesday. Jack Partington and Irving Lesser will arrive by plane tomorrow. Austin C. Keough doesn't plan to return from the east while Neil Agnew may stay in New York until he is called.

Arthur Denies Payment

After Leisure had established the fact that Harry Koplar had assigned the RKO product to Arthur for the St. Louis when the former gave it up, the F. & M. head said he had received permission from the exchange to transfer the product to the Fox, which brought forth this from Leisure: "Do you want to be the prosecuting attorney?" Arthur said, "No."

Arthur denied he had been paid for switching the product when the RKO attorney bluntly asked him, "How much did the Fox receivers pay you to stifle the competition between the three houses?"

Leisure developed the fact that of the six first runs here at the time, Arthur controlled five with Loew's the other. The RKO attorney again brought up the question of "sluffs," asking Arthur that by his playing them at the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, "Were you trying to build up damages?"

Wood then submitted a number of papers, records and film contracts which Arthur had given him last week. Wood also wanted to have the F. & M. head clarify certain parts of the transcript which he asserted were not clear after reading. Hardy raised a loud objection and even after Wood showed Hardy the question he refused to have it asked. Judge Moore upheld the prosecuting attorney, following which Hardy started to examine Arthur on redirect. He tried to show that the ad in the Post Dispatch on "Caravan" came from the press book but was stopped in short order. When the Government counsel tried to get in some testimony about a meeting at the attorney general's office defense attorneys objected and again this line of questioning was discontinued.

After Arthur had left the stand, Hardy asked that all records of Skouras Super Theatres subpoenaed by the Government be brought in. Samuel B. Jeffries, secretary of the company, happened to be absent at the time and so Isadore Levinson, Warner home office attorney, was put on the stand. When Hardy began interrogating Levinson as to where and how he got the records, Wood objected, following which it was agreed that Hardy and the Warner counsel get together on the particular records sought. Of the 13 listed in the subpoenas seven were not available when Levinson was asked for them.

Dysart Examined

Dysart was examined by the prosecuting attorney on the part he and the bondholders' committee had played in turning over the three theatres in question to Allen L. Snyder.

He said the committee had received six different bids, three of which were by Warners, in addition to a plan of reorganization proposed by Lawrence Stern, Chicago, who represented Skouras Brothers. Stern was also the first to make a bid for the houses. Two of the Warner bids were for all three houses while the third did not include the Missouri. W. F. Brasch & Co., of Chicago, entered a bid Feb. 21, 1934, and the second mortgage bondholders also presented a reorganization plan which, it was pointed out, was not a bid. Hardy tried to show that when Dysart said Snyder's bid was accepted it was the best and the successful bidder had at least five other offers to better.

Upon direct examination Dysart went into a review of some of the meetings held in connection with the bids. At meetings with Warner officials he testified that they berated Arthur and F. & M., declaring that the only ones who could successfully operate the houses were Warners. Hardy asked Dysart to recollect from memoranda facts and circumstances about the meetings. One was dated approximately three months from the time the session was held and this was disallowed upon objection by Reed. The ex-Senator wanted to have stricken out all of the testimony, contending it had nothing to do with the indictment and that all of it related to a bondholders' reorganization plan. The udge would not uphold him on this.

With his coat off and making a colorful picture in his light blue shirt and white hair, the 72-year-old former Senator asked for permission to remain seated while he cross-examined Dysart.

For 20 minutes Reed queried the head of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce in connection with the reorganization plan offered by Warners. Dysart said the plan had been turned down with three exceptions. One, that both parties were not fully agreed upon the annual interest to be accumulated; two, who would have ownership control of the new company; three, the amount of expenses to be paid for reorganizing. Tired of sitting, Reed took the floor for five minutes and then resumed his seated method of cross-interrogation. The ex-Senator went into considerable detail on the various Warner propositions made to the bondholders. Some of the doubtful points were cleared up by Dysart. Three times Reed asked to strike out questions, admitting he was ahead of himself.

Small Attendance

The day's session ended shortly after Hardy objected to Reed and Wood presenting arguments on a disputed issue. The Government counsel said both represented the same mind and only one should make the arguments. Judge Moore said he wouldn't make a limitation at this stage, following which Reed continued his cross-questioning of Dysart.

A number of those present noticed the small attendance today, with the result: "If the attendance doesn't pick up tomorrow we'll either have to give away dishes or stage a Bank Night on Wednesday," a local theatre manager said. Hearing was unusually bad today while the windows were open. Many times during the session the judge had to ask the court stenographer and attorneys to repeat questions. The bad acoustics also worked a hardship on the witnesses, spectators and reporters.

Newman at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 14.—Frank L. Newman, Sr., president of Evergreen States, arrived from Seattle this morning to confer with Spyros Skouras. After preliminary talks here both will head for Manhattan at the end of the week for meetings with other Skouras associates.

Newman said the Hamrick pool was working out well. He is attending the court sessions.

On the Lighter Side

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 14.—U. S. Marshal WILLIAM B. FAHY says that during the year and a half he has held this post he has never been offered, or accepted, an "Annie Oaakley" for any kind of local amusement.

He is regarded as one of the strictest marshals in the country and the free ducat ruling also goes for his deputies—or else.

While there's no actual proof, it sounds good without salt and pepper.

The colored waiter of the York Hotel interrogated by SAMUEL FORDYCE, local Paramount counsel, on the day the jury was being selected, was asked if he knew what the Sherman anti-trust act was all about.

"Sure," the negro is supposed to have said. "I voted for it."

You takes it or you leaves it.

RUSSELL HARDY and the four assistants he brought from Washington are stopping at the Jefferson. The only reason this hotel is mentioned at this time is that the three Skourases—SPYROS, CHARLIE and GEORGE—got their start here when they were bus boys there eking out a parsimonious existence.

Attorneys in Doubt on Erpi And Para. Pact

contract believed illegal had never been invoked against Paramount by Erpi and had nothing to do with the money owed to Erpi by Paramount.

Coached by Ralph Vatner, an attorney identified in the past with legal actions against Erpi, and who appeared in Federal court last spring to oppose the Erpi claim settlement in the Paramount proceedings, Meyer Kraushaar, counsel for the Sabath committee, inquired into the amount of revenue for Erpi involved in the new 10-year contract. Harlan estimated that, on the basis of Paramount's past production schedules, the contract would probably involve something under $3,000,000.

Harlan stated in reply to a question that the Paramount trustees had solicited bids from RCA before making the new Erpi agreement but none had been submitted. They were later advised by David Sarnoff, RCA head, that RCA did not want to submit a bid. Harlan said that, lacking definite information, he assumed that RCA did not feel that it had a chance to have a bid accepted in view of the expensive replacement of sound equipment it would be necessary for Paramount to make in order to effect a deal with RCA.

Frank A. Vanderlip, former chairman of the Paramount bondholders' committee, another witness, stated that he had voted against John E. Otterson for president of Paramount because of his Erpi association.

Names "Background" Men

"While Otterson is an extremely able business man," Vanderlip said, "this (meaning the film industry) isn't a business. It takes peculiar ability to run it successfully."

Vanderlip identified John Hertz of Lehman Bros. and H. A. Fortington as the men who "worked in the background" during the reorganization of Paramount to elect Otterson.

Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., former Paramount bankers, testifying before the committee for the second time, was asked by Kraushaar if the effect of the Paramount reorganization wasn't to make Paramount "an adjunct of A. T. & T. with Otterson at the head?"

Sir William replied that he didn't know. He was then asked if the Fortington group was not "an A. T. & T. committee?" and made the same reply.

The hearing is scheduled to resume today with both Otterson and Fortington appearing as witnesses.

Otterson Confers

John E. Otterson, president of Paramount, yesterday conferred with ranking company executives at a home office meeting when, it is understood, he expounded his policy and views. This is reported to have been the first general meeting held by him since Otterson assumed the presidency.

George J. Schaefer leaves for St. Louis and the scene of the Government's anti-trust trial tonight, accompanied by his secretary, William Schneider. Austin C. Keough will remain in New York indefinitely.

Washington Open-Minded

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Observers in Washington are maintaining an open-mind attitude with respect to the patent investigation which has been initiated by Representative Sirovich of New York.

Little is known here of Sirovich's plans, which he has developed largely in New York, and Administration officials today declined to comment upon the matter for that reason.

The New York Congressman for years has been seeking an intensive investigation of the industry and it is believed sees in his patent probe an opportunity to put leading picture men "on the spot." While he has conducted a number of investigations, none of them has been productive of any legislation to remedy conditions which he has highlighted, his activities usually bringing about such controversy between members of his own committee as to nullify his efforts to secure favorable action on his bills.

No predictions are being hazarded at this time as to whether the patent inquiry will result in legislation, although it is safe to bet that Sirovich will come back to Washington in January with a bill in his pocket. It all depends, it is pointed out by observers, whether he uncovers anything important which has not already been developed by other investigations.

Patent Suit Dismissed

WILMINGTON, Oct. 14.—The patent infringement suit of Frank L. Dyer, an Atlantic City attorney, against Sound Studios of New York was dismissed by Judge John P. Nields in the U. S. District Court here today. The suit was defended by Erpi.

Dyer had charged Sound Studios with infringement of three patents for long - playing phonograph records. Judge Nields in his opinion declared that one of Dyer's patents in the suit was "for practical purposes" only, a paper patent, and that the other two patents were paper patents. Dismissing the bill of complaint, Judge Nields further stated that the first patent was not infringed upon by the defendant and that the other two were invalid for want of invention.

voice in the matter. This I. T. O. action followed a reorganization last week.

Elmer C. Rhoden, Fox Midwest head, said the company is not buying, nor is it attempting to set up a system of protection. The circuit is simply making separate deals with each distributor on whatever basis it can, he said. He asserted nothing in the way he is buying is new, and that all Fox Midwest is trying to do is get away from "so much day and date playing of pictures."

At the reorganization meeting of the I. T. O., Emanuel Rolsky was elected president; E. S. Young, first vice-president; Mrs. Abe Baier, second vice-president; Ed Hartman, secretary, and Charles H. Porter, treasurer.

Lightman Is Named MPTO President

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 14.—M. A. Lightman was elected president of the Tri-State M. P. T. O. today, succeeding W. L. Landers. Other officers elected were: R. X. Williams, secretary-treasurer; W. E. Elkins, vice-president for Mississippi; W. F. Ruffin, vice-president for Tennessee; H. D. Wharton, vice-president for Arkansas; Emma Cox, board chairman.

Board members for Arkansas are: Henry Sanders, Cecil Cupp, J. F. Norman, M. S. McCord, Sidney Nutt, O. E. McCutcheon; for Mississippi: W. A. Rush, J. A. West, W. S. Tyson, H. W. Evans; for Tennessee: F. D. Moore, Tom Ballas, Col. Cecil E. Vogel, W. L. Hendricks.

"I find a consistent demand on the part of exhibitors for some kind of a regulatory body to replace the code boards," Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, told the meeting at the Chicsa Hotel.

"I don't believe there could ever be a voluntary code that would work. There is no such thing as voluntary compliance," he said. Kuykendall revealed he has been conferring with Washington authorities regarding this problem. "We cannot revert to the old film boards of trade," he said, "but must have fair and equitable reprcsentation on a new board." He also attacked non-theatrical competition.

Vanderlip disclosed this development yesterday while testifying before the Sabath Congressional committee investigating real estate reorganizations. His successor will probably be elected at the next meeting of the Paramount board.

Vanderlip told the Sabath committee that he was the only director who voted against John E. Otterson for president of Paramount. He gave as his reason the belief that Otterson's former connections with Erpi, with which Paramount had contracts, might give rise to controversy.

I GUARANTEE

No. 834 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

I have just seen "Three Kids and a Queen" with the lovable May Robson as the "queen."

I've got a lump in my throat as big as an ostrich egg.

Moreover, my throat is sore from laughter.

In all the years I have been in this business, I have never experienced more profound emotions than I enjoyed in seeing "Three Kids and a Queen."

I thought I was sophisticated. Maybe you think you, too, are hard to get—but I guarantee that you cannot sit through this picture of terribly human emotions without wanting to laugh one minute and cry the next.

This picture has already been pre-viewed by the most cynical movie-goers of Hollywood, including the toughest critics.

It has been okayed 100 percent.

No critic dares to monkey with it—because it deals with the most intensely human qualities in any human being—and deals with them tenderly, deftly, surely and entertainingly.

A KNOCKOUT!

You ought to smash all of your routine in advertising this production.

You ought to get right down to earth and guarantee your fans that you've got something they will love—just as I guarantee it to you.

I guarantee that if you give this picture half a chance, it will simply be a knockout. It will build by mouth to mouth advertising, and it will leave a soft spot in the heart of everyone who has paid his money at your box office.

I call your special attention not only to the amazing May Robson herself, but to Henry Armetta and Herman Bing—and also to a very young lad named William Burrud.

They will cleanse your soul. They will give you more fun and showmanship than you ever got from any off-color picture ever made.

They will make you laugh and they will make your throat swell with a magnificent showmanship ache, if you know what I mean.

Cut loose! Beg your people to come! Don't hold back! Tell them you guarantee one of the richest entertainments they have ever had—and take my guarantee that every such promise will be met by the picture just a little bit more than one hundred percent.

"Dream" Premiere Sellout in Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—"A Midsummer Night's Dream," Warner film, had a premiere at the historic Chestnut Street Opera House here tonight which was unequaled in the theatrical history of this city. The house was a complete sellout as persons prominent in social, intellectual and professional circles attended.

For the first time in years, searchlights flooded a theatre and radio announcers and news photographers were present. Special cordons of police were necessary to keep under control a crowd of thousands who gathered in front of the theatre. Present in the brilliant audience were Dr. William Rosenback, president of the Shakespearean Society of America; George Horace Lorimer, noted publisher; the socially prominent Mrs. Bessie Dobson Altemus and Mayor and Mrs. J. Hampton Moore. Albert Sidney Howson, noted scenario director and censor, officiated at ceremonies prior to the picture.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Three Kids and a Queen"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—"Three Kids and a Queen" indicates a full house of patrons forgetting their poker faces after the first reel.

May Robson plays the richest woman with the meanest manner and the softest heart in the world. All of her love is lavished on her dog, to the despair of her heir, Hale Hamilton, who attempts to have her declared incompetent when she razes a half-built skyscraper to make a playground for the dog.

During a drive in the park, Miss Robson is thrown from her carriage. William Barrud, Frankie Darro and William Benedict, foundlings adopted by Barber Henry Armetta, take her home for first aid. Newspapers carry headlines that she is kidnaped. Terrified by the fear that she will be confined to an asylum if found, Miss Robson scolds, threatens and argues the anguished Armetta and his delighted family into keeping her. Gangsters John Miljan, Tom Dugan and Noel Madison kidnap her in earnest for the reward. A chase with plenty of shooting ends in the routing of the greedy heir and the adoption of the three kids by Miss Robson.

Armetta scores a huge individual success for comic despairs. Miss Robson gives her expected energetic crusty-shell-heart-of-gold performance. Herman Bing gets a full measure of laughs as Armetta's pal. E. E. Clive makes a small part notable. The excellent cast is completed by Charlotte Henry, Lillian Harmer, Lawrence Grant, Hedda Hopper, Henry Kolker and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

Barry Trivers and Sam Ornitz wrote the screenplay from the story by Harry Poppe and Chester Beecroft. Edward Ludwig directed under supervision of Ben Verschleiser.

Comedy, snatch angle and a Robson performance all exploitation bets for this one.

"Charlie Chan's Secret"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Relying on spiritualism for most of its effects, this latest in the Chan series succeeds in becoming more spooky than its predecessors, although less gripping as a mystery to be solved.

Warner Oland, as Chan again, is called upon to determine whether the missing heir to a large fortune is alive or dead. The fortunes of several people hinge upon this heir's death and Henrietta Crosman, the family head, has summoned them all to a seance in the hope of gaining help from the world beyond. As Arthur Edmund Carewe, a spiritualist professor, and Gloria Roy, a medium, conduct their seance the murdered body of the missing man falls into the room. Oland, with the assistance of Herbert Mundin, who, as a butler, furnishes the only comic relief, then proceeds to pick things to pieces, first establishing the mediums as fakes, and later uncovering Edward Trevor, the heir's brother-in-law, as the murderer who has committed the crime to cover up the fact he has stolen estate funds.

Unlike previous Chan films, many false clues are introduced and the players frequently overplay their roles. Individual performances are good for the most part, however, and Charles Quigley and Rosina Lawrence teamed as lovers show future promise. The direction of Gordon Wiles stresses eeriness, making the picture most suitable for adults. The production of John Stone is workmanlike and the photography by Rudolph Mate offers some tricky novelties. Robert Ellis and Helen Logan wrote the screen play in collaboration with Joseph Hoffman.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Great ground swells of laughter rippled by windy gusts of giggles at the idiotic buffoonery of the Marx Brothers roll through this musical farce. A more elaborate plot than usual and emphasis upon the score are the distinguishing features although the rabid rompings and nitwit capers of this terrific trio are in no way hampered by the close-knit story.

The tale, based on the tribulations of Groucho, as an opera scout, weaves its mad way from Italy, where he signs Walter King and Kitty Carlisle, to New York, where the Marx menagerie goes berserk at a performance of "Il Trovatore." Harpo and Chico, loyal to the death to

"Little America"

(PARAMOUNT)

Hollywood, Sept. 25.—Adventurous souls, exponents of courage and youth reaching for the unattainable will find a good deal of thrill and education in Byrd's second Antarctic expedition with sound.

As a pictorial record of one of the world's great feats of exploration, its newsreel quality and "March of Time" flavor, serve to maintain interest that assumes bigness by virtue of its modesty.

Well publicized via newspapers and pictures before, during and after the expedition, audiences should be ready for this film which so admirably depicts valor and guts in so simple a manner.

The film is complete from the start of the trip to the return from the Pole. It shows intimate human interest incidents revealing daring, danger and humor, bringing in men, airplanes, huskies, penguins, whales and seals. A marching song in torchlight against the snow of men going to the rescue of Byrd is a highlight of the film.

Admiral Byrd is a good screen personality, at moments resembling John Barrymore. His lonely vigil of seven months at the Pole brings patrons close to his immortal deed.

The narration written by Charles J. V. Murphy, radio man on the trip, is tense, factual and novel. The photography conveying peril with beauty is by John L. Herrmann and Carl O. Peterson. Gayne Whitman is the narrator. The production supervised by Dario Faralla and edited by Ewing Scott, who himself once filmed a North Pole production, "Igloo," is a noteworthy achievement. Properly publicized, the picture should be self-selling with foreign appeal particularly good.

"LITTLE AMERICA"

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

Paramount 50 mins.

Fine adventure film on Antarctic Expedition with thrills and human interest of popular appeal.

Full of thrills and dealt with humanly, this should please all types of audiences. The drama of Admrial Byrd and his men reaching their goal in the Antarctic holds the interest from the start. From the moment the expedition embarks at Newport News, Va., until the rescue of Admiral Byrd at Advance Base just a mere 10,000 miles from New York, there is no let-up in the interest. And much of the credit is due Ewing Scott, who edited thousands of feet of film and condensed the screen record of the trip to 50 minutes. No attempt is made to burden the audience with scores of charts and heavy scientific matter, but, instead, the trials and tribulations of the explorers are depicted, with some lighter moments also injected. The flight over Marie Byrd Land, a crack-up of one of the planes and a blizzard are among the many thrills. John L. Herrmann and Carl O. Peterson deserve a bow for their camera work.

This screen story of the second Byrd expedition to the Antarctic is not only a superb record of one of the great adventures of modern times but is deeply-moving drama and grand entertainment. It greatly surpasses the film of the first expedition in effectiveness, because of more thorough preparation and the fuller and wiser use of sound.

The bulk of the scenes were made on the expedition, but these have been welded into a dramatic whole by an extension of the technique used in "The March of Time." The added links in the chain of narrative are so carefully made that the authentic note is strengthened rather than diminished. For example, the story of Rear Admiral Byrd's long vigil at Advance Base is ingeniously presented by reproductions of radio conversations between Little America and the United States.

There is a wealth of incidents covering the main events of the trip, including the historic flight over Marie Byrd Land, the crack-up of one of the planes and the rescue of Byrd's old plane after its four years under the snow.

Here is a picture that everyone will want to see and should see. It will disappoint none and it will earn money for all concerned.

The first expedition film was shot silent. This one brings authentic sound from the wastes of the Antarctic. In addition there is an excellent accompanying narrative written by Charles J. V. Murphy, a member of the expedition, and well delivered by Gayne Whitman. The photography of John L. Herrmann, A. S. C., and Carl O. Peterson is thrilling. A blizzard sequence at Little America, shots of exploring a titanic pressure ridge with flares in the Antarctic night and scenes of the approach by ship to the great ice barrier stand out.

Throughout the whole the human, personal note is kept to the front with tact and good taste. The production reflects high credit on its editor, Ewing Scott.

DAILY VARIETY DAILY

"Little America"

Paramount release of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's film record of second Antarctic expedition. Narration written by Charles J. V. Murphy. Photographed in Antarctica by John L. Herrmann and Carl O. Peterson. Film editor, Frances Marsh. Narrator, Gayne Whitman. Edited by Ewing Scott. Under supervision of Dario Faralla. Previewed at the Ritz, Sept. 24. Running time, 57 mins.

Highlights and twilights of the second Byrd Antarctic expedition have been given absorbing dramatic continuity in this feature length record of one of the world's great adventures. Material, an almost day-to-day screen account of what Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his company went through in the polar wilderness in the name of science, is fascinating. Its presentation has been well calculated for box office entertainment. It is pictured and narrated with dignity, modesty and humor, in terms of human struggle and achievement in the face of constant perils and discouragements, rather than from the scientific standpoint. Latter has been handled without confusion to the lay mind, but the whole has been kept on a note compatible with the personnel and purpose of the expedition.

Excellent narration by Gayne Whitman, from the script by Charles J. V. Murphy, ties incident, adventure and scenic revelation together with spellbinding effect. Story seems to unfold itself naturally with mounting suspense, peaked in the rescue of Admiral Byrd from the meteorological outpost, a little warren in the farthermost ice.

Homely detail of the male housekeeping in the sub-snow hutch is pictured with humor. Conquest of extremely low temperatures with plane, tractor and husky team in charting the terrain and scientific mopping up carries tense excitement. Gallantry in face of danger brings an occasional gulp. A real thrill is first air view of the gaunt ridges of newly discovered Antarctic territory lifting above the snows. Incorporation of the radio communication between Little America and New York helps build sense of excitement and magnitude of adventure.

Byrd, who compares to many of the best picture stars as a screen personality, makes a handsome hero of the feature, and the others are themselves no mean thespians.

Photographically the assembly is superb, John L. Herrmann and Carl O. Peterson having wielded the cameras for a swell job of entertainment as well as picturesque beauty. Frances Marsh and Ewing Scott have done a corking job of cutting and editing, under competent supervision of Dario Faralla.

Picture leaves a vivid impression of an historic achievement and of the lonely land where Byrd and his men ran up a tiny American flag above the white wilderness.

Skullduggery backstage loses Miss Carlisle her leading role with the Marxes to the rescue and eventual co-starring of Miss Carlisle and Jones while the kidnaped star is gagged and hoisted into the flies. The big moments audiences will repeat around the fireside are scenes in a two-by-four cabin bulging with almost half of the passenger list before a gag ends a maniacal duel of Harpo and a moth which flutters from the flowing beard of an air hero; the masquerade of the Marxes in those same beards ravished from sleeping air heroes and Chico's utterly nutty explanation to a welcoming committee of why the fliers took a boat; a harp specialty by Harpo and piano nonsense by Chico; a rip roaring finale at an opera performance with Groucho pursuing a rich widow all over the house, and Harpo going Tarzan trapezing in the flies as the backdrops change behind baffled singers.

Miss Carlisle scores as an opera star. Walter King does good work as the villainous tenor. Jones, replacing Zeppo, looms as a new romantic opera discovery. Robert Emmett O'Connor is a hilarious foil for the comics as a baffled cop. Siegfried Rumann, Margaret Dumont and Edward Keene are important in supporting roles. The music score by Herbert Strothart captures the spirit of wild foolery as do the dances by Chester Hale. The songs, "Alone," by Nacio Herb Brown, and "Cosi Cosa," by Kaper and Jurman and Ned Washington will be played often. George S. Kaufman and Morris Ryskind provided the screen play from the story by James Kelvin McGuinness. Sam Wood directed for speed and laughs. Irving Thalberg produced handsomely.

"Moonlight on the Prairie"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Marked by good photography and the presence of the personable Dick Foran, Warners' new singing western star, this one will please the western clientele. Foran should build a good following in small towns.

The film has the usual quota of gun and fist fights, cattle rustling and other melodramatic formulae. Foran makes himself a hero when he risks his life to obtain the rightful ranch property of Sheila Manners and her youngster, Dickie Jones, from villain foreman Joseph Sawyer. Foran further gains hero spotlight by rounding up the rustlers and returning the stolen cattle to Miss Manners. There is a softening haze of gunsmoke throughout the film. Effective comedy relief is supplied by George E. Stone, Foran's diminutive assistant. A light romantic note is sounded between Foran and Miss Manners with little Dickie always propelling the romance toward fruition.

Foran will henceforth be recalled as the hardest-hitting cowboy in films. When he hits 'em they stay smacked. Two songs rendered by him embellish the entertainment value of the film. D. Ross Lederman directed adequately with cast performances in harmony with the adaptation and screen play by William Jacobs. Fred Jackman's photography is fine.

Production Code Seal No. 1,155. Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

Sue on Terre Haute Pact

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 14.—A suit filed in Superior Court, No. 2, here, asks judgment of $2,000 for alleged violation of a lease on the Rex. Morton Turner, former operator, says Ola Bennett, owner, "unlawfully" took possession of equipment.

Turner says he leased the house Feb. 11, 1933, and fulfilled contract terms until the defendant took possession, June 14, 1933. The Rex was recently opened by Mrs. C. Harstead.

G. B. Men See "Tunnel"

"Transatlantic Tunnel" was previewed at the G.B. office over the week-end to a group of the company's salesmen and exchange managers from nearby cities. The picture will open at the Roxy Oct. 25.

"Metropolitan," Darryl Zanuck's first for Twentieth Century-Fox, with Lawrence Tibbett starred, will open at the Music Hall Thursday.

"King Solomon of Broadway" will open at the Roxy Friday.

M-G-M is releasing this week a picture entitled "IT'S IN THE AIR."

This is positively no Super-Special. It didn't take a year to produce and it didn't cost a million.

But from start to finish it is one of the funniest of entertainments. It reminds us of "Caught Short." Especially because that one also was a "sleeper" that suddenly set the box-office world aflame!

In this picture JACK BENNY is his real radio self, truly America's No. 1 Kidder and the cast has M-G-M's top fun-makers like TED HEALY, UNA MERKEL, NAT PENDLETON and others.

We believe your audiences will get a great kick out of "IT'S IN THE AIR" and we urge you to spread the good word so that you can properly profit.

Reed Attempts to Prove Bondholders Reneged

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Oct. 15.—Three new witnesses were put on the stand today by Prosecuting Attorney Russell Hardy, in addition to Thomas N. Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, who resumed where he left off yesterday. The three government witnesses were M. A. Rosenthal of the Securities Service Co., Chicago; David Levinson, Chicago attorney, and Frederick H. Kreissman, who was mayor of St. Louis from 1909-13.

Kreissman was the last to take the stand and was the fifth witness to finish his testimony in the anti-trust trial here. Although it was expected Joseph Grand and Clarence M. Turley, local men, would be called today, the Government decided to call in the Chicago witnesses first and tomorrow will give first consideration to New York men who have been spending the last

Shy on Snap

Cincinnati, Oct. 15.—A local highlight of frankness is found in a review of Herman J. Bernfeld, picture editor Cincinnati Enquirer, who uses the following as indicating his views on a picture playing here currently:

"Truly the plot creaks, and the early part of the film lags. The dialogue of the first half isn't as snappy as the rubber in the stamp which contributed it."

Sirovich Begins Patents Fishing Expedition Here

The Sirovich Congressional Committee opened its fishing expedition yesterday at the Fifth Avenue Hotel with free style interrogations on communication and electrical patents. The film industry comes next. The committee is making a study of the functioning of patent pools and cross-licensing agreements to determine whether or not they operate in the public interest.

Conspicuous official figures in the committee room as the hearing got under way were Robert Robins, creator of the American Society for the Protection of the M. P. Theatre, and David G. Berger, colleague of Robins and counsel in numerous actions for huge damage sums against A. T. & T. and its subsidiaries. An interested spectator at the hearing was Ralph Vatner, also an associate of Robins and attorney of record in most of the lawsuits in which Berger is counsel.

Robins, for the past several years the author of much vituperative literature directed against the "big electrics," is an investigator for the Sirovich committee. Berger is one of its attorneys. Vatner, who occupies the same business office with Robins, in addition to being the legal associate of Berger, appears to be serving in the capacity of voluntary coach and informant to officers of the committee.

Officials of A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi have been subpoenaed for the committee's hearings. Among these are Dr. Frank B. Jewett, vice-president of A. T. & T., who was on the stand yesterday, and Edgar S. Bloom, president of Western Electric and Erpi, who may be called to testify today.

Among the suits, trial of which is now pending in the Federal court here, in which Berger, of counsel for the Sirovich committee, and Vatner are counsel and attorney, respectively, are the following:

Biophone Corp. vs. A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi. Damages of $15,000,000 are being sought in this action.

Audio Equipment Maintenance, Inc., vs. A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi. Damages sought, $1,500,000.

Service on Sound Corp. vs. A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi. Damages sought, $4,500,000.

Sound Picture Engineers vs. A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi. Damages sought, $1,500,000.

Macy Mfg. Corp. vs. A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi. Damages sought, $3,000,000.

Chicago Row on Bookings Quiets

Chicago, Oct. 15.—After ten days of fireworks the local booking-clearance problem has died down. Perhaps it will flare up again soon but right now it all seems quiet.

B. & K. officials state they had not been notified exchanges were refusing to give them pictures on the seven days' clearance basis they demanded. Exchangemen state they have notified B. & K. they cannot give them this clearance protection, this year at least.

After two weeks delay Allied members got their releases set. The B. & K. representative usually present did not attend the meeting, but that circuit went ahead and set releases anyway. Whether or not the situation

New Hampshire Hearing Up Soon

Boston, Oct. 15.—The litigation in New Hampshire that is expected to determine whether or not Bank Night is a lottery under the laws of that commonwealth is scheduled for hearing in the Supreme Court there beginning the first week in December. It was banned a few weeks ago by orders of Attorney General Johnson. A declaratory judgment is now sought.

In the adjoining state of Maine, Bank Night is also having trouble as the result of a drive on so-called lotteries. The right of newspaper advertising has been withdrawn in some instances as a result of the campaign.

In Massachusetts, it is denied that the finding of a cash giveaway scheme a lottery in a Fall River court will have any effect on Bank Night.

M. Woolf's recently formed company. Woolf is managing director and the directors include J. Arthur Rank, D. L., chairman of British National Films, Ltd.; L. W. HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—James R. Grainger arrived here yesterday from San Francisco. He will remain a week, then go to New Orleans en route to New York.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THIS department looked itself over the other day with shuddering results and made a mental note to set up a self-imposed manual of regulations, probably to be promulgated under the general heading of "Things and Such to Skip in Order to Avoid Annoyance." Hardly had the decision a fighting chance to assert itself when along came word from Sam Goldwyn which set matters back where they were at the beginning. For Goldwyn from Hollywood announced all of his future pictures with the exception of "The Dark Angel" and "Barbary Coast" would be sold to independents, describing the reason as an aftermath of his disagreement with Al Lichtman on the handling, and the results, no doubt, of the two attractions listed a couple of lines earlier. To make it complete and by no means ignoring the publicity value therein contained, Goldwyn then proceeded to list the films to be so sold. Demonstrating our desire to cooperate, we list them: "Splendor," "Navy Born," an untitled Merle Oberon and "Shoot the Chutes.". . .

When the producer talks about the independents, he at once ignores the circuits even if he does not specifically mention them. Goldwyn really ought to know better and, moreover, we think he does. He should know, whether he regards the situation as a good or a bad one, that the big money comes from the chains at which he now directly takes a poke. This business of selling to independents will not permit him to come out on the expensive negatives he manufactures. If he is set upon establishing the point, he has it within his power to try out his theory. It will be expensive. Goldwyn must realize it. Because it is obvious to this space that he must, his latest statement ends up as a considerable slice of hooey no doubt engendered to get a lot of exhibitors excited about something they won't get. . . .

Dave Loew, still remembering the bumps that marked a goodly portion of his air trip to and from the coast, expects to clear his desk at Loew's, Inc., and leave for Hollywood and his new partnership arrangement with Hal Roach about Nov. 1. The number of features which the studio will make next year has not been fixed, he explained yesterday; it's to be determined following talks with M-G-M which will release whatever the plant turns out. Just how far Roach will go feature and how far on shorts depends on the status of the twin bill market. There will be many around the town who will miss Dave's business fairness and the pleasantness of his personality. He will carry more good wishes and Godspeeds west with him than possibly he could know about. . . .

We are somewhat tardy about the matter, but what follows is a line or two designed to fasten garlands on and around the pate of Charlie Einfeld for the manner in which he has handled and is handling the campaign on "A Midsummer Night's Dream." It may be news for Einfeld to read here that his confreres in the advertising profession are voluntarily commending this job as one of the finest they have run across in their experience, an experience, it might be pointed out, which collectively totals more years than is man's usual allotment on this or any other hemisphere. It is one thing for a commentator of the celluloid scene to dish out praise, but quite another and considerably more worthwhile, we think, for such orchids to be deposited by other men in the same division of the industry. . . .

Point and counterpoint, Hollywood style: Irving Thalberg is seen or reported to have been seen talking something or other over with Goldwyn and Mary Pickford. The immediate result is what you suspect and connects Irving with United Artists. Now along comes Sam to say, with emphasis, mind you: "Nothing to it.". . .

How do they carry on out there? Reports ricocheting from hill to hill yesterday had Sam Katz rejoining Paramount as head of production once again. Along comes Sam to personally quash the yarn with: "I'm not joining Paramount. I am happy where I am.". . .

Each day a new home for Lichtman. He's been with Fox, Warners, Metro and Universal all in less than one week.

The original ambidextrous kid!

We like Radio's modesty in advertising "The Last Days of Pompeii." Reads the copy: "The Biggest Show in 2,000 Years."

There was the World War, for instance. . . .

The company, which will produce six features and will headquarter at the Talisman studio, declares it will specialize in development of legitimate stage talent evidencing screen promise. The first picture will be "Alcatraz"; the second, "The Hope Diamond Hoodoo"; third, "Daughter of Cleopatra" and fourth, "The Comstock Lode." Excelsior also owns rights to "The Rosary" and "The Lark." The first picture goes into work in two weeks.

Row in Chicago on Bookings Is Quiet will become entangled when the actual playdates arrive is to be seen.

Some along Film Row are of the opinion that B. & K. plans a surprise move shortly and is lying low until the right moment arrives. So far no one has been able to guess what the surprise will be, if any.

Definite settlement of all troubles over this season's releases is expected to be reached one way or another in the next two weeks. By that time conflicts on the booking schedules, if any, will have appeared.

Sam Hardy Operated On

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—Sam Hardy, playing in the Goldwyn-Cantor film, "Shoot the Chutes," was rushed to the Hollywood Hospital late today for an emergency operation for an abdominal obstruction. His condition was reported as critical. The necessity of replacing him in the cast will mean the refilming of scenes two weeks in the making.

two and a half weeks in the court room. Hardy is definitely determined to try and get these men out of the way as soon as possible so that they can report back to their headquarters.

Again the sultriness occasioned the removal of jackets in the court room. Ex-Senator James A. Reed was the first to take off his coat.

Frederick H. Wood, one of the Warner attorneys, this afternoon took exception to Hardy scolding him and asked the judge to advise the Government counsel to desist. There were the usual verbal clashes and objections. Before Reed could get started in his cross examination of Dysart this morning Prosecuting Attorney Hardy challenged the former senator on the admissibility of proposals made by Warners and the bondholders' committee in connection with the leasing of the three theatres in question. Hardy dared Reed to state a proposition in law which would justify admittance of a proposal drawn after a meeting between the bondholders' committee and Warners and later rejected by the former.

Allows Documents

Reed, however, didn't try to prove this point as Judge George H. Moore permitted the documents to be introduced. Reed had Dysart on the stand the entire morning and for a part of the afternoon trying to show that the bondholders and not Warners reneged on the plan offered for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

Sitting on the table occupied by the Warner legal staff and with his left foot resting comfortably on a chair, Reed read to the jury the first Warner proposal, Exhibit No. 35, then hurriedly passed over the revised plan, Exhibit No. 36. He then had Dysart point out the changes from Exhibit No. 36 to those in the reorganization plan submitted by Warners and identified as Exhibit No. 34.

During the cross examination, Reed asked Dysart whether he had been negotiating with Lawrence Stern of Chicago, representing Skouras Brothers, and Allen L. Snyder at the same time he was talking over a deal with Warners. The chairman of the bondholders' committee admitted he had. "We invited anyone who was interested in making a bid in the proposition," Dysart answered.

Annual Rental $174,000

"If you had a better proposition from Stern at the time you were negotiating with Warners would you have taken it?" Reed asked, to which Dysart answered, "Certainly."

Dysart denied the committee was playing a game with the various interested parties, stating the only factor he had in mind at the time was to get the best proposal possible. Dysart said he learned who Snyder's associates were on Feb. 16, 1934, and that he did not know Harry Koplar was in the deal until the properties were foreclosed. Asked the annual rental, Dysart replied that it was $174,000 for the three houses, of which the Ambassador paid $2,000 a week, the New Grand Central $350 weekly and the Missouri $1,000.

After the first two years the figure was stepped up and again boosted after five years. He stated also that Snyder put up $35,000 cash for the lease on the Missouri and $75,000 for the lease on the Ambassador and New Grand Central. When asked about the capital of the new company Dysart remarked the committee was not concerned with this and that "cash was the only guarantee."

After Dysart had been cross examined by Reed, Jacob M. Lashly, representing RKO, briefly interrogated the witness on the meeting at Joseph Grand's office here. Dysart told him upon questioning that, "We always preferred to have Warner Brothers as our lessees during the negotiations. We always thought they were the logical operators inasmuch as they previously had the three houses which had been known as Warner theatres.

"If we could have made as good a deal with Warners as we did with Snyder we would have preferred to have Warners take the theatres," he said.

Reed Sustained

Lashly then brought out the fact that neither RKO nor any of its executives took part in the conferences mentioned. A short recess was taken and the trial was forced to wait until two jurors returned. They had taken about 10 minutes extra. Just as Judge Moore called one of the infrequent respites, Reed misunderstood him and after he was straightened out he said, "I'm always for recesses."

Hardy asked Dysart upon redirect examination, "What was done, if anything, by F. & M. or Snyder in their negotiations to prevent Warners from getting the houses?" The witnesses didn't get a chance to answer when Reed objected and was sustained. Hardy then argued that this question was more relevant than the three bids which were submitted by Warners and which were gone over in some detail, but the question was not allowed.

Hardy registered nine objections in the morning session and was only upheld on one. In the afternoon he had better luck and won about six victories. William R. Gentry of Paramount, and Lashly met something of a setback in getting over objections to the inclusion of their clients in conversations or meetings held by Warner executives, certain of the bondholders' committee and others. Judge Moore overruled them every time they objected despite the fact that they rephrased them several times. Even after Dysart, Rosenthal, Levinson and Kreissman got through with their testimony the men arose again to qualify their objections but were denied. Wood now and then objected for Harry M. Warner and the Warner companies on the same grounds and received the same treatment.

Momand at Trial

A. B. Momand, Shawnee, Okla., exhibitor, who says he has a damage suit pending against all distributors, today showed up in court. He asserted he would appear every day for the rest of the week as an observer. David Idzal of the Fox, Detroit, also was in court visiting Sypros Skouras. Idzal said he would stay a few days. Frank Newman, Sr., also is here.

George S. Leisure, representing RKO, today told MOTION PICTURE DAILY he would not press his motion for dismissal of the indictments until the Government completes its case. He said he plans to make a motion then which will be based on the fact that it would be legally impossible for his client to perform a conspiracy inasmuch as the Fox had RKO product tied up and the distributor could not sell it away, and also for other reasons.

Rosenthal took the stand after Dysart and testified for about 15 minutes altogether. He said he and Frederick W. Strauss had gone to New York, where they met Herman Starr and Warner and offered to help in the local situation. Rosenthal said Warner advised him that the company had been badly handled by the bondholders' committee and he was not interested in the proposition.

Levinson on Stand

Warner told him, the witness stated, that the Orpheum and Shubert had been making money for the first time in a long while. Reed then objected to Hardy's questioning but when the prosecutor explained that the meeting had taken place two years ago Judge Moore ordered him to proceed. Wood then asked one question and was through. He queried, "Was the substance of the Warner and Starr answers that they were satisfied with the two theatres they had and weren't interested in another deal?"

"Yes," was the response. Gentry and Lashly didn't cross examine Rosenthal and then Levinson was called. The Chicago attorney was asked by Hardy what Starr had said about the local theatre situation at a meeting in Grand's office in May, 1934.

He said Starr told him Warners had invested a substantial sum in the three houses and were entitled to consideration from the bondholders. Levinson asserted he was general counsel for the Missouri Building Corp.

Starr declared Warners' plan was the best for the bondholders, Levinson said, "although the committee didn't agree with Warners, the company was prepared to expend $1,000,000 to protect their investment," he added. Levinson stated Starr objected to his assuming too much authority at the meeting and demanded that the chairman preside.

Hardy Presses Queries

"What did they say in regard to business at the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central," Hardy asked the witness. Levinson said he didn't recall anything outside of the statement by Starr, who was declared to have said, "Warners had franchises for other companies' films in addition to Warners-First National and without this product the three houses could not operate successfully." The prosecuting attorney at this point tried to press the question, "Anything else?" and even recalled to the witness that he had made a remark to him during lunch hour. Wood objected but was overruled.

"Didn't Mr. Starr tell you at the meeting that the competition to be conducted by Warners at the Shubert and Orpheum would prevent successful operation by the lessees of the three other houses?" Hardy asked Levinson.

"In substance Starr said the three theatres would not be successfully operated without sufficient films and that Warners had Paramount, RKO and Warners for its two houses," the Chicago counselor testified.

After the Government attorney finished with Levinson, Gentry requested that the subject matter developed should not have any bearing on Paramount. He objected and was followed by Lashly and Wood but all three were overruled.

Kreissman, currently an insurance broker, also was queried about a meeting on June 6, 1934, in which Starr acted as spokesman for Warners. Kreissman stated Starr complained of the Snyder deal when he considered the Warner proposition better. The ex-mayor said Starr advised him that, "The lessees of the three houses would find themselves without sufficient product."

"I told Starr for his benefit and in the hearing of all at the meeting that I was tired of listening to such threats and assertions and I was for the consummation of the deal with Snyder." Asked to describe Starr's manner, Kreissman said, "He was rather defiant and assertive of his company's ability to interfere with the profitable operation of those theatres." Reed entered an objection and was sustained.

Before finishing with him Hardy asked Kreissman, "You were mayor of St. Louis, weren't you?"

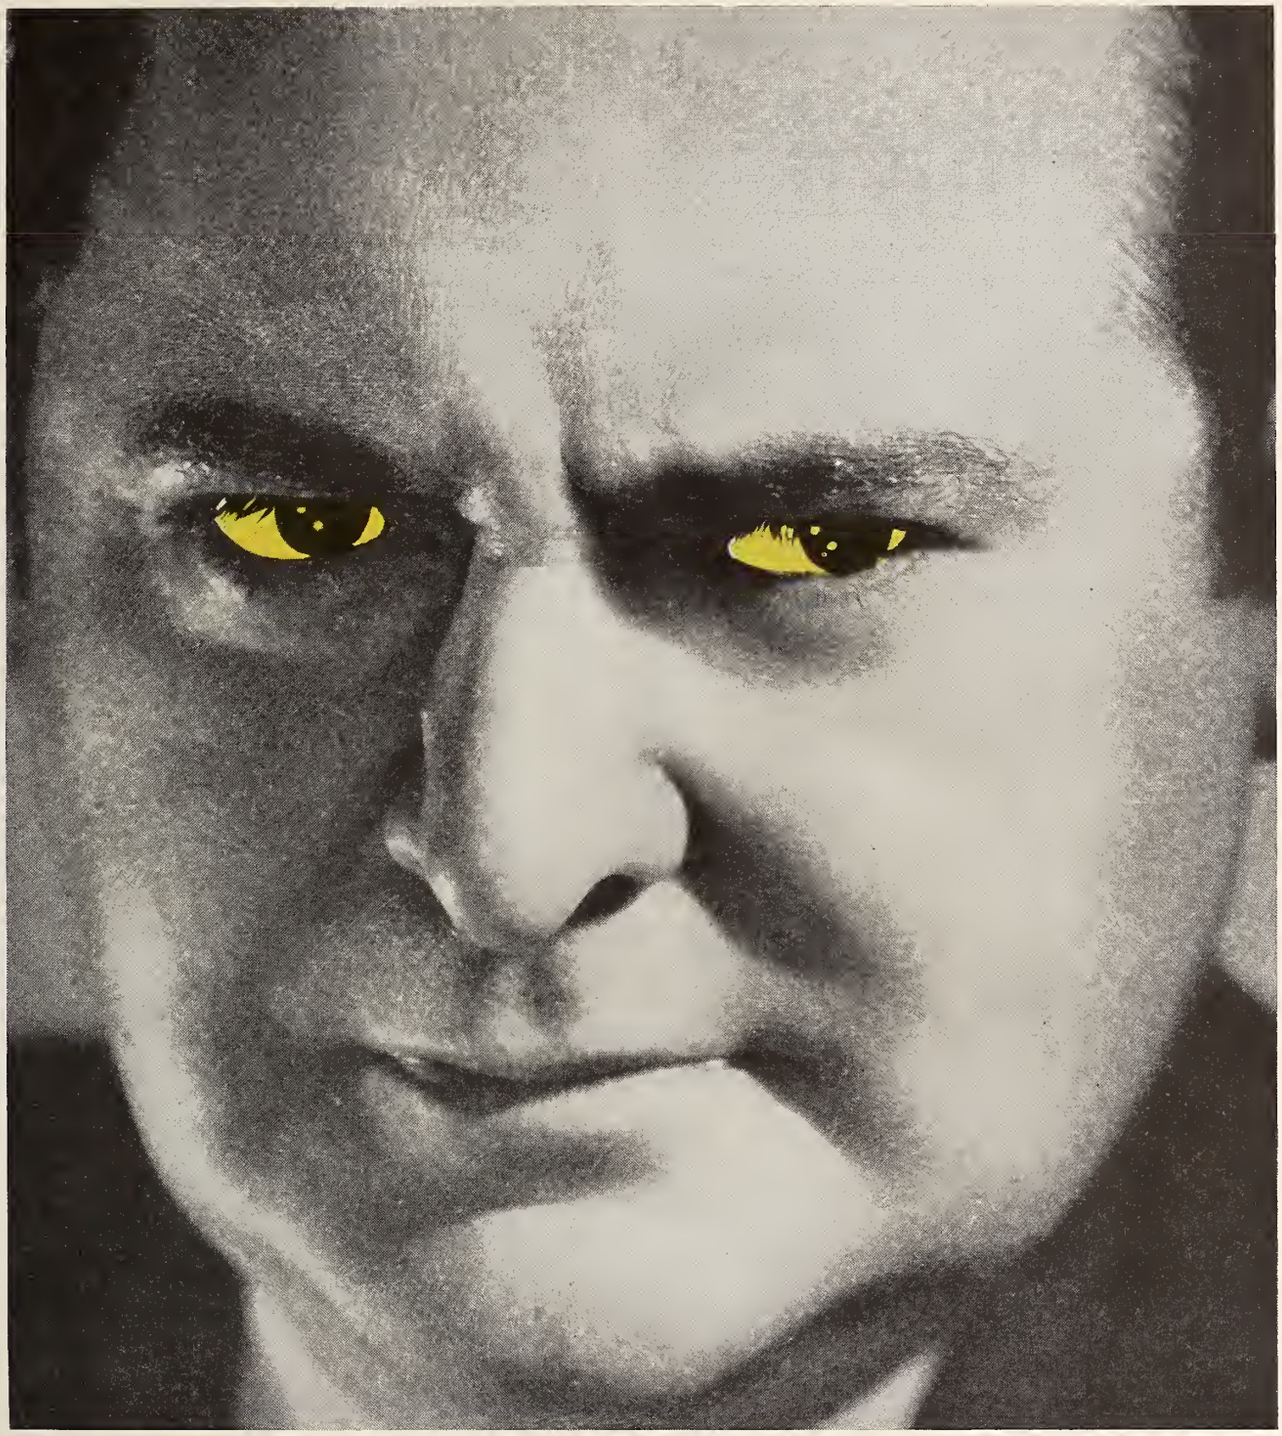
"Yes, but it was so long ago I had forgotten about it."

Kreissman Cross Examined

Wood then took up his cross examination of the former mayor and after asking him his recollection of the Warner proposal at the June 6 session presented Kreissman with the original document and showed him where he erred in certain instances.

Just as Wood was about to finish with his witness Hardy interjected, waving his hand at the Warner counsel, "Give the witness a chance to finish." It was shortly before this command that Hardy scolded Wood and the latter brought the matter to the court's attention.

With five witnesses of his revised list of 40 already scratched off Hardy spent the greater part of tonight rearranging his program to call tomorrow Spyros Skouras, Jules Levy and other out-of-towners. After the criminal trial is over all witnesses will return for the equity case which goes on immediately following the indictment sessions.



About a half-dozen or more witnesses are expected to testify tomorrow.

Paramount Group Excused

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—The first group of out-of-towners to be excused by the Government until needed in the anti-trust trial is George J. Schaefer, Neil F. Agnew and Austin C. Keough. The latter two are witnesses and the former a defendant.

Pressure of business took the trio east last Thursday with intentions of returning here for resumption of the trial Monday. However, when Louis Phillips, Paramount home office attorney, reported yesterday's developments to Schaefer via long distance telephone, he also notified the group they might remain in New York indefinitely, but subject to a 24 hour call. The only Paramount home office representatives now on the scene are Phillips and Irving Cohen, the latter also of the legal department.

Local exchange managers have tried to be placed on an indefinite-absence-until-needed basis, but have been refused. They are spending mornings and afternoons in court and so are working to all hours of the night in an effort to clear their mail and approve contracts requiring their sanction.

Denies "Deal" With A.T.&T. On Television

committee was designed to show, he said, that Otterson's previous connection with Erpi, "a subsidiary of a subsidiary of A. T. & T.," disqualified him from holding the Paramount presidency, because of Erpi's big stake in the company through its sound equipment sales and of A. T. & T.'s stake because of its growing interest in television.

Otterson denied during the course of a long examination that he had sought the position. It came to him, he said, through the invitation of a committee made up of H. A. Fortington, Floyd B. Odlum and John D. Hertz.

Fortington had previously testified to the same effect.

Salary $3,000 Weekly

His salary, he testified, was $3,000 per week under a five-year contract. He admitted that if the profits of the company increase the stockholders may inaugurate a profit-sharing system for officers under which his salary will be cut to $2,000 per week and a share of the profits substituted for the cut.

Congressman Sabath asked sharply whether he thought this desirable in view of the fact that "millions had been spent in bonuses during prosperous times, with the result that the company had been unable to stand one bad year." Otterson did not answer.

In reply to a direct question as to whether his former connection with Erpi would tend to make him sympathetic to that company's interests, Otterson replied:

"Whether I would lean in favor of Erpi or whether I would lean over backwards to avoid favoring Erpi depends entirely upon your judgment of my character."

Congressman Sabath shifted the line of questioning by saying that he was interested in what had happened to the thousands of bondholders in theatre properties as a result of the cutting of rentals and disavowing of leases during the bankruptcy.

May Question Hertz

Otterson said that during his short tenure of the company's presidency he had devoted practically all his time to production matters. Asked about S. A. Lynch, he said that he was an "advisor, consultant and associate" on theatre matters. He admitted that Lynch had conducted most of the theatre negotiations during the reorganization. Sabath indicated Lynch would be called.

Kraushaar interpolated that the committee also would want to question Hertz. He told the committee Hertz was in Chicago at the moment and suggested the inquiry be kept in session until his testimony has been heard.

Fortington was the first witness of the morning. He detailed his connection with various British insurance company creditors of Paramount and the steps leading up to the association of his group with Floyd B. Odlum's Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. in pushing the reorganization, selecting Otterson as president and securing four representatives on the board.

Adolph Zukor was not continued as president, he testified, because the group "did not feel that the man who had been head of the company when it got into all its troubles should be its head when it was getting out."

Zukor, it was testified further, gets $80,000 a year, but has no contract with the company, "because he did not want a contract."

Fortington denied that British influences were attempting to get control of Paramount.

"The question of control was not brought up," he asserted. "It was a creditors' reorganization. It's possible that bankers will get out of the company when they have taken their money out."

Later Fortington said that his association with Odlum came about by accident at lunch. Hertz and Lehman Bros. approached him later, he declared.

Doubt About Claim

"Did you take up with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. or Sir William Wiseman any problems in connection with the company?" asked Congressman Sabath.

"We ran our affairs independently," he replied. "My association with Kuhn, Loeb has never been very close."

Questions were asked about the Odlum-Atlas interest in the RKO organization and its possible connection with Paramount, but Fortington replied that he knew nothing about this, as his only connection with Atlas was as one of the Paramount creditors.

At one time, Fortington admitted, in reply to a line of questions designed to show that Erpi was moved to take control of Paramount because of its heavy claim, that there "had been some doubt about the claim because of the Tri-Ergon patent litigation."

At the close of the morning session Sabath informed Otterson that the committee had had some difficulty in getting information about theatre leases. Otterson expressed surprise. Austin C. Keough leaned toward the committee counsel, and Kraushaar informed the committee that "the information would be forthcoming."

Theatre a "Monument"

Paramount built a $16,000,000 "monument" in Brooklyn that isn't worth $1,000,000 at present, in the opinion of William M. Greve, former president of N. Y. Investors, Inc., and at present one of three trustees in charge of the reorganization of Allied Owners, Inc.

Allied Owners, one of the subsidiaries of N. Y. Investors, floated $9,500,000 in bonds and $2,500,000 in debentures for the erection of this theatre and also floated securities for several other houses erected during the boom period.

Greve's testimony was presented during the afternoon session of the Sabath committee's probe.

Congressman Sabath wanted to know why such large sums had been floated.

"Paramount made a deal with Thompson-Starrett for building the house and put up 15 per cent of the cost. We went into it to make money," Greve replied, and "stood to make $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 over a period of years."

In response to further questions Greve said at the time Paramount built the house it thought it would have enough "big shows" to fill it, and actually made money at the start. "At present it hasn't the shows," Greve continued, "and the cost of maintenance of all that marble and decorations is heavy."

The house was sold recently to Si Fabian for $1,250,000.

Meyer Kraushaar tried to bring out that Greve was in an anomalous position as trustee for Allied Owners, which might have a claim against N. Y. Investors, but Greve insisted U. S. District Judge Inch in Brooklyn had ruled on the propriety of the position. He asserted that in the reorganization the first mortgage bondholders of Allied would get 84 per cent, and that the total loss to bondholders eventually would not be more than five per cent. Trustees have received no expenses or fees during the reorganization, he insisted.

Greve declared that N. Y. Investors, which also had as one of its subsidiaries Prudence Co., which handled the financing of the Paramount building and theatre, had guaranteed mortgages up to $170,000,000. He could not estimate the proportion in default.

Further probing of this and other phases of the company's ramifications will be continued by the committee today.

May Take the Stand In Their Own Cause

called by the prosecuting attorney to testify against himself. However, if defense counsel decides to place the indicted parties on the stand as their own witnesses, the Government then has the right to cross examine, but only on questions brought out in direct examination.

That defense attorneys are considering putting the five indicted film executives on the stand was indicated today. Unless the testimony of the various Government witnesses indicates a conspiracy on the part of Warner, Starr, Sears, Depinet and Schaefer these men will not testify.

So far the Government has been trying to link up conferences in New York between Harry C. Arthur and Schaefer, Depinet, Sears and Starr as tending to bring about concerted action by RKO, Paramount and Warners in refusing to do business with F. & M. here.

Warner's name has not yet been connected with the various sessions held and on Monday while Thomas M. Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, told of his meetings and conversations with a group of Warnerites, no mention of his being present had been made. Hence, Frederick H. Wood, one of the Warner counsel, joined attorneys for RKO and Paramount, in objecting to inferences that their clients may have been a party to the conversations or developments at the meetings.

Patent Quiz Opened Here By Sirovich

Erpi. Damages sought, $1,500,000.

In the recent court actions brought by General Talking Pictures Corp. and Duovac Radio Corp., which asked for damages totaling $40,000,000 from the same defendants, Berger appeared as a witness against Erpi.

Congressman William I. Sirovich, New York, chairman of the patents investigating committee, opened the hearing yesterday with the statement that "the committee has no axes to grind; no interests to serve. We are here to find facts and to survey the patent pooling and cross-licensing field for the first time."

Has $15,000 Appropriation

Apprised of Berger's and Vatner's association with the lawsuits pending in the Federal court against the companies whose officials have been subpoenaed by the committee and who will be subject to free interrogation by Berger, as counsel for the committee, Sirovich said: "The committee will avail itself of anyone who can furnish us with information. The existence of these lawsuits is of no concern to the committee. We are just trying to find out facts. These men you refer to will get us facts. The big interests won't help us."

The committee of seven members of Congress is functioning on an appropriation of $15,000. In a statement issued yesterday the committee said that its "limited appropriation made it impossible to do more than conduct a preliminary survey of the effects patent pools and cross-licensing agreements have to H. R. 4523," the Sirovich bill which would require the filing of information on all cross-licensing agreements and patent pools with the Patent Office. It would also empower the Federal Trade Commission to bring action against any such agreements believed to be inimical to the public good.

Swope Testifies

The committee's first study, the statement said, would embrace "the most important single patent pool in existence, that to which A. T. & T., R. C. A., Westinghouse and General Electric are parties."

Dr. Jewett, as the first witness, described the functioning of the Bell Laboratories and the relation of that unit to the A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi.

Gerard Swope, president of General Electric, the second and last witness of the day, said that he would have "not the slightest objection" to enactment of the Sirovich bill.

Questioned about the probability of commercial television, Swope indicated that he believed it to be remote and said that G. E. owned no television patents. He also stated that he did not fear a monopoly in commercial television.

Witnesses scheduled to be heard by the committee today include George Quigley of Vitaphone; Edgar S. Bloom, president of Erpi and Western Electric; M. A. Schlesinger, president of General Talking Pictures, and David Hochreich.

Looking 'Em Over

"Confidential"

(Mascot)

An effective effort in the cycle of "G" Man films, "Confidential" contains all that makes for good melodramatic fare. Building up to an exciting climax from a well-composed story it should go well with average audiences.

"G" Man Donald Cook is assigned to track down the chief of a petty racketeering syndicate. In his investigations his assistant is killed. Cook feels that he was responsible for the murder and ponders resigning. Convinced by his chief as to the murderer, he sets out anew, insinuating himself with the aid of talkative Warren Hymer into the mob. A romance with Evalyn Knapp, who bookkeeps for the "numbers" part of the outfit develops. Miss Knapp is deceived by his posing, as is Hymer. As the Government net closes in a college chum of Cook's is killed by J. Carroll Naish, who pins the murder on Cook before the murdered boy's father, Herbert Rawlinson, who is the master mind behind the racketeering. The intrusion of G Men saves the day for Cook and he settles with Naish in an exciting bit of fisticuffs.

Naish grimaces in expert supporting role style. Other bit players include Theodore Von Eltz and Morgan Wallace, who acquit themselves well. Edward L. Cahn's direction is good. The screen play by Wellyn Totman and Olive Cooper is expertly adapted from the story by John Rathmell and Scott Darling.

Production Code Seal No. 1,472. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Hardy Attack Hits Starr's Part in Deal

U. S. Airs Sessions With Warner Executive

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Oct. 16.—Concentrating its attack on the part Herman Starr, president of First National and Warner executive, played in the local theatre situation, the Government today put on the stand four witnesses who attended meetings at which Starr was said to have made plain Warners' position in the matter of the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central, and what the company would do in the event Allen L. Snyder and F. & M. finally got the theatres.

The four Government witnesses who described conversations by Starr were Jack Partington, president of F. & M.; Jacob Chassnoff, a member of the local legal firm of Taylor, Chassnoff & Wilson; Frederick H. Strauss of Chicago, a member of the bondholders' committee for the three houses, and Joseph H. Grand of Greensfelder & Grand, local attorneys.

In addition to these witnesses, Rus-

Lack of Film Shuts Mexico City House

First result of a stoppage of distributions of films to Mexico which swung into effect with the end of September is the shutdown of the Olympia in Mexico City, one of the two leading first runs in the city. With no new American product being sold, Mexican theatres are depending on American films still in circulation, German and French product and whatever Mexican pictures may be available.

Foreign sales managers resident in New York are of the opinion the tax situation which resulted in the stoppage may be adjusted shortly with benefit in the settlement for all interests concerned.

Flint Men to Talk Dual Ban Extension

Flint, Mich., Oct. 16.—Local exhibitors will meet soon to decide whether they will continue their present agreement to use but one double bill a week.

James M. Minter, owner of the Ritz and Family, said he would ask exhibitors to discuss the matter. It seems certain, however, that the agreement will not be renewed.

Federal Officials Receive 15 Complaints in St. Louis

St. Louis, Oct. 16.—Fifteen new complaints for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act have been received in six days from independent exhibitors by Department of Justice officials here prosecuting the indictments handed down Jan. 11 against Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell L. Sears, Ned E. Depinet and George J. Schaefer, Paramount, Warners and RKO and their subsidiaries. Four protests were made last week alone to Russell Hardy, Government attorney trying the case, in the courtroom. Three exhibitors orally complained of alleged illegal practices and a fourth made his protest in writing, directing the letter to Hardy at the Federal court here.

In addition to the three complainants appearing last week, the Department of Justice official has had a similar number approach him during court recesses to make formal protests. Although Hardy has stated in court that the Justice Department has received well over 100 exhibitor complaints, the first of the grievances to reach here directly was on Oct. 4, two days after the newspapers began to cover the developments at the trial. A brace of complaints arrived on that day.

Additionally, Don Thornburg, who operated two Marshalltown, Ia., theatres which he said he was forced to lease to Mort Singer because product was unavailable, attended the first three days of the sessions. George Wright, a Dallas attorney representing Paramount in that territory, has also been a spectator during the last three days. Ruben Frels, Texas independent, has filed suit against Jefferson Amusement Co., Paramount affiliate, which is being investigated by the Department of Justice. William Youngclaus, Nebraska exhibitor, who has a conspiracy suit pending in the courts, is expected here this week. He has told distribution officials of his plan to return.

Alabama Sales Tax Move Renews Fight

Birmingham, Oct. 16.—A retail sales tax which has been voted down in Alabama more times than can be counted on one hand has bobbed up again, this time sugar coated with a $2,000 homestead exemption. Governor Bibb Graves, who went into office on an anti-sales tax platform, has announced that he will call a special session of the legislature to consider a three per cent sales tax "for the schools" coupled with the homestead exemption.

Should the legislature enact such a dual measure, it will have to be submitted to vote of the people. Retail interests represented by the Alabama Independent Merchants' Ass'n., have called a statewide meeting for this week to launch a fight against the tax no matter what other inducements are offered. Theatre interests are lined up solidly behind them.

Agitate for Special Session in Missouri

Kansas City, Oct. 16.—Agitation for a special session of the Missouri legislature to provide additional old age pension funds has been started by the St. Joseph unit of the National Old Age Pension Society.

A special session was talked some time ago in connection with the one per cent sales tax. A suit will be heard this month at Jefferson City on the issue, and some observers regard a special session as likely if the tax is pronounced unconstitutional.

Report New B. & K. Move on Clearance

Chicago, Oct. 16.—B. & K. today were understood to have commenced pulling dates on product of distributors who have refused to give them the extra clearance that circuit is asking. Film Row is literally holding its breath awaiting the outcome of conferences to be held in New York by Barney Balaban and Walter Immerman on the clearance situation.

Here on Clearance

Barney Balaban and Walter Immerman of B. & K. are here seeking to line up distributors on seven days' extra clearance demanded. Word from Chicago last night had it exchanges there had set and approved November releases on the old clearance plan, thereby indicating B. & K. had lost their battle. Balaban and Immerman could not be reached for a statement.

Philadelphia Jury Ends Lottery Cases

Philadelphia, Oct. 16. — The Grand Jury today dismissed lottery cases against four exhibitors, Allen Lewis, Emanuel Lewis, John Ehrlich and Iz Schwartz, who have been using Bank Night and Lucky.

The action lends strength to the belief that the law will not interfere with prize giveaways which have been sweeping the territory.

Patent Probe In a Stew on Lawyer Status

Committee Confers, and Berger Admits All

The investigation of patent pools and cross-licensing agreements by the Sirovich Congressional Committee, in progress at the Fifth Ave. Hotel, yesterday became almost a secondary concern of the committee in the face of its earnest efforts to explain why David G. Berger, counsel for six plaintiffs in large damage suits against A. T. & T. and subsidiaries, is also counsel for the committee investigating the affairs of those companies.

This dual position of Berger, disclosed in Motion Picture Daily yesterday, caused the committee to convene in executive session at the noon recess of yesterday's hearing and again following adjournment for the day. Newspaper reporters were promised statements by the committee in advance of both sessions and both times were put off without statements being forthcoming.

Confronted by reporters in his hotel room, Berger, however, capitulated and presented his side of the unusual situation after first insisting that he had been instructed by the committee to make no statement and

Lichtman Back, But Is Silent on Plans

Al Lichtman returned from Hollywood yesterday. He refused to discuss his future plans which he indicated had not yet taken definite form. "I'd like to get a couple of fellows and make a trip around the world and forget the picture business for a time," he said last night. Pending completion of plans, Lichtman is contemplating the use of Arthur W. Stebbens' office as temporary headquarters.

Expect Walker Here By End of October

It is understood he was approached by Harry Brandt, president of the I.T.O., via transatlantic telephone, to head the independent theatre organization here, but rejected the proposition.

Rosenblatt Suggests Industry Peace Road

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 16.—Adoption of A. F. of L. standards as the prevailing wage and hour rate in all localities would lead the way to industrial peace, declared Sol A. Rosenblatt here today before the convention of the A. F. of L.

Rosenblatt, who is now impartial chairman of the coat and suit industry of New York, said this would remove the tendency of employers to attempt "to divide and conquer unions." There would be no profit in attempting to divide employes, he said.

Rosenblatt predicted that Congress would enact laws halting interstate transportation of goods not produced under prevailing wage and hour standards.

Quip of the Day

DEAR M. P. DAILY:

I never ran a Bank NITE or even a BUNK night. But because my competitor plays all kinds of nights, I get the pains without the pleasure, if any.

From my rival theatre, mind you, a woman won an auto. So she calls me up, mind you, to service it.

So with all my courtesy, because the customer is always right, I told her to go to the garage where she won it.

Another case: A man won a refrigerator. He said it got hot, instead of cold. So Admiral Byrd's telephone I gave him, only opposite.

A sweet lady told me her china she won was chipped. She's now writing to Pottstown, Pennsylvania, for repairs.

Even though you don't run an "advice to heartsick" column, tell me how can I straighten out my customers, who mix up my theatre with an open-air market?

Shall I change my front? Get a new cashier?—or give triple bills?

MOX SHOBBUS.

P. S. I would like an answer from you, or another substantial person—not Ali Gaga.

sell Hardy recalled to the stand this morning Thomas N. Dysart to correct some portions of his testimony. Although David Levinson was to have left for Chicago last night, Hardy held him over so that he could put the lawyer on the stand again this morning. However, Levinson didn't get a chance to do any talking.

Ex-Senator James A. Reed and Frederick H. Wood, Warner legal representatives, objected to Levinson making additional remarks for the record and Judge George H. Moore sustained them.

Jules Levy on Stand

Jules Levy, vice-president and general sales manager of RKO Radio, was the fifth and last to testify today, making a total of 10 Government witnesses to take the stand in the 12 days of the trial. The RKO executive was on the stand about a half-hour when court adjourned for the day. The Government declared it was through with the direct examination.

After going through the perfunctory questions on his title and the sales setup of his organization, Levy stated RKO released 44 features in 1934-35, one less than this figure in 1933-34 and 52 in 1932-33. Hardy sought to bring out that furnishing films was interstate commerce.

Milton B. Arthur, brother of Harry, has been excused subject to call. He left for the coast yesterday by plane to confer with Harry Vinnicoff, his partner in the Strand, Long Beach, on a dissolution of the partnership. Irving Lesser has also been excused.

Ben B. Reingold, Fox exchange manager, who was the only one of the local distributor heads not to be subpoened, was finally served by the Government yesterday and spent his first day in court today. Ralph C. Libeau, Paramount district manager at Kansas City, also dropped in today. He plans to leave for home tomorrow. So does David Idzal of the Fox, Detroit. Frank Newman, Sr., who came on from Seattle for conferences with Spyros Skouras and instead spent two days in court, left for New York today and will meet Skouras there later in the week. Gradwell L. Sears' mother again put in an appearance.

Strauss Tells of Meeting

Continuing his line of procedure adopted yesterday for the first time, Judge Moore refused to sustain objections by William R. Gentry, for Paramount, and Jacob M. Lashly, for RKO, to inferences which may be drawn by the jury that their clients may have participated at the meetings which were described by Partington, Levinson, Chassnoff and Grand. Frederick H. Wood, representing Warners, several times joined the others but to no avail. Gentry and Lashly rose frequently to object while the four witnesses were giving testimony and Judge Moore let them note their reasons on the record after handing down his ruling.

Strauss related briefly the meeting which he attended at the Warner home office with M. A. Rosenthal, also of Chicago, at which they spoke to Harry M. Warner and Starr. Strauss said he asked the two men if they were interested in regaining control of the St. Louis Amusement Co. in exchange for a deal which would give Snyder and his associates Warner product for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

Strauss testified that Starr said Warners were perfectly satisfied with the Orpheum and Shubert and that the theatres were making money in this city for the first time. Gentry, Wood and Lashly passed up the cross examination and the Chicagoan was dismissed.

Partington Grilled

Partington was grilled at some length by Hardy, Gentry and Wood on the meeting he attended with Arthur in Starr's office and later in George J. Schaefer's headquarters. The F. & M. president virtually went over the same ground covered by Arthur on the first day the latter was put on the stand. There was some question of fixing the date of the Schaefer session. Partington said it was within two weeks of the March 6, 1934, conferences with the Warnerites and on cross examination Gentry introduced MOTION PICTURE DAILY and Film Daily of Feb. 15, 1934, in which items were printed having Schaefer leaving that day for a two-week vacation at Miami.

The Paramount attorney then read from MOTION PICTURE DAILY of March 12, 1934, another story which stated Schaefer and Sam Dembow were expected back from Miami that day. Partington said that he had talked to Arthur after the latter had testified he had gone to see Schaefer right after the Warner confab to straighten him out on the date, and even telephoned New York at the time to check the trade papers.

Partington was unusually calm as the defense attorneys fired the many questions at him and several times pointed out his desire to answer without coloring the issue or withholding facts. Particularly was this so when Wood queried him on his interest in allegedly suggesting to Arthur to see the Warner men to bring about harmony in the local situation.

Wood also brought up Harry Koplar's name and asked, "Have you seen Koplar in the court room since the trial started?"

"No," Partington replied.

"Has Mr. Koplar brought Arthur down to court from the Congress every morning in his car?"

"I believe he has."

"When did you see Koplar last?"

"This morning at 10."

Partington confessed his lack of knowledge of the film end of F. & M., declaring his business essentially is producing stage shows. He said he had faith in Arthur and whatever the latter did on product deals was all right with him.

Chassnoff was next. He recounted what took place to the best of his recollection at a meeting at which Starr was present on April 6, 1934, in Grand's office here. He went over the same ground covered by previous witnesses as to what the Warner executive said the company's position was and what it intended to do in the event the three theatres were turned over by the bondholders to Snyder and his associates.

Wood Queries Chassnoff

During cross examination, Wood tried to get the witness to test his memory in connection with a session before Federal Judge Davis here. Wood bluntly told Chassnoff he didn't want to remember. Noticing that Hardy did not rise to object the lawyer himself told the judge that as a member of the bar he resented Wood's remarks. Hardy then rose and entered an official objection which was sustained.

In an effort to link Chassnoff with Arthur and his associates, Wood asked him if he didn't represent F. & M. and other Arthur interests in court last week when arguments were presented on motion to quash Warner subpoenas. The witness said he only acted as local counsel. He stated Ernest L. Wilkinson could not sign the applications, because he was a Washington attorney and not registered in St. Louis. Wood then asked him if he didn't organize Eden Theatre Co. for F. & M. Hardy objected to this and although sustained, Chassnoff said he would explain the matter so that there would be no misunderstanding, which the court permitted. Chassnoff asserted he formed the company but had nothing to do with it after that.

Wood then brought up Chassnoff's association with Metro Realty Co., which owns the St. Louis Theatre, under lease to F. & M. Again Hardy was sustained in his objection, but the witness volunteered to clarify the issue, declaring that although he was a member of the bondholders' committee of the three threatres involved he did not represent "adverse interests."

Grand Testifies

Grand succeeded Chassnoff and was on the stand about a half-hour, telling of conversations at meetings he attended and at which Starr and Samuel B. Jeffries, local Warner attorney, explained that the bondholders weren't giving their company fair consideration. Starr and Jeffries at this session were said to have emphasized the growing importance of Warners, which had gone through the depression and had "better managerial ability" than F. & M. Grand said he tried to get Starr to turn in the bonds bought by Warners so that they could be canceled in the interests of the bondholders but was unsuccessful. Grand testified he then asked Starr if he wouldn't turn in the bonds at the price paid, plus a reasonable rate of interest and again he couldn't get anywhere. Reed and Gentry did not cross examine Grand, but Lashly asked him a few questions, particularly about Dysart's reaction to the Warner plan, and about which the chairman of the bondholders' committee is said to have been so elated he held a celebration when he thought he had made a deal.

Leisure will cross examine Levy when the latter resumes the stand tomorrow. It is doubtful whether Paramount or Warner attorneys will join Leisure, but it is certain Hardy will take up redirect examination as soon as Leisure finishes.

It was indicated today that Paramount and Warner counsel also will file demurrers upon the completion of the Government case. This is a common procedure, it is pointed out, in important criminal cases and it is up to the judge either to dismiss the indictments at that time or have the defense start to present its case.

On the Lighter Side

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16.—Today was gag day. Everyone was in good spirits and it was on the slightest of provocations that one of the boys would slip over a wisecrack.

Some of them heard around the court today have been recorded. Here they go:

"With the attendance as big as this in the court room, do you think it warrants a holdover?"

LOUIS K. SIDNEY of Loew's got his start in this town about 15 years ago when he operated the West End Lyric and put on the stage shows at the Kings.

Those were the days when WILLIAM FOX had the house and there were no first run downtown houses such as this city has today.

CLAYTON LYNCH, local M-G-M manager who took himself a bride about a month ago, yesterday decided to square himself with the local boys and blew them to lunch at the Mayfair Hotel. Among them: JOE GARRISON, LOU ELLMAN, DINTY MOORE, BOB HICKS, HAROLD (Chick) EVENS, HAL WALSH and TOMMY TOBIN.

HAROLD ("Chick") EVENS, pilot of Loew's State, says "The Broadway Melody of 1936" is heading for the biggest second week since "Tugboat Annie." In addition to the musical now current there happens to be a screen record of the Louis-Baer encounter at the Yankee Stadium.

NED E. DEPINET, JULES LEVY and WILLIAM MALLARD, all RKO-ites, did a lot of homework on the plane which carried them back from a three-day holiday in New York. DEPINET brought back a pip of a cold.

HARRY C. ARTHUR'S wife came out over the week-end and plans to stay a while. TOM ARTHUR of the TOM, DICK and HARRY trio, goes to school here.

Milton Arthur May Drop Partnership

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—Milton B. Arthur, brother of Harry C. Arthur and a witness in the St. Louis indictment trial, has arrived here by plane, to confer with Harry Vinnicoff on the Strand, Long Beach, situation.

Vinnicoff is understood anxious to dissolve the partnership arrangement made last summer with Arthur, alleging he cannot buy Paramount product this year for the house because of his affiliation with Arthur. Vinnicoff is reported to have said he has been able to buy the distributors' output heretofore, but because of the Arthur tieup, Paramount will not sell him. However, the distributor, it is said, is willing to make a deal for the Strand provided Arthur is not connected with the theatre. A settlement of his interest is expected by Arthur.

asserting that he neither "affirmed nor denied" that he was counsel in six actions seeking an aggregate of $27,000,000 damages from the electric companies whose chief officers must submit to his interrogation at the committee's hearings.

When it was pointed out by reporters that his attitude was aggravating and attaching sinister implications to an unusual but probably explainable situation, Berger first became argumentative, then excited and, finally, apologetic. In the latter mood he admitted his association with the damage actions, trials of which are pending in the Federal district court here, and then asserted that his association with these cases was not only known to the investigating committee's chairman, Congressman William I. Sirovich of New York, but that it was the reason why he was solicited by the committee for its counsel.

Berger Gets $1 a Year

Berger said that he was serving for $1 a year as counsel for the investigating committee. He said that he had been urged for eight days to accept the post before finally agreeing, and that he was wanted because he was the counsel prosecuting the six actions against the electrics. Involved in the untried legal actions are the patent pools and cross-licensing agreements which are the basis for the committee's probings.

Also involved in the suits in which Berger is counsel is Ralph Vatner, attorney of record in the same actions. Vatner makes his office with Robert Robins, identified as a special investigator for the committee, also at a salary of $1 a year. Robins is the originator of the American Society for the Protection of the M. P. Theatre, the principal activity of which has been the issuance of vituperative statements directed at "the big electrics." No explanation of Robins' position on the committee in the face of his other associations was forthcoming yesterday from himself or the committee.

Edgar Bloom Testifies

Berger took a minor part in the interrogation of witnesses at the opening session of the investigating committee's hearings on Tuesday, but yesterday with the appearance on the stand of Edgar S. Bloom, president of Western Electric and Erpi, both of which are defendants in the six actions in which Berger is counsel, he assumed a noticeably more active part in the questioning. This was also true with the appearance on the stand of George E. Quigley, vice-president of Vitaphone.

Bloom was questioned on the origin of Western Electric's entry into the film sound equipment field and its contractual relations with Vitaphone. Despite the fact that he pointed out to the committee that he was not a party to the negotiations or the drawing of those documents and, therefore, not a qualified witness, the interrogation of Bloom was continued on that subject. Later the questioning veered off to the subject of subscriber rates for telephones and remained there for an hour and a half while Congressmen Charles Kramer, Sirovich, Matthew Dunn and Thomas O'Malley endeavored to learn from the witness, who is not an employe of the telephone company, why they were required to pay surcharges for hand set telephones in their respective homes.

When the hearing ultimately returned to the subject of the investigation Bloom said that he saw no objections, other than the expense involved, to enactment of the Sirovich bill requiring the filing of information on patent pools and cross-licensing agreements with the Patent Office.

The afternoon hearing with Quigley on the stand also had its absurd aspects. Testifying of the Western Electric contract of 1926 with Warner Bros.' Vitaphone Corp. for the development and exploitation of sound equipment, Quigley said that he regarded the contract which he had drawn as an attorney for Western Electric at the time, as "unfair" to Warners.

Considers Himself "Authority"

"Then how fair is your testimony here today?" Congressman Randolph Perkins interrupted to inquire.

Further testimony concerning the contract was comprised largely of speeches by Berger and Quigley, which eventually impelled Congressman Perkins to interrupt again to inquire, "What are we doing? Trying a case between Warners and A. T. & T? It sounds like a lawsuit to me."

At another point, in discussing an Erpi contract clause which Quigley said prohibited a film distributor from licensing a theatre unless it was equipped with sound of a quality as good as that made by Western Electric, Perkins inquired whether that wasn't done to protect the public.

"That would be a conclusion," Quigley replied.

"All your testimony has been conclusions so far," Perkins said.

Again, Berger began a lengthy dissertation and was interrupted by Perkins with the inquiry, "Who's the witness here? If you have any speeches to make, make them in private after the sessions. Your personal views shouldn't be in this record."

Berger protested that he had made a study of the subject for four years and considered himself to be the "outstanding authority in the country" on matters pertaining to the electrics' patents and contracts.

"Then we ought to put counsel on the stand under oath," Perkins remarked.

May Excuse William Fox

William Fox, asked to testify at the hearing, was reported seriously ill at Atlantic City. Berger said that U. S. Commissioner Curran had Fox in custody there awaiting instructions from the committee. Indications are that because of Fox's physical condition he will be excused from attending the hearing here, but his testimony may be taken by deposition.

Will H. Hays has also been subpoenaed for the hearing. Witnesses today will probably include C. C. Colby, president of Samson Electric Co., Canton, Mass.; David Hochreich, former president of the now defunct Vocafilm Corp.; M. A. Schlessinger, president of General Talking Pictures, and Alfred Weiss, president of Biophone Co., one of the companies with a suit in which Berger is counsel.

Polish Commissions To Pass Upon Films

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The Polish Minister of the Interior is authorized to appoint a Film Commission and a Supreme Film Commission under the terms of a decree published in the Journal of Laws on Sept. 12, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce from an agent in Poland. The commissions would study films and advertising material.

When films are intended for school children or students, the Ministry of Public Education may delegate a representative to participate in the sittings of the commissions. The Ministry of War may delegate a representative to study films of a military nature or touching military life.

The duties of these commissions will be to decide whether or not a film or part of it may be shown in Poland or in certain parts of Poland, and whether the advertising material is appropriate.

Father Kelly Pays Tribute to "Dream"

In a statement just issued Rev. John Kelly, chaplain of the Catholic Writers' Guild and representative of Cardinal Hayes in film matters, describes "A Midsummer Night's Dream" as "the reaction of producers to the movement seeking higher standards for the screen."

"This is to me," he says, "the climax to date of the screen's comprehensive movement toward the better and finer forms. It is a happy realization to know that the genius of Shakespeare, combined with the ability of Reinhardt and the cooperation of Warner Brothers, has resulted in giving America and all of civilization such a magnificent production."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Metropolitan"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16.—Lawrence Tibbett, using his voice generously, scores a triumph in this backstage opera story. He sings "Mandalay" and "Glory Road," arias from "The Barber of Seville." "Faust," "Carmen" and "Pagliacci."

The story which presents him serves mostly as a mounting for inserting the musical numbers. Alice Brady, prima donna, starts her own opera company when she refuses a role at the Metropolitan, taking with her Tibbett from the chorus to be her leading man. Showing frequent temperamental spasms, Miss Brady infuriates all the members of the new company, particularly George Marion, Sr., as the conductor, who quits rehearsals periodically to be brought back by Tibbett; Luis Alberni and Virginia Bruce. When Miss Brady quits on the eve of the opening, Tibbett takes charge of the company, obtains funds from Miss Bruce, who is revealed as an heiress, and raises the curtain with "Pagliacci." The picture ends after Tibbett sings the prologue, brings down the house and wins Miss Bruce.

The screen play by George Marion, Jr., and Bess Meredyth, who wrote the original, concentrates on the operatic atmosphere, which seems authentic. Production novelties are introduced with the "Carmen" sequence, in particular, reflecting thoughtful care. The direction by Richard Boleslawski maintains a suitable pace. The supporting cast includes Caesar Romero, Thurston Hall and Etienne Girardot, who appear too briefly.

The picture should be favorably received by Tibbett admirers.

Production Code Seal No. 1,475. Running time, 78 minutes. "G."

"His Night Out"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16.—Edward Everett Horton's engaging and highly individual comedy lifts this routine tale into the money-making class.

Horton plays a downtrodden "yes man" clerk whose idea of a wild time is to take an extra pill for mild, but none the less very audible, dyspepsia. Fellow-worker Irene Hervey berates him for his mousiness and he sets out to prove he has a streak of leopard blood after a fake doctor gives him three months to live. Because of the way Horton tosses around his life savings he is blamed for the theft of bonds from his office. Horton believes Miss Hervey is the thief, stealing to pay for her brother's operation and confesses only to wear the police into nervous collapses during a third degree before he blunders into the bonds that have been stolen by gangsters.

Jack La Rue plays the gangster for a long laugh sequence in trousers fitting perfectly under the arms. An expensive and expert cast includes Robert McWade, Willard Robertson, Oscar Apfel, Lola Lane, Rollo Lloyd, Ward Bond, Dewey Robinson, Theodore Von Eltz and Clara Kimball Young.

Doris Malloy and Harry Clork embroidered the story by Charles Christensen with bright running gags. Irving Starr produced with William Nigh directing for farce laughs. A good bet for contrast to heavy melodrama.

Production Code Seal No. 1,566. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Yale Protests "Salute"

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 16.—A committee representing the National Students' League at Yale called on United Artists and Warners to protest against the showing of "Red Salute" at the Roger Sherman.

Both Arthur Horn, exchange manager, and I. J. Hoffman countered the protests with arguments for "freedom of the screen" as well as freedom of speech. It is expected that the theatre will be picketed, and special police protection has been ordered.

Change Fox Unit Name

WILMINGTON, Oct. 16. — Fox Agency Corp. has changed its name to Fox West Coast Agency Corp. of New York.

Short Subjects

"March of Time"

(Radio)

Two of the world's outstanding news events are dramatized in the seventh release of "March of Time"—Hitler's treatment of German Jews and what is being done about it, and the financial ramifications of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict. The third subject is an effort to put emotional punch into telling about Joseph Furnas' article, "And Sudden Death," in the Readers' Digest. A fourth is a picturization of New England's summer barn theatres.

The Hitler subject is the best of the group. It moves swiftly, has dramatic values, and carries a note of hope for persecuted members of the race by showing what has been done in Palestine toward developing a fine homeland.

The safety campaign material is weak, because it attempts to use moving pictures to tell about the horrible details of automobile accidents, instead of showing them. For those who haven't read the Furnas article this clip doesn't mean much. Some theatre patrons who think they are paying for entertainment may resent what may be construed as an effort to lecture them.

The war material falls shy in its ability to grip because the man in the street is pretty thoroughly convinced that war is profitable to someone, but not to him. He won't learn anything from the number, and it isn't presented in a way to stir his emotions. Running time, 20 mins.

"Our Gang Follies"

(Roach-M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16.—Hal Roach has produced a swell singing, dancing, musical in two reels, using the talent of his famous gang to the utmost for entertainment and laughs. Based on the neighborhood kid show idea, Spanky MacFarland, spieling in song on the outside of a cellar, introduces a few numbers outside, as a come-on, getting each of the kids to part with a nickel to get on the inside. There, six musical acts are put on, interspersed with back stage comedy. Spanky stands out. His talent shines in top-notch style. All the others also play like veterans.

Gus Meins directed with a keen eye for speed and laughs. As an unusual entertainment, it should get unusual box-office responses for a two reeler. Production Code Seal No. 1,490. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"By Request"

(Vitaphone)

Some smart modern music expertly played by Claude Hopkins and his orchestra feature this short. A thin thread of a story has the members of the levees becoming heirs to a box of new instruments. They make the big time and achieve success. Clever tap dancing by Tip, Tap and Toe lends a bit of variety, and it winds up with the playing of "Chinatown" in the Hopkins manner. This effort should go well practically everywhere. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 0493. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Deception" Does $70,000

"The Gay Deception" wound up the week at the Music Hall last night with a take of $70,000.

PETE SMITH MAKES PIG-SKIN KOSHER WITH THE PUBLIC!

Are you getting the most out of the football season? Pete Smith has made a merry and exciting one-reel M-G-M subject that's a high-spot on programs right now. It lets the public in on the newest developments of the game. It's called "FOOTBALL TEAMWORK" and it features 27 headline gridiron stars. Absorbing material that moves like lightning and packed with Pete Smith pep! It's one of the M-G-M Sports Parade.

BY THE WAY, THAT GUY GETS RAVES!

Walter Winchell: "If I were the Roosevelt of the two-reel comedies . . I'd want to know why 90 per cent of the audience is yawning (not yours, Mr. P. Smith . . .)"

Louella O. Parsons (Syndicated Columnist). "Pete Smith, better than anyone I know, puts over these sport reels."

Mollie Merrick (Syndicated Columnist): "Pete Smith has become famous as being one of the most truly humorous of all the group writing and speaking the 'incidental' 'talk' for one-reelers."

Douglas W Churchill (N. Y. Times): "In the few years he has been regaling theatregoers, that voice has become a world personality."

Edwin Schallert (L. A. Times): "Smith wins many a laugh with his comment."

Jack Alicoate (Film Daily): "We've found nothing of abbreviated cinema nature quite so entertaining as the Pete Smith series."

Jimmy Starr (Syndicated Columnist): "Mr. Smith is a very funny man and he gets plenty of guffaws with prattle."

Arthur Ungar (Daily Variety): "Pete Smith's monicker on the marquee means that the theatre manager is guaranteeing what Pete is offering as 100% entertainment."

Billy Wilkerson (Hollywood Reporter): "Smith has a way of dialoguing sport stuff that makes it appeal to everybody, whether interested in sports or not."

Rob Wagner (Satevepost Writer): "Pete Smith explained the short, which, as you know, practically insures the picture."

Ampa Boys See Critics; Also Hear a Couple

But "Dr. Odet" and Frank Buck Rate the Stars

By J. M. JERAULD

Ampa members heard Frank Buck yesterday, and saw and heard some of the critics. Those they saw outnumbered those they heard. Critics don't rate many stars as speakers. Some of them are not even good at keeping engagements.

They rate about as follows:

#—Louella Parsons—Sent regrets.

% —Marguerite Tazelaar — A bow, a smile, a few words and cries of "louder" from the audience.

*—Irene Thirer—Lovely to look at under a spotlight. A charming speaker. She told the boys she had worked among them for a year and a half and had grown to know "what grand fellows they were." Loud applause.

" " —Bland Johaneson—A bow.

 —Bide Dudley — Straight from the shoulder crack about not being able to get a pass to the Astor or the Paramount in spite of the fact that his friendly criticisms over WOR and its hookup reach more people than newspapers. Then he relaxed and told a couple of stories.

%%%—Julius Cohen—Received with boos. Tried to speak and somebody shouted: "Louder and funnier." Started to tell about the time Hearst hired Louella Parsons 15 years ago and he lost his job 10 days later.

"The paper's been getting along all right ever since," boomed a voice from the darkness that shrouded everything

U. S. Ticket Taxes Fall in September

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Federal admission tax collections in September totaled $1,173,507, a decline of approximately $140,000 from the August total of $1,313,552, it was reported today by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

For the first quarter of the fiscal year, however, receipts showed an increase of $521,494, totaling $3,763,973 against $3,242,479 in 1934.

Berger Takes Minor Role in Patents Probe

Reported Pending Suits May Change Setup

Indications are that David G. Berger, counsel for the Sirovich Congressional committee investigating patent pools and cross-licensing agreements, may take an inconspicuous part in the committee's remaining activities as a result of the disclosure of his dual position as counsel in untried court cases seeking an aggregate of $27,000,000 damages from A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi.

This appeared likely yesterday when Berger took no part in the interrogation of witnesses and frequently absented himself from the hearing room. In addition, it was reported, but not confirmed by the committee, that officers of companies having suits pending against A. T. & T. and subsidiaries who have been subpoenaed for the hearings, may be excused from testifying or, if they are put on the stand, will not be interrogated by Berger, who is their counsel in the pending actions.

The Sirovich committee made no comment on the report but Congressman William I. Sirovich, chairman, said that the committee was standing by the statement he had made to MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Tuesday, which was, in effect, that the committee was not interested in the legal cases with which Berger was associated and would accept his services

Charges Leahy With Coercing Ned Depinet

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—Striking the climactic note of the thirteenth day of the criminal trial under way here, ex-Senator James A. Reed, leading Warner attorney, today charged John S. Leahy, local counsel who represented Allen S. Snyder at a conference at the Plaza, New York, on April 7, 1934, with coercing and threatening Ned E. Depinet with prosecution under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act in an effort to get the president of RKO Distributing Corp. to break a film contract with Warners for the Orpheum and Shubert Rialto.

The accusation was made by the 72-year-old Kansas City lawyer as he was about to finish his cross examination of the Government witness. Reed also told Leahy he knew that Depinet as an individual could not be enjoined in a civil proceeding in which he

306 Against Arbitrators For a Period of Ten Years

Local 306 looks with disfavor on the proposed plan to dispose of future problems between circuits and operators through an arbitration board to function for a 10-year period, a spokesman for the union declared yesterday.

"It is unlikely that the union will agree to any method of arbitration for a period beyond two years. Arbitration implies compulsion. Mediation is another matter," it was stated.

The plan, as broached, would bring into being a board of three to whom would go any impasse which might be reached by the circuits and the union in reaching terms and working conditions at the expiration of each two-year period. The circuits and the union would name one member each and the third would be selected mutually by both groups.

Final settlement of the wrangle which has been fulminating for weeks may be reached by the middle of next week. The union has accepted a cut in the hourly booth scale for Loew and RKO theatres throughout Greater New York, the new figure having been fixed at $1.86 as compared with the former rate of $2.12½ per hour.

There is destined to be no change in the current $2.55 per hour rate applicable to Broadway de luxe operations, such as the Music Hall, Paramount, United Artists and Roxy.

Odlum Names Rathvon to Revamp RKO

Heading for Ultimate Presidency

Peter N. Rathvon, vice-president of the Atlas Corp., has been named by Floyd B. Odlum to undertake the task of reorganizing RKO and probably will be elected president of the revamped corporation when his task is completed.

Merlin H. Aylesworth is understood to be slated for the chairmanship of the board under the arrangement, although earlier reports indicated he would become president.

Atlas, of which Floyd B. Odlum is the head, in association with Lehman Brothers, not only purchased half of Radio Corporation of America's stock and debenture interest in RKO for $5,000,000, but bought with it management as well as an option to purchase the remaining 50 per cent of the RCA holdings for another $5,000,000 within the next two years.

Originally on RCA's books at $16,000,000, writeoffs and reductions have cut the figure of the communication's interest in RKO to $14,644,614. This covers 1,259,463½ shares of common stock, or 48.86 per cent of the total outstanding, and $9,786,655 in 10-year debentures, representing 84 per cent of the total outstanding.

Laemmle Report to SEC Shows Holdings

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Reports of stock holdings of officers and directors of corporations to the Securities and Exchange Commission show that Carl Laemmle on Aug. 31 held 7,016 shares of Universal common outright, 58,692 shares through one voting trust, 120,127 shares through another voting trust, 1,265 shares of special cumulative first preferred and 15,703 shares of second preferred.

A report on Trans-Lux Daylight Pictures showed that H. P. Farrington, director, disposed of 400 shares of common and at the end of the month held 9,600 shares.

B. & K. Pulls Four In Clearance Fight

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—B. & K. have pulled bookings on "Top Hat," "Steamboat 'Round the Bend," "Gay Deception," "Diamond Jim" and other new product. Film Row is anxiously awaiting the outcome of conferences in New York which, as the understanding goes here, will settle the clearance situation.

Deny Clearance Parleys

John Balaban and Walter Immerman, who left for Chicago yesterday afternoon, denied their trip here was for the purpose of seeking distributor approval on the extra seven days' clearance B. & K. is seeking between "C" week and the first week of release in their city.

Immerman told MOTION PICTURE DAILY the trip was for the purpose of making a product deal with Paramount.

Ohio to Get a New Censor Supervisor

COLUMBUS, Oct. 17.—Roy Reichelderfer, secretary to E. L. Bowsher, state director of education, will be named supervisor of the Ohio censorship division, a newly-created position, it has been learned. Bowsher is ex-officio head of the censor board.

Films now are being reviewed by Edith Luethi and Suzanne Warfield, civil service appointees, who have been serving since 1921.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

OF paramount interest, perhaps, in the Atlas-Lehman buy of half of RCA's stock and debenture interest in RKO is that portion of the deal—a cash one running to five millions, by the way—which gives the purchasers management of the company. Indictating that matters pertaining to RKO's reorganization and emergence from its bankruptcy which will experience its third birthday, come February, is the fact that Peter N. Rathvon, a name so far unknown, but not for long, in this business, today will occupy Major Lambert's former office at Radio for the fifth time. Mathematically and working backwards this, of course, means that this right-hand bower to Atlas's Floyd B. Odlum has been active on the RKO scene since Monday. . . .

Kicking around all through the summer had been reports, mostly vague, that a plan of reorganization was ready for early presentation to Federal court. Those reports proved inconclusive for a very good and simple reason which was that the Atlas deal was cooking merrily on the fire and nothing ostensibly could be done about it until David Sarnoff returned from his usual and annual trek overseas. With the latter's reappearance on the local scene, the deliberations hastened toward their completion, giving tang and some excitement to the Columbus Day weekend. . . .

Now it has happened. For five million, Atlas, in association with the Lehmans, has purchased a fifty per cent interest in RCA's holdings which, at 1,259,463½ shares of the common, represent 48.86 per cent of that total issue, and which, at $9,786,655 in ten-year debentures, represent 84 per cent of all outstanding. The option made part of the transaction, furthermore, gives the buyers the right to pick up the remaining fifty per cent for five million additional any time within the next two years. In other words, Sarnoff, who is understood to have been deeply concerned over RCA's original $16,000,000 investment in RKO and exactly how he would come out of it, will emerge satisfactorily after all. Down to $14,644,614 through writeoffs, shrinkages and such, he will get ten million anyway. One of the inside angles has it he may eventually get a dollar-for-dollar return to the full amount, the sum beyond the ten million being taken care of when Atlas-Lehmans issue new securities in the about-to-be-reborn RKO entity. . . .

While the step makes Odlum the dominant single factor in RKO, there are other elements to be taken care of. For instance, there are the Rockefellers, some bank claims and the scattered holders of RKO stock. It is said the Rockefeller end of the enterprise will be cleared away in the form of the new securities, thereby indicating, but not confirming, the understanding the oil interests already have nodded approval of such a plan. Looming large and, by last night's scouting, somewhat menacingly in the picture is Mike Meehan, biggest single interest in Keith-Albee-Orpheum. The way Meehan goes—and how he goes—is quite apt to be the determining factor in any move to make possible a concentration of control of a complete RKO in the hands of one alliance of interests, such as Atlas and the Lehmans. . . .

At this stage, future moves on the board are obviously cloaked in speculation, but not mystery. Here are several of the possibilities, not conclusive, you are reminded, but also not remote:

That Odlum personally, in keeping with his operating practice, will remain in the background and evidence his influence at RKO through Rathvon.

That "Deac" Aylesworth will emerge into a real power there and—probably, mind you—drop his important participation in National Broadcasting Corporation for the big league atmosphere of a big time film executive.

That Ned E. Depinet will become president of RKO Radio Pictures, replacing J. R. McDonough, who will become a unit producer. "Mac" likes Hollywood and the kind of salaries it pays anyway.

That the theatre department with Leslie E. Thompson and Nate Blumberg, whose middle name of Jerome is always compressed into its initial, will continue as is.

While all of this, in one form or another, is in the making, it took the New York Evening Post last night, to add to the industry's already excitable tremors rumors of a third direction in which Odlum may step, Paramount already falling within his sphere of influence as well as RKO now. Reported that newspaper:

First Paramount.

Now Radio-Keith-Orpheum.

And the Street whispers that Floyd B. Odlum and his Atlas Corporation are eying still another big motion picture company, and have been purchasing stock in it quietly for some time. The name of the company still is a secret, and may not be revealed for some time. . . .

Both sides of the bitterly fought issue are weary. For approximately nine weeks now the argument and the tussle have been raging back and forth, pro and con on the local operators' situation and now come along both circuits and union to agree they wish the noise and the fury might come to an early end. That may be soon now, for major points on hourly booth scales and working conditions are virtually determined. A big issue, however, continues to be the plan, encouraged by the circuits, for an arbitration board, life limited to ten years, which will pick for adjudication any differences which may develop from bi-annual parleys. A personal note of much concern to the individual directly involved is Charlie Moskowitz's trip to Bermuda which will fade into the limbo of the forgotten if accord is not arrived at by the end of this week. . . .

This department nominates, and will consider no other candidate, Brian Aherne to play Romeo opposite Norma Shearer's Juliet. . . .

Please, Mr. Thalberg! . . .

Berger Takes Minor Role in Patents Probe

or those of any one else who could present the committee with "facts" pertaining to its investigation. No comment whatever was made by the committee concerning Robert Robins, an associate of Berger, who is serving as an investigator for the committee.

C. C. Colby, former president of the Samson Electric Co., Canton, Mass., and Joseph Numero, former president of Cinema Supplies Co., Minneapolis, were the only witnesses called yesterday. Colby said his company was liquidated in 1932 when it was unable to effect an acceptable cross-licensing agreement with A. T. & T. and subsidiaries for the manufacture of sound equipment units. He said that an agreement had been offered his and other associated companies by John E. Otterson, then president of Erpi, the signing of which, he said he felt, would have been equivalent to signing "our death warrant."

Agreement Explained

Pressed for an explanation, Colby related that the agreement called for dissolution of the licensing benefits if royalty payments were not made within a 30-day period. Asked if John H. Ray, counsel for Western Electric, drew the contract, Colby said he was not sure.

"Well, whoever it was knew how to write a contract for the company, didn't he?" Congressman Matthew Dunn of Pennsylvania remarked.

"That's why I want my copy of the agreement returned by the committee," Colby replied. "I might want to use it myself some time."

In reply to questions put to him by members of the Congressional committee Colby said that he favored Federal regulations which would require public utility concerns operating under franchise to confine their commercial operations to the field for which their franchise had been granted. He also said he favored a Federal regulation which would require a public utility conducting extensive research work, such as A. T. & T., to make patents developed in its laboratories which related to another commercial field available at a reasonable royalty charge to any responsible company operating in that field. Colby agreed with Sirovich that the owner of the patent also should be required to stay out of the alien field except as a patent licensor.

"Unfair and Un-American"

In this connection Colby described A. T. & T.'s invasion of the film sound equipment field as "unfair and un-American." He said he believed it was accomplished by the use of the public utility's "tremendous prestige and good will," which permitted the effecting of recording agreements with the "small group" which dominated the film producing center and through those agreements made a domination of the reproducing business possible.

Colby testified that some of the products of his company had been found to infringe patents owned by A. T. & T. or its subsidiaries.

Numero testified that his company had been unable to obtain licensing agreements from A. T. & T. companies in 1932 and said that he is now being sued by the telephone company for infringement of amplifying patents.

William Fox, who has been subpoenaed for the hearings and was reported to be in the custody of a U. S. marshal at Atlantic City on Wednesday, pending instructions from the committee, yesterday was said by his attorney, Benjamin Reass, to be undergoing treatment for a diabetic condition at an Ontario hospital. He will probably be excused from testifying.

The hearing resumes today and may be concluded next Tuesday, Sirovich said yesterday.

Warner to Address St. Louis Council

St. Louis, Oct. 17. — Harry M. Warner will be guest speaker of the Better Films' Council for Greater St. Louis tomorrow.

The meeting will be held at noon and Warner, who is attending the local anti-trust trial, will be excused from court for the occasion. The council is sponsoring the special premiere of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Orpheum on Oct. 24.

The debut of the Shakespeare-Reinhardt spectacle will be marked by a broadcast over KSD, local station of NBC. Leonard Halper, Cleveland maintenance man for the Warner Ohio houses, arrives here tomorrow to work on the opening. Mort Blumenstock, who was expected this week, has delayed his arrival until next Wednesday or Thursday.

Exhibitor Named to Canada Parliament

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Out of the whirl of the Canadian Federal elections in which more than 800 candidates competed for the 245 seats in the House of Commons, one result emerged with general satisfaction to theatre men. This was the election of H. E. Wilton, manager of the Strand, Hamilton, Ont., as member of Parliament for Hamilton West.

Wilton is mayor of Hamilton and recently was elected president of the Mayors' Ass'n. of Ontario. With the election of Wilton, theatres of Canada virtually have a direct representative in Parliament.

Directors' Failings Target of Vanderlip

The failings of corporate administration by directorates were scored by Frank A. Vanderlip, who recently resigned from the Paramount board, in a letter to the Sabath Congressional committee investigating corporate reorganizations, and read at the opening of yesterday's session.

It is only rarely that the ordinary stockholder has any voice in choosing directors, Vanderlip said in his letter. "Moreover," he added, "a director having an hour a week or an hour a month cannot possibly have the basis for making sound decisions in many cases."

He said that the increased responsibility attached to the post of a board member is making it increasingly difficult to obtain able men for those posts.

Traub Subpoena Quashed

City Court Justice Henry Shimmel yesterday granted a motion setting aside a subpoena to examine in supplementary proceedings Morris Traub, president of Tivoli Vaudeville, Inc. The application was made by Hollywood Film Exchanges, Inc., holder of a judgment for $184 against Tivoli Vaudeville, Inc.

The examination was vacated because Tivoli Vaudeville, Inc., is a Brooklyn corporation and Hollywood Film Exchanges was given permission to renew the request to examine Traub in the Kings County City Court.

Ampa Boys See Critics; Also Hear a Couple

except the dais, except when the flashlights were—'er flashlighting.

One of the waiters moved the microphone over in front of Cohen. Another voice boomed: "He's loud enough already."

"Members are talking more than the guests," continued Cohen.

"And better," interpolated Hal Horne.

In the course of time Cohen gave up.

"Dr. Igor Odet of Hungary and Czechoslovakia" was a riot.

Very few seemed to realize that he was Pete Mack in spite of a trace of a brogue. He was introduced as an authority on film technique in Central Europe who would speak frankly.

Respectful Silence—Then

"I hope I you—that I can hev it the ideas in the back of mine head, but when it comes out of the mouth it dun't always mek sense," he began.

And it didn't. For the first three minutes there was respectful silence. Then somebody snorted into his coffee and sprayed H. Spencer Berg's knitted tie three feet away. The Ampa treasurer used his napkin. The laughs began.

Louis Calhern took a bow. Boris Morros told the audience he was glad of his advancement in Paramount. (He leaves for a studio post today.) He was sorry, he said, to leave "his boys" at the Paramount Theatre, though, and to go away from all his other good friends in New York. He was impressively serious and received a hand.

Then Buck was presented. Frank rated three asterisks and a couple of stars as a speaker. He began by denying that the escape of hundreds of his monkeys from his Amityville zoo was a publicity stunt.

Buck Dramatic

As usual, Buck was dramatic. He described how a python attacked one of his boys in a jungle.

"He had three coils around him as I ran up," he went on. "We uncoiled the tail. Then I held down his head and put a log in his mouth. He was this big around (holding up his hands in a circle). We wrapped him around the log like a bunch of spare tires and tied him with rattan. One of the boys carried him back on his shoulder."

Even Horne was impressed.

Buck warmed up to his subject and told about a 240-pound orang-utan he was trying to get out of a cage on a boat. He held one wrist and the ship's carpenter, a six-foot, four-inch specimen, held the other until he let go. The orang leaped toward Buck with outstretched arms, he said.

"It was a perfect opening," Buck went on. "I clicked him on the jaw and knocked him cold."

"Oh you Joe Louis," piped someone near the entrance.

Buck offered to answer any questions.

"How long do you think it would take to tame Julius Cohen?" inquired an anonymous information seeker.

"It can't be done," Buck replied emphatically.

Charges Leahy With Coercing Ned Depinet

wanted to get relief. Leahy denied the charge, declaring: "I did not threaten or attempt to coerce Mr. Depinet."

"I didn't have any interest other than in getting pictures for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central," Leahy countered. "I knew that if Depinet were acting in conjunction with other persons they could be enjoined. If they were enjoined, these persons would have to sell their pictures to someone and I felt my clients would get the pictures," Snyder's lawyer stated.

The ex-senator began his cross examination of Leahy after Jacob M. Lashly, attorney for RKO, had finished asking the witness a number of questions. George S. Leisure, another RKO lawyer, wanted to follow Lashly, but Russell Hardy objected and was sustained.

Reed drew from Leahy a picture of the part Snyder played in acquiring the three theatres in question. Upon his cross questioning, Reed was told by Leahy that his client put up $25,000 of the $105,000 paid to the bondholders' committee as a guarantee on the leases. Dr. Probstein, Harry Koplar's brother-in-law, put up a similar amount, and Harry Arthur and Marco Wolff advanced $55,000 in cash, Leahy asserted under oath.

Mentioned Sherman Act

Snyder's counsel testified that the leases on the three houses were dated July 20, 1934, although the two operating companies were formed July 16-17, following which Reed said:

"So you knew before you executed the lease that Paramount and RKO product had already been contracted for by Warners?" Leahy agreed.

Upon questioning by Reed, Leahy denied he had represented Arthur in any way except in the deal with Snyder for the Ambassador, Missouri and the New Grand Central. Snyder's lawyer further added that when he went to New York his visit was to obtain films for the three houses and not for Arthur's other two theatres, the Fox and St. Louis.

Testifying further upon questioning by Reed, Leahy said he had called to Depinet's attention the consequences of Sherman Act violation.

"What you were trying to do," Reed said, "is this. You were trying to get RKO pictures for the group that controlled all but one first run by endeavoring to threaten Mr. Depinet." Leahy became angry and resented the remark, declaring, "You can't make a speech like that without me answering."

"No, that's not so," Leahy answered, "Snyder had no interest in any but the three theatres. Secondly, I never threatened Depinet, and thirdly, it was Arthur and F. & M. who had the Fox and St. Louis. Arthur had no monopoly and if he did and violated the Sherman Act, I am confident the Government would have acted."

"I didn't say anything about a monopoly," Reed explained, to which Leahy responded, "I don't know what you said."

Snyder's attorney again denied he had tried to intimidate Depinet, asserting, "I was only trying to secure pictures."

"In substance," Reed answered: "What you did was called in an officer of the company, told him what the law was and warned him what you would do if you didn't get the pictures. Is that right?"

"Yes, sir," Leahy replied, smiling as the former Senator shot back, "That's all."

Samuel Fordyce brought up the question of a telephone conference Leahy said he had with George J. Schaefer the same day he had conferred with Depinet. Snyder's lawyer said Schaefer told him over the phone when he brought up the St. Louis matter that it was no use seeing him, that he, Schaefer, couldn't do anything about the deal with Warners and that Paramount had to go ahead with it.

There was marked bitterness between Leahy and Reed during the entire cross examination of the witness. The affair became so tense that Judge George H. Moore had to stop the proceedings and warn both men that he wanted the examination governed by the proper decorum of the court and without the injection of personal bitterness. Leahy became assertive several times while Reed and Lashly were cross interrogating him and both defense attorneys complained to the court.

Queried on Meeting

Lashly's cross examination had to do with the Plaza session on April 7 which was attended by Leahy and Arthur in addition to William Kupper, M. Turner, Felix Jenkins and Harry Greenman. Leahy related a conversation he had with Arthur in which he declared the latter told him "Depinet wouldn't really go into this if he knew the effects of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law." Arthur also told him, Leahy said, that Depinet stated, "Don't get excited about the matter. I'm sure it will work out. These fellows (referring to Warners) will get tired and let us sell you."

Leahy testified he told Depinet he didn't want him or anyone to "welch" on a contract, but wanted to impress upon the RKO president that the contract entered into was "illegal" in view of Arthur offering any price for the product. Leahy said he made three visits to the Dept. of Justice. He also asserted that shortly after the Plaza meeting he prepared an affidavit for the Dept. of Justice which Arthur signed. Arthur made his first trip to Washington on June 18, about two and a half months after Leahy told Depinet he would bring the matter to the attention of Washington officials.

Leahy said the Dept. of Justice was not asked to take criminal action, and that Depinet asked him not to bring the matter before Washington officials, saying, "It will work itself out."

No Session Saturday

Lashly then told Leahy, "The reason you had Mr. Depinet come to the Plaza was so that you could have a foundation for this action." Snyder's attorney denied this and vindicating the F. & M. head, declared, "There never was a time when Arthur or his associates harbored any desire to prosecute Schaefer or Depinet criminally."

Leahy concluded with the remark that "the whole purpose of the affidavit was to secure some relief in equity from the Government."

Upon request of William R. Gentry, local Paramount counsel, Judge Moore agreed not to hold court Saturday. Gentry explained the local attorneys were finding work accumulated during the trial which they had not been able to dispose of and asked for the day off to catch up. Judge

"Mystic Hour"

St. Louis, Oct. 17.—In his cross examination of John S. Leahy, attorney for Allen L. Snyder, Jacob M. Lashly, representing RKO, asked the witness to give the exact hour of his conference with Ned E. Depinet on April 7 at the Plaza, New York.

Lashly said he wanted to know because of "the tricky daylight saving time."

"It was after twilight, or the mystic hour," replied Leahy, "and there was nothing tricky about that."

The Prosecutor

Motion Picture Daily

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney in the Government's anti-trust case, is 42 years old. He was born in Washington, D. C., and had been a court reporter in that city for a number of years before he decided to study law at Georgetown University.

He has lost very few cases since he joined the Department of Justice 19 years ago. In 1930, the first important victory Hardy scored was the Malleable Iron case in which the Government charged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act. In this instance, he was successful in having fines totaling approximately $300,000 imposed on the defendants.

The prosecuting attorney in the trial against Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell Sears, George J. Schaefer and Ned E. Depinet, RKO, Warners, Paramount and their subsidiaries for alleged violation of the Sherman law, is also author of "Hardy on Removals," a book which was published some time ago.

He is an unassuming person, slightly bald and conservative in his attire. Hardy is married, has two girls and a boy. The oldest girl is 17.

They Bow and Bow

St. Louis, Oct. 17.—Politeness hit a new high in the anti-trust trials here today.

Jacob M. Lashly had risen to cross examine John S. Leahy about the same time that William R. Gentry, Paramount counsel, stood up.

Lashly excused himself and asked Gentry to begin. Gentry bowed and suggested Lashly start.

Lashly turned to Leahy and apologized for the delay, making a reference to the "Alphonse and Gaston act."

"I couldn't tell which was Alphonse or which Gaston," commented Leahy.

Moore then asked Hardy, Reed, Wood and Leisure for their opinions. When all the lawyers agreed official announcement of the Saturday vacation was made. Up to this morning there were 1,225 pages of testimony, 159 of which were recorded yesterday.

Although Leisure announced yesterday he would cross examine Jules Levy when the trial resumed this morning, the RKO attorney changed his mind and passed up the interrogation. Clarence M. Turley, local real estate operator and office building manager, was first to take the stand today. He asserted he had been associated with Spyros Skouras in a bid for the reorganization of the Ambassador and with Skouras attended a meeting at the Blackstone, Chicago, on Feb. 27, 1934, which was attended by Herman Starr and Gradwell L. Sears.

Starr Conversation Told

Turley testified that the first thing Starr did when he came into the room was to congratulate Skouras for having closed a deal for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. Skouras then advised Starr, Turley said, that he had been badly mistaken, that "the Snyder bid has been accepted by the bondholders."

Starr then asked, according to Turley, "What about the management contract," to which Skouras replied, Turley said, "F. & M. had made a deal."

"Warners got a raw deal," Starr told Turley, according to the latter's testimony.

"We thought it unwise for the bondholders to accept the Snyder proposal," Turley asserted Starr said. "We're going to be a factor in this business whether the bondholders like it or not," the real estate man continued as part of the Starr conversation.

Reed Cross Examines

"We're going to show first runs at 10 cents," Starr is said to have told Skouras at the meeting, according to Turley. "Warners have a certain amount of bonds which they will withdraw from the committee," Turley added as part of the First National head's talk.

Starr was described by Turley as having also said, "There's going to be a nasty fight and you (referring to Skouras) will find yourself in the middle." Turley testified both Skouras and Starr had a heated argument which ended when two other Chicagoans came into the suite. Turley also testified that he and Skouras had been guarantors of the first mortgage bonds of the Ambassador and were negotiating for an extension at the time this meeting took place.

Reed cross-examined the real estate operator briefly. So did Gentry. RKO counsel passed this up.

Leahy followed Turley and was on the stand several hours. Snyder was next. He is slightly deaf and Hardy had to shout his questions at the local engineer, who admitted he had made the bid for the three theatres. The examination by the prosecuting attorney took about two minutes when Reed, Gentry and Lashly called, "That's all," in such rapid succession that the entire court room broke out in a gale of laughter.

Cresson Smith, southern and western sales manager for RKO, was next. Hardy asked him severel questions in connection with a contract and rider whereby his company's product would play the Shubert, Rialto and Orpheum. A memorandum drawn up by Smith and a letter signed by Lester Kreiger of Warner's home office in connection with the deal also were introduced. Some of the clauses in the memorandum were not included in the final contract on advice of RKO counsel, Smith said.

Both papers contained provisions of what disposition would be made of RKO product in the event Warners either sold the theatres or acquired the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

Walsh Last on Stand

Hall Walsh, local branch manager for Vitagraph, was the last Government witness. He said that for the three years prior to Jan. 11, 1935, he had been city salesman, that the company distributed in 1932-33 a total of 52 features; in 1933-34, 54; in 1934-35, 48. He explained in detail upon direct examination by Hardy the method of shipping prints to and from the exchange and the inspection process of all subjects. He was not cross examined by anyone but Frederick H. Wood, who made Walsh again go over the inspection details.

Hardy then asked Warners to produce certain documents the Government subpoenaed.

This started a legal controversy which had to be debated while the jury was dismissed. Judge Moore excused the jurors at 4:05 and for the next hour defense and Government counsel argued the admissibility of the Skouras Super Theatres Corp. papers of 1928. Warner attorneys held that they would not be material to the case inasmuch as they were seven years old and that only documents dated three years before the indictments were handed down, Jan. 11, 1935, could be admitted. The question had not been settled when court adjourned for the day. Tomorrow morning the matter again will be taken up.

About 300 extras were thrown out of work.

Both unions claimed jurisdictional rights. The I. A. T. S. E. claimed the location of the theatre placed employment of electricians within the stagehands' jurisdiction. The I. B. E. W. demanded 100 per cent representation. The I. A. T. S. E. claimed the I. B. E. W. men were incompetent. Both unions expressed regret at Cohen's loss.

Quip of the Day

Editor, M. P. Daily:

From Ali Gaga, he don't want answers! Well, from Ali Gaga, he'll get an answer because Ali is the only one who bothers with Mox Shobbus and his problems.

The solution is simple:

Instead of a theatre, open up a general store for the sale of merchandise and to exploit the store, run,

"Call of the Wild" Night.
"Curly Top" Night.
"Top Hat" Night, etc.

Not only should this stimulate the sale of goods, but it will be a novelty to see the name of a picture on the marquee.

And from Ali Gaga, he didn't want an answer!!

Plan Two Theatres In Toronto Suburb

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—For years the swanky village of Forest Hill has banned the erection of a theatre, but now the municipality is going to have two of them, the council having let down the bars. The Forest Hill Council has made the stipulation that any theatre must be of the clubhouse type of construction to conform with the elegance of local residences.

This city is to have another downtown house, the Casino, seating 1,200. The site on Queen St. is owned by the Jacob Cohen Estate. The operators will be the Casino Theatre, Toronto, Ltd.

The city has also issued a permit for the erection of the Eglinton, a suburban house on Eglinton Ave., West, to be leased and operated by Famous Players Canadian Corp. The building will be completed in December at a cost of $200,000.

Filming of Chicago Radio Show Delayed

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Filming of the WLS Barn Dance Show has been delayed for several weeks. Unable to get Charles "Chuck" Reisner to direct, the sponsors are now conferring with Luther Reed. If he is signed, production will start this month.

The WLS Barn Dance Show has been presented over the air from the stage of the Eighth Street Theatre here for 184 consecutive weeks and four stage units of the group are on the road.

The picture will be shown in hall and auditoriums which have a big seating capacity. It will be sold only through the WLS Artists' Bureau and on a 50 per cent basis. Farm group sponsors will present the picture when finished, officials claim.

Tulane Students Get Upset Over "Salute"

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 17.—Members of the Glendy Burke Literary Debating Society of Tulane University are in a state of agitation over "Red Salute." Some of the members say it is dangerous propaganda.

A committee attended the opening last week to decide whether the society ought to adopt a policy of heckling and picketing.

Ridgewood to Vote On Sunday Opening

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 17.—Petitions have been filed by Frank Costa, manager of the Warner, asking that the question of Sunday shows be voted on at the November elections. With the petitions well over the required number, the question will be voted on next month. A similar petition was beaten in 1933, when the entire community was in a turmoil over the question.

Club to Entertain

The Woman Pays Club will give a buffet supper and entertainment tonight at the Warwick in honor of Kathleen and Gene Lockhart. Mrs. Lockhart is a member and Gene Lockhart is one of three honorary members. The program will include sketches by Lillian Taiz and Sam Jaffee, Al Trahan and Yukana Cameron, and Corinna Mura. These pictures are made suitable for framing because they depict what you may never see again. Scenes that lived only in Broadway's legends before, came true at Warner Bros.' International Premiere of "A Midsummer Night's Dream", and crowds struggling to pay up to $11 a seat brought back the Thrill of the Theatre and the best traditions of New York's stage openings.

Look at the clock in the right-hand corner. Three quarters of an hour before the performance, both sides of Broadway were absolutely impassable for four blocks. INTERNATIONAL PREMIERE OF "A MIDSUMMER NIG

No theatrical performance in this decade has attracted such an amazing group of celebrities. While England's peerage and the leaders of Mayfair thronged the London Adelphi, America's notables in governmental life, in art, drama and music, stars of screen, stage and radio acclaimed "A Midsummer Night's Dream" as more than a motion picture—a national accomplishment.

Crowds surged around them. Note police and special attendants trying to clear a way for the celebrities to enter the Hollywood Theatre. All through the performance and until after midnight throngs still waited to see them emerge. These graphic illustrations of the event will be treasured among the industry's most prized records, to be remembered as long as the picture itself.

Looking 'Em Over

"Maria Chapdelaine"

(Franco-America Film)

Produced by France Film from the well-known novel by Louis Hemon, this down-to-earth story of the pioneering French people of Quebec is a finely wrought, interesting dramatic-romantic picture. In the French language, its narrative is yet extremely easy to follow without a knowledge of French by reason of the frequent use of superimposed translations of dialogue.

The setting is Quebec country itself, characterized by beautiful scenery and with the winter background giving full evidence of the rigors of the climate faced by the pioneers. Madeleine Renaud has the title role, supported in particular by Jean Gabin.

Straightforward drama lies in the very simplicity of the lives of the people concerned. Maria, returning to her wilderness home, meets Francois, stopping for a while in the course of his trapping and woodcutting adventuring in the woods. They fall in love, and Maria promises to wait until the spring for him to return. Proposals come to her as well from a young, simple neighbor, and a youth from the big city, who paints an attractive picture of life in the town. But Maria waits. Then the long, hard winter closes down, and Francois attempts to visit her, coming on snowshoes through the wilderness. A blizzard catches him and his body is brought in. Then her mother succumbs and under the inspiration of the words of the parish priest she agrees to marry the neighbor.

This is to be considered one of the better of the foreign importations, worthwhile for discriminating audiences. No production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"Toll of the Desert"

(William Berke-Steiner)

A time-worn story and indifferent acting make this western a production routine.

Fred Kohler, Jr., lost when Indians attack his parents on their western trek, is picked up as a child by Earl Dwire, whose wagon train comes upon him wandering in the desert. His father, pursued by Indians, is rescued by a band of outlaws while his mother is killed. Dwire raises him to manhood. Incidents bring Kohler into contact with the outlaws with whom his father has taken up. When they murder his guardian he joins the sheriff and is after them. Events bring him to his real father but he is unaware of it until a locket, given to him by his mother, is discovered by his father. A plan to kill Kohler is thwarted by his parent and he retaliates by bringing the father, his captive now, to the sheriff. Roger Williams, who plays Kohler's father, is hanged for his crimes and the piece ends with Kohler bewildered.

Betty Mack plays the other half of the romantic interest. Edward Cassidy and Tom London round out the supporting cast. At times the photography by Robert Cline is good. The direction by Lester Williams merely follows the story which is described as original by Allen Hall.

Production Code Seal No. 1,527. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Pepo"

(Amkino)

Produced by Armenkino and designated as Soviet Armenia's first talking film, this picture, in the Armenian language, offers little or nothing for American audiences. Likely enough it will be found of interest by those in this country to whom the language of the picture is native, but only to them.

The story of an Armenian worker, who struggles against the hardship imposed by the action of the affected and wealthy merchant, who steals the dowry he had saved for the possible marriage of his sister, it portrays the simple and naive lives of the country folk. Such sequences as the betrothal feast, the market place at Tiflis, Oriental songs and dances and the like, have some small interest in the fashion that a travel subject may have, but that is virtually all the film has to offer.

Occasional subtitle translations of dialogue are rather too occasional for complete understanding of the story. The film was adapted from the Armenian play by Sandukian.

No production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"King Solomon of Broadway," last night's preview at the Roxy, was reviewed from Hollywood on Sept. 10, by wire.

"Shipmates Forever," which opened at the Strand on Wednesday, was previewed by wire from Hollywood on Sept. 18.

"Last Days of Pompeii," now being shown at the Center, was reviewed from Hollywood by wire on Sept. 21.

Short Subjects

"Trouble in Toyland"

(Vitaphone)

Gus Edwards' gleanings from the cradle perform to perfection in this excellently put together musical effort. They are a credit to his judgment. The story concerns a child strike against spinach, washing behind the ears, castor oil, etc. What they want is to put on a show. The juvenile performers do their turns with a professional finish that is surprising. There are singers, acrobatic dancers, chorals, imitations and some fine tap dancing. The finale with little Nancy Gonzales, not more than three, doing "La Cucaracha" should have them applauding. For children's matinees this should be "must." Grownups will be more than mildly amused. Highly recommended. No Production Code Seal. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"The Doorman's Opera"

(Vitaphone)

A clever bit of satirical humor injected into the plot of this musical offering peps it up and maintains a grade of amusement that should please most audiences. The plot takes place in four night clubs and in each there is a good act. The dancing of Kay, Katja and Kay is novel, Thelma Leeds puts a song over in good style, an ensemble number poking fun at the Shirley Temple craze is effective, and the last sequence has Charlotte Arren doing her reliable burlesque of a prima donna rings down the curtain. Highly recommended. Production Code Seal No. 0529. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Speedy Justice"

(Universal)

Eddie Foy, as the manager of a theatrical troupe, is arrested for speeding in the bus in which they are traveling. The country cop and judge permit them to take out their fine by giving a show in court. The result is fast and diverting entertainment, featuring Glen and Jenkins, as colored porters; Arthur Boran, the Danny Dancers, Southland Rhythm Girls and Bobby Lane. Entertaining material. Production Code Seal No. 0523. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

Strict Limit Upon Theatre Permits Asked

Britishers Want Them on Drink License Basis

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Latest move in the campaign to prevent the erection of "redundant" theatres is a decision by the Devon and Cornwall Branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. to approach the Home Office asking that applications for new cinema licenses be treated on the same lines as are followed in the cases of new applications for licenses to sell drink.

The actual suggestion is that plans should be deposited for a statutory time and details of the new project advertised for the information of possible objectors.

Licenses for entertainment purposes and licenses to sell intoxicants have, heretofore, been of a fundamentally different character. The former are, strictly, dependent only on compliance with safety regulations; the latter are definitely imposed for the purpose of limiting drinking facilities and have gained a big commercial value based on their limited number.

Acceptance of the C. E. A. suggestion would seem to imply the conferring of a specific value on the cinema license as such, apart from the building in which it operated. Erectors of new theatres would have to buy the license of existing buildings before they could build. The legality of the suggested procedure is doubtful.

The Film Producers' Group of the Federation of British Industries, which is fully representative of studios here, has officially announced that it would not join the International Film Chamber organized by the German Reichsfilmkammer. Proposals for the formation of the chamber were put forward by the Germans at conferences at Munich and Venice in July and August. The British decision of non-participation was reached, it is stated, after close study of the statute and proposed method of conducting the chamber, and was unanimous.

Basil Dean has announced that he plans screen versions of "Twelfth Night" and "The Tempest" and that he will use color if it is commercially available in time. Dean declared that he had been stimulated by "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Ban Angers Sally Rand

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 17.—Sally Rand is bitter over the banning of her show here, blaming her "humiliation" and its accompanying loss of pay to 30 members of her troupe on Rev. Thomas J. McKitchen, rector of SS. Peter and Paul Cathedral. His objection to her appearance, she said, brought about the cancellation of a license by the Bureau of Police and Fire Commissioners.

It was also said at headquarters that Rev. Robert R. Carmichael, assistant rector of Grace Church, had objected to Miss Rand, but he denied that.

"Goose," Show Kansas City's Best, $10,500

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 17. — "The Goose and Gander," plus Frankie Masters and his orchestra, upped average by $1,500 at the Mainstreet to make the best showing in a week of poor box-office for first runs here. The Mainstreet grossed $10,500 against a normal of $9,000 for combination bills.

Second high money, but a disappointment, was "O'Shaughnessy's Boy" at Loew's Midland, where the take was $9,000. Average is $11,500.

"Hat" Big in 3d Week, 2d Run at Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17. — The second run engagement of "Top Hat" at the Karlton continues to be the talk of the town. Booked in originally for a week, to follow its first run two weeks at the Stanley, the musical began to pour record breaking grosses into this small theatre. For its third week, just ended, it grabbed $4,600, away above the average of $3,500 and nearly double the sort of grosses the theatre has been playing to lately. It was held a fourth week.

Returning to stage shows this week with Phil Spitalny's girl band as the feature and "King Solomon of Broadway" on the screen, the Eagle swung back to good business with a $14,500. La Duke, Watchman Hollywood, Oct. 17. — Because a motor car bumped a concrete lamp post in front of the National Screen Service offices Ralph La Duke, manager, had to sit in his office from midnight until 5 A. M. The concrete post cracked and sent a few chips flying through the N. S. S. plate windows. There was only one watchman, and La Duke doesn't like visitors when he isn't around.

"Andes" with Fetchit Hits $17,000, Hub

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—"Storm Over the Andes," helped by a negro amateur show headed by Stepin Fetchit, was the surprise of the week here. It ran over normal by $6,000 for a take of $17,000 at the RKO Boston.

"Dr. Socrates" and Willard Robinson's "Deep River" revue at the Metropolitan pulled a strong $24,500, over par by $2,500. "Broadway Melody of 1936" held up to $13,000 in its seecond week at Loew's Orpheum, but failed to get over an average $12,000 at Loew's State, also in its second week.

"Diamond Jim" was $500 up on a take of $12,500 at Keith's Memorial. It was held over.

Total first run business was $88,500. Average is $80,500.

Backing More Plays

M-G-M is understood to be backing "Paradise Lost," a new play by Clifford Odets. The possibility is not remote that the company will film "Awake and Sing," another Odet work.

Warners financed "Sweet Mystery of Life," Herman Shumlin's new show now in its second week at the Shubert.

FWC Books "Tunnel"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 17.—Fox West Coast has booked G.B.'s "Transatlantic Tunnel" into all first runs. It opens locally about Oct. 27.

"Diamond" Is Best Draw in Coast Slump

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—"Diamond Jim" made the best showing of the week by getting $5,900, over normal by $2,700, at the Pantages. It slipped, however, at the Hillstreet on a $5,500 take, which was $2,500 under average.

Business was generally dull. "Shipmates Forever" was above the line by $800 on a take of $12,800 at Warners' Downtown, but it failed to make any impression at Warners' Hollywood on a take of $11,700.

OMAHA, Oct. 17.—"Broadway Melody of 1936," on a dual with "Without Regret," was a knockout at the Omaha. The $10,100 take was $3,100 above normal.

George Bradbury Dead

FORT KENT, Me., Oct. 17.—George Bradbury, well known theatre manager, is dead.

PRINTERS' INK

October 10, 1935

The motion picture industry this week got together and paid its compliments to a man who has played an important part in its progress and development, Martin Quigley. On the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of Mr. Quigley's heraldship of the Motion Picture Herald, it might be expected that the industry which bows to none in the matter of showmanship would conspire to produce a colorful tribute. It did.

Twenty years is not such a very long time as time goes. But in an industry that is so closely geared to the modern tempo, in an industry that has sprung up with such amazing rapidity, twenty years is a fairsized period indeed. And if anyone thinks not, let him get a copy of the Motion Picture Herald for September 28 and let him leaf through its 372 pages. He who does this cannot fail to be impressed strongly by the advances that have been made in the art of motion pictures.

To the Schoolmaster an exceedingly interesting feature is that which illustrates advertisements for the outstanding screen productions of the last two decades. What a far cry from Chaplin's 1915 brand of silent artistry, "Easy Street," to the present-day talking adaptation of Shakespeare! Equally interesting is the advertising section, not only for its bulk of 230 pages, nor its parade of famous names, but for the cleverness and ingenuity shown by certain advertisers in their congratulatory messages.

PUT THEM ALL TOGETHER!

This is just the first preview report of "MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY." From now on, day after day, you will hear a great deal about this M-G-M attraction that is destined to revise all your ideas of motion picture business!

Sirovich Patent Probings Come to Unexpected Halt

Statement Finds Facts Enough—Berger and Robins Out?

The Sirovich Congressional Committee brought to an abrupt and wholly unscheduled close yesterday its "investigation" of patent pools and cross-licensing agreements in their relation to the film and communications industries, which had been under way for three and one-half days at the Fifth Ave. Hotel. Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, was the last witness.

The committee's only official explanation of its unexpected adjournment, insofar as film affairs are concerned, was contained in a brief statement which said that it believed enough witnesses had been heard and that further testimony would be "repetitious." The statement was read by Chairman William I. Sirovich when the committee reconvened after the morning session at 4 o'clock, almost two hours later than the committee's customary time.

It was learned from an authoritative source that the doubts of several com-

No Mandatory Code Sought, Asserts Berry, Coordinator

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Any recovery legislation sought by the Administration at the next session of Congress will be directed toward the regulation of competitive and labor policies and will not contemplate a return to any sort of mandatory code adoption, Major George L. Berry, coordinator for industrial cooperation, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY today.

Answering charges that his proposed conferences with business and labor leaders were projected for the purpose of drumming up sentiment in favor of a return to codification of industry, Berry asserted that his only aim was to further the adoption of voluntary codes, although admitting that one of the objectives of his organization will be the development of a central point where the views of business, labor and the public may be coordinated to arrive at the best solution of long standing business problems.

The course of the Administration's drive for new industrial control legislation, he warned, will be directed by the manner in which business itself meets its problems.

"The question whether voluntary trade associations and voluntary codes will be strong enough to drive out cut-throat competition and the sweatshop operator from the business scene without legal help," he said, "can best be answered by industrial leaders themselves facing the coming conferences."

British Lion Finishes New Finance Setup

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 9.—British Lion reconstruction has been approved at a special meeting of shareholders. S. W. Smith, managing director, revealed that new money had been necessary to finance handling of Republic product.

British Lion got the contract in competition with another British concern, said Smith, because N. L. Nathanson used his influence and also advanced £50,000 as a deposit on the contract signing and guaranteed a further £50,000 called for by the Republic agreement. Nathanson, with Andrew Holt, joined the British Lion board. Details of the reconstruction have appeared in MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

In combination the C. E. A., the West End Managers' Ass'n and other theatre interests have killed all possibilities of a broadcast of the Royal Command variety performance on Oct. 29. The Variety Artists' Federation will get £1,000 for its Benevolent Fund, against £500 paid for the radio rights by the B. B. C. last year.

Letter From Depinet Read Into Record

Film Note Entered Over Hardy's Objection

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—Nettled beyond restraint by the insistence of George S. Leisure, RKO counsel, in reading a letter to the jury and into the record over his objections while he was presenting his case, Prosecuting Attorney Russell Hardy became so enraged at the defense counsel that he asked Judge George H. Moore to stop "this undue and officious interference with the Government's case."

The letter in question was signed by Ned E. Depinet on March 29, 1934, and sent to Joseph Bernhard in connection with a product deal for the Orpheum and Shubert Rialto here.

Hardy didn't want the letter read by Leisure, contending he did not Seek Administrator To Push Pathe Suit

A motion will be made Monday morning in the Manhattan Supreme Court by Henry Chesterfield, temporary administrator of the estate of Ben Hilbert, for an order substituting him as party plaintiff in a suit against Pathe Exchange, Inc. The request will be made by Chesterfield for the purpose of prosecuting an appeal from an order issued by Justice Kenneth O'Brien, denying a temporary injunction to restrain Pathe Exchange from proceeding with a term of reorganization. The original action was brought by Hilbert on last August 9. Hilbert died on Sept. 21 and Chesterfield now seeks to continue the suit.

Cantor Sees Spread Of Percentage Pacts

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Eddie Cantor predicts that percentage contracts for stars will be the rule rather than the exception in the future. He has been working on a percentage basis with Samuel Goldwyn for six years, he says, and is satisfied with it.

"Working on a percentage is better for both the producer and the player," he says. "It requires a smaller financial investment for the producer, it will net far greater returns for the player, and it tends toward better pictures at lower cost."

Kraushaar Opposes Fox Brooklyn Sale

Opposition to the proposed sale of the Brooklyn Paramount to Si Fabian by the trustees of Allied Owners Corp. for $1,500,000 was voiced by Meyer Kraushaar, counsel for the Sabath Congressional committee, at a hearing before Federal Judge Robert Inch in Brooklyn yesterday. The hearing was on a motion by the Allied trustees to confirm the proposed sale.

Percival E. Jackson, a trustee, admitted that the proposed sale price is greatly below the theatre's assessed valuation of $4,800,000 and the orig-

The possibility of setting up local arbitration was discussed. The idea revives some of the code theories, but the proposal contemplates keeping the local boards free from New York influence.

William M. Greve, also an Allied trustee, was another witness. The hearing is scheduled to resume on Monday.

Letter From Depinet Read Into Record

care for any "assistance or interference by the defendants." At the time the plea was made by Government counsel, Gordon A. Youngman of the RKO home office staff and not a subpoenaed witness, was on the stand. Youngman took the stand at Hardy's request and was being examined as to the authenticity of Depinet's signature. Youngman admitted drawing up the letter. Leisure explained to the judge that because of certain preliminary drafts introduced by the Government in connection with the letter, it would be necessary to read the various clauses contained therein.

Rise to Assistance

Various defense counsel simultaneously came to Leisure's aid, including Jacob M. Lashly of RKO, William R. Gentry of Paramount and Frederick H. Wood of Warners. All began talking at the same time so that no one could be heard. The situation quieted down and then Lashly read argumentary proof on the question. Judge Moore finally decided in favor of the RKO counsel, following which the letter was read and explained with the assistance of Youngman.

Prior to bringing up the written material on the RKO product deal, Hardy introduced and read to the jurors a photostatic copy of a letter signed by George J. Schaefer on March 28, 1934, to Abel Carey Thomas. This letter stated Paramount's willingness to negotiate with Warners for the two theatres mentioned with the understanding that a deal would have to be closed by Aug. 15.

There was no objection to reading the subject matter, but when the Government attorney handed it to the colored juror, both ex-Senator James A. Reed and Wood disapproved on the ground Hardy should only do one or the other. However, Judge Moore thought otherwise and so ruled.

Hardy on Defensive

Hardy seemingly was on the defensive, rather than the offensive, for the greater part of the day. He met continued opposition by defense counsel, particularly when he tried to get certain subpoenaed documents of Skouras Super Theatres from Warners. Both sides had argued the admissibility of this evidence for an hour yesterday and for most of the morning. The debate ended with Judge Moore holding his decision in abeyance.

The afternoon session was another hectic affair with Wood experiencing considerable difficulty in the cross-examination of J. M. Ulmer of Ulmer, Berne & Gordon, Cleveland legal firm. At one time the controversy became so heated that Judge Moore had to call a halt, declaring, "We're not going to try this Ohio case."

Ulmer testified he had attended a conference at Herman Starr's office on Aug. 14, 1933. He said he visited the Warner vice-president in connection with "an alleged conspiracy suit" he had filed on behalf of the Capitol, Wheeling, W. Va., against Warners. During the session, Ulmer said, Starr told him that "when he was in a situation like that he knew how to handle it."

The Cleveland attorney stated further that Starr told him that "in similar situations Warners would buy up bonds and force the bondholders out." Wood objected to "similar situations" being included but was overruled. Starr also said, according to Ulmer, that "where they found an owner of the theatre in a weak position as to his equity, the company would pay him a few dollars and buy him out."

Ulmer testified he answered Starr: "I don't care what you do in St. Louis, I won't stand by in our situation and let the bondholders get an unfair deal. I don't care if you have the product tied up," he said.

Defense Sustained

After Ulmer completed this statement, Gentry and Lashly objected and asked Judge Moore to instruct the jury to the effect that neither Paramount nor RKO had any part in the meeting or conversation. Although for three days the judge has been overruling objections of this nature, he sustained both attorneys today and advised the jurors accordingly. Wood also objected on behalf of Harry M. Warner and Gradwell L. Sears and likewise was sustained.

Wood accused Ulmer of making "false charges" in the Capitol suit and wanted to introduce a decree of the court to prove his point. This was objected to by Hardy and sustained. The Warner counsel then stated he was trying to prove "the obvious animus of the witness" and again another whispered conference among the many lawyers and Judge Moore took place. The decree was not allowed, but after firing a number of questions at the witness, Wood asked him, "In other words the part of the conspiracy which was heard was found untrue?" Ulmer replied, "Yes, that's right, but we have appealed."

Another question was put to the Cleveland lawyer, who answered it with some of his own remarks, following which Wood requested that "the witness be impeached as far as his testimony is concerned." However, Hardy took up his cross-examination and asked Ulmer if he made the Starr statements "out of malice." The Ohio lawyer denied this. He also asked him if he was "fabricating" and another negative answer was recorded.

Ulmer then revealed that an appeal had been taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals in Virginia on the court order and it is set for hearing Nov. 19.

Branch Manager Testifies

Maurice Schweitzer, local branch manager for Paramount, was the last witness. He was queried by Hardy on the interstate angle of print shipments, the sales setup and process of closing deals. Schweitzer said he had nothing to do with the Paramount contract for the Orpheum and Shubert. Asked the number of pictures the company released during the last three years, Schweitzer said that in 1932-33 there were 59; in 1933-34, 57; in 1934-35, 52.

Samuel W. Fordyce, another local Paramount attorney, made the local branch manager go into details on the inspection of films at the exchange. Wood then asked him a few questions on this subject when suddenly Reed's attention was directed to Hardy. The former Senator objected to the "sneering remarks" of the Government counsel and the Judge upheld him.

Later Hardy got himself in wrong with the judge again when he interrupted Fordyce's cross-examination of Schweitzer by saying, "What's the difference?" Judge Moore again advised the prosecuting attorney of the impropriety of his act.

The jury only put in a half-day today, returning on Monday, when the trial is resumed for the fifteenth day.

Skouras Is Excused

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—Spyros Skouras has been indefinitely excused and will not be called by the Government as a witness although he may be recalled for the prosecution's rebuttal. He, E. L. Alperson and William T. Powers left for New York by air this afternoon.

Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy, Cresson E. Smith and William Mallard planed east tonight.

J. R. McDonough, president of Radio Pictures, who was slated to leave New York for Hollywood on Thursday, is still in Gotham where he will remain for a few more days probably in connection with reorganization plans of RKO, according to word received here tonight.

Says Pool Is Delayed

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—James Coston, Chicago zone manager for Warner Theatres, said today the proposed pool in Hammond, Ind., with B. & K. will not become effective until Nov. 1 because Paramount's holdings there continue to be involved in receivership and the plan to take them out is still before the court for approval.

Coston spent an hour at the trial today and then left for the Windy City.

excessive and many of them should be disallowed in toto by the court.

Milton C. Weisman, proponent of the Fox Met reorganization plan as receiver for Fox Theatres, also voiced objections to some of the applications on the grounds that they were excessive. Weisman is asking the court for $75,000 for his services and $24,509 for his disbursements. Isidor J. Kresel, counsel for Weisman in the reorganization proceedings, is asking a fee of $50,000. The court indicated the application would be disallowed.

Following the hearing the petitions for fees were taken under advisement by the court and a decision is expected in a few weeks.

Fred W. Beetson will represent affiliated industries. The contact committee will meet at the Hays office each week to report progress.

Sound Patent Probe Halted Unexpectedly

mittee members concerning the ethics of having as officers of the committee David G. Berger and Robert Robins, who are identified with litigation pending in the Federal courts here against A. T. & T. and its subsidiaries, led to dissension within the committee which culminated at its noonday executive session in the unanimous decision to adjourn. The association of Berger, who was acting as counsel for the Sirovich committee, with six lawsuits asking $27,000,000 damages from A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi, and Robins' association with Berger, were disclosed by MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Wednesday. Copies of this issue were observed to be in the possession of members of the Congressional committee yesterday.

Moves for Adjournment

It was also learned from the same source that Berger and Robins, the latter acting as an investigator for the committee, would undoubtedly have no further association with its activities. Although Sirovich denied that Berger and Robins had anything to do with the adjournment of the committee, and that the resignations of either had been received, very definite indications exist pointing to the opposite.

Just prior to the noonday recess yesterday Congressman Randolph Perkins of New Jersey, a committee member, moved for permanent adjournment of the hearing. Robins, injecting himself into the proceedings publicly for the first time, addressed the committee in opposition, stating that 10 or more prominent film executives had been subpoenaed and should be placed on the stand.

"Who are you?" Perkins inquired of Robins.

He was told that Robins was "clerk" of the House Committee on Patents.

Perkins then asked that the record of the proceedings show this identification of the committee's "investigator" and that the record also be made to show who the attorney for the committee was. The session was then hurriedly and somewhat informally recessed by Sirovich, with the understanding prevailing that it would be resumed at the usual time, between 2 and and 2:30 o'clock.

"Hot Session"

When the committee finally filed in at 4 o'clock and read its brief statement bringing the hearings to a close, it was admitted by several of the committee members that a "hot session" had ensued in the meantime. It was later ascertained from authoritative sources that Berger and Robins had been the principal subjects of discussion at the closed meeting and that, while the committee would continue its exploration of patent fields other than those involving the film and communications industries, there was nothing to indicate that Berger and Robins would be identified with it further.

Berger took no part in the interrogation of witnesses before the committee either Thursday or yesterday.

Although Will H. Hays, Al Lichtman, Jack Cohn, E. W. Hammons and other film executives were at the hearing room prepared to testify, Kent was the only witness placed on the stand. His testimony concerned the many claims to patent validity made by various interests during the early days of sound and the reasons why many large film companies finally elected to take Erpi licensing.

Kent testified that the negotiations with Erpi by a Hays' organization committee consumed about 18 months and were accompanied by careful tests of many other brands of recording and reproducing equipment. He said that the principal considerations involved in the final decision to take Western Electric equipment were its quality, the ability of the company to manufacture it in large quantities, quickly; the financial responsibility of the company to protect its patents and their users, and the existence of an organization large enough to service and maintain the equipment once it was installed.

Equipment Investment Large

"A producing company's investment in sound equipment was so large," Kent said, "that a tie-up with a manufacturer without responsibility could have had serious enough results to put any producer in bankruptcy."

He said that Erpi first asked eight per cent of a licensee's gross but that the negotiations eventually ended in a flat royalty charge of $500 per reel. He said that a sound manufacturer's responsibility and resources were more important to the producer licensee than the cost of the equipment in replying to a question as to whether he didn't think Western Electric should be required to license any manufacturer who sought to make sound equipment. Kent also testified that Erpi's contract had never kept him from selling film to any exhibitor, regardless of what brand of reproducing equipment was used in his theatre.

Kent said he did not regard film producing competition from Erpi "seriously," but if the company became a menace in his own field he'd do "the best job of hollering" he knew how to do. Queried on operations of the Hays' organization, Kent estimated it received about $600,000 annually from fees based on member companies' grosses. Fox Film paid about $100,000 annually, he said.

Mexico Cuts Duties To Get Film Supply

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 18.—To relieve the film shortage brought about by the strike of American distributors' employes the Finance Ministry has relaxed import duties on all films except those of companies involved in the strike.

Up to 4,000 kilograms (about 10,000 pounds) of film can be imported from any country at a minimum duty of 35 pesos ($9.75) per kilogram until Dec. 31.

Go on Individually

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 18.—The Alhambra Theatre Corp., of which Mascoli, Longo and Rosso are the active members, will be dissolved, each of the members planning to operate one of the corporation's three theatres. The Carol and Alhambra in Waterbury, and the Community in Oakland are the corporation-owned houses which will be allotted to individual owners.

French Film Moves Cause Worry Here

American distributors and the Hays office are watching developments in France with the closest attention, because of French producers' pressure upon their government to issue a decree designed to limit American distribution and aid French production.

Until the end of this month the French Cabinet can issue decrees which have the effect of laws without action by Parliament.

For months undercover discussions have been in progress with French officials in an effort to revive a decree brought up several months ago, but not put into effect after protests by exhibitors and U. S. distributors. No official word has been given out, but French papers indicate that the new proposal would place a drastic quota on exhibition of foreign pictures, would place collection of rentals in the hands of a bureau of the Ministry of Education, and would require that a percentage of these be used to foster French production.

Predictions have been made that American companies would be forced to withdraw from the market if the decree in its revised form is as drastic as French reports indicate.

San Francisco Ups Advertising Space

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—Amusement page advertising has been booming steadily in the past few weeks, with nearly all first runs increasing lineage used. Presence in town of two roadshows at legitimate houses, with a third in prospect, indicates better business.

The United Artists, reopened a month ago by Herman Cohen, is plugging the second week of "Dark Angel." The Warfield is a close second on expenditure, benefiting considerably in Hearst papers on space devoted to "Shipmates Forever" by the Warner-Marion Davies tieup.

Golden Gate is spending money on both its own programs and those of its newly-acquired "continuation house," the Embassy. Paramount and Orpheum are "upping" to meet competition.

In the legitimate field Curran and Geary Theatres are buying space for roadshows, while Minsky interests have spent thousands of dollars in the past two weeks advertising "Life Begins At Minsky's."

Legion Trip Popular

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—The novelty of an installation of officers on a ship has caused an influx of reservations for the three-day cruise planned by the film post of the American Legion. Activities begin when the New York boat leaves the dock at 5:30 o'clock Saturday, Nov. 2. A studio trip in New York is planned as a part of the week-end celebration which this year is taking the place of the organization's annual banquet and dance.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Thousand Dollars a Minute"

(Levine-Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Combining a capable cast with good writing and direction in a story with popular appeal, this picture should please on most programs. To settle a wager between millionaires, Roger Pryor, newshound, is commissioned to spend $1,000 a minute for 12 consecutive hours. Spending conditions are outlined in the bet and Edward Brophy is sent along to insure their observation. When Edgar Kennedy, detective, learns Pryor is buying expensive jewelry, furs, an auto and other merchandise, he determines to question Pryor, particularly as Pryor's last news assignment was the coverage of a bank robbery.

Pryor and Brophy, then faced with a double obstacle of eluding Kennedy and getting rid of the money, enter on a long chase which eventually lands them in the hospital for a finish with Pryor buying radium at the last minute to get in under the wire. Additional complications come when Leila Hyams is introduced as Pryor's fiancee, who is trapped between love and the belief Pryor has committed a crime.

The direction by Aubrey Scotto is sufficiently fast to make the situations seem plausible. Joe Fields' screenplay of Everett Freeman's story produces comedy without resorting to gags. Credit is also due to Jack Natteford and Clair Church, who did the adaptation. Sterling Halloway, Herman Bing and Purnell Pratt stand out in the supporting cast. The picture can hold its own as a fast farce comedy.

Production Code Seal No. 1609. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"To Beat the Band"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Hugh Herbert's comicalities, whimsies and broad antics are distinctive assets of this film. Present, too, are Helen Broderick, Eric Blore, Fred Keating, Ray Mayer and others, but the material as unfolded gives them little opportunity for their talents.

Herbert, a nitwit heir to $59,000,000, pines for flapper Phyllis Brooks. A favorite aunt dies, leaving a will making Herbert the sole heir providing he marries a widow, otherwise her money goes to her favorite night club orchestra. The usual farce complications follow, involving Roger Pryor, intent on committing suicide, but who ultimately marries Phyllis, and Miss Broderick getting Herbert. As the plot unfolds musical numbers are introduced by the California Collegians and a feminine band led by Joy Hodges. "Miss America 1936" is one of the big numbers.

Eric Blore plays Herbert's butler, and Ray Mayer is the amusing legal assistant to Miss Broderick. Evelyn Poe, small-sized comedienne, shows promise. Ben Stoloff directed from a story by George Marion, Jr., and screenplay by Rian James. Zion Myers produced. Entertainment elements are present, but as a whole the show doesn't seem to jell, although it appears suitable with a more serious picture on a dual bill.

Production Code Seal No. 1536. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Loew's - 306 Agree, Ending Operator Row

RKO Expected to Join in 10-Year Pact Soon

Loew's and RKO have signed new 10-year contracts with Local 306 embodying the wage scale provisions agreed upon several weeks ago and providing for mandatory increases every two years on a scale to be agreed upon by a board of four arbitrators, the union stated on Saturday.

RKO officials denied that the circuit had signatured the new pact yet but indicated that it would probably do so some time this week.

The contract is cancellable after seven years at the election of either party. According to the union, the pact also provides for one week's vacation with pay for every man annually. This provision was described as an innovation in labor contracts. The arbitration board will consist of two circuit and two union men and will be the final authority in the establishment of the new wage schedules at the end of every two-year period.

The new schedules provide for a rate of $1.86 per hour for neighbor-

Para Men Say B. & K. Will Get Clearance

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Paramount officials here admit they have been advised by the home office to give B. & K. seven days' clearance over general release as demanded. They say independent deals have been signed, but that these contracts will have to be changed.

Fox, M-G-M, Universal and RKO contracts with B. & K. are reported not to have been signed, as they have refused thus far to grant the clearance. It is reported that Warners may give the clearance and alter contracts already made.

A meeting is scheduled Monday for further discussion of the problem.

Trust Case Enters Its Fourth Week in St. Louis This Morning

St. Louis, Oct. 20.—Monday begins the fourth week and 15th day of the criminal trial in which five film executives, their companies and subsidiaries are charged with allegedly conspiring to withhold product from the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, which are being operated by F. & M.

Saturday was declared a holiday, so far as the trial was concerned, by Federal Judge George H. Moore, when defense counsel suggested that attorneys in the case should be given this day off to devote to their other business. This indicates that this may become a regular procedure, inasmuch as daily sessions, except Saturday, wind up at 5 P. M., and do not give the lawyers a chance to dispose of other business matters which may require their personal attention.

Circuit Lease Moves to Get Sabath Study

A detailed investigation of the procedures followed by large circuits in the reorganization of theatre properties in recent years will be made by the Sabath Congressional committee when it reconvenes here in December, Congressman A. J. Sabath, chairman of the committee, said Saturday. Particular study will be given to the disavowal of theatre leases by holding companies in receivership or bankruptcy, he said. S. A. Lynch, theatre reorganization advisor for Paramount, will be sought as a witness, it was learned.

The Sabath committee wound up its current activities here late last week and left over the week-end to begin regional hearings at Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and in California, where conditions are believed to be

New Exhibitor Charges Pour In On Hardy

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—Complaints by exhibitors against major distributors are coming in here at the rate of three a day and, so far, have mounted to 25 since Oct. 4.

Government officials here in connection with the trial against Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell Sears, George J. Schaefer, Ned E. Depinet, RKO, Paramount and Warners and subsidiaries, on alleged conspiracy charges, are the authority for the statement.

The protests against alleged malpractices are made both orally and in letter form, it was revealed, and all are noted and sent to the department's headquarters in Washington for study.

According to an authoritative source, the complaints made are chiefly against Fox, Paramount, RKO

Films Dominating B'way Sector; All Theatres Open

From 42nd Street east and west of Broadway to Columbus Circle, film houses are predominant, with burlesque and one musical show standing in the way of 100% film presentation. This is the first time in years that the street has had every picture house, barring none, open and running screen entertainment. Even in the "50's," where a "hoodoo" hangs over certain houses there have been reopenings. The Warner, on 52nd Street, now renamed the New Yorker, is playing double features. The seats have been restored since the spectacle of "The World a Million Years Ago" roared and undulated there.

On 42nd St. there are the double feature grind houses, the Wallack, Sam Harris, Liberty, Times Square, Selwyn and the recently closed Lyric, all competing with big admission signs displaying the prices which run from 10c. to 25c. Competition from burlesque is centered in the Republic, Apollo and Eltinge, all of which have films as a program filler. The grind houses feature third and fourth runs. East of Broadway the

Gov't. Winds Up Case Today At St. Louis

Defense Will Ask Court For Acquittal Order

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—With 98 per cent of its evidence already in, the Government expects to complete presentation of its anti-trust evidence against major executives and their companies here on Monday, Russell Hardy, special assistant attorney general, said yesterday.

The Department of Justice hopes to get through with the introduction of exhibits and the examination of new witnesses before the court recesses for lunch tomorrow, but Hardy is not overlooking the possibility that defense counsel may delay his windup by protracted cross examination and objections.

Hardy has about 30 exhibits he plans to enter on the record, including Warners' contracts and leases for the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto. Included in the Shubert-Rialto lease is said to be a clause which assertedly provides that if Warners secure the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central the circuit has the right to relegate this house to second run.

From eight to nine witnesses are scheduled to be put on the stand. Only two of these will be out-of-towners, it

The statement on the signing of the contract was ascribed only to C. C. Moskowitz of Loew's and Joseph Basson and Frank Ruddock of Local 306, further indicating that RKO has not yet signatured the pact.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

STRANGE are the ways of government. At least, of some of its commissions. Glaring in the inevitable inferences which the facts compel was last week's display at the Fifth Avenue Hotel where William Sirovich, heading a Congressional committee empowered to putter around sound patents and other matters as well, eventually got his official proceedings so snarled up that the hearings were abruptly terminated Friday on the flimsy excuse that enough of daylight had been thrown into the facts after stating the night before that the hearings would consume at least three more days. . . .

And yet there is sufficient reason to believe the halt was predicated on and, perhaps, found propitious for other causes naturally not reflected in any of the brief and unsatisfactory public utterances made by the committee anywhere along its official line. Those causes have names which are David G. Berger and Robert Robins. The former is listed as "of counsel" in a variety of litigation on file in Federal court here against A. T. and T. and its subsidiaries. While it is an entirely safe conclusion to draw that he no longer is, he, nevertheless, was counsel as well for the Sirovich committee. The latter, chief drum beater for the American Society for the Protection of Motion Picture Theatres which finds anathema in all things connected, remotely or otherwise, with A. T. and T., Western Electric and Erpi, was an official investigator. The evidence now points to his complete disassociation with Sirovich and his fishing expedition committee. . . .

The curious picture which shapes itself from the situation which was, but no longer is, shone brightly, but unfortunately, for its principals and requires no critical cross-sectioning beyond the highlights which tell their own damaging story. Here was the cimcumstance of Berger, "of counsel" with Ralph Vatner as attorney tying in with six suits seeking judgments totaling $27,000,000 from A. T. and T. and its subsidiaries. Here, also, was Robins, avowedly anti-telephone, an investigator. Here, thirdly and brooking no denial because it is the truth, is Vatner whose name is lettered on the door leading into Robins' office in the Paramount Building. . . .

Cloaked with a Federal investigating warranty to go as far as it likes in digging into the records of companies previously sued civilly, Berger and Robins may not have jockeyed themselves into the personnel of the Sirovich committee for the purpose of fact-gathering for ultimate use in behalf of those suits and this is not to say flatly they did. Rather does this department present the facts and permit the discerning reader to draw whatever conclusions he may elect to draw. This department, however, asks leave to set forth here that it has its own ideas and to declare it will be quick on the draw in defense of them. . . .

Fortunately, the glaring situation did not escape certain members of the committee. There developed the question of ethics as it applied to the official position occupied by both Berger and Robins, an executive session of which no stenographic record is understood to have been recorded and, right away quick, a decision to end that phase of the committee's activities which had to do with sound patents. It proves, if nothing else, that in Washington's halls of government valor still prevails. Or is this space making the mistake of confusing it with discretion? . . .

New Technical Gains Coming Before SMPE

Engineers in Capital for Four-Day Convention

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — Technicians from all over the country, with representation from several foreign countries, are here for the semi-annual convention of the Society of M. P. Engineers which opens Monday morning at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The four-day meeting will be devoted largely to discussion of the recent achievements in film science—in photography, color as well as the usual black and white, and in recording and reproduction of sound.

Nearly 50 papers will be read in the eight separately programmed sessions.

Following registration this morning, the annual meeting and election of officers will be held, preceded by a report of the convention committee by Chairman W. C. Kunzmann, and address of welcome by President H. G. Tasker and the reading of the report of the memorial committee by Chairman E. R. Geib.

Technical Papers General

The technical papers of the morning session are of a rather general character, relating for the most part to the utilization of films in various activities.

An informal luncheon will be held at 12:30 P.M. for members and their guests. Addresses will be given by Representative Sol Bloom, of New York; Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, of the National Recovery Administration; and Capt. John G. Bradley, of the Division of Motion Pictures and Sound Recording of the National Archives.

In the afternoon a general session will be held at which stereo-photography, polarized light, sprocket dimensions and theatre design will come under discussion.

The first of the two evening programs of pictures will be featured by a demonstration of a 16-mm. color sound motion picture by H. H. Jones of Buffalo. Recent outstanding features and short subjects will also be screened in the hotel's little theatre.

Throughout the convention an exhibit of newly developed apparatus will be held at the hotel. The display will consist either of all-new apparatus or of new gadgets for now standard equipment.

Banquet on Wednesday

The semi-annual banquet and dance, which will highlight the social aspects of the meetings, will be held Wednesday in the Continental Room. A special roster of speakers is being assembled, as well as a program of entertainment of unusual calibre.

The hotel management is arranging for golfing privileges for S.M.P.E. delegates at several courses in the neighborhood. Tennis courts and a riding stable are available at the hotel. Special efforts are being made to provide a most enjoyable time for the wives and lady guests of the delegates to the convention. Looking 'Em Over

"Grand Exit"

(Columbia)

A mystery story based on a hunt for a pyromaniac, this film may hold youngsters throughout its length, but it's hardly adult fare. Not much emphasis is placed on the romantic element.

Its chief source of excitement is in fire engines and fires. They are in every sequence and some of the fire shots, apparently culled from newsreel shots, are spectacular to a degree.

A series of mysterious blazes cause the directors of a big insurance company to send for Edmund Lowe, investigator who has been dismissed some time before. Lowe, debonair as usual, insists that Onslow Stevens be kept as his assistant. A regular spectator at the fires they cover is Ann Sothern. Both fall in love with her, but when Loew's suspicions finally center on the girl he has her arrested. In the end it develops that the culprit who has been starting the blazes is her father.

Lowe dominates the film throughout. Miss Sothern is adequate without being spectacular. Stevens is convincing. Erle C. Kenton's direction seems to have taken advantage of all of the story's possibilities, such as they were.

Production Code Seal No. 1,525. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"The Rider of the Law"

(Supreme)

More or less routine western material, with the usual and expected portions of western mountain scenery as background, fights—fist and gun—and pursuits at the gallop, this features Bob Steele, as the young man who comes into the western community terrorized by bandits and cleans them out, to the tune of a little romance.

For the audiences who still enjoy their western action films this should be found satisfactory entertainment, especially when played in the weekend action position. Taking care of the other half of the romantic aspect of the film with Steele is blonde Gertrude Messinger.

Steele, in the disguise of a greenhorn with shell-rimmed glasses, rides into town. He is in reality a state officer authorized to clean out the town as he finds it necessary. He finds it so, and does it, with action for the youngsters and oldsters who like their westerns. Robert Bradbury directed.

Production Code Seal No. 1,123. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Police Use Trailer

Bridgeport, Oct. 20.—For the first time here the police department has turned to film theatres for aid in capturing a murderer. Short trailers asking for public cooperation in giving information and describing the killer are used. Two policemen were killed.

Madison, Cincy Operators Raised; Other Parleys On

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 20.—The Musicians' Union is demanding a hike in the "stand-by" wage from $37.50 for each three-day performance of any stage show here to $67.50, and has threatened to put the Orpheum, Capitol and Parkway on the unfair list unless the demand is met.

Managers say they will meet the "stand-by" increases but will pay the additional $30 only under protest.

Talks New K. C. Scales

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—Harland Holmden, third vice-president of the I. A. T. S. E., is conferring with downtown and subsequent run managers. Holmden is in complete charge of Operators' Local No. 171.

This move followed the reaching of a stalemate between the local, which had asked a 20 per cent increase, and downtown houses; and the inability of the local to secure contracts with suburban and subsequent runs during the past three years. Labor matters for the latter group are being handled by the Kansas City Theatre Owners' Emergency Council, composed of L. J. McCarthy, Jay Means, E. Rolsky, Ed Dubinsky and C. A. Schultz.

Cincy Operators Raised

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—Operators in suburban houses have been granted an increase of $2.50 a week per man under an agreement recently negotiated. The new schedule is $65 for Class A; $52.50 for Class B and $47.50 for Class C houses, with one man to the booth. The agreement, effective as of Sept. 1, is for one year.

No change has been made in the first run scale, it is understood.

Newport Operators Quit

NEWPORT, Oct. 20.—Differences over wages caused two operators at the Strand to stage a walkout recently, and the show was delayed until two men were recruited from Providence. The home boys obtained a permit and walked up and down in front of the theatre on picket duty.

It is reported that the operators received $64.75 for a 42-hour week, but that the theatre officials had requested the union to cut the rate to $50.

St. Louis Theatre Changes Plentiful

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—Changes in the theatre situation in this territory are numerous. They include new houses, reopenings and transfers.

Latest of the new houses is the Rodgers, operated by the Rodgers Circuit, at Cairo, Ill. It was opened ceremoniously with Fred Wehrenberg a guest. The Opera House at Cairo has been reopened and the Jackson has been closed.

Carr & Burgess are operating the recently reopened Opera House at Eminence, Mo. E. D. Courter has transferred the Courter at Hamilton, Mo., to D. L. Lowrie. A. B. Jeffries has taken over the Ozark, formerly the Turk, at Williamsville, Mo. The Osceola at Osceola, Mo., has been reopened by Ancell Lacy. Hall & Hart have taken over the Ashland at Ashland, Ill.

Fanchon & Marco have closed the Missouri here.

Reopen at Stratford

STRATFORD, Conn., Oct. 20.—Al Pickus has reopened the Stratford after alterations which include a new front. The town manager and local notables turned out for the ceremonies.

Ansonia House to Open

ANSONIA, Conn., Oct. 20.—The Tremont will be opened by Warners by the end of October, in accordance with a lease negotiated last summer which provides that the house shall be open six months of the year. Frank Shields, Capitol manager, will also manage the Tremont as a first run with programs week-ends only.

Take Osawatomie House

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—Commonwealth Amusement Corp. has taken over the Zephyr, operated by B. F. Churchill at Osawatomie, Kan., and opened it last week under the name of the Kansan. Vaughn Mann, formerly at the Mokan here, will manage. The house has been remodeled.

This gives Commonwealth 21 houses in Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

Take Over Ashland House

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—The Paramount, Ashland, Ky., a Publix operation in receivership, has been taken over by Boyd Theatres, Inc., recently organized here by Maurice White, Abe Libson and Ben L. Heidingsfeld. The house will be operated with three and four changes a week at 25 and 35 cents.

The same interests organized Forland Theatres, Inc., about a year ago for acquisition of the Forest and Norland, local neighborhoods, and later formed Cohill Theatres, Inc., to take over the Hollywood, at College Hill, suburb of Cincinnati.

Conditions Better In Kansas City Area

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—Reports on general conditions in this territory are favorable. Crop conditions are better now than they have been for several years.

Conditions are very good in Nebraska and Iowa and exhibitors are happy over grosses, according to E. C. Leeves, district sales manager for Western Electric, who has just returned from a trip. In the extreme western part of Nebraska, where it is and has been dry, the Government has quite a bit of work under way and this is holding things up.

To Close Akron National

AKRON, Oct. 20.—The National, 33-year-old house, is to be closed by Frank C. Buben. He has taken a lease on the National City Bank property and expects to have it converted into a theatre by Nov. 1. It will be called the National.

A new company is to be formed at Lisbon, O., to take over the Lisbon and Rex theatres from the Peoples' Savings and Loan Co. and the Firestone Bank, respectively.

The Twin City Theatre Co., operators of two houses at Uhrichsville, O., has purchased the Lincoln at Dennison.

Close Columbus Majestic

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 20.—The RKO Majestic, first run, has gone dark, with no intimation as to when it will be relighted. According to C. Harry Schreiber, city manager, a change to second run policy was contemplated, which precipitated some differences with the operators' union. The house closed concurrently with formal opening of the new RKO Grand, the third in the local circuit string.

The Majestic is operated under lease, which has two years and three months to run.

Price Tip Reaction Tested by Trailers

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—Trailers are being used by Fox Midwest to test audience reactions to a one-cent rise in adult admissions for the purpose of covering the sales tax.

Audiences are asked to applaud if they approve. Under the plan children's admissions would be left unchanged. Theatres would absorb the tax on the youngsters' tickets and make a slight profit on the adult tickets.

At present, theatre men claim, long lines form while cashiers are trying to manipulate the milk bottle cap tokens for mills and business is lost as a result.

Arizona Houses in Shifts

PHOENIX, Oct. 20.—The Apache, operated by R. A. Coates, has been closed. So has the Magna in Superior, Ariz., which was under operation of Dallas Allhands. Bishop Hendrickson has taken over the Social in Snowflake, Ariz.

To Open Salem Empire

This house, a former legitimate stand, has been dark for years. City Manager Philip Bloomberg is relegating the Plaza, acquired from Joseph Morency, to a subsequent run, 15-cent house in direct opposition to the Rialto, operated by Charles Goldreyer. The Empire will carry on the Plaza's policy of first run, dividing these with the Paramount.

Offering first loop showings of the class B pictures and second run on some of those that have played downtown, the house also presents a stage show. Five or six vaudeville acts are presented weekly prior to a stage revue with Mark Fisher.

The full show runs close to three hours with a 25c top until 6 P.M. and 40c for evenings. The gross usually runs over the $15,000 mark, which is well on the profit side of the ledger.

Film Strikers Criticized by Mexico Editor

Points Danger of Loss Of Industry Jobs

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 16.—American distributors, harassed by a strike of exchange workers in the midst of negotiations with the Government for tax cuts, have found a defender in Excelsior, local newspaper.

The paper attacks the demands for 10 to 20 per cent wage increases and points out that withdrawal of American distributors will throw many persons out of work.

"In this republic," the paper points out, "there are 730 cinemas which require 520 feature pictures a year, of which 460 are American, 35 are European and 25 are Mexican. The industry employs 5,000 persons, who, added to their families, make an approximate total of 20,000 who look to this industry for a living. This number can be increased if we include artists, directors, cameramen, sound technicians, decorators, carpenters, electricians, etc.

"The 25 pictures produced in Mexico annually are not enough, as is obvious, to support the 730 cinemas, nor do they (despite the welcome they have been accorded) pay their expenses in the national market and must be exhibited abroad.

"American and European pictures must face the following taxes:

"Film, 35 pesos (3.60 pesos equal one dollar) per kilogram; film without sound, 10 pesos per kilogram; records, 10 pesos each; advertising material, three pesos per kilogram; stamp tax on contracts, five in 1,000; stamp tax for renting, one per cent; income tax, six per cent to 16 per cent on total rentals; share of tax cinemas pay to municipal governments; "absentee" tax on sending money abroad, two per cent to four per cent.

"These combined taxes constitute 40 per cent of the distributors' net income."

The editorial says the industry had a deficit of 63,700 pesos on an income of 400,000 pesos last year.

Big Japan Circuit In Studio Merger

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Oct. 1. — Competition in the production field has undergone a shift as a result of a deal between Toho Eiga Gekijo (Toho Cinema Co.), big theatre circuit, with J. O. Talkie Co. The move is regarded a challenge to the Shochiku Co.

This entrance of Toho into the production field is believed to be due to a conviction on the part of the company's heads that more and better product is required. Heretofore Toho has been supplied with product principally by P. C. L.

Under the new arrangement the production facilities of J. O. and P. C. L. will be united. They will share directors and players, and J. O. will produce eight features, four historical productions and four musicals annually. In addition, P. C. L. will increase its output by 20 features, making the total 28.

A school for sound film players has been started here. About a year ago a stage players' school was opened. The new school is at Ginza and is being conducted by Minoru Takata, who continues his connection with Takata Prod. Courses will last a year. Among the subjects in the course are cinematographic sociology, history of films, cinematographic physics and general studio practice.

Shochiku News is attempting to enlarge its organization for the purpose of making its distribution worldwide.

Austrian Production Gains, Reports Show

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—During 1934 the Austrian film industry was able not only to maintain its scale of production but to increase it, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Gardner Richardson in Vienna. This gain continued during the first quarter of 1935.

In the first quarter of 1935, exportation of Austrian films was nearly double that of the same period in 1934. Production in 1934 consisted of 16 sound features and 155 shorts, compared, respectively, to 15 and 87 in 1933.

Importation of films rose in weight from 453 metric quintals in 1933 to 607 metric quintals in 1934, while the value declined from 3,300,000 to 2,400,000 schillings.

Change Two Titles

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—Titles of two films have been changed at M-G-M. The Jack Benny picture, formerly known as "Chiseling Chiselers," is now "It's In the Air." "The Black Chamber," featuring William Powell, Binnie Barnes and Rosalind Russell, will be called "Rendezvous."

Silverstone Lines Up Units at Denham

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Murray Silverstone, chairman and managing director of United Artists, Ltd., changed plans for use of the new Denham studios of London Film Prod., Ltd. Out of the five floors planned, London will use two and United Artists producers—Selznick, Lasky and possibly Chaplin—another. Of the two remaining floors one, says Silverstone, will be reserved to British independent units on condition that distribution outside U. K. is reserved to U. A. No guarantee of American distribution will be given, but will be forthcoming for product of sufficient standing.

The fifth Denham floor will presumably be occupied by Twentieth Century-Fox, which, Robert T. Kane recently said, would use the studio after making "St. Joan" at Worton Hall.

RKO Men Shifted

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 20.—Changes in the local RKO personnel include promotion of Charles E. Winthrop from assistant at the Palace to manager of the Grand, which has opened under circuit operation. Frank Sebrus, Palace treasurer, is Winthrop's assistant. Howard Puckett comes here from Cleveland as treasurer at the Palace.

Lyle Gann, treasurer of the Majestic, becomes assistant manager at the Palace, and will be succeeded by George Gray, at present Majestic's chief of service.

John Bancroft has been named RKO publicity director, handling the Palace, Majestic and Grand, last mentioned house already opened. He has been serving various publicity accounts here and doing part time work in this capacity for the RKO interests in the past.

O'Neill Back in Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Vaughn O'Neill, formerly assistant manager at Loew's State in Providence, has been appointed assistant at Loew's Orpheum, downtown first run. Arthur I. Tuohy has also returned to this house, as assistant to Manager Vic Morris, from Loew's State uptown.

Atlanta Fox to Reopen

ATLANTA, Oct. 20.—The Fox, recently bought by the city and leased by Lucas & Jenkins, which has been closed since July, will reopen Oct. 25 with "Top Hat." E. E. Whitaker, manager when the house closed, will again be in charge.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 20.—Beverley Baxter, former Toronto piano salesman who rose to the editorship of the London Daily Express, is here on a visit to the home town of his wife. Baxter is now public relations counsel for Gaumont British.

"Lucky Me" for Vallee

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—Rudy Vallee will make "Lucky Me" for Warners instead of "Let's Pretend." There is a strong possibility that "Lucky Me" will be filmed in New York, since Vallee refuses to come to California because of legal difficulties with his former wife, Fay Webb.

Film Income Has Big Gain In Australia

Total of £1,740,315 Is Best Since 1930-31

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, (By Air Mail, via London), Oct. 1.—Gross film rentals in Australia have shown a sharp increase for 1934-35 and have reached the highest point since 1930-31. The total for 1934-35 was £1,740,315, above the previous year by £278,509 and within £421,794 of the record total reached during the boom period of 1929-30.

Last year's increase is especially noteworthy because taxes in the form of customs, duties, primage, etc., totaled £315,043, the highest amount in the history of the industry.

The figures were made public by Sir Victor Wilson, president of the M.P.D.A., membership in which includes M-G-M, Paramount, Fox, Warners, RKO, U. A., Columbia and Universal.

The combined net profits of the Australian companies, after taking into consideration monetary exchange expenses on overseas remittances, were £138,597, against £83,328 in the previous year and £208,509 for 1929-30.

The figures show that of £1,740,315 received for the rental of American films during the year practically £1,000,000 was disbursed in Australia and more than 33 per cent went to the Government. This statement deals only with the operations of distributors. Distributors realize about one-third of their grosses, two-thirds being required for working expenses and taxation.

Colombia Duties Cut On Film, Equipment

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Colombian import duties on American motion pictures and equipment are to be slashed under the reciprocal trade agreement signed in Washington on Sept. 15 and made public last week by the State Department.

The treaty is to become effective 30 days after the exchange of ratifications at Bogota, which has not yet occurred.

Analysis of the concessions to be granted by Colombia shows that the rate on prints is to be reduced from 1.60 pesos to 0.60 peso per gross kilo, as is the rate on projectors and parts, a reduction of 62½ per cent. The rate on films for the popularization of scientific or educational matter is to be reduced from 1.60 pesos to 0.25 peso per gross kilo, a cut of 84.4 per cent.

Hike in Sales Tax Foreseen For Missouri

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—Despite statements of Missouri officials that the one per cent sales tax plus liquor revenue will produce enough to take care of old age pension needs in the state, a report from responsible quarters indicates that there won't be income enough to pay more than $3 apiece to each pensioner under Missouri's new old age pension law.

This gives substance to the strong undercurrent throughout the state for a special session for the purpose of hiking the sales tax.

Attorney General Roy McKittrick at Slater, Mo., said that of estimated new revenue above general revenue for 1931 and 1932, $11,000,000 would remain unappropriated after amounts already budgeted had been spent.

Film men, however, are anticipating an increase in the sales tax. At the KMTA directors' meeting with Ed Kuykendall here the sales tax was discussed. It was the general opinion there that support of a sales tax, or an increase, is the best course for exhibitors to follow. It is probably the surest means of obviating being put in a special category for taxation purposes, with a special amusement tax or taxes as the result. Kuykendall pointed out that this is exactly what happened in Mississippi where theatre men opposed the sales tax and found themselves with a special levy as a result.

In Western Missouri, exhibitors pretty generally are collecting the tax, but not in the eastern section. Observers here regard absorption of the tax by theatres as very hazardous, inasmuch as one of the arguments they most frequently use in combatting taxation is their inability to bear a greater burden.

Kansas theatre men, likewise, believe that support of a sales tax will identify them with other taxable groups and will thus avoid their becoming the object of discriminatory levies. This is in case Kansas goes to the sales tax, which has been talked some time. There is considerable pressure now for a special session of the Kansas legislature.

While in Kansas City, Kuykendall admitted that so far as he could learn the sentiment of exhibitors nationally was favorable toward a national sales tax.

Gov't. Winds Up Case Today At St. Louis

is said. One may be Austin C. Keough, general counsel for Paramount, who was excused last week subject to call. Dinty Moore, local city manager for the three Warner houses, and a few exchange managers, including Lou Ellman of RKO are also on the list to be called for testimony on interstate commerce angles. Whether Keough will definitely be put on the stand is now being determined by Government counsel as they round out their program.

Government men say they could "stop right now" on the evidence, but there are "just a few fringes" which they would like to clean up before officially declaring, "We rest."

18 Have Testified

Of the 40 Government witnesses subpoenaed, 18 already have testified in the 14 days of trial. More than a dozen will not be called, including Spyros Skouras, Milton B. Arthur, Neil F. Agnew, Irving Lesser and Fred Wehrenberg, it is stated. All but Wehrenberg have been excused subject to call. They may, however, be brought back later for the Government's rebuttal. Those who have testified so far are: Harry C. Arthur, Thomas N. Dysart, Clarence M. Turley, Allen L. Snyder, Jack A. Partington, Joseph A. Grand, David Levinson, Jacob Chassnoff, Jules Levy, Cresson Smith, John S. Leahy, Frederick Kreissman, M. A. Rosenthal, Frederick W. Strauss, J. M. Ulmer, Hall Walsh, Maurice Schweitzer and Gordon A. Youngman. All but the last three also testified before the Grand Jury on Jan. 8-10 when the indictments were handed down.

May Not Call Dozen

It is explained it will not be necessary to call a dozen or more of those summoned because the testimony already given has covered the foundation desired by the Government.

Defense counsel are understood to be working on a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal which they will submit to the court immediately upon completion of the Government's case. This formality is usually tried by the defense to avoid the necessity of presenting its case.

Reports in the court corridors have it that the defense will take from three days to one week.

A decision on the admissibility of Skouras Super Theatre contracts of 1928 is slated to be made tomorrow by Judge George H. Moore before Hardy resumes his case.

The local Loew house shares the premiere honor because Allen Jones is in the cast. For three years he was the leading man in the St. Louis Municipal Opera.

"particularly rotten," according to Sabath.

"More than 500 instances of theatre lease cancellations occurred in this country during the past few years under the cloak of receiverships," Sabath said. "Many of these receiverships were obtained by collusion and fraud, information in the possession of our committee indicates. Frequently the companies involved were not insolvent."

Sabath related that his committee had met here with eight Federal judges and had discussed this evidence of collusion and fraud and steps that should be taken by the judiciary to prevent its recurrence.

The Sabath committee was appointed to investigate real estate bond reorganizations as carried out under Section 77-B of the bankruptcy law, and will make recommendations to Congress for amendments to correct any abuses of Section 77-B discovered as a result of the investigation. Sabath said that certain to be included in any recommendations made by the committee would be amendments to the law which would place a limitation on fees which could be asked by attorneys, reorganization committees, trustees and others for their services in a reorganization proceeding, and measures which would curb the activities of "chiseling lawyers."

Bomb Vancouver House

VANCOUVER, Oct. 20.—A charge of dynamite exploding beneath the garage of Paul Harmon, independent theatre operator, at his home was the latest note in an intermittent projectionists' war. Harmon is a member of a Detroit projectionists union, but has never affiliated with the Vancouver union and says he has received several anonymous letters and phone calls telling him to get out of town.

New Exhibitor Charges Pour In On Hardy

and Warners and very few have been registered against Universal, United Artists and M-G-M. No one here would divulge the number of grievances registered against each company or the names of individuals and companies so complaining.

During the past year, it was estimated by a Department of Justice representative, between 125 and 150 complaints have been filed at Washington. All are investigated and many have no grounds for complaint, it was said. About 50 field men are continuously checking on the charges made.

It was pointed out by Government men that, since the local case has been widely publicized in the newspapers, the number of new complaints has more than doubled the heretofore regular flow of "anti-trust" grievances at Washington. Several so-called important cases are expected to reach the courts for trial shortly after the St. Louis criminal and civil actions have been decided.

Brought Four Assistants

Asked what case would be next on the court calendar for trial after the two local suits are disposed of, a Government representative refused to comment other than state:

"If I knew I wouldn't tell you."

Whether or not Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney in the present trial, will represent the Government in the next case to hit the courts is not known. Assignment of counsel on behalf of the attorney general's office rests with Homer S. Cummings in Washington.

In prosecuting the present action, Hardy has not called upon Harry Blanton, local district attorney, for much assistance. He brought with him four of his own men from the anti-trust division at the capital, namely, William R. Benham, Harold L. Schilz, Dwight L. Savage and John Claggett.

Wisconsin Playdate Law Test Postponed

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 20.—Court action to test the legality of Wisconsin's preferred playdate law enacted by the 1935 legislature is still in the air. No date for a hearing on the case which was indefinitely postponed Sept. 30 by Federal Judge F. A. Geiger has been set.

Both M-G-M and Fox are contesting the law on the ground that it is unconstitutional because it interferes with the rights of the plaintiffs under the U. S. copyright laws. The film companies were granted temporary restraining orders on Sept. 16 preventing state officials from enforcing the new act.

The new statute was sponsored by the I. E. P. A., which is assisting the attorney general's office in defending the act. Present indications are that the Wisconsin law will not be tested until after a decision has been handed down in the Ohio case, which is scheduled for some time in November.

The Lighter Side

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—BEN B. REINGOLD, local Fox exchange manager, had an unlucky day Friday. Breaking away a few minutes to 10 from his office, BEN decided to take a taxi to the court. He did and en route his hat flew out of the window. He wouldn't stop the cab for fear of losing time and so is out a chapeau. During one of the recesses that very same day, he started pitching quarters with JOE GARRISON, local Universal branch head, in the hope of winning a couple of cartwheels, and so to make up for the hat. GARRISON took him over like Grant and his Richmond and now BEN's trying to figure out whether or not to ask the government to make up the loss of his headgear. Some chance, he's got.

Films Lead B'dway; All Houses Open

Cameo plays Russian films to a proletarian but steady patronage.

North on Broadway from 42nd St., the George M. Cohan started the novelty of displaying star names on the marquee and plastering the box-office and surrounding space with a heavily adjectived re-writing of the feature advertising.

Across on 7th Ave. great activity marks the erection of the new Rialto to open toward the close of the year.

In Times Square the "steady" theatres hold forth led by the Paramount, across the street from which are the lots which formerly were the sites of the Criterion and Loew's New York. A little further north the State, Loew house, is the only theatre in the area presenting vaudeville. Still on Times Square there are the Embassy, newsreel house with prices ranging from 15c. to 25c. Next door is the Palace, now a "double" house, but still the congregating place of various vaudeville acts—under the marquee, of course.

Sixth Avenue Active

On the west side of the street are the Gaiety, burlesque; the Globe, a first run with independent offerings, and the Central, with the same type of offerings as the 42nd St. grind houses. Diagonally across from the Central is Loew's Mayfair with a double feature policy where late Saturday night entertainment seekers can drop in for the last show at 3 A. M.

Back on Broadway there is the Strand, ace Warner house, and nearby the modern Trans-Lux. Eastward on Sixth Ave. are the Rockefeller Center spots, the Music Hall, premiere metropolitan house, and the Center, now back to first run films since the vacating of the operetta, "The Great Waltz."

On 50th St. the Waldorf is a double feature grind house. A little to the north the Roxy is doing quite well.

Back on Broadway there is the Rivoli, hard by the Winter Garden, where "At Home Abroad" is going well. At 51st St. there is the stage show-less Capitol. On the next block, the Hollywood, scene of the biggest opening in years, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," is pulling well, and across the street is the already mentioned New Yorker.

Hard by, in fact, under where the elevated leaps across Broadway, is the Broadway. Originally a film house, it has since housed opera, musical drama, vaudeville and now double features at popular prices.

From 53rd St. up to Columbus Circle there is a canyon of office buildings. At Columbus Circle there is a cluster of theatres all operating on a double bill grind policy to the neighborhood and passing clientele.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Transatlantic Tunnel"

(G.B.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—A strong bid for an alliance between Great Britain and the United States to maintain peace is contained in this film of gigantic engineering feats of the future.

Richard Dix, American engineer, persuades the international money powers to finance his scheme to build a tunnel under the Atlantic. The huge enterprise monopolizes his time to the exclusion of his wife, Madge Evans, and his son. Leslie Banks does a sympathetic portrayal as Dix's loyal friend hopelessly in love with Miss Evans. When his prolonged absences drive Miss Evans to desperation, Banks advises her to work. She becomes a nurse in the tunnel and is stricken with a baffling tunnel sickness which blinds her and causes her to disappear rather than to appeal to Dix's sympathy.

The film boils to a great tension as the huge bore, nearing completion, runs into a submarine volcanic region and an armament maker manipulates the stock to get control away from the peace advocates. Scenes in the tunnel are realistic and most impressive as swarms of gas-masked men operate strange machines of the future and speak on television phones and battle giant explosions.

Helen Vinson does a more sympathetic part than usual as the other woman. C. Aubrey Smith is telling as a crusty peace advocate. George Arliss plays the prime minister of Great Britain and Walter Huston appears as the President of the United States.

Kurt Siodmak did the screen story from a novel by B. Kellerman, with dialogue by L. DeGarde Peach and Clemence Dane. Maurice Elvey directed for steadily building interest. Human conflict as well as the battle with machines are the exploitation angles on this unusual offering.

Production Code Seal 0710. Running time, 94 minutes. "G."

"Ship Cafe"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—This is only a mildly entertaining comedy-drama. However, the film sparkles periodically with snappy dialogue and is marked with good performances. The picture only rates program classification and will need selling to put it over.

Carl Brisson starts out as a handsome hard-hitting ship's stoker who gets in a jam through a fight aboard ship and is fired. William Frawley hires him as a bouncer in his ship cafe and he graduates to a crooner. Romance comes into his life through Arline Judge, an entertainer in the cafe. Romantic friction occurs when Mady Christians, a rich, hero-worshipping countess, starts him off in society and tries to promote him into the big money class. Brisson gets sick of holding lap dogs, etc., and ducks the countess without getting a substantial taste of the big time, following a ribbing by Miss Judge. Broke and down at the mouth, Brisson runs into Miss Judge's girl friend, Inez Courtney, who manages to get his old job back for him. He simultaneously gets the girls and his first mate's papers and all ends well with Brisson and Miss Judge checking out on a boat at the fadeout.

Production Code Seal No. 1,612. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"The Murder of Dr. Harrigan"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—Murder and romance combine in a hospital to make a smoothly running mystery with a nice cast giving the usual number of screams over clutching hands and disappearing bodies.

Kay Linaker is nurse to a millionaire druggist who is planning to try a new secret anaesthetic on himself. Two doctors, intent upon stealing the formula of the secret, turn up in mysterious places, with the plot pleasantly complicated by interlocking romances. Suspicion is thrown on Miss Linaker when her patient disappears on the way to an emergency operation and turns up in a morgue in place of a charity patient. Ricardo Cortez as the romantic doctor stands by while police search the hospital for the murderer who has turned his attention to different people.

Anita Kerry, Philip Strange, Johnny Arthur, Frank Reicher and Joseph Creehan play important parts under the nicely timed direction of Frank McDonald. Peter Milne and Sy Bartlett wrote the screenplay from the story by Mignon G. Eberhard. Bryan Foy produced. The lighting and photography are exceptionally good in giving the subdued atmosphere of a hospital. The best exploitation angle is the new background for the thriller.

No production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Seek Reorganization Through Bankruptcy

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—Federal Judge George H. Moore on Saturday approved an involuntary petition in bankruptcy filed by the bondholders' protective committee for the Theatre Realty Co., owner of the Fox, as an initial move for reorganization of the property under Section 77-B of the bankruptcy act.

James T. Blair and Edmond Koeln, who have been receivers for the property, were appointed trustees, and John S. Leahy was made counsel for the trustees.

The petition was opposed by Max Kramer, representing three independent bondholders, who, he said, held $20,000 worth of the company's securities. Kramer also had filed an involuntary petition along the same lines as the bondholders' committee and a motion to dismiss it by Henry Kaltenbach, attorney for the protective committee, was granted by Judge Moore. Kaltenbach charged "bad faith" and no standing of two of the three bondholders represented by Kramer. He added that the two men previously had deposited their bonds with the committee.

A plan of reorganization for Theatre Realty will be filed in four to six weeks, Donald Henderson of the New York office of Halsey, Stuart & Co. said at the hearing. He also asserted that the former receivers of the theatre property have been successful in having the annual rental reduced from $60,000 to $21,500. After Jan. 1, next, he said, the yearly rent will be increased $1,000 until it reaches a maximum of $40,000.

M. & P. Leases Majestic

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—The Majestic, former Shubert house, has been leased by M. & P.-Publix with the idea of staging a number of roadshow engagements there. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is set to follow "The Crusades." "The Last Days of Pompeii" is mentioned as another booking.

Management of the Majestic has been put under the jurisdiction of District Manager R. M. Sternberg, who covers all Boston theatres with the exception of the Metropolitan. Henry Taylor, Paramount Theatre manager, is acting as house manager, while Harry Brown, Jr., is publicist.

Patent Probe Does Not Sit; Believed Over

Lack of Funds Put Limit On Calling Witnesses

The Sirovich Congressional committee for the investigation of patent pools and cross licensing agreements failed yesterday to resume its scheduled hearings at the Fifth Ave. Hotel and present indications are that the committee will remain inactive.

A member of the Sirovich committee said yesterday that the limited appropriation which had been allotted it by Congress was making it difficult to obtain witnesses from distant points whose testimony was desired. The Congressman said that witnesses wanted were in California and the committee was debating whether or not it could afford to pay the cost of bringing them to New York. The committee was given a $15,000 appropriation.

Coast Production In Seasonal Slump

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Slackening of the production pace which has kept studios buzzing for the past five months, was evident last week. Films in work hit a new low for the season. The weekly survey charted 30 features and four shorts as against 37 features and two shorts for the preceding week.

Paramount registered the most activity with seven features shooting, with the other studios sharing equally in the production lapse. Columbia had three features before the cameras, three in preparation and five in the cutting room. Fox had four, two and three; Goldwyn, one, zero and one;

Hardy Delays Closing U. S. St. Louis Case

Both Sides Score; Trial Enters 15th Day

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21.—Both sides scored two points today as the Government was forced to delay closing of its case until tomorrow because of lengthy arguments over the admissibility of certain exhibits by Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney in the anti-trust suit here. Another debate on the introduction by the Government of a list of all Warner theatres was left undecided at 5:10, when court adjourned. Judge Moore said he will rule on this tomorrow morning.

As the court convened for the fifteenth day of the trial, Judge Moore announced the first victory for Warners by sustaining objections to admitting franchises and contracts of Skouras Super Theatres which were entered into in 1928 and canceled by Warners four years later. Two previous arguments have been held on this subject and over the weekend Judge

RKO Ready to Defend Suits On "Top Hat"

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21.—RKO is ready to go to court and defend itself on any suits filed by exhibitors or exhibitor organizations in connection with "Top Hat," it has been revealed here.

The company promised two Astaire-Rogers pictures last season and the brace has been delivered, it was stated by an important RKO executive attending the antitrust trial. They were "Roberta" and "The Gay Divorcee."

According to the announcement book last season, RKO listed "The Gay Divorcee" and "The World by the Tail," the latter based on "Ringstrasse," a story of Vienna, as the two in the Astaire-Rogers group. Later, the company announced production of "Roberta," but when it decided to cast Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in the picture, this was meant to serve as the second in this co-star group, it was said. "The World by the Tail" has never been made.

Report Move To Levy Tax On Theatres

Said to Be City Aim in Distributor Dispute

The city comptroller's office was reported yesterday to be preparing to serve metropolitan theatres with city sales tax assessments based on film rentals paid to local exchanges during the past year.

An official of the city finance department, questioned concerning the report, would neither affirm nor deny it but asserted that under the city law governing the collection of the sales tax such a course could be pursued if the taxes were not collected from the exchanges. The official said that the law provides that if the sales tax is not paid by a vender it may be collected from a vendee.

Reports that notices of an assessment against RKO theatres amounting to more than $100,000 had already been served on the circuit by the city sales tax department could not be verified at RKO. Major I. E. Lambert of the circuit's legal department, said that no such assessment had been brought to his attention.

Conant, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and "Is the Federal Government Interested in Educational Films?" C. M. Koon, U. S. Department of the Interior.

At an informal luncheon tributes were paid to the engineers by A. Julian Brylawski, Congressman Sol Bloom, and Capt. John G. Bradley of the Division of Motion Pictures and Sound Recording of the National Archives.

An evening session was held at which there was a screening of features and a demonstration of 16-mm color films by H. H. Jones of Buffalo.

Address by Tasker

Following the election of officers, President Tasker, chief engineer for the United Research Laboratories, Inc., delivered his address.

Many speakers, said President Tasker, review the past, then attempt to prognosticate what the future might hold in store. But to be different, and no less substantially founded, he told his audience that he would tell what 1940 held in store for the motion picture industry, and then briefly look back through the years for verification of his forecasts.

Nineteen forty, he declared, will reveal a much greater realism in sound recording and reproduction, with the added attribute of what is known as "sound perspective," now in its experimental stage. In purely photographic lines, he declared distinct advances would be made in camera work through the utilization of much finer grained stock and that stereoscopic effects and color would be the accepted rule.

These commonplaces of 1940 are no wild dream, but merely logical outcomes of a line of research started years ago when Eugene Marey first attempted to picture the progressive changes observable in an eclipse of the sun by the planet Venus, he added.

While firmly advancing these attainments as actualities of 1940, President Tasker used them as illustrative of scientific advancement exemplified by the Progress Medal which will be awarded for the first time on Wednesday evening at the semi-annual banquet.

Gillette Reads Paper

In designing the medal Alexander Murray of Eastman has symbolized the goal of modern motion picture engineers—the continual betterment of sight and sound in cinema entertainment,—going back to the time of Marey for his ultimate inspiration.

Formal presentation of papers was started by Major M. E. Gillette of the U. S. Army, who described the utilization of motion pictures in the World War to describe the activities of the army. Since the close of the war, the most important application of films in military affairs has been in the instruction of enlisted and officer personnel, he said. Among the pioneers in the making of educational pictures, Major Gillette declared, the army has been among the foremost, using more than a hundred reels of special material, as well as scenes of events abroad.

The use of motion picture film in the microphotographic duplication in the arts and sciences engaged a great share of the attention of the engineers at the morning session. Watson Davis, director of Science Service, told how the process of microphotographic duplication was becoming more and more important especially where large numbers of priceless documents must be preserved and in as small a space as possible.

The common suggestion, Davis said, was to use standard two-side perforated 35 mm. film, with the object reduced in a ratio of 12 to 1. Such pictures can be made for less than a cent a frame. With the further improvement in materials and methods, a further reduction might be effected. In the use of this type of duplication, where a small number of copies are required, Davis sees a co-ordinated service with libraries, scientific journals, and institutions.

R. H. Draeger, of the Department of Agriculture, also discussed photomicrography.

Reviewing the film activities of the Federal Government, C. M. Koon, of the Department of the Interior, pointed out the vast field open for educational pictures and indicated the role which the government might play in its development.

Animation Discussed

How animation and the technique of its application has actually been used was described by F. H. Conant, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The first of a series of films showed the behavior of an electric wave traveling along a 250-mile power transmission line. A picture which graphically represents machine operations was described in its relation to mechanical drawing. One of Conant's projects is the use of animation in a problem in descriptive geometry for the use of those students who find it hard to visualize geometric reasoning.

H. Ketchem, of New York, presented a paper on the scientific application of color to films.

The theoretical conditions and practicability for accurate reconstruction of the binocular visual image, with particular reference to the educational field, was discussed by C. Kennedy, of Smith College, in a paper on the development and uses of stereo-photography for educational purposes.

Other papers of the day included a discussion, with demonstration, of photography by means of polarized light, by J. W. McFarlane, of Eastman Kodak; of new multiple-level theatre seating by Ben Schlanger, who developed the idea of reverse slope floors. All seats would be in a range of effortless vision, through the new design, he said. A slightly reverse sloped floor would be used.

THE CROWNED HEADS OF EUROPE!

("Bonnie Scotland" makes them TOPS over there, too!)

Congratulations boys! Not only are you America's favorite sons of fun, but now "BONNIE SCOTLAND" has broken all your previous records in Europe. It's doing the biggest business of ALL Laurel-Hardy feature-length comedies. Our tip to theatres who haven't played it yet is to give it the works. There's no comedy team in the world to equal these boys and your folks love 'em! (So does producer Hal Roach, shown below, and Leo of M-G-M.)

Hardy Delays Closing U. S. St. Louis Case

Moore studied various citations before handing down his decision.

Clarence D. Hill, Columbia branch manager, was the first of five exchange men to be put on the stand. He testified as to his duties and then stated that the company distributed 37 features in 1934-35, 35 in 1933-34, and 36 in 1932-33.

Next was Clayton D. Lynch, M-G-M manager. He testified along the same line as Hill and asserted the company released 41 features in 1934-35, 39 the year previous and 44 in 1932-33. Joseph Garrison of Universal testified he has been branch head since July, 1932, that his company handled 36 features in 1934-35, 35 in 1933-34, and 26 in 1932-33. Ben B. Reingold of Fox was next. He said Fox had 49 pictures in 1934-35, 51 in 1933-34, and 44 the year before. William Feldstein of United Artists was the last exchange manager. He stated the company distributed 23 features last season, 17 in 1933-34, and 13 in 1932-33.

Introduces Three Letters

Hardy then introduced three letters, one dated March 29, 1934 to George J. Schaefer and signed by Abel Carey Thomas, another (a photostatic copy) dated July 26, 1934, signed by Lester Kreiger to Schaefer, and the last dated July 26, 1934, to Ned E. Depinet and signed by Kreiger. Frederick H. Wood, Warner counsel, then produced five other documents subpoenaed by the Government.

Leases on the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto were then offered by Hardy, who read one clause of the latter contract which mentions relief of the obligation in the event Warners acquired the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. Ex-Senator James A. Reed objected to reading only one paragraph unless the entire document was read to the jury. The prosecuting attorney then began to go over all the clauses and after 15 minutes turned the task over to his assistant, Harold Schilz. By the time Schilz completed reading all the leases noon recess was declared.

Reed Is Sustained

In the absence of Austin C. Keough, Paramount secretary, local counsel stipulated as to the corporate setups of the various affiliated companies indicated. Louis Phillips advised the court that although mentioned in the indictment Paramount Pictures Distributing Corp. never existed. In the case of Warners, Wood declared that one of the subsidiaries was mentioned by two different names and inasmuch as there never had been a company by the name of Warner Brothers Circuit Management Corp., this name should be scratched off the list. This was done. Jacob M. Lashly stipulated for RKO Distributing Corp. Charters of the various companies were also placed in the record as well as the executive structures.

The second defeat for the Government came when Reed objected to the introduction of Warners' financial report dated Aug. 25, 1934, and was sustained. The jury was excused while lengthy arguments took place by Hardy and Reed.

Hardy stated, "The Government wanted to show the resources of Warners, its size and calibre and that it was capable of effectuating this conspiracy by carrying out the threats testified to by witnesses."

Reed contended that it was "irrelevant, immaterial and calculated to inflame and prejudice the jury."

The former Senator referred to another case in which he played a part and said that he introduced financial reports in trying to make a witness testify. Later the courts held this to be "a reversible error," he said. Reed also declared that if the Warner financial statements were brought in the same result would follow. He added, "The question before us is whether these corporations and individuals joined to restrain trade in St. Louis. The power to do it is not the question. The only thing before us is, did they prevent trade."

Argue Without Jury

Hardy countered with, "In this case the Government is not making a general fact about the wealth of Warners. If this company were poor, it wouldn't have been able to make a conspiracy effective. We wish to be permitted to show the resources of Warners and the power to do the things they threatened.

"Warners threatened to use their entire resources to destroy these men and to strike terror in any small corporation," Hardy said, and then cited the case of U. S. against Swift & Co.

Again Reed retaliated, declaring that the case mentioned by the Government was a monopoly case and had nothing to do with the issue before the court. He said, "Hardy some time ago stated he was not trying to prove a monopoly and yet he cites a monopoly case."

"The question is not whether we struck terror into others, but whether we restrained trade and not whom we scared," the ex-Senator concluded.

The two Government victories came in succession when Hardy attempted to introduce lists of the bondholders in Central Properties Corp. and St. Louis Properties Corp. in addition to submitting an intervening petition by Warners against the reorganization plan of the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. Objections by Wood in both instances were overruled.

Wood's first objection was based on the fact that the purchase of bonds was not an unlawful act. Warners bought them, he said, to protect its interests, which he asserted they had a right to do. He added Warners repeatedly made efforts to come to an agreement with the bondholders on a plan and that the committee "was unwilling to give the company a chance to salvage any of its losses."

Judge Moore Intervenes

Judge Moore intervened at this point and said, "The fact that it was not unlawful to gain certain properties Warners was interested in does not show any violation of the Sherman Act."

Wood then said that the complete lack of proof in connection with the purchase of the bonds tends to show the slight degree Warners had conspired with Paramount and RKO to restrain interstate trade here.

"The purchases of the bonds is wholly foreign to the issue here," Wood added.

The prosecuting attorney attempted to break down the Warner attorney's argument by saying, "Warners bought the bonds to oppose the reorganization bid by Allen L. Snyder and to have the committee turn the three theatres over to them. These bonds were used to destroy the properties of someone else."

Wood answered this, saying Warners sought the bonds before the receivership action and continued to buy them after a receiver was appointed. He declared Warners had a third mortgage equity in the houses and was building up its interest in them, which "is no evidence to show we conspired to restrain trade."

When the matter of the Warner theatres throughout the county was brought up, Reed entered objections along the same lines as previously stated for denying inclusion of the financial reports.

Demurrers Expected

Hardy, in rebuttal, asserted he wanted the enumerated theatres in the record because of the testimony of Jack Partington and Harry C. Arthur. Partington testified that, "F. & M. was a small company," and Arthur had stated Depinet told him the reason for selling RKO product to Warners was, "Because they put the pressure on me. Warners are our biggest customers."

"We want to show exactly how big they are," Hardy said.

Outside of the five witnesses put on the stand today, no others for the Government will take the stand, although some of those who have testified, and a number of those who have not, appear daily in court.

As soon as the Government announces, "We rest," defense counsel will enter demurrers. Attorneys for Warners, Paramount and RKO have been working on dismissal briefs over the weekend and will finish them tonight.

It is expected the demurrers will be denied by Judge Moore. Warners are ready to start first in rebuttal with Paramount and RKO following in the order named.

L. K. Brin, former operator of the Garden and Majestic, Milwaukee, appeared in court today for a conference with the prosecuting attorney. He told MOTION PICTURE DAILY he intends to spend several days here during which he will file a formal complaint with Hardy in connection with his being "forced out of business." Depinet and William Mallard, general counsel for RKO, returned last night from New York. Doris Warner LeRoy, accompanied by Gwen Heller, arrived from the coast today to spend a day with her parents and tomorrow leaves for New York.

Sabath Committee Starts Boston Probe

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—The case of Boston Metropolitan Buildings, Inc., involving more than $4,100,000 worth of bonds, was heard first here today as the Sabath Congressional Committee investigating real estate reorganizations began local hearings. The Metropolitan, largest New England film house, operated by M. & P. Publix, is owned by the building company.

Cross examination of witnesses is not to be allowed, declared Chairman Sabath. Herbert T. Mintz, head of the company, testified that the $6,000 weekly paid by Paramount Publix to the building firm for several years up to Dec. 15, 1932, was not a rental but was to be paid only if the cash was available from the theatre's earnings. Payment ceased when Paramount went into receivership. Herbert Davis, local public accountant, expressed the belief that the present reorganization plans cannot be carried out, and that the interest on new bonds would not be earned while the loss of the theatre continued. Last year's loss to the building firm was $270,000, it was said.

exhibitors are claiming "Top Hat" is a replacement for the picture not made, but distribution officials hold that, although RKO has not produced the pictures set out in the announcement book, the book also states the list is subject to change. "Roberta" actually was substituted for "The World by the Tail," which RKO contends was within its rights and that "Top Hat," therefore, has nothing whatsoever to do with the 1934-35 lineup.

"Top Hat" in Run Test

Los Angeles, Oct. 21.—A test case to decide whether runs for subsequent shows may run day and date is under way here with issuance of a temporary restraining order against the President and Tower on behalf of Robert Gumbiner, operator of the third run Cameo, on current day and dating of "Top Hat."

Superior Court Judge Emmett Wilson has issued a 10-day restraining order which Jules Holdstone, Gumbiner's attorney, expects to be merged into an injunction prohibiting any day and dating in subsequent runs until the trial is heard several months hence. The contention is that the Cohen Brothers, operators of the President and Tower, by playing day and date in the same zone, constitute a third run and thus would squeeze out the Cameo entirely from playing the picture.

Brooklyn Paramount Valued at $800,000 valuation of $4,800,000 on the property Greve said that the $2,000,000 original cost of the land was "outrageous" and that the cost of the building, $2,900,000, represented the peak construction costs of 1929. Greve said that he did not believe the land would bring $205,000 today and that it would be impossible to estimate present day building costs of the structure because "no one would build such a building now."

Greve said that the $510,000 in Federal transfer taxes which it is possible to save under the proposed deal with Fabian "means that that amount of bonds can be retired and five per cent interest on them saved over a long period of years."

Net income of the Brooklyn Paramount for the year ended Aug. 31, 1934, was $32,688, and for the year ending Aug. 31, 1935, it was $64,468, Stephen Callaghan, an Allied Owners' trustee, testified. The hearing will resume on Wednesday.

Most Distributors Favor Longer Reels

All national distributors except Warners and Universal are ready to approve the proposed adoption of the 2,000-foot reel at the Nov. 1 deadline on acceptance or rejection of the changeover, it was learned yesterday.

Universal is said to be opposed to the change because of the costs involved, while Warners are said to be dubious of the benefits to be realized. It is understood that unanimous acceptance of the 2,000-foot reel is not necessary to effect the changeover and indications are that it will probably be adopted by other companies though it may be rejected by a few.

National distributors have been asked to signify their attitude by Nov. 1, following which another meeting of managers of exchange operations will be called to discuss the steps required to place the changeover in work, insofar as exchanges are concerned, by April 1 next.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Thanks a Million"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Spangled with star names, laden with melody and crammed with laughter, Darryl F. Zanuck's musical production kidding the politicos is a grand, engaging show with cash entertainment aplenty.

Judged by any showmanship standard it should register high, keep cashiers busy and give "Top Hat" and "The Broadway Melody" a run.

Jot down Fred Allen as a permanent screen fixture. His personality and deadpan quips stamp him for feature stardom. Dick Powell's attractive charm shines merrily in the song and romance. Paul Whiteman's band, The King's Men, Ramona's singing and piano playing, Rubinoff's fiddling and the Yacht Club Boys score decisive hits. Ann Dvorak opposite Powell and Patsy Kelly foiling for Allen and Raymond Walburn as a rum-soaked candidate add to the show's lilt and gaiety.

The story centers around Allen's idea of using his stranded band to entertain crowds at political rallies for Walburn. Because of Walburn's condition Powell is forced to deliver the candidate's speech and is maneuvered into accepting the candidacy for governor. The troupe barnstorms the state in vaudeville fashion. The opposition gets Whiteman. Miss Dvorak leaves Powell, who, unable to stand for the political graft and corruption, denounces the politicos on the eve of election. Escaping, pursuing motorcycle cops congratulate him on his election.

Nunnally Johnson's distinctive screen play has vitality, broad and sly humor. Written with polish and verve the yarn is a darb.

Roy Del Ruth's direction is topnotch, smooth and fast, extracting every ounce of showmanship for audiences' responses. Benny Baker, Andrew Tombes, Alan Dinehart, Margaret Irving and Charles Richman support. Numbers written by Arthur Johnston and Gus Kahn are: "Thanks a Million," "Sitting High On a Hilltop" and "I've Got a Pocket Full of Sunshine," all of which look like hits. Original numbers, "Square Deal Party" and the "Alphabet" song by the Yacht Club Boys are gay and robust, delivered superbly. Zanuck has spared nothing in producing his first popular musical since the merger. Most apt for congratulations from showman to Zanuck seems the title of the film.

Looking 'Em Over

"La Maternelle"

(Metropolis)

A touching and heart appealing picture in French has been made of the novel of the same title by Leon Frapie, which, translated, means "Children of Montmartre." There is no obstacle to ready understanding of the story by reason of the language, since there are plenty of superimposed subtitles in English.

For discriminating audiences this is something definitely worth while, with a touch of pathetic comedy in its delineation of the lives of the small children of a Paris district, who spend their time at the "school," for one unpleasant reason or another, as a result of their parents' misfortunes, or a lack of parents.

Madeleine Renaud plays the part of the once wealthy girl who, her family gone and penniless, takes service as a maid at the school. There the children become very fond of her, and romance develops for her with the kindly director. A child, played by Paulette Elambert, whose mother is a woman of the streets, and who is starved for affection, becomes more than usually attached to Miss Renaud and the feeling is reciprocated. The conclusion finds the child reconciled to the fact that her benefactress is loved by another.

A fine human story, well handled, the picture is to be considered one of the better products from France. It was produced by Studios Photosonor. Jean Benoit-Levy directed.

Short Subjects

"On Your Radio Dial"

(Universal)

A Mentone subject, featuring Dave Schooler as master of ceremonies supposedly in a radio studio, this provides a reasonable amount of diversified entertainment. Mills and Martin and their stooge, Jan Peerce, an excellent tenor, the singing Charioteers, colored, the blond singer, Benny Venuta and June Carr, dancer, make up the cast of entertainers, who do their stuff with a maximum of pep and some novelty. Production Code Seal No. 0666. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

"Camera Hunting"

(Vitaphone)

Some odd and not so odd natural history facts make this effort mildly interesting. There are shots of alligator roping, cigarette smoking toads, the affection of a monkey for a cat, an Alabama farmer who carries an 800-pound bull around and a child's fearless handling of snakes. The piece winds up with shots of bear cubs and dam building beavers. It should make a good filler. Production Code Seal No. 0608. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Fox and the Rabbit"

(Universal)

One of the Color Cartune series, this is lively and entertaining, especially for the youngsters. The little rabbit goes off to school, after being warned by his mother not to play hookey. But a fox's lure of painted carrots gets the better of him and he goes after them, thereby getting into real trouble with the fox. His mother finally comes to the rescue, but the little rabbit gets what he deserves. Production Code Seal No. 938. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Hey Diddle Diddle"

(Educational)

Various characters of the fairy tales come to the screen in this cartoon subject, which should be found pleasing to the youngsters, especially. The cow jumping over the moon, the dish and the spoon, Mary and her lamb, and all of them at school with a most unusual teacher serve to provide rather entertaining cartoon material. No production code seal. Running time, 6 mins. "G."

"Quail Hunt"

(Universal)

An entertaining number of the Oswald cartoon series, in which Oswald, with his dog, goes after quail. Eventually the dog saves the bird from the attack of an eagle, and everyone is friendly. Production Code Seal No. 1146. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

Bankers Satisfied With St. Louis Fox

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21.—Management of the Fox is in proper hands, Donald A. Henderson of Halsey, Stuart & Co., New York, stated in Federal District Court when Judge George H. Moore approved an involuntary bankruptcy petition by the committee for Theatre Realty Co., owners of the theatre. F. & M., through its subsidiary, Eden Theatre Co., has been operating since Jan. 25, 1934.

In notifying the court of the committee's plans to reorganize within four to six weeks, Henderson asserted that before the committee drew up the plan it wanted to be sure that Fox was in proper hands. He said another reason for not drafting a rehabilitation program was "insufficient funds." Both have been taken care of, he said.

Henderson is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee which includes Tom Sweeney and George Purvis. He also declared that $3,352,000 worth of bonds, or 75 per cent, have been deposited with the committee and one of the most troublesome problems he has experienced in connection with the theatre has been purchase of films.

Henderson also pointed out that at no time had receivers' certificates been issued, that the bonds are being quoted between $17 and $19, and that the ground lease has 80 more years to run.

Asked by Max Kramer, attorney for three independent bondholders, who separately filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy which was dismissed, whether he had refused to return bonds to a number of subscribers, Henderson admitted he had turned down about eight persons. He gave as his reasons the fact that he wanted them to first look over the reorganization plan and then if they wanted to withdraw they could.

John S. Leahy, counsel for the trustees, John T. Blair and Edmond Koeln, former receivers, told the court that the Fox is now averaging a profit of $1,300 a week and that if the bondholders hold on to their securities for eight years they will be paid "in full."

"Bad Boy" $6,300 Milwaukee Leader

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 21.—"Bad Boy" with Dave Apollon and His Varieties at the Fox Palace copped high honors for the week with a $6,300 take, $1,300 above par, in what otherwise was a sickly seven days' business.

The best the Wisconsin could do with "I Live My Life" was $6,000, while all other houses along the street dropped below par as well. Weather was fair and mild.

Total first run business was $22,100. Average is $24,250.

Screen Light, Color Feature SMPE Papers

Measurements and Other Problems Described

By W. A. WHITNEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Screen brightness and technical aspects of color were the principal subjects up for discussion at the second day's session of the S. M. P. E. semi-annual convention at the Wardman Park.

Clifton Tuttle of Eastman Kodak, chairman of the Projection Screen Brightness Committee, gave data on the transmission characteristics of release prints and pointed out that this information is necessary to the committee's work. An apparatus for measuring screen brightness was described.

Alan A. Cook of the Bausch & Lomb Co. declared that there were two fundamental factors that determine the light output of a projector—source brightness and the effective aperture of the projection optical system. When these are known accurately, he said, the number of lumens available for screen illumination can

Giveaways Gaining In Conn. Theatres

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 22.—The Loew organization has purchased Bank Night for the Globe and Screeno for the Lyric. It has also been reported that five other Bank Night contracts are being considered over the Poli New England circuit, including the Bijou, New Haven.

This is Loew's first venture in the territory into any special inducement plan other than amateur and other special stage shows.

The Rialto and Hippodrome are the only other Bridgeport theatres to feature giveaways.

Old Country Store has been instituted at the Lyric, another Poli house.

England Is Contender for Hollywood Honors: Sheehan

England now is a definite competitor of Hollywood for the world's film trade, Winfield Sheehan said yesterday on his arrival here aboard the Majestic after a three months' sojourn abroad.

"American moving pictures continue to be the popular and most pronounced entertainment in Europe," Sheehan said. "Hollywood is recognized as the world's creative amusement capital, but there is competition in the field.

"England is making a strong campaign to capture the world's moving picture trade. The British government, press and public are furnishing loyal and practical support to their film industry.

"British picture production is gaining by experience and improving its entertainment quality," he said. "In England today there are more individual picture producing companies than in America and many millions of

English Seek Solution of Booking Row

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Conferences are under way between the Kinematograph Renters' Society and the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. with a view to finding a solution to the booking circuit controversy and other matters at issue between the two bodies.

Recently, the C.E.A. threatened legal proceedings if the K.R.S. applied its announced policy of boycotting all booking arrangements which do not rest on a majority control of the theatres concerned.

The standard contract and overseating are other matters to be discussed by exhibitors and renters in the near future.

John Maxwell and Sam Eckman were the leading spokesman for distributors in the booking circuit discussions, with Thomas Ormiston and General Secretary Fuller representing the C.E.A.

Prosecution Closes Case At St. Louis

Hardy Finishes on 16th Day; Reads Bond Buys

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—The Government finally closed its case at 11:40 A.M. today, the 16th day of the anti-trust trial against five film executives, their companies and subsidiaries, but not before Warners had scored another point.

This came when Judge George H. Moore sustained an objection made by former Senator James A. Reed yesterday to the inclusion of a list of all Warner theatres. When court adjourned yesterday at 5:10 o'clock the admissibility of the list had not been decided by Judge Moore.

Another boresome morning was spent by various spectators, defendants and counsel, as they had to sit

Two More Brooklyn Paramount Bids In

After nine months of trying to sell the Brooklyn Paramount, during which time only one bid was obtained, that of Si Fabian, for $75,000 cash and a 20-year mortgage for $1,425,000, two more bids have been submitted to the Federal Court in Brooklyn, it was learned late yesterday. The amounts of the two new bids are not to be made public until this afternoon when the hearing on the initial bid by Fabian is expected to be concluded. One of the new bidders is the realty firm of Riker & Co., 201 Montague St., Brooklyn, represented by Baker & Overmeier of 30 Broad St. The name of the other bidder was not revealed.

Sabath Committee Ends Boston Study

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—The Sabath Congressional Committee investigating real estate reorganizations here today ended its study of the Metropolitan Theatre situation, with Chairman Sabath criticizing salaries paid to "movie barons" connected with Paramount. He also scored the directorate of Boston Metropolitan Building, Inc., which owns the theatre, operated by M. & P. Publix.

Prescott Bigelow, of Hayden, Stone & Co., called by Peter Borre, committee attorney, denied Sabath's allegation that the directorate was composed of men in the public eye, and not interested in the affairs of the company. Argument was heard on the reorganization plan for the company, which has been passed by the lower court, and has been taken under advisement by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Navy to Aid Making Of Two More Films

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Navy Department officials today advised the Hays office here of their approval of navy cooperation in production of "Follow the Fleet," Radio, and "United States Smith," Columbia.

In expressing approval the department said it considered the recent Warner picture, "Shipmates Fovever," one of the "finest navy pictures yet produced."

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

OBSERVATIONS about new product, growing out of a semi-grand tour of neighborhood theatres, Broadway first runs and projection rooms:

Rendezvous—In the manner of "The Thin Man," but not quite achieving it, this new M-G-M, based on "The American Black Chamber" by Major Herbert Yardley is exciting and interesting entertainment of the World War from behind the Washington scene. With Bill Powell and Rosalind Russell and Binnie Barnes as a German spy, this one looks very good indeed for the mob.

Metropolitan—In which Lawrence Tibbett continues to be a stalwart figure of a man and in grand voice. Not much story, but plenty of splendid vocalizing. George Marion, as the La Scala maestro who has seen better days, is delightful. "Metropolitan," Darryl Zanuck's first since entering the Fox studio, is as good a musical as "Here's to Romance" is a bad one. That evens matters for Twentieth Century-Fox which is releasing both.

Transatlantic Tunnel—A peer into the scientific marvels of a future day with a very good cast headed by Richard Dix, Leslie Banks, Madge Evans, Helen Vinson and with George Arliss and Walter Huston, of all people, in what are virtually nothing beyond bits. Fantastic sets and drama in pioneering engineering play vital parts in this G. B. attraction which looks like money.

Musicland—Or Walt Disney's cartoon version of the ancient conflict between symphony and jazz and the marriage of the two. In attractive Technicolor, this is a brilliantly conceived and executed cartoon. Also vastly humorous and a joy.

Wings over Ethiopia—Practically required film fare for those who would augment their reading of Ethiopia with fascinating pictures of the country, its mountains, ravines, tribes and customs. Much better when in the air than when on the ground, but worthwhile.

I Live My Life—The best Joan Crawford in too long a time. A topnotch example of splendid, staccato direction by "Woody" Van Dyke and of script by Joe Mankiewicz. Joan is good, but Brian Aherne is better. So much better, in fact, that it is practically his picture. Fine entertainment.

Barbary Coast—A formula picture with Miriam Hopkins constantly in an emotional hot stew. Excellently produced, but loaded down with a story and a treatment that are pallid and a carbon copy of what they ought to be, provided any film dealing with the true Barbary Coast were advisable, which it is not.

The Dark Angel—A sentimental tear-jerker, or, in other words, substantial box-office. Suffers from lack of tempo in its approximate second half, but very much all right as it stands. Sam Goldwyn may be difficult to get on with, but he never stints on values. This and his "Barbary Coast" merely furnish additional and late proof of that which was established long since. . . .

Thomas D. Thacher, as special master for the hearing of large creditor claims against RKO, wrote the report to the Federal Court which recommended the allowance of the Rockefeller Center lease claim at $8,600,000. If the court accepts Thacher's recommendation, Rockefeller Center will become an RKO creditor for that amount, thus ranking R. C. with Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. and R. C. A. Thacher's law firm, Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, is counsel for Atlas, which with the Lehmans recently acquired a $5,000,000 interest in RKO, and is now proceeding as the moving factor in the latter's reorganization. As such, it will naturally be interested in keeping at a minimum the larger creditor claims against the company. Question: Will Atlas call upon its counsel, Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, to oppose Thacher's report on the Rockefeller Center claim? A couple of Ed Wynn's hats may be in order. . . .

KAO happens to be the most significant theatre company in the RKO setup what with those valuable New York City houses, et al. The company is capitalized at 60,000 shares of preferred. Of that total, Mike Meehan, directly and otherwise, can muster about 31,000. At once, your discernment should tell you he counts for much in KAO and, therefore, in RKO. Any concentration of majority control of RKO is not possible, to carry this to a reasonably logical conclusion, without Meehan. Or, at least, without Meehan's holdings. Exactly what he will do about reorganization is a large and vital something. One inside story has it he will sell out, mostly for cash, but wants call price on his preferred, plus all dividends in arrears. This would run to $4,500,000, roughly. Another inside story, later than the first, talks of a setup which would keep him in the final picture, but reimbursed by cash for a substantial portion of those essential preferreds. . . .

Q.—"Arthur, what's new with your contract over there?"

A.—"There's nothing new right now."

Q.—"It's potentially alive, isn't it?"

A.—"Yes, very much so."

Almost verbatim text of yesterday's conversation between Arthur M. Loew and ye scribe. It might be interesting to recall this if and when you read, as you may any minute now, a report published elsewhere that Loew has resigned. . . .

On stories that he, together with Joe Brandt, had formed a new company a la the 20th Century idea, Sam Briskin, in from the coast to discuss this and that deal anent his future, says:

"That's the one chap in the world I have not spoken to."

There's another, however, and his name is Joe Schenck. Which scotches loose Hollywood talk that Briskin will form a unit for release through 20th Century-Fox. . . .

Cole Is Reelected Texas Allied Head

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 22.—Colonel H. A. Cole was reelected president of the Allied Theatre Owners of Texas today as the unit brought a two-day meeting to a close. Other officers are: Rubin Frels, first vice-president; Henry Hall, Marthe McSpadden, R. N. Smith, second vice-presidents; A. W. Lilly, secretary-treasurer; T. W. Lewis, Will Dorbandt, L. N. Threet, Paul Scott, F. W. Zimmerman, Tom Donnell, P. V. Williams, L. C. Tidball, Walter Stoppelman, B. Legg, Lynn Smith, Homer Mulkey, directors.

Resolutions urged immediate Dept. of Justice action to end the alleged monopoly in the state. Support was voiced for the Pettengill and Duffy bills, now pending. Officers were directed to seek equalization of electric power rates.

Will Get Clearance, Says B. & K. Official

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Regarding B. & K.'s stand on clearance, a company official said here today, "Every picture we play will have the clearance we asked for. We will play only pictures on which we get celarance."

The majority of the distributors say it is impossible for them to give the clearance. The outcome depends on what happens when playdates are reached. In the meantime independents are booking pictures on the old basis. It is understood Paramount has approved releases for the first two weeks of November on the old basis. Their action after that is problematical.

Wisconsin Group Meets

be computed, after making allowance for losses. He described methods of computation and gave results for typical projectors.

Michael Leshing, in charge of 20th Century-Fox projection laboratories, protested the highly technical aspects of film engineering at the expense of practical, standardized projection.

Physical factors pertinent to screen brightness and a review of data accumulated in a period of 20 years were discussed by S. K. Wolf of Erpi. Wolf also discussed general theatre lighting.

The laws of photometry were briefly reviewed by R. P. Teele of the U. S. Bureau of Standards. He also defined common photometric units and terms, measurements of candlepower, luminous flexion, transmission, absorption and projection systems.

Color was the principal topic of discussion at the afternoon session in the auditorium of the U. S. Bureau of Standards. Lyman J. Briggs, bureau director, presided.

Color Important Factor

Color is an important factor in nearly everything bought and sold, declared K. S. Gibson of the Bureau of Standards. Means of describing, measuring and specifying colors, he asserted, are, therefore, of great importance to the manufacturer, dealer and consumer.

Colors, Gibson explained, may be described by name, but this is usually inadequate as a specification. The only general and fundamental method of specification, he continued, is by colorimetric computation in terms of a standard observer.

D. B. Judd, also of the bureau, declared that anomalies of vision must be considered.

Discusses Film Tests

Normal people, Judd explained, can make visual distinction of three types: light-dark, yellow-blue, and red-green; light-dark being the most primitive type of discrimination, and red-green the last acquired. Some people have hardly more than a vestige of red-green discrimination, he said.

Discussing tests on cellulose films, S. E. Sheppard, P. T. Newsome and S. S. Sweet of Eastman Kodak pointed out that the dispersion of tensile strength values for cellulose sheets was higher than those for metal strips and wires, and the dispersion of the "yield" point value is much less than that of the tensile strength.

Two laboratory developing machines taking film spliced in a loop were described by D. R. White of the Du-Pont Film Mfg. Co. in a discussion of sensitometric tests. One of the machines is designed to eliminate the head and tail effect usually encountered in commercial machines by frequent reversal of the direction of film motion. The other is designed more in accord with present commercial practice and permits the study of emulsion, developers, and processing conditions on a laboratory scale.

A photoelectric sensitometer of simple mechanical and electrical design was described by White. The speed and reproducibility of readings with this instrument are greater than obtained on the more commmon polarization photometers.

In discussing the use of a photocell for measurement of diffuse density, B. C. Hiatt and C. Tuttle of Eastman Kodak, emphasized the importance of the optical characteristics of the cell as a part of the optical system of the densitometer. Data showing some of the discrepancies in density measurement resulting from these optical characteristics were given.

For two types of emulsion Hiatt and Tuttle showed that the measurement of diffuse density is possible with certain arrangements of the optical system.

S. M. P. E. Sidelights

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—WILLIAM C. KUNZMANN was very much in evidence both in person hastening about and also reflecting the splendid arrangements for the convention which gave testimony that he had put in much time both before the meeting and was now to keep things running smoothly. BILL, from time to time, has expressed a wish to resign as convention vice-president, but the members will not allow it.

Capt. JOHN G. BRADLEY, chief of the motion picture division of the national archives and a recent member of the Society, has thrust himself wholeheartedly into its work. Now he is among the most energetic.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY was again the first daily trade paper at this convention. Copies were flown down and, by early afternoon, many of the delegates had copies under their arms.

Capt. H. T. COWLING, a member for many years, is still very active. It was he who succeeded in interesting various Government bureaus in motion picture technology. With his ever present pipe, he is right in the center of things.

SYLVAN HARRIS, editor of the Society's journal, is seen all over the place almost at the same time as he attends to the various duties of an editor at a convention.

JOHN I. CRABTREE arranged the technical papers that are being read before the Society. The excellence of the various papers and the smoothness in which the program is run off proves that his preparations were well made.

WILL WHITMORE, chairman of the publicity committee, is very busy seeing that the press is well informed.

The Federal Government is apparently becoming motion picture-conscious. Twelve of the papers are by men connected with the Government in various capacities and bureaus.

Installs Demonstrator

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—That the members of the S.M.P.E., may be beneficiaries of what it considers the last word in sound reproduction, Erpi worked night and day installing in the Wardman Park Theatre a special high frequency apparatus employing the principles of auditory perspective.

R. T. Friebus, apparatus design engineer of Erpi, has been supervising the installation with active assistance of the local engineers of the company. The special high frequency apparatus used is of the multicellular type, with special high frequency speakers. While this particular equipment is not ready yet for theatre installation, it has been employed in demonstrations.

More Censoring

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Further evidences of political censorship appear here with word passed along to operators of picture houses in Paris not to show clips of British warships in the Mediterranean or of Anthony Eden, British Minister for League of Nations Affairs.

The move is credited to a desire to avoid any demonstrations against Great Britain.

Form Hollywood Studios

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 22.—R. G. Sobel, V. Regan and C. E. Eikel have been named as directors of the 2,500-share Hollywood Associated Studios in articles of incorporation filed with the Secretary of State. Headquarters of the firm will be in Los Angeles.

Uphold Brooklyn Verdict

through a complete reading by Harold Schilz, assistant to Russell Hardy, of every purchase date and the amount Warners paid for the many bonds in Central Properties Corp. and St. Louis Properties Corp. When Schilz had completed the 50-minute reading he stated that the total amount of Warners' purchases had been $77,592.75 for bonds, the face value of which aggregated $361,500.

After resting his case Hardy officially dismissed from the indictment Paramount Pictures Distributing Corp. and Warner Brothers Circuit Management Corp. These two companies have never existed.

Jury Dismissed for Day

As soon as this was over the prosecuting attorney asked Judge Moore to make corrections in the testimony introduced against particular defendants so that the testimony would apply to all defendants. William R. Gentry, counsel for Paramount, and Jacob M. Lashly, representing RKO, objected on the ground that when Hardy had examined the individual witnesses he specified the testimony was directed against only one of the three companies involved. Hardy contended that in certain instances Judge Moore had upheld objections and as the sessions had advanced had overruled the same objections when he had learned of his mistakes.

Unwilling to rule immediately without giving the matter thought, Judge Moore asked that memoranda be submitted at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The jury was dismissed at 11:45 o'clock until tomorrow morning.

Argue Before Moore

The entire afternoon was devoted to arguments on the motion by Hardy to have Judge Moore instruct the jury to consider the testimony of individual witnesses, with the exception of J. M. Ulman of Cleveland, as binding on all defendants. When Judge Moore intimated he would deny this request but permit Harry C. Arthur and Thomas N. Dysart to be brought back to correct some of their testimony, Reed, Frederick H. Wood, Lashly and William R. Gentry vehemently objected. After the arguments were concluded, the court decided to hand down a ruling tomorrow morning.

Reed declared that if the witnesses were permitted to testify again this would mean reopening and retrying the case, that it would be "a reversible error," that it would be a great wrong to the defendants, that such a procedure is tended to emphasize the testimony and that no witness should be recalled unless under urgent circumstances.

The ex-Senator was in fine fettle, swinging his right hand every time he wanted to bring out a point. He didn't hesitate to inject his sharp retorts to Hardy's pleas, particularly his answer to the prosecuting attorney's request that the Government be given some leeway because it hasn't the right to appeal while the defense has.

Lashly, in a fiery speech, contended that "it would be manifestly unfair" to his clients to bring back the witnesses after they left the stand more than two weeks ago because there could not be an intelligently impartial cross examination. He asserted Judge Moore had rightly ruled in connection with the testimony of individual witnesses. He said, "The Government has charged the three defendant companies with design to engage in contracts in violation of the Sherman act and now Hardy undertakes to prove his allegations after he has closed his case.

"As far as I'm concerned I can't effectually cross examine the witnesses after all that has transpired. Your Honor has properly ruled when the testimony was given that it only applied to persons attending the meeting."

Rebuttal Interrupted

Gentry said Paramount didn't undertake to cross-examine certain witnesses because he understood the testimony was only relevant to the parties mentioned by the witnesses.

Hardy's rebuttal was interrupted several times, but he managed to finish his argument, stating that the fact the defendants' counsel would be given the right to cross examine was to their advantage and the Government has a right to have every fact admissible in the case.

Continuing, he said, "They don't want this jury to consider all the evidence subject to law. If the Government is deprived of this right, it will suffer a great disadvantage.

"There's only one party in this court who will suffer on a reversible error and that is the Government," Hardy declared. "The Government shouldn't be narrowly restricted in presenting its case.

"As I understood the ruling of the court, we had the right to admit all the evidence as soon as we proved a conspiracy," the prosecuting attorney stated.

When Reed, by his persistent interruptions finally struck a vulnerable spot, the Government attorney whirled around, as he was facing the judge, and pointing to the lawyers seated, launched into a fiery attack, declaring, "Look at all these high-powered lawyers seated at these tables and yet they say they will be at a disadvantage if we bring back the witnesses. They even have more attorneys outside."

To this, Reed replied, "That's the most sensible argument I've heard in some time."

Wood Enters Objections

Wood then took the floor briefly to enter his objections. He claimed that bringing back Arthur and Dysart would be prejudicial to the jury and to the defendants.

Only 22 witnesses, excluding Gordon E. Youngerman, RKO attorney who took the stand on his own behalf, of the 40 subpoenaed by the Government had testified when the prosecuting attorney officially announced completion of his case. Up to this time the testimony covered 1,640 pages.

No demurrers or notices of dismissal were filed by defense counsel today, as expected, because of the new angle Hardy injected into the case. All attorneys were ready at noon to file briefs and were prepared to argue them for two days.

Moe Silver and Clayton Bond were here for a short conference with Warner and left tonight for New York.

Jack A. Partington returned from the east today for a meeting with Arthur.

England After Coast Honors, Says Sheehan

pounds have been freshly invested this year.

"The best known and most popular authors and dramatists in England have joined the new movement and are now engaged in a detailed examination and study of talking pictures' enriched position. This contribution appears certain to improve the entertainment character and story quality. A definite trend toward historical subjects, comedies and musical pictures is noted among current films in course of production in London.

"Money in large amounts is readily available in England for picture production and for the erection of new theatres from which investors believe they will reap big future profits in well managed companies," Sheehan said. "At the present time the cost of producing an average moving picture in England equals the Hollywood cost. They also face the problem of too many theatres and an excessive number of seats for the population.

"Throughout Europe, but especially England, Italy and Spain, the picture theatres this year have enjoyed a record prosperity, despite high taxation. A greater number of persons than ever before have paid admissions, which are generally 30 per cent higher than in America," Sheehan concluded.

No Definite Plans Yet, Says Sheehan

No commitments of any kind pertaining to his future activities were made by Winfield Sheehan during his three months' vacation abroad, the former Fox production head stated yesterday on his arrival here aboard the Majestic.

Sheehan empasized that the trip had been solely for vacation purposes and declined to comment on current reports linking him with production activities for various companies in the face of his specific denial that he had discussed any future business connections during his absence. Sheehan was accompanied by his wife, Maria Jeritza, the singer. He plans to remain in New York about four weeks before proceeding on to the coast. Indications are that he may discuss new production associations while here and others on his arrival in Hollywood.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"I Found Stella Parish"

(Warners)

Hollywood, Oct. 22.—Heavy stress on the emotion in the story gives Kay Francis an opportunity to turn in a performance of great appeal to women in "I Found Stella Parish." For the best selling angle stress the dramatic extents of her sacrifice through mother love.

Miss Francis plays as a great stage star who keeps her past a mystery. She disappears after the successful opening of a new play and reporter Ian Hunter follows her on a liner to New York. By cajoling the child, Sybil Jason, Hunter penetrates Miss Francis' disguise as an old maid and pieces together the sordid past which she is trying to hide. Miss Francis confesses her love and explains the circumstances which unjustly sent her to prison, after Hunter has wired the other side of the story to his paper. Hunter cannot stop the extras and Miss Francis sends the child away, resorting to cheap, sensational vaudeville stunts to get money. Loyal friend Paul Lukas puts her back in a show and she makes a comeback when she sees the child in the audience.

The plot is a little melodramatic for 1935, but it is made interesting and credible by the excellent support and charm of Miss Francis and Hunter. Jessie Ralph scores as the nurse. Mervyn LeRoy has built dramatic tension for the story by John Monk Saunders and the screen play by Casey Robinson. The production is handsomely mounted and gowned. The emphasis on the problem of a mother living down her past is the best advertising pointer.

Production Code Seal No. 1,550. Running time, 75 minutes. "A."

"Valley of Wanted Men"

(Conn Pictures)

Hollywood, Oct. 22.—This Peter B. Kyne story, latest production of Maurice Conn, should amply satisfy the market for which it is aimed as an action picture in a modern setting.

Roy Mason, Russell Hopton and Paul Fix, convicted bank robbers, break jail and make their way back to a summer lodge where Walter Miller, who has the spoils of the crime, is staying. It is established that Mason is innocent and Hopton and Fix have been double-crossed by Miller, who has cached the money and stolen Drue Leyton, Mason's girl as well. With the assistance of Frankie Darro, Miss Leyton's brother, Mason manages to keep himself and his fellow convicts out of the way of the rangers, police and sheriffs who are tracking them down, until Miller is caught redhanded with the loot.

The direction of Alan James builds the action to an exciting pace, cashing in neatly on the situations which have the convicts always one jump ahead of their pursuers. Barry Barringer, who made the screen adaptation, has done a good construction job, and Forrest Barnes, credited with the dialogue, makes the characters speak modern language. The production is at its best in the outdoor sequences, and members of the cast all give good portrayals. The picture should please on duals.

Production Code Seal No. 1,590. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

Resumption Delayed In the Ascap Trial

The resumption of trial of the Government's monopoly suit against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and the Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n., which was scheduled for Nov. 4 in Federal court here, has been postponed indefinitely. Two other monopoly trials are in progress in the District Court and the assignment of a third judge to a long trial at this time was regarded as inadvisable.

A date for the continuation of the trial, which was adjourned last spring, will probably be set by Federal Judge John C. Knox at a conference with attorneys in the case in December.

"Shipmates" Smash Hit in Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 22.—"Shipmates Forever" pulled $6,000 at the Mary Anderson for the highest take of the week. This was more than 100 per cent over normal.

The Rialto was next in line with "The Virginia Judge" and a big 20-act amateur show from Station WHAS, which clicked for $5,700. This was $2,200 over par.

"O'Shaughnessy's Boy" and "The Bishop Misbehaves," a dual, failed to get going, grossing only $4,000, or $500 under par. The Strand was taken over for two days by the Grand Masonic Lodge, necessitating a rearrangement of booking. Loss of those two days cut the gross to $1,500.

Government's Case Resumed For 2 Hours

Protests Vain; Arthur, Dysart Recalled

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 23.—Despite spirited objections by defense counsel yesterday and today in the anti-trust trial here, Federal Judge George H. Moore sustained the Government's motion to reopen its case for the purpose of assertedly linking the testimony of Harry C. Arthur and Thomas N. Dysart with relation to meetings held with Warner officials, George J. Schaefer and Ned E. Depinet in New York, as tending to establish a "conspiracy."

At the same time Judge Moore denied a motion for a mistrial by William R. Gentry, representing Paramount, and later joined by Jacob M. Lashly, co-counsel for RKO, and Frederick H. Wood, one of the Warner attorneys.

Russel Hardy, prosecuting attorney,

Some of Des Moines Scales Are Jumped

DES MOINES, Oct. 23.—Raising of prices at the Roosevelt to meet the prices at the Des Moines, simultaneously with the opening of the new Uptown, suburban house, are the only price changes contemplated, according to local theatre executives.

The revision is due to the new day and date policy of the Roosevelt and Des Moines, Tri-States houses. The same pictures are to be shown at the Des Moines, downtown house, and the Roosevelt, suburban, both to be first run. Both will have a top price of 41 cents. The Roosevelt, as a subsequent run, has had a top of 26 cents. The new Uptown, opening Oct. 31 will charge 26 cents.

Court Carves Two Millions Off Para Fees

Cut Is From $3,239,828 to $1,045,211

The Federal judicial scalpel yesterday whittled Paramount's reorganization bill of $3,239,828.15 down to $1,045,211.48, representing a reduction of more than two-thirds. Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, who wielded the knife, allowed only 10 petitions totaling $13,543 without reductions of any kind from among the 53 separate applications for fees and expenses presented for services rendered in the Paramount rehabilitation.

The reductions made by the court total $2,194,616.67. Contributing to this deduction are 17 applications aggregating $905,800.23 which were disallowed in toto, and 26 others which underwent amputations computed at $1,289,816.

Court Stops Bids on Brooklyn Paramount

Federal Judge Robert Inch ruled yesterday that no further bids for the Brooklyn Paramount would be accepted after two new offers had been filed with the court yesterday in competition with an original bid by Si Fabian.

The new bids were made by Joseph J. Baker, representing Riker & Co., Brooklyn, and Robert B. Garvis, representing Samuel Strausberg, Brooklyn, described as having an interest in 40 theatres. The Riker bid proposed

Duties Undefined, But Expected to Concern Special Sales

Formal announcement was made yesterday by Nicholas M. Schenck that Al Lichtman would join the Loew-Metro organization shortly in an executive capacity. The statement occasioned little surprise and had been expected momentarily, following on the heels of persistent reports that a deal was under way and its anticipated climax as evidenced by the continued presence of Lichtman in Loew headquarters in the last few days.

The Schenck statement, brief in words, did not define Lichtman's new duties, but significantly pointed out his addition presaged no replacements. Said the Loew-Metro president:

> "I consider the acquisition of Mr. Lichtman with his wide and lifelong experience in the motion picture industry, a valuable addition to our present organization. He does not join us to replace any member of our staff."

It is understood Lichtman will be a special assistant to Schenck and will confine his activities, at this time, to special sales duties.

Felix F. Feist is general sales manager, functioning with three assistants:

William F. Rodgers in charge of the East; Tom J. Connors, in charge of the West and Canada, and E. M. Saunders, the South.

It is understood Lichtman was offered a post with M-G-M following Joseph M. Schenck's resignation as president of United Artists, but prior to the former's election to that post several months ago.

Lichtman said last night he would assume his new post on Nov. 8, and that in the meantime he would take a brief vacation. It may be Bermuda, or California, but in any event, golf will be the chief diversion.

Hays Sees 3rd Dimension, Color, Sound 'Like Opera'

By W. A. WHITNEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Will H. Hays tonight painted this picture of the screen of tomorrow in an address before the S. M. P. E.:

> Third dimensional effects which will animate the screen with stereoscopic backgrounds.
> Colors that will vie with life in vividness and naturalness.
> Sound of such quality that the illusion of an opening night at the Metropolitan or La Scala will be made perfect.

Hays described the technical progress made by the industry which has helped to lift "the motion picture art from infancy to maturity in a comparatively short span of time."

"We have now reached the stage of technical progress," he said, "which clearly warrants the extension of the motion picture art into the field of teaching. Through its technical, artistic and cultural development, the film has opened a new vista of educational possibilities. Sound and color have added vastly to its range. The great field of educational service calls

Price War Looming On Milwaukee Cuts

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 23.—Independent exhibitors, irked by 15-cent scales at the Fox Wisconsin and Palace before 1:30 P. M., may retaliate with a general 10-cent policy at outlying houses. The 15-cent rate is the lowest in the history of the two first run houses, which formerly charged 25 cents before 1:30 P. M.

With the Palace and the Wisconsin the only outlets for first run Fox, Paramount and M-G-M product, and both theatres for the most part playing single features, outlying houses are experiencing a shortage of product and many are repeating pictures several years old.

The Wisconsin opened its new show Oct. 22 with a twin bill and prices at 25 cents until 6 P. M., the same schedule that the Warner has been operating on for some time. The latter house has been playing double features for several weeks.

Guttenberg Heads Wisconsin ITPA

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 23.—A. C. Guttenberg, of Milwaukee, was reelected president of the Wisconsin I. T. P. A. at the concluding session of the first annual convention here today at the Hotel Plankinton. Other officers are: F. J. McWilliams, vice-president; E. F. Maertz, secretary; Ernst Langemack, treasurer; George Fischer, B. K. Fischer, Frank Fischer, Charles Washicheck, R. J. Patterson, Ross Baldwin, William Silcock, A. C. Berkholtz, L. F. Thurwacker, F. L. Koppelberger, directors. The unit voted unanimously to affiliate with the national Allied organization, as expected.

Hearing Monday on RKO Cleveland Suit

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—Federal Judge Paul Jones today set Monday for a hearing on a motion by RKO to remand an injunction suit filed by Broadway Amusement Co., operating the Broadview, from Common Pleas Court to Federal Court. The local exhibitor claims "Top Hat" should be on the 1934-35 contract, while RKO contends the film is on the 1935-36 contract.

On the ground it is a foreign corporation and the amount involved is claimed to be more than $3,000, RKO asked that the case be moved to the Federal Court.

Court Carves Two Millions Off Para Fees

which was allowed by the court, reveals that $766,426.50 is being allowed for the fees of trustees, committees, lawyers and others, and $278,784.98 is approved for the expenditures of these factors in the Paramount reorganization. There were prior allowances amounting to $458,029.99 made in the Paramount receivership and bankruptcy proceedings, thus bringing the total allowed by the court to $1,503,241.47, the company's bill for its bankruptcy court bath.

Under a provision in the Paramount reorganization plan, $2,500,000 was set aside for the payment of the bill. Judge Coxe's decision, in effect, gives Paramount a $1,000,000 cash rebate.

Reduced $500,000

The largest single reduction made concerned Root, Clark, Buckner and Ballantine, the law firm which served as counsel to the receivers and trustees throughout the two and one-half years of the rehabilitation proceedings, and whose application, incidentally, was for the largest single amount asked. The law firm petitioned a fee of $700,000 and asked $7,679.08 for expenses. Judge Coxe reduced the application by $500,000, allowing a fee of $200,000 and the expenses as asked. This firm received $250,000 in allowances earlier, bringing the total granted it to $450,000.

Other large reductions included the $150,000 fee and $812.15 expenses asked by Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, counsel for Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and the latter's $100,000 fee and $14,287 expense applications, all of which were disallowed in toto on the grounds that the services each performed were in the line of the personal duty of the former Paramount bankers to aid in the satisfactory reorganization of the company whose securities they had publicly sponsored. The court also held that neither could they be reimbursed as employes of the reorganization committees inasmuch as the committees were without authority to employ them.

Protective Committee Cut

The law firm of Cook, Nathan & Lehman, which served both as counsel to the Paramount stockholders' committee and to Paramount as a debtor corporation, was allowed $115,000 of the $250,000 it had asked. The stockholders' protective committee, which had asked fees amounting to $70,000 for its members, and $170,875 for expenses, was granted nothing for fees and had its expense application shaved by more than $60,300. The court opined that Barney Balaban, a member of the committee, was essentially a Paramount employe and, as such, was not entitled to compensation for his services. Maurice Newton and Gerald Brooks, other members of the committee who sought compensation, were held to be disqualified because they had engaged in trading in Paramount securities.

The Vanderlip committee asked $80,000 in fees for its members, $50,000 of which was sought for Frank A. Vanderlip, chairman. The latter's right to compensation was also held by the court to have been revoked through trading in Paramount securities, as was that of Lawrence Stern, another committee member, who asked a $7,500 fee. Compensation of $2,500 each was granted to Robert Cassatt, Maurice Ernst and Duncan Harris, or a total of $7,500 allowed to the committee for fees. The committee's attorneys, Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed, had its $150,000 application for fees spliced to $75,000.

The bank committee's $50,000 application for fees was disallowed in toto on the grounds that its services had to do primarily with the defense of its own claim against Paramount, and that members of the committee, who were officers of creditor banks, represented their own institutions and "should look to them for their compensation." Beekman, Bogue & Clark, the committee's counsel, was allowed a fee of $35,000. The firm had asked for $75,000.

Numerous lawyers who intervened for independent committees and creditors and who had applied for large fees for their services, had their applications rejected in toto by the court on the grounds that the independent committees only duplicated work which was being capably done by the principal committees and that the lawyers for intervening creditors performed services of a personal nature and should look to their clients for their compensation. In these groups were the following and the amounts each had asked: Malcolm Sumner and Edward L. Garvin, $150,000; Samuel Zirn, $75,000; A. J. Schanfarber, A. M. Frumberg, Edgar J. Schoen and Samuel Zirn, $75,000; Saul E. Rogers, $10,000; Archibald Palmer, $15,000; Jacob J. Lesser, $37,500; Samuel Spring, $7,500; Louis Boehm, $10,000 and Bibb, Dederick & Osbourne, $25,000.

The applications were under consideration by the court for the past four months. They mark a closing phase of the rehabilitation activities of Paramount which began with the company's receivership in Jan., 1933, and ended with the election of a new board and officers of the company last July 1.

Zirn, one of those whose application was disallowed in toto, said he would appeal Judge Coxe's decision to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Other attorneys, it is believed likely, will also bring individual appeals to the higher court.

Kuykendall Report Coming Next Month

reported to have found, thus far, an overwhelming sentiment in favor of some form of voluntary, local machinery for the settlement of trade disputes of a local character. Foremost in this connection is said to be the idea of arbitration groups composed of exhibitor representatives empowered by their constituents to act in their behalf and of local exchangemen with sufficient authority delegated by their home offices to act on behalf of distributors.

Following the M. P. T. O. A. board meeting the national exhibitor viewpoints and any plan which may be developed from them will be placed before distributor representatives here for further study, it is said.

Kuykendall to Seattle

SEATTLE, Oct. 23.—Ed Kuykendall, president of the M. P. T. O. A., will be guest of honor and principal speaker at the annual convention of Allied Amusements of the Pacific Northwest Oct. 25. According to Hugh W. Bruen, president, more than 100 exhibitors from Washington and Idaho will be present at the New Washington Hotel.

The program includes a luncheon, business sessions in the afternoon, a dinner, and the third annual Film Ball in the evening. The latter event is sponsored by the Northwest Film Club. Entertainment for women is being arranged by Mrs. Ben F. Shearer. Gov. Clarence D. Martin of Washington and Mayor Charles F. Smith of Seattle will be among the luncheon speakers.

Court Stops Bids on Brooklyn Paramount

a $75,000 cash payment, $60,000 of which would be provided by the R. F. C. Mortgage Corp., and a 10-year mortgage for $1,675,000. It was intimated that Paramount, as lessee of the theatre, would be required to continue operation of the house if this bid was accepted. The Garvis bid, likewise, was for a total of $1,750,000. A cash payment of $75,000, all of which would be borrowed from the R. F. C., was provided for, with a 15-year bonded mortgage for the $1,675,000 balance.

Fabian's bid, which the court has been asked by the trustees of Allied Owners Corp. to approve, is for $1,500,000, with $75,000 in cash and a 20-year mortgage for the balance.

Opposition to all three bids was voiced by H. S. Morse, representing Manufacturers' Trust Co., as trustee under the indenture, and by Meyer Kraushaar, counsel for the Sabath Congressional committee for real estate bond reorganizations. Morse took exception to the forfeiture clause in all three offers and asked the court to require a revision of this clause before accepting any of the bids.

Judge Inch set Oct. 30 for further hearing on the offers.

Hays Speaks To Engineers In Washington

for the joint cooperation of science and education on one hand and technical development by the industry on the other." The day will come, he declared, when textbooks will be written on celluloid as well as on paper.

Hays reviewed efforts made toward film preservation in recent years and welcomed the establishment of the Film Library, which will be located in the new National Archives Building in Washington. "It would be a crime against posterity," he asserted, "if we failed to organize this moving, living, talking record so that historical and educational material may be made available to educators, film creators and students of the future. Many priceless chronicles of current and contemporary events are literally fading away for want of careful scientific preservation which must follow a system of collation and selection of films from a vast footage of material produced every year."

Richardson in Talk

One basic reason why projection faults prevail in many theatres, declared F. H. Richardson, editor of the Bluebook School Department of the Motion Picture Herald, told the convention today, is that a real projection department is lacking. Even in chains, few directors of projection have sufficient authority to enforce regulations conducive to the best results, he stated.

Discussing the essential functions of a chain theatre projection department, Richardson pointed out that the departmental office must be equipped with records that will enable its director to ascertain instantly not only the exact age and general condition of every piece of equipment used, but also the age and exact condition of every part thereof that is subject to deterioration through wear or other causes.

J. R. Manheimer, of the E-J Electric Co. of New York, described the operation of electronic tubes to control reactors for setting and changing the intensity of lamps in theatres, public halls, auditoriums and other places.

Switchboard Described

The switchboard, described by Manheimer, consists of two sections:

1.—The pilot board, which contains the levers and switches, that are under the immediate control of the operator, located in a convenient position either beneath the stage with a porthole for the operator or on either side of the stage. It is comparatively small and, therefore, can be located to the best advantage.

2.—The actual control equipment comprising the reactors, wiring troughs, magazine panels, Thyratron tubes, and wiring terminals. These items are quite bulky, but can be set in less valuable space.

The connection between the two consists, Manheimer stated, of multiple cables of comparatively small wires which carry only minute currents.

This arrangement provides simplicity of operation and obtains ability to pre-set and control light intensities with the minimum of effort and a maximum of speed, Manheimer explained. It provides proportional dimming and automatic voltage regulation, which enables the load to be varied between 25 and 100 per cent of its rated capacity without affecting the proportion of dimming established by the position of the regulating switches.

A summary of color, starting with a definition, was the gist of "The Conquest of Color" presented by Howard Ketcham of New York, who also advanced arguments why the motion picture was not yet ready for chromatic embellishment.

"Color movies are in keeping with the outstandingly revolutionary changes in industry such as—streamlined trains, Diesel engines, synthetic enamels, beer in cans. When will colored movies replace black and white? When they embody a means of reproducing color with fidelity throughout the entire range of the visible spectrum; when color costs approximate black and white production figures and represent a minimum change in production technique. Then and then only will color photography replace black and white moving pictures on a permanent basis," he said.

Speaks on Color

"The time is not far distant when color pictures will be made with no additional illumination on the set out of doors, no special cameras or cameramen. On the set, actors and actresses will need no other make-up than is normally worn on the street. The reproduction of flesh tones will be so faithful as to show the slightest variation of powder white or olive tint.

"There has been too much tendency to date to treat color as a mere novelty with no real place in the general scheme of things. The colors in this world today are not livid, but gay.

"The more color sensations the eye receives, and the fidelity with which they are transmitted, controls, to a degree, the fatigue of the eye. For this reason, a color picture process that employs three colors is less tiring than a two-color process; and a four-color process is less tiring than a three-color process.

"To summarize, the successful color picture process will present with precision and comfort to the visual organ, any color within the visible spectral range."

"Our American quality films will never be submerged abroad," N. D. Golden, chief of the motion picture division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, declared.

Among the lesser annoyances, censorship regulations abroad are becoming continually more drastic, even reaching extraordinary heights of "moral safeguards" governing attendance, such as the recent decree in Bagdad, forbidding men and women to sit together at matinees, he stated. Much more serious, Golden explained, are the systems of quotas and "Kontingents" now existing or proposed in foreign lands. But these barriers and competitive efforts form no just cause for indiscriminating pessimism, Golden held.

At the dinner tonight, the S. M. P. E. awarded its newly-created Progress Medal to Dr. Edward C. Wente, research physicist in charge of acoustical investigations of Bell Telephone Laboratories. Designed to be an annual award, Dr. Wente was chosen for 1935 for his work in acoustics and acoustical instruments with special reference to their application to recording, transmission and reproduction of speech and music.

Award for Paper

The Journal award for the most outstanding paper published in the organization's official publication during 1934 went to Dr. Lloyd A. Jones and Dr. Julian H. Webb for their paper, titled "Reciprocity Law Failure in Photographic Exposure." Illuminated parchment certificates were presented to them by President H. G. Tasker. The recipients also received a check for $50 as part of the award.

Local managers cooperated in supplying talent for the banquet. From the Earle came Paul Ash, Bob Burns, Gypsy Nina, Rose Marie Deering, Barto and Mann and Bert Granoff. Members of one of Major Bowes' amateur shows playing the Loew's Fox also entertained, including Sara Berner, Youmans Brothers, Dave Siegel, Fritzie Robbins, Michael O'Byrne, "Skeets" Simmons and Celeste Alvi.

S. M. P. E. Sidelights

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—LYMAN J. BRIGGS, director of the Bureau of Standards, played host to the convention at the Bureau for the Tuesday afternoon session.

Some of the papers have been distinctly heavy, but not equal to the weight of the members themselves. Tuesday, the elevator at the Bureau of Standards balked at being made a vertically-moving sardine can. So SYLVAN HARRIS, operator of the automatic raising device, a good engineer, finally came to the conclusion that some bulk weight had to be removed to permit the motor to overcome the static inertia!

F. H. RICHARDSON is very much in the limelight. It is he who frequently leads in discussing questions from the floor.

D. B. JUDD, in his lecture on color blindness, brought his subject to a very immediate practical value by flashing on the screen a slide so constructed that it would indicate whether a person was color blind or not. The tenseness of the audience at this point indicated how very much they were interested in this subject.

The latter part of the Tuesday session seemed to develop into a contest as to the respective merits of color 16 mm. pictures made with third-dimensional effect and those without it. After R. C. PHILLIPS had introduced and shown the former, a special showing was held of plain color film in order that the contrast could be noted.

Whether the entertainment committee had particularly in mind ROBERT WILDHACK's excruciating discourses on "soft-palate calisthenics"—snoring to you—when they negotiated for the special showing of "Broadway Melody of 1936" is not known but the engineers thought the dissertations on these "sound phenomena" singularly and devastatingly funny.

New Wisconsin Rule Allows Free Prizes

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 23.—Free distribution of cards bearing numbers which entitle holders to prizes is not a lottery under a ruling handed down by the State Attorney General's office to District Attorney William M. Gleiss.

The question arose over the policy of a Monroe county theatre giving away money each Saturday night to the holder of a lucky number. The holder has not been required to purchase an admission ticket and the winning number has been announced in front of the theatre.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23. — Loew's Midland has done away with 15-cent matinee balconies. It now gets 25 cents for matinees anywhere in the house, and in the evening 25 cents and 40 cents. Complaints on the change have been negligible, John McManus, manager, said.

The 15-cent balcony was at one time a bone of contention among independent subsequent runs.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 23.—Resetting Ronald Colman as a leading light comedian this picture pleases as a delightful and adult fairy story.

Colman, staked by a group of exiled Russians, journeys to Monte Carlo and runs a small amount up to a fortune at baccarat, forcing the Casino to call quits. Montagu Love, Ferdinand Gottschalk and other Casino directors, at first delighted with the publicity which will come to the Casino, become alarmed on learning that Colman does not intend to return to the gambling tables. They, thereupon, start elaborate plans to entice him back, succeeding finally by using Joan Bennett as the chief lure. When Miss Bennett and Colman eventually fall in love their romance is left to culminate when Colman, again broke, returns to his Paris taxi-driving job.

Stephen Roberts directed intelligently, skillfully handling the story elements. Nunnally Johnson's and Howard Smith's screen play from the play by Ilia Surgutchoff and Frederick Albert Swan is marked by good writing and construction. The supporting cast are all well chosen, with Nigel Bruce outstanding as the valet of suave Colman and Colin Clive convincing as Miss Bennett's brother. The foreign setting of the production is authentic and the photography of Ernest Palmer is high class. As light entertainment the picture should be well received in most localities.

Production Code Seal No. 1,546. Running time, 71 minutes. "G."

"The Frisco Kid"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 23.—As a two-fisted, vigorous gang story dressed up in period clothes flung against a Barbary Coast panorama, this production packs a melodramatic thrill, giving James Cagney great scope for a fine tough guy characterization plus a romantic angle.

Cagney, a sailor arriving in gold rush Frisco, learns the code of dog-eat-dog when he frustrates an attempt to "shanghai" him and comes back to kill Fred Kohler, alias "Shanghai Duck" in a grand fistic battle.

Befriended by George E. Stone, a Jewish tailor, Cagney determines to rise high in the town by using Frisco's code. As a power along Barbary Coast he runs lawless rackets, meets Margaret Lindsay, managing editor of a paper, and aspires to marry her. When Robert McWade, the local judge, is murdered and Editor Donald Cook is also, Vigilantes, transgressing the law, take things in their own hands with the Barbary Coast element in a climactic pitched battle. Cagney wins the girl.

Lloyd Bacon's direction is sharp, incisive and robust. Sam Bischoff's production catches the spirit and flavor of the brawling town for vivid effect. Others in the cast are Ricardo Cortez, Lili Damita, Barton MacLane, Addison Richards. Cagney's sterling performance and his romantic aptitude add much to his stature. The film, with its melodramatic vibrancy, should fare well at box-offices.

Looking 'em Over

"The Case of the Missing Man"

(Columbia)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 23.—That man is here again. You know, that abbitious cameraman who daily blocks sidewalk traffic waiting for you to walk within range of his iris for an action picture. You know after he snaps you he hands you a card which graciously advises you that your humble visage has been filmed and if you want the photo send a quarter.

In this incredulous concoction, Roger Pryor is one of those out-to-get-you cameramen who outwits the metropolitan police in the solution of a series of jewelry holdup murders. Prior to resorting to this snatch-'em-as-they-come business, Pryor has been an ace photographer for a newspaper. He gets swell-headed because he took a picture which wins a contest in a competing paper. He opens his own studio, is a flop and just like that thinks up the street roving cameraman idea. Pryor's good, he is. He even builds these machines himself. Ultimately he happens

Short Subjects

"Italian Riviera"

(20th-Fox)

One of the Magic Carpet of Movietone series of travel subjects, characterized by the comparatively small amount of accompanying explanatory material, this is interesting subject matter, as the camera roves about Italy. San Remo and its great gambling casino, one or two of the famed beach resorts, favorites of European society, and interesting contrasts between the ancient and modern in the city of Genoa highlight the subject. Production Code Seal No. 0433. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Clever Critters"

(Educational)

With narration by A. L. Alexander, this novelty number pictures animals in and out of training. Seen are the cat which mothers a flock of chicks, the chipmunk trained to get a nut from the end of a suspended string, birds trained to pick cards and bring objects to their master, and the elephants of India, which are beasts of burden, and replace the heavy truck and motor of western civilization. A novel and for the most part interesting subject. Production Code Seal No. 0658. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Balloon Land"

(Celebrity)

Done in Comi-Color, this cartoon should be found interesting by the audiences that enjoy these efforts. The story is about a land where all is of balloon-like nature and the terror is the Pincushion Man who goes about with a lot of needles puncturing as he goes. His assault on the town and eventual defeat makes for a novel twist. The color effects are well done and pleasing to the eye. Production Code Seal No. 1297. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"He's a Prince"

(Educational)

Tom Howard, the lanky and unhandsome, here operates a service company, in partnership with his stooge, George Shelton. The company will supply any sort of person for any occasion. Howard takes a job as prince to pose at a social climber's party, while unknowing, George takes another to go to the same place, where he is ordered to drug the supposed prince. The usual Howard-Shelton antics and occasionally amusing remarks feature the subject, which rates as fairly entertaining, especially for those who enjoy Howard. Production Code Seal No. 0655. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Tetched in Th' Haid"

(Columbia)

The newspaper cartoon character, Barney Google, is introduced to the screen in this effort, which may be mildly amusing to an undiscriminating audience. The plot is laid in the south and Barney attempts some reforms on a backwoods family much to his sorrow and pain. His attempts to convince children of the value of education are met with bullets, wet clothes, etc. He rides off on Spark Plug, giving the business up. Production Code Seal No. 1417. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

SMASH HIT

JUDGE Super X Negative solely on the basis of its reception by users. Placed on the market only a few months ago, it is already being employed in the majority of feature productions, as well as for various purposes of a special nature. Verdict of the industry: a smash hit. Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y. (J. E. Brulatour, Inc., Distributors, New York, Chicago, Hollywood.)

Government's Case Resumed For 2 Hours

reopened and closed his case in two hours, during which the jury spent most of the time in the ante-room playing cards. The Government's procedure was described by distributors' counsel as unusual. Former Senator James A. Reed characterized it as "a trick," to which Hardy objected and was sustained.

Reed further stated the defendants' rights as guaranteed by articles 14 and 15 in the constitution had been violated. Judge Moore answered this, saying that the defendants who had not cross examined the witnesses previously now had the opportunity.

Arthur Recalled

"When the Government closed its case yesterday," Judge Moore added, "the court had before it a motion pending whether the testimony against individual parties should be directed against all defendants.

"It is within the discretion of the court to decide whether the Government has tended to establish a conspiracy by the various defendants and also whether the case can be reopened." The judge then ordered Hardy to proceed.

Arthur was the first witness recalled. Hardy asked Arthur the first question he put to him Oct. 4. This brought about another series of objections by the lawyers of those indicted and after arguments without the jury present, Judge Moore ruled in favor of the Government.

It was then that Gentry made his move for a mistrial, which was overruled quickly. The jurors were brought back, and before Arthur got a chance to answer Hardy's question, the prosecuting attorney turned him over to the defense counsel for cross examination. All attorneys waived this. Dysart then took the stand. Hardy asked no questions, but turned the witness over to his adversaries for cross queries. Again defense lawyers waived this right.

Defense Protests

The prosecutor then made a motion that the testimony of the two witnesses be admitted as against all defendants. Vehement protests followed from defense counsel and were again overruled. The Government attorney then asked that its exhibits, from one to 10, be admitted as binding on all of the indicted parties. A whispered conference among the leading lawyers of the defense and Hardy with Judge Moore ended in the Government's favor.

While all this was going on the jury sat patiently waiting for something to happen. At 12:12 Hardy again announced closing of his case, following which pleas for a directed verdict and dismissal notices on behalf of all defendants were submitted. The jury at this point was excused until Friday morning. Defense lawyers did not argue the various petitions this afternoon, but were told by Judge Moore to return tomorrow at 2 P. M. Until then various counsel will work on preparations of arguments on the demurrers and dismissal notices.

to take Arthur Hohl's picture as he exits from a jewelry shop and through the hero's own process of elimination picks Hohl as the criminal. And, by golly if he didn't get the $10,000 reward.

There's a love thread woven by Joan Perry, a beautiful but ineffective actress. The story is chock full of incongruities. The first thing the hero should have done was to learn how to hold a graflex properly when he's making a picture.

It takes two Columbia pictures apparently to make up a program. This one was shown on the same bill with "She Couldn't Take It" at the Ambassador. "The Case of the Missing Man," needless to say, if you have read so far, took second place both on the bill and with the patrons. Production Code Seal No. 1,575. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

"This Woman Is Mine"

(Paramount)

Straightforward drama, set in the atmosphere of the circus, this picture has almost too much of drama and not quite enough of relieving elements. It was produced in England for Paramount under the direction of Monty Banks, with Gregory Ratoff not only as the star, but also as the story's author.

As the famed and fearless lion tamer of a great European circus, Ratoff offers a capable, intelligent performance. In support are Benita Hume and Richard Bennett, in particular. When Ratoff learns that another lion tamer has been killed by one of his charges, he goes to buy the animal, and there finds the orphaned child of the performer. He takes the child with him and brings her up. Years pass, and the strict manner in which the child has been trained to look at no one and talk to no one, still is maintained, and Miss Hume, the girl, now a woman, lives anything but the normal life of a young girl.

The end comes when she falls in love. Ratoff refuses to understand, almost kills her fiance, then, as he realizes the truth, and that he can do nothing about it, he walks into the cage for his performance and permits the lion to kill him.

Ratoff's name and the circus atmosphere furnish the exploitation angles.

Columbia Seeks New Stock Registration

Washington, Oct. 23.—Columbia Pictures Corp. has filed an application with the Securities and Exchange Commission seeking registration covering 75,000 shares of no par value $2.75 cumulative dividend preferred convertible stock, to be offered at $50 per share, and 135,000 shares of no par value common stock.

The new preferred may be converted into common between Dec. 10, 1935, and Nov. 15, 1941, at the rate of nine-tenths of one common share for each share of preferred. Of the common registered, 67,500 shares are reserved for this conversion. The remaining 67,500 shares are for issuance in the event that a future increase in the number of shares of common stock outstanding makes it necessary to adjust the conversion rate. A registration statement covering 135,000 voting trust certificates for common stock to be issued in lieu of common stock in the event of conversion was also filed today.

According to the registration statement, the corporation plans to apply $819,897.50 of the proceeds to the redemption of 17,261 shares of outstanding convertible preference stock, and approximately $400,000 for improvements and additions to studio properties. It is also stated that $150,000 of the proceeds might be used for payment of a mortgage, due Sept. 17, 1936 on the studio properties of Columbia Pictures Corp., Ltd.

Additional amounts may be used for studio improvements and additions from time to time. The balance of the proceeds is to be used for additional working capital.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co. of New York, the principal underwriter, has agreed to purchase, or procure purchasers for, the 75,000 shares from the corporation at an aggregate price of $3,487,500.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—"Anna Karenina" proved good enough at $12,500 in the Palace to warrant a holdover.

"Melody" Has Big Holdover In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 23.—The big noise here last week was "Broadway Melody" again, which was moved to the Warner after a sensational week at the Penn and continued its record-breaking business by rolling up a $9,000 gross at the second house, the best figure this house has had in a couple of years. Also in the money was "The 39 Steps," which did a sellout night business at the Alvin, overcoming the weak matinee trade and winding up with a first rate $8,500.

Although "I Live My Life" bettered average at the Penn, doing $12,000, that take was something of a disappointment for a Joan Crawford picture. The Fulton took it on the chin again with "Storm Over the Andes," barely hitting $2,200, while the Stanley managed to pick up a bit, after a succession of poor weeks, collecting around $16,000 with "Two for Tonight" and a stage show.

At the Pitt, even the introduction of a triple feature policy at a low scale didn't help much and the house took a little better than $1,000 for "Dealers in Death," "Call Me Co-Ed" and "The Gay Buckaroo."

Total first run business was $48,700. Average is $42,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 17:

Rockefeller Claim Stirs RKO Action

Agreement Is Sought to Aid Reorganization

The negotiation of a settlement of Rockefeller Center's $8,700,000 claim has been begun by factors in the reorganization of RKO, it was learned yesterday, and, if successful, will facilitate the early completion of an RKO reorganization plan.

The huge Rockefeller Center claim arises out of RKO's liability under the leases made with the former for the Music Hall and Center, which held RKO liable for the unamortized cost of the theatres in the event of a default under the lease. Although the allowance of the claim at $8,700,000 is being contested by Irving Trust Co., as trustee of RKO, factors in the reorganization of the company are not hopeful of obtaining any appreciable reduction in the amount.

With a valuation of $14,644,614 placed by RCA on its investment in RKO, and with half of this amount disposed of recently for $5,000,000 to Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros., the Rockefeller Center claim became the largest single creditor interest in the

Wood Asks a Verdict for The Defense

Seeks to Strike Out 90 Pages of Testimony

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—Declaring that the Government had failed to establish a conspiracy among the various defendants, and even if it did, had not proved it; that there was no connection among the indicted parties in the series of unconnected acts related by witnesses, Frederick H. Wood, co-counsel for Warners, today asked for a directed verdict and dismissal of the indictments on behalf of his clients "unless the facts exclude every other hypothesis but that of guilt." He stated the Government had not made out a prima facie case and that the jury should be given a directed verdict.

The Warner attorney took three hours to outline to Federal Judge George H. Moore the facts contained in his brief, submitted after formally

Winthrop Guilty in Chance Games Test

The Winthrop was found guilty yesterday in Special Sessions of conducting a lottery in the operation of the chance game, "Farmer Miller's Kentucky Derby."

The action against the Winthrop was instituted by the city under the direction of License Commissioner Paul Moss and was described in advance of trial by the theatre's attorneys, Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett, as a test case for chance games in the city. After the finding of guilty the court set Nov. 1 for the passing of sentence.

Attorneys for the theatre said that an appeal of the decision would be taken at once to the Appellate Division.

Loop Has a Dual Bill

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—For the first time in months a Loop theatre has a dual bill. The Garrick, when "Wings Over Ethiopia" failed to click, rushed in "Here's to Romance" to augment the program. Heavy advertising helped and the twin attraction is doing well.

The Ethiopian picture was cut considerably to shorten the program.

Bert Pittman Dead

DENVER, Oct. 24.—Bert Pittman, 62, died in a Denver hospital following a week's illness from pneumonia. He established the first theatrical booking agency here in 1901.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE experimental laboratory inaugurated by the Loew circuit a few days ago in the matter of single versus dual bills will be observed with keen interest not only in the greater city area, but probably elsewhere as well. Twelve houses, scattered sufficiently throughout the metropolitan area and geographically far enough apart to make reasonable the assumption their clienteles are varied, have reverted from twins to singles the big half—Saturday through Monday—of each week, but remaining double the last half. The theatres are the Lexington, 72nd Street, 83rd Street, Ziegfeld, Sheridan, in Manhattan; the King's, Pitkin and Kameo, Brooklyn; the White Plains in that town; the New Rochelle and also the Mount Vernon houses and the Prospect, Flushing. . . .

Having only recently gone double features with a vengeance and in all spots except the Capitol and the State right on Broadway, what persuaded a change of heart? Joe Vogel says it was a direct check with the factor that counts most—the public that bears the traffic. In the populous communities which patronize these houses, the reaction was anti-dual and pro-singles and shorts, which is to say less of a desire to get a bargain show and more for a program with a semblance of balance. . . .

No one can foretell for how long the switch will continue. The intention, however, is to stay solo as long as crystal-gazing and box-office returns indicate the practice a sound one. What with the RKO circuit having played "Top Hat" on full week stands and pondering the continuance of such a scheme where the product holds up and the Loew move, isolated as it is, back to singles, the impact is almost inevitably destined to leave the mark of its influence on other competitive theatres in the same zones. . . .

Paramount has its best picture in months in "Hands Across the Table," a Cinderella-type story with twists unordinary, a pleasant mood with a high vein of comedy and splendid performances, first by Carole Lombard and secondly, by Fred MacMurray. Down-to-earth in content and understandable to the crowd at large, this is an attraction which will build on its own merits and, advancing on dangerous ground again, one which we predict will start for places and reach them. "Hands Across the Table" also happens to mark the first film seen through from purchase to completion by Ernst Lubitsch as the managing director of Paramount production. "We are hopeful that we will have many more of the same high quality," observes a company spokesman. That's a real hope which this space echoes. . . .

And so it is M-G-M to which Al Lichtman goes. Steeped in celluloid lore and experience, he will make an addition of strength to Nick Schenck's organization as would he in any other. Al, himself, describes his duties merely as "executive," acting as a friendly and cooperative liaison officer among others of ranking stature in that well-knit organization. That says something or practically nothing. Your slant determines which. . . .

Knight A-Riding Is Western Hero

He's the Knight Errant of Today, Foiling Villains and Rescuing Downtrodden.

By GERALD BREITIGAM.

OUT of the turmoil of midtown Eighth Ave. a neighborhood picture house is showing a Western. One minute the world was a place of noise and confusion and cheap stores and discontented faces and hash house odors. It was tormented by a raw wind, stung by dust and lighted by a pale sun with no warmth in it. But the moment we had paid our dime and a half we came upon cotton-woods drowsing along the creek, the sky opened out to a vision of illimitable space and the dazzling air held the pungent tang of the mesquite on the sun-drenched slope rolling back from the bottoms. No wonder so many of us love our Westerns. The scenery appeals to the basic craving of a sardined humanity for elbow room amid natural surroundings. And then there is violent action of men riding horses at the gallop, breaking outlaw broncs, lassoing steers for the branding, pistol fighting to the death. An inhibited city man who daren't say "boo" to a goose or a wife or a cop or a boss is bound to go for that in a big way.

Gerald Breitigam.

Cowboy Knight Errant.

YET all this only scratches the surface of our addiction to Westerns. As John Wayne pursued the rustlers through the sequences of "The Dawn Rider," outsmarted the gamblers and crooks and rescued the fair maiden, there were about him the ghostly outlines of a knight errant of an elder day. There are several other Westerns playing in the neighborhood houses right now, and there is the same feeling in them all. George O'Brien in Zane Grey's "Thunder Mountain" lets you down a little. Watching him as a lover of Westerns you get the idea that Hollywood has spoiled him a bit, has made him too arty. He's afraid to let go; he plays down, when these Western roles should be played to the top of a man's bent.

But William Boyd in "Hopalong Cassidy"—well, he knows what all the shooting's for.

This "Hop-along" is a knight errant of the rangeland. He goes about righting wrongs, and when his end has been accomplished [illegible] hill to s[illegible] and sticks his nose in it. Wood Asks a Verdict for The Defense filing the motions for a directed verdict and dismissal. As he consumed the entire afternoon for his recapitulation, counsel for Paramount and RKO were unable to argue their summaries. Judge Moore consented to allow the other defense counsel oral presentations tomorrow morning, following which Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, will take the floor in rebuttal. The jury was not present during Wood's speech and also will be absent while the other three attorneys present their side of the case.

Motions Denied

In another surprise move by defense counsel, Wood filed a motion to strike out 90 pages of testimony. William R. Gentry, Paramount co-counsel, also requested that portions of the testimony relating to conferences held by Harry C. Arthur, Jack A. Partington, Frederick Kreismann, Joseph Grand, David Levinson, Jacob Chassnoff, John S. Leahy, Clarence M. Turley, Ned E. Depinet, Cresson E. Smith, Jules Levy, Frederick W. Strauss and M. A. Rosenthal with parties other than Paramount officials be excluded from the record. Hardy objected to both moves, asserting he had not known of the motions and did not have time to study them. However, Judge Moore summarily denied the motions, following which Jacob M. Lashly, attorney for RKO, notified the court he would file similar motions for the record.

Armed with legal authorities to prove his contentions, Wood unlinked the so-called chain of events introduced by the Government in a complete analysis of the acts complained of, citing the specific reasons which prompted Warners to negotiate them.

He said, in brief, that Warners leased the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto after the company had made many vain efforts to protect its interest in the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, rather than deal with a "monopoly." Warners decided to return to the exhibition business here on its own, Wood asserted.

Within Rights, Says Wood

"Warners, nor anyone else can be denied the right to lease theatres and neither can Warners be denied the same rights F. & M. had," Wood stated. "Warners' opening of the two theatres and buying of pictures was not an unlawful act. There is no suspicion, hypothesis or inferences of illegality or that their doing so made it impossible for F. & M. to conduct their business," Wood added.

"The one significant thing about this case is that Warners did not buy more pictures than required for the two theatres and at no time did the Government attempt to prove this.

"We had a right to go to Paramount and RKO and buy their pictures and they also had the right to choose us as their customers, as well as to decide not to do business with F. & M. for any reason at all. The very purpose of the Sherman Act is to preserve competition," Wood continued, "and what the Government is seeking to do in this case is to tell a man with whom he can deal. It was for Paramount and RKO to determine their customers and even if pressure was exercised these two companies did not commit any crime.

"There is not a word or syllable of evidence that any representatives of RKO or Paramount were in the same room together and neither did any of the two companies know that the other sold us," he stated.

Wood said the contracts were separate and independent transactions and "all that is in the record is that the contracts were made, but there is no inference of a conspiracy existing between the three companies. If Hardy can prove that contracts made by two different people form a conspiracy he could send any man to jail."

Touches on Bondholder Action

The Warner counsel then went into the situation concerning the bondholders, declaring that the company had a junior investment in the bonds of the three theatres and when Warners tried to make a deal with the committee the bondholders wanted to pay off all the bonds before taking care of the junior interest held by Warners.

He characterized the action by the bondholders as "putting the screws to Warners," who, failing to get a fair share, undertook to protect themselves. "Every act committed by Warners was lawful and in the exercise of their legal right as citizens," Wood said.

The Warner attorney then took up the conversations between Arthur and Depinet, stating that none of the other defendants were present at the Plaza Hotel meeting and that they could not be linked with this meeting as tending to show a conspiracy. He then discussed the alleged threats allegedly made by Leahy to Depinet and said, "Call them threats, consider them as such if you like. They are of no consequence in this issue."

"When Warners learned from the bondholders it had been wiped out of its investment, the company found itself in a position of dealing with a monopoly. It had either to do business with them or open its own theatres, and the company elected to do the latter. This is not a suit to show we maliciously interfered with F. & M.'s business. This is a criminal action," Wood said.

That the Government was not confronted with trying to prove a monopoly suit, but a conspiracy action between Warners and others was emphasized by its attorney.

Singles Out Clients

"The Government has not called a single witness to testify to the circumstances under which the contracts were made, but we say this was done in the ordinary course of business. The Government has to prove restraint of interstate trade and whatever Warners did to salvage its investment here has nothing to do with violation of the interstate act.

"Whatever we did was in our lawful right to retain our interest here and this is no evidence of a conspiracy."

Wood then asked, "Where in this record is the necessary link to establish a conspiracy on the part of the defendant companies in a concerted move to sell pictures?"

The Warner attorney then singled out his various clients and gave a picture of the parts they are said to have played in the alleged conspiracy, choosing Harry M. Warner first, Gradwell Sears second and Herman Starr last.

"What's the evidence of Mr. Warner's participation in this case. The fact that he is president of his company falls far short of proving he ordered the acts of which he is accused. The only instance where his name was mentioned was in connection with a meeting he had with Strauss and Rosenthal in New York when he turned down their offer for recouping control of the St. Louis Amusement Co., if the Warner product was sold to Allen L. Snyder and his associates. He also put his signature on the second plan submitted to the bondholders.

"The record shows that Mr. Warner told the men he was satisfied with the two theatres he had in St. Louis and rejected their proposition," Wood stated.

As for Sears, the Warner lawyer said the southern and western sales manager had nothing to do with the acts complained of. He added that the only statement made by Sears was to Arthur and Partington when the two men came to his office on March 6, 1934. At the time, he told them, "You gummed up the works for us in St. Louis."

Starr was described as vice-president of Warners in charge of real estate. "What about him? They didn't like his manner and he made some threats.

"All he did was to put his signature on certain leases. That's all, and that's not enough to tie him in with a so-called conspiracy," Wood said.

Sound Topic For SMPE as Sessions End

for films, Wente explained, are microphone, amplifiers, recorder, reproducer, and loud speakers. The evolution of these began with the invention by Alexander Graham Bell of the telephone. Subsequent studies relating to the telephone art were in a great part responsible for the development of these articles prior to the advent of commercially successful sound pictures.

A non-directional moving-coil microphone was described by L. W. Giles of the same laboratories.

For the last paper of the session, Wente again took the floor, to speak on the principles of measurement of room acoustics.

The acoustic charactertistics of a room, he said, can be evaluated from a knowledge of the rate at which sound dies down when emission from the source ceases. The physical principles underlying the relationship were briefly dicussed.

Hear Three More Papers

Wente showed by specific examples that additional information about the acoustical properties of a room can be obtained by recording the sound level at one or more points in the room when the frequency of the sound is continuously varied.

The closing session was divided into two parts, one conducted as an apparatus symposium, the other as a general section on photographic and laboratory practices. Sections were conducted one after the other.

In the apparatus symposium H. R. Kossman of the Andre Debrie Corp. described the Debrie 16-mm. projector for professional use; M. E. Collins of the RCA Mfg. Co. described the RCA PB-141 optical reduction printer for making 16-mm. positives from 35-mm. negatives, and J. Frank, Jr., of the same company described the RCA Photophone reproducing equipment.

Three more technical papers were offered. N. Levinson of the Warners' studios described a new method for increasing the volume range of sound films; E. H. Hansen and C. N. Faulkner of Twentieth Century-Fox told of reversed mechanical bias on light-valve recordings, and T. D. Cunningham of the RCA Mfg. Co. discussed primary considerations in the design and the production of theatre amplifiers.

Laboratory Session Held

A photographic and laboratory session was opened by a report of the Committee on Laboratory Practice, read by Chairman D. E. Hyndman.

An attempt to analyze the nature and classification of atmospheric and industrial dusts was made by H. C. Murphy of the American Air Filter Co. who described methods of measuring atmospheric pollution, as well as the different procedures which have been developed for testing and rating air cleaning devices.

Nature, declared Murphy, provided humans with a surprisingly efficient air filter in the nostril, based on the viscous inpingement principle. The first attempts in industrial air cleaning, however, were based on metal and cloth screens, followed by coke washers, "fog filters," and so on down to the many commercial types available.

A processing machine built for the Army Signal Corps and now installed at Washington Barracks was described in word and picture by M. Ricker of the United Research Corp.

J. G. Patterson of the Bryant Heater Co. discussed air conditioning.

The year 1935 was one of new and greater screen successes for producers in the Soviet, declared V. I. Verlinsky of Amkino. He reviewed the films of the year and recounted technical achievements in sound, lighting and photography.

The technical advances of Soviet Russia were further discussed by A. F. Chorine of the Central Laboratories, All-Union Electrical Trust, Moscow.

The next fall meeting will be held in Rochester, N. Y.

Looking 'em Over

"A Feather in Her Hat"

(Columbia)

By dint of an able cast fired with a "do or die" spirit, the palsied plot of "A Feather in Her Hat" has been literally forced into an entertainment realm that must have been far beyond its author's most ambitious fancies; to wit, the realm of an average program feature. What toll in histrionic effort was paid to accomplish this may best be judged, perhaps, by the situations in which the principals are found in the closing sequences. Pauline Lord has passed on to her just reward; Basil Rathbone, the companion of her declining years, disappears wearily, yet gratefully, into a London fog, while the young lovers, Wendy Barrie and Louis Hayward, joined forever at last, relax in silence before the hearth fire.

The Lawrence Hazard screen play from the I. A. R. Wylie story presents again the saga of mother love which endureth much in order that the child may be free of its mean beginnings and enjoy the better things. To accomplish this Miss Lord, the mother, brings into her shopkeeper's home off the streets a gentlemanly drunkard, played by Rathbone, and commissions him to impart to her growing son the secrets of gentlemanly behavior in return for his (Rathbone's) board and keep. When the boy, Hayward, comes of age she tells him she is not his mother, then turns over her life's savings to him and orders him from the house lest he become, like herself, one of the accursed, but comfortable middle class.

Instead, he becomes a playwright and, in order to put his first effort on the boards, mother sells the old shop and turns the proceeds over to the cautious producer, who refuses to risk his own cash. But the strain, or perhaps the surprise, of the successful first night is too much for mother. Not even "God Save the King" from the theatre orchestra can keep her on her feet longer. Rathbone wanders off in the fog and Miss Barrie, whom Hayward wanted for wife but hesitated, because of his confused ancestry, to propose, enters bearing silent comfort.

Billie Burke, Victor Varconi and Nydia Westman strive with the others to invest this with credibility. Alfred Santell's direction evinces sheer bravery. The camera work of Joseph Walker is excellent.

Music Suit Dismissed

Federal Judge Mack yesterday dismissed a suit for an accounting and injunction brought against Educational by Handman & Goodman, Inc., music publishers, for alleged copyright infringement of a number, "Can't We Be Sweethearts Again?" used in several Mack Sennett comedies, which were released by Educational. The dismissal was based on proof by Educational that Sennett had a license to use the song in question.

Rockefeller Claim Stirs RKO Action

RKO reorganization. Current negotiations looking toward a settlement of the claim are understood to be directed, first, at obtaining a reduction of the amount in which it shall be allowed and, second, an agreement on the issuance of securities of the new RKO company in satisfying the claim. Indications are that both stock and debentures of the new company will be offered in payment, probably in amounts sufficient to assure Rockefeller Center of at least two representatives on the board of the new company.

The RCA and Atlas-Lehman securities will be exchanged for securities of the new company on a basis similar to whatever the agreement reached with Rockefeller Center provides for, it is believed.

These three, with the approximately $1,400,000 of first lien gold notes of RKO owned by Consolidated Film Industries, comprise the principal obligations of RKO and, as such, command first consideration in the reorganization of the company. The new RKO company will assume liability for the notes held by Consolidated at face value. It is believed that the existing agreement providing for the retirement of a minimum amount of these notes monthly will be satisfactory to the reorganized company and will be continued. The notes are secured by virtually all of the assets of RKO and its principal subsidiaries.

Satisfactory settlements for the remainder of the company's creditors are expected to be reached without difficulty or delay, according to principals in the reorganization. No estimate has been made yet of a date on which a reorganization plan may be ready for presentation to the Federal court, but present indications are that this cannot be done before the end of the year, with February or March of next year regarded as more likely.

Court Fines U. S. Counsel For Contempt

Schilz, Losing Temper, Feels Bench Wrath

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 25.—Harold L. Schilz, one of the four Washington attorneys assisting Russell Hardy, was fined $25 for contempt of court, and Herman Starr, vice-president of Warners in charge of real estate, heard the prosecuting attorney characterize him as a "dynamic, dominating and dictatorial" person, "as imperious as a feudal baron and as powerful as the owner of the largest diamond mine in Africa," in an exciting court session without jury today, which was marked by a combination of extemporaneous drama, humor and sarcastic retorts.

The entire day was devoted to arguments on directed verdicts of acquittal and dismissal motions. Three of defense counsel and two Government lawyers were heard. Rebuttal arguments will be heard tomorrow.

Wins a Restraining Order on Bank Night

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 25.—A restraining order prohibiting authorities from interfering with Bank Night programs was granted Affiliated Enterprises here today in Superior Court. The action resulted from Prosecutor Herbert M. Spencer's opinion that Bank Night was illegal. A test case is expected, since Police Chief Michael Morrissey has ordered discontinuation of the games.

B. & K. Reported Ending Chicago Clearance Fight

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—It was reported here today that B. & K. has dropped its fight for seven-days' clearance over general release, at least for the present. The circuit is reported as expecting to get clearance without difficulty next season.

Local exchanges were understood to be denying the clearance asked by B. & K., unless they had specific orders from their home offices. Barney Balaban and Walter Immerman were in New York recently in conference with distributors on the problem, but apparently without concrete result.

It was understood Paramount had allowed the clearance as asked, but was the only exchange to do so. In general it is believed along Film Row here that major distributors will not allow the clearance demanded. Allied has intimated it would fight the granting of the clearance.

WILMINGTON, Oct. 25. — Declaring that the recent clean film drive and the resultant showing of better films have brought about an increase in attendance, Carl E. Milliken praised the work of women's organizations throughout the country that have helped the industry in showing better films.

5 Sign to Adopt 2,000 Foot Reels

Five companies have made definite commitments in favor of adoption of the 2,000-foot reel by next April 1, it was learned yesterday.

The companies are United Artists, M-G-M, Warners, Twentieth Century-Fox and Columbia. No company has formally objected to the adoption of the new standard reel, although four other companies remain to be heard from between now and Nov. 1, the date by which all companies have been asked to make known their attitude. The four remaining to be heard from are Radio, Universal, Paramount and Republic. Of these only Radio and Universal are known to have had serious enough objections to oppose adoption of the new reel.

Just Exploitation!

Kansas City, Oct. 25.—Elmer Bills, owner of the Roxy at Brunswick, Mo., was in town the other day telling his story of "the last word in exploitation."

Bills' brother, who has been operating the house for him, had no previous experience in exhibition, so Elmer explained to him the finer points of exploitation. He pointed out that when he had a murder story coming up, just before flashing on the trailer, he frequently followed the practice of dimming the lights and rattling an old log chain across the stage to create attention. The idea worked very well.

The other day Bills' brother noted a murder story coming up and prepared for it. A Western was being played on this particular night.

One of the boys pulled a switch and threw the entire house in darkness. Another fired a gun from the stage several times, letting out shrieks and groans as he did so, and from back stage came the sound of the heavy log chain being thrown across the boards. The lights failed to come up after the proper interval, and Bills' brother went down to turn them on.

The house was empty. Everyone was gone except one fellow who had just gotten out of the hospital where he had been with a broken hip. The Roxy's customers were all on the street looking for a good hiding place.

Warners See Profits for Fiscal Year

Stockholders Get News; Will Meet Dec. 8

Although definite figures are not available as yet, Warners are predicting a profit for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, in contrast to a deficit of $2,530,513.68 for last year.

This prediction is net, after all charges, including interest, amortization, depreciation and Federal taxes.

Letters to this effect are being sent out to stockholders in advance of the annual meeting at Wilmington Dec. 9 at which time six directors, a majority, will be named by the preferred stockholders. Directors whose terms will expire are: Harry M. Warner, Albert Warner, Jack L. Warner, Abel Carey Thomas, Waddill Catchings and Henry A. Rudkin.

Proxies are being sought by the management with the understanding that these directors will be reelected and that a compromise settlement worked out on the employment con-

"March of Time" Cut By Censors in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25.—Upon orders of Roy Reichelderfer, newly-appointed supervisor of the censor board, the scenes showing Storm Troopers attacking Jewish shopkeepers, despoiling stores, and warning other Germans not to patronize Jewish merchants, have been deleted from the current issue of "March of Time," opening in several Ohio key situations today.

Stanley C. Jacques, Cincinnati branch manager for RKO, protested on the ground that the scenes were of a political and not a moral nature. Reichelderfer, however, contends that "they are harmful and should not be shown at this time."

There is no appeal from the censor board.

Ohio Sales Tax Law Is Upheld by Court

AKRON, Oct. 25.—On the ground that it is an excise tax, Judge C. G. Washburn, of the Appellate Court, has upheld the constitutionality of the Ohio sales tax, in an injunction suit brought by Michael L. Fox, president of Summit Growers Market, who contended the law was discriminatory and unconstitutional.

The decision, concurred in by Judges Perry H. Stevens and Ross Funk, cites that the Legislature misnamed the law a "sales tax," but this does not affect its constitutionality as a law, as it provides for a tax on the right to acquire property, and as such is an excise tax.

Plaintiffs may carry the case to the State Supreme Court, although a vote of six of the seven Supreme Court judges would be required to reverse the Appellate Court's decision.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Peter Ibbetson"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—This strange mystical romance needs special emphasis on the deathlessness of great love in life and after death to attract the superior type of audience at which the film is aimed. A handsomely produced picture, it needs plenty of exploitation to draw those who are not reached by the average love tale.

Virginia Weidler and Dickie Moore shine brightly in the introductory scenes. Circumstance separates the childish lovers, but each treasures the memory of perfect companionship into adult life. Gary Cooper, as the young architect, does not know why he loves instantly Duchess Ann Harding, until they dream identical scenes and discover their youthful association. Jealous Duke John Halliday accuses Miss Harding of infidelity and is killed by Cooper, who is imprisoned for life. Miss Harding and Cooper meet in their dreams, fantastically, imaginatively and sensitively done. Rising out of the grim, unwholesome prison, Cooper wanders with his love through the unearthly terrain of dreamland until death frees both. Miss Harding is lovely, dignified and credible as the duchess. Cooper is less convincing as a mystic lover, but appealing to his audience.

The supporting cast, above reproach, includes Ida Lupino, Douglas Dumbrille, Doris Lloyd, Gilbert Emery, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Christian Rub. Henry Hathaway's direction is sensitive and sure of the famous novel by Gerald Du Maurier and the play by John Nathaniel Raphael, adapted by Constance Collier, with the screen play by Vincent Lawrence and Waldemar Young and additional scenes by Edwin Justus Mayer and John Meehan. The photography by Charles Lang and special effects by Gordon Jennings are important in sustaining the unearthly mood. Louis Lighton produced.

Its special appeal is for feminine audiences.

"Show Them No Mercy"

(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—A new method of preserving the showmanship and entertainment vitality of the gangster—G-Man conflict, yet introducing a powerful dramatic contrast, is uncovered here. Paralleling recent front page kidnapping, the production, in a new treatment, reveals the inside workings of the snatch racket.

As typical menacing melodrama is vividly portrayed by gangsters Cesar Romero, Bruce Cabot, Edward Brophy and Warren Hymer, heart-touching drama is played by Rochelle Hudson, Edward Norris and their baby. Held prisoners in a deserted farm house by the gang, whose planned perfect crime is frustrated by G-Men broadcasting the ransom money serial numbers, the lives of the three are constantly menaced by the four gangsters. Romero's attempt to have Norris pass the "hot" money springs the trap. As the panic-stricken gangsters quarrel Brophy and Hymer are killed by officers while attempting a getaway. With tense suspense marking all action, Cabot kills Romero, only to be machine-gunned by Miss Hudson, fighting for the lives of her husband and baby, as officers swoop down.

Embellished by exceptional performances on the part of the players mentioned and the supporting cast, the story content has appeal and commercial quality. As speed and thrill action intensify the dramatic suspense, the story is smartly directed by George Marshall so that the novel method of narration is an asset. The story is by Kubec Glasmon, with adaptation by Harry Lehrman. Darryl F. Zanuck produced. Sold in a forceful, convincing style, taking advantage of exploitation opportunities, the picture should impress at the box-office.

Warners See Profits for Fiscal Year

tract with the three Warners and Renraw, Inc., will be approved.

Max Goldberg, a stockholder, filed suit many months ago attacking the employment contract, some question about which was raised following a two-for-one split of Warner stock in June, 1929. Under the terms of a six-year agreement starting Sept. 1, 1928, the Warners and Renraw, Inc., were to have received 90,000 shares of common stock in installments.

As a result of the Goldberg suit, a letter to stockholders states, the law firm of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner and Reed was called in to work out a settlement satisfactory to the company and its principal executives. The board has since approved this settlement and the Goldberg suit has been called off by payment of his costs. Other suits have been filed since, however.

Calls "Dream" Business Aid

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 25.—Harry M. Warner says that with exploitation "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will cost $1,250,000 and adds he will be satisfied with a reasonable profit on the picture "if it helps to develop the business."

He also asserts that in the few spots already shown, the Reinhardt-Shakespeare spectacle has shown fine results and, if the public continues to react favorably to the film, it is likely the other Shakespearean stories planned by Warners will be made on a similarly sumptuous scale. He claims the "Dream" is a test to see if the public responds to art in motion pictures.

dent Bernard S. Deutsch and Gene Buck.

After Vallee had accepted the executive post and other speakers had congratulated him, Buck spoke of the present day headliners, tracing their careers back to the vaudeville stage. He pointed out various "finds" he had made while talent scouting for Ziegfeld, notably Will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Eddie Cantor and others. He spoke at length of the inroads made by radio and the screen on the vaudeville stage and warned that the downfall of these entertainment mediums would, in his opinion, come in five to 10 years due to the disappearance from theatres of vaudeville.

41 Theatres Dark, Refuse Wage Raise

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 25.—Forty-one neighborhood houses were dark here today as exhibitors refused a seven and one-half per cent increase demanded by projectionists' Local 164. About 30 Warner, Fox and Saxe houses operating under the wage raise have signed with the union. The old contract expired Aug. 31.

Looking 'em Over

"Rendezvous"

(M-G-M)

Turning to the fascinating, factual record of the use of ciphers and codes during the World War, as told by Major Herbert O. Yardley in his "American Black Chamber," M-G-M has retained much of the original as background, has woven into it romance and spies with results highly entertaining, engrossing and exciting.

William Powell, ex-newspaper man but now enrolled in the army, is the hero. Rosalind Russell is the heroine and Binnie Barnes is the Mata Hari of the piece. The story narrates the activities of the German spy ring in America, its interception and its deciphering of the American code and the steps, centering around Powell as codist, to prepare a new one to confound the Teutonic espionage system and thereby keep U-boat torpedos from blowing up American troopships on their way to the front.

All of this happens, of course, with the ultimate and anticipated romantic clinch between Powell and Miss Russell. However, the unfolding is always interesting and often gripping what with the match of wits between American and German intelligence, laboratory experimentation on invisible inks and the like. The treatment by P. J. Wolfson and George Oppenheimer from an adaptation of the original book by Samuel and Bella Spewack stresses comedy values. Director William K. Howard mixes them and the melodramatic content with pronounced dexterity. Performances on all hands are substantial and competent. William Daniels' handling of the camera is expert.

Ridgefield Row May Start New Theatre

RIDGEFIELD, Conn., Oct. 25.—As a result of a contest over the proposed leasing of the Town Hall for films, several residents have offered to form a company and erect a theatre here. A state inspector declared many changes would have to be made in the hall before it could be used and it has been suggested that the town contribute the money needed.

Under the proposed plan, Robert S. Horsley, who sought the lease on the hall, would be made manager.

Cross Picketing Is Resumed by Unions

nied that the reappearance of pickets signified a collapse of the current negotiations to effect a merger of Allied and Empire unions with Local 306. The cross-picketing which had involved virtually every Broadway house throughout the past summer was brought to a halt about a month ago with the opening of the merger conferences by Frank Tichenor, publisher and representative of Mayor LaGuardia in labor affairs. While progress through these conferences has been admittedly slow, union officials insist that they are still under way and some form of agreement is still to be hoped for.

The new flare-up of cross-picketing yesterday was confined to the State and Astor. The latter house has employed Allied operators for some weeks past and has been picketed by 306 men. The State is directly across the street from the Astor and its new contract with 306 was signed by Loew's only a week ago.

Court Fines U. S. Counsel For Contempt

by Federal Judge George H. Moore when he lost his temper, contradicting George S. Leisure, RKO counsel, that Cresson Smith's memorandum of Aug. 17 was the original returned and not the Government's copy. Schilz was seated next to Hardy at the time and the RKO counsel was finishing his argument on the demurrer. Leisure asked that the original memo be produced, stating he had the returned ducument examined and the water stamp proved to be a Government copy.

Leisure was referring to the original subpoenaed for the grand jury investigation while Schilz thought the copy subpoenaed and returned to Leisure for this trial was the one in question. Schilz looked through his brief case while Dwight L. Savage, another Government attorney, took the floor and tried to dismiss the issue, stating, "That's a charge of moral turpitude and is not the case here."

Judge Orders Apology

Still seated, Schilz looked at Leisure when the latter approached him for the original and said, "That's a lie."

"What was that you said?" Judge Moore inquired, a bit flushed. "Stand up," the judge ordered.

"I said it was a lie," Schilz answered reluctantly, his face extremely red.

"Now apologize," the court commanded, and the Government counsel did, following which Schilz was fined.

Regretting the incident, Hardy then took the floor and said he thought the Government had kept the original pursuant to an agreement. Leisure denied any agreement.

Former Senator James A. Reed, William R. Gentry, Leisure, Jacob M. Lashly and Hardy all made individual pleas to have the levy remitted, but Judge Moore declined, stating, "Counsel should always have in mind to conduct themselves with the dignity of the court. Where I come from (rural Missouri) this sort of language is fighting language and usually results in physical violence. I have no sympathy for this sort of action and I regret I cannot see my way clear to remit the fine."

Gentry Argues for Defense

Starr was seated in one of the two alternate jurors' swivel chairs when Hardy lashed into his biting description. The prosecuting attorney was arguing about the meeting Harry C. Arthur and Jack Partington had with Gradwell Sears, Abel Carey Thomas and Starr on March 6, 1934, when Sears was declared by Arthur to have said, "We have nothing against you, but F. & M. are the lambs to be slaughtered."

Hardy defined Arthur and Partington as "two innocent poachers who had come before a Warner tribunal which announced sentence in an indictment to destroy all parties who crossed their paths in St. Louis."

Gentry was the first defense counsel to argue the demurrers and dismissals. He took one hour, covering virtually the same ground as Wood did yesterday. In brief, he stated, independent evidence must be introduced by the Government before the court can permit the jury to consider declarations made by others as applying to his clients. He said the statements made by Arthur in connection with a conversation assertedly held with George J. Schaefer were untrue and he was prepared to prove it, that Paramount had a right to choose its own customers, that Schaeffer did not know Warners had bought RKO product at the time he was negotiating with them, that Paramount's business dealings were based on sound and reasoning judgment, and that Schaefer did not want to deal with F. & M., which, he said, had a monopoly, when it was to their advantage to get better terms from Warners.

"The preliminary question which must be settled," Gentry asserted, "is whether there is any evidence for the jury to properly proceed to render a verdict. I think there is no substantial evidence against any of the defendants and I believe the court should dismiss the indictment."

Fordyce Brief

Samuel W. Fordyce, Paramount counsel, was brief. He centered his arguments around the alleged conversations Arthur and Partington said they had with Schaefer over the telephone and in the Paramount Building. He declared Schaefer had been in Florida from April 15 to March 12, 1934, and that the telephone discussion and meeting described by the witnesses were "fictitious and based on something that had never happened."

"This is no memory test nor a quibbling matter as to a date, but it is vital as far as Schaefer is concerned. The Government must have had some reason for bearing down on us as hard as it did," he said.

Fordyce admitted Arthur had talked to the Paramount vice-president after Schaefer had returned from the south, but not immediately after the March 6 session with Warner officials.

John S. Leahy, attorney for Allen L. Snyder, was the subject of much ridicule today. Gentry was the first to bring his name into the discussion when he referred to the Plaza Hotel, New York, meeting where Leahy said he gave Ned E. Depinet some legal advice on the Sherman Act.

"A lawyer's opinion," Gentry declared, "is worth what he is paid for it and Leahy didn't get anything, which is just how much the advice was worth."

Draws Hearty Laugh

Fordyce drew a hearty laugh when he referred to an incident as "an alcoholic telephonic communication" between Schaefer and Leahy. The Paramount attorney was about to relate who was at the meeting when Judge Moore stopped him, explaining, "Those were the men of great capacity." Leahy, on the stand, had used the very same words.

Leisure was next and gave a comprehensive recapitulation of the various parts Depinet and RKO are alleged to have played in the so-called conspiracy. He said, "There is not a scintilla of evidence that Depinet had any knowledge of or entered into a conspiracy in St. Louis." He added, "Four admissions were introduced by the Government to show the RKO president did have knowledge of what was going on. Arthur," he said, "met Depinet three times and talked to him once on the telephone. Not much has been said about the telephone conversation, but if this were brought in I am sure it would be favorable to us.

"We didn't keep RKO pictures out of the three theatres. The prosecuting witness made a contract with the receivers of the Fox to keep them out," Leisure said. He asked why Arthur waited from March 6 to April 1 before he saw Depinet, then supplied the answer himself, declaring, "that's when he got the thought of triple damages."

It was then that he asked Hardy for return of the original memo of Smith's which met with the sudden outburst of temperament from Schilz.

Savage was the first Government attorney to argue. He said he would confine his arguments to the law as to the purposes of the Sherman Act and what it is intended to prove, particularly, "that one can infer conspiracy for almost any unrelated acts."

Savage Connects Issues

With citations to read from, Savage attempted to connect various issues with those charged in the indictment. He touched on the objective of the Sherman Law, citing the compulsory arbitration case of Paramount against the U. S., the case of Eastern States Lumber Co., where a retail association agreed not to do business with a wholesaler who had been dealing directly with a consumer, and the famous Binderup case where distributors are said to have combined for the purpose of not dealing with exhibitor Binderup after he had offended an agent of one of the companies in Omaha. The Raymond Bros. Stores' legal action also was discussed. The Raymond Brothers, it was stated, refused to do business with Snyder Manufacturing Co. of Illinois because the latter had sold a competitor who was both a wholesaler and retailer. The renowned Strauss suit against Victor Talking Machine, where Macy sold under an agreed price; Bosch Tool Co. against Aluminum Co. of America, and the Federal Trade Commission-Paramount Famous Lasky block booking cases were among the others gone into by Savage.

Hardy's resume of his case concluded the session. It was marked by continuous interruptions by defense counsel challenging the Government attorney to check the record on certain statements made. Several times Hardy ignored the interferences and continued calmly as though nothing had happened.

He stated the case was not one of interest of private parties, but public parties, and that F. & M. were not Government clients, the men with this company being witnesses of the Government. He added, "Several and certain facts must be shown in a conspiracy.

"One of the facts is that Warner's is a big and powerful organization," Hardy asserted. Also, RKO is part of an organization which has more than 100 corporations. Paramount also is part of a similar corporation, he declared.

"The three corporations during the last three years controlled production and distribution of 50 per cent of the films and, therefore, 50 per cent of interstate commerce.

"F. & M.," the prosecutor said, "as the victim, is an oppressed party and pretty small."

Hardy added Fanchon & Marco wouldn't have a chance to fight these companies. He said this was the Government's duty.

Tells of Conferences

"Warners had a certain technique it used in situations as we have here. It attempts to acquire properties in foreclosure and then ties up the necessary film supply to cut off competition for control of the theatres.

"It is the abuse of size and power to accomplish this purpose we are complaining about and not an attack on wealth."

Hardy then related various conferences which a number of witnesses had with Starr and cited the conversations they said took place. He referred particularly to the Chicago meeting among Spyros Skouras, Clarence M. Turley, Gradwell Sears and Starr; the Dysart session with the Warner vice-president at a bondholders' gathering; the Arthur confab on March 6, 1934; the conference Harry M. Warner had with M. A. Rosenthal and Frederick W. Strauss in New York and a meeting in the local office of Sam B. Jeffries.

After he finished this line of attack Hardy discussed the various letters by Schaefer, Depinet, Abel Carey Thomas and Lester Kreiger, asserting that the distribution heads knew Arthur had the theatres in association with Snyder at the time.

Repeats Expressions

During his review of the meeting held by Starr, Schaefer and Depinet with the numerous witnesses, the prosecutor emphasized certain expressions used, such as "lambs to be slaughtered," "sucker deal," "put the pressure on me," "opening gun," "would destroy all who came in our way," "gummed up the works" and "we had to do it."

He also said that Starr's description of F. & M. as "fly-by-nighters" was an illegal defamation of character.

Fordyce got over a point when Hardy referred to Arthur's conversation with Agnew on the high price Warners would have to pay for the product. The Paramount attorney stated the fact that Warners paid the price with a big squawk proves the distributor had the liberty to charge as much as it wanted and that Warners had to meet the terms or lose out on the deal.

None of the eastern executives will week-end in New York. The jury meanwhile also is vacationing until Monday.

Fox Suit to Check Merger May Be Ended

William Fox Is Ill and Lawyers Make No Move

The action of Eva Fox and the All-Continent Corp. charging officers and directors of Fox Film Corp. with dissipation of the company's assets through the merger with Twentieth Century may be abandoned, it was indicated on Saturday by attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Mrs. Fox, the wife of William Fox and reputedly the owner of a controlling interest in All-Continent, an investment corporation holding Fox securities, was granted leave some time ago to conduct an examination of the principal defendants in advance of trial of her action. The defendants include Sidney R. Kent, W. C. Michel, former Senator David O. Hastings and officers of Chase National Bank. No move has been made yet to begin these examinations and it was stated at the offices of Hirsh, Newman, Reass & Becker, attorneys

Sale Tax Hearings To Start on Nov. 8

Formal hearings on opposition by United Artists and Universal to the city's efforts to apply the sales tax to local film rentals will be begun on Nov. 8, officials of the city comptroller's office said on Saturday.

While the assessments have been made against only United Artists and Universal exchanges here, the cases obviously are of a test nature and their outcome affects all local distributors and involves an estimated $700,000, it was said. The distributors are staking their case on the contention that licensing under Federal

First run theatres in the 22 key cities which comprised last season's box-office index of MOTION PICTURE DAILY bulked $66,463,244 in the 52 weeks which began with the theatre week ending Sept. 27-28, 1934, and terminated with the theatre week of Sept. 19-20, 1935.

Reporting cities were these: Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Comparative chart of key city grosses for the first half of October appears on page 10.

Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Montreal, New York, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Portland, Providence, San Francisco, St. Paul, Seattle and Washington.

The constantly shifting picture was responsible for a fluctuating total of theatres which contributed to the total, ranging from a combined low of 122 for the week ending Aug. 15-16 to a high of 141 for the week ending Jan. 3-4, which was peak in point of weekly gross, as well, at $1,719,887.

Safety Device Cuts Projector Insurance

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—A 20 per cent insurance rate cut on buildings housing projection equipment where Hawkins projection safety devices are used has been obtained through the Academy Research Council.

The reduction applies to theatres and studio projection rooms and is a result of negotiations covering several months with the Pacific Coast Branch of the National Board of Fire Underwriters in San Francisco.

The Hawkins device consists of a specially adapted sprocket fitted to projectors with necessary electrical relays and switches which stop the projector motors and shut off the arc light when a break in film occurs. Tests conducted at the Radio studio show, it is said, that the light is shut off in one-third the time necessary to ignite acetate film. Gordon Mitchell, John Aalberg and William Mueller are on the Academy committee.

His Future

St. Louis, Oct. 27.—Harry C. Arthur tells this one and says it's an actual experience. The other day he noticed a former usher who had been promoted to a post in the publicity and advertising department at the Fox Theatre. Said Arthur:

"I remember you. You were a former usher. If you work hard in your new job, you'll grow up and get yourself a lawsuit."

Walter Eberhardt Dies By Own Hand

Walter F. Eberhardt, believed to have been confronted with blindness, committed suicide yesterday in the garage of his home at 46 Walbrooke Road, Scarsdale. The police of Greensburgh Township in which the Eberhardt residence is located, reported the body was found at 12:55 P. M. yesterday afternoon. Eberhardt was seated in his car, a Marmon sedan, and alongside of him was a garden hose which had been joined with the exhaust. Carbon monoxide poisoning was the cause of death.

About 44 years of age, Eberhardt, for years, had been press representative for Erpi. Prior to that he was long in the publicity, advertising and exploitation department of First National and earlier was employed by Paramount. Widely known and as widely liked in the New York trade, he was Ampa secretary in 1924-25, its vice-president in 1925-26 and ultimately president in 1926-27. He was also author of several mystery stories, including a "A Dagger in the Dark" and "The Jig-Saw Puzzle Murder Mystery."

Eberhardt had lost the sight of one eye many years ago and was believed to have been faced with fading vision in the other. His widow, Harriett, who survives him and who has been in Duluth visiting friends, arrives by air this morning. Beside the body police found several notes. One was addressed to Mrs. Eberhardt. Another, to the police, made it clear the action was of his own planning and volition.

All day Thursday, Friday and most of Saturday defense counsel argued that the Government had failed to establish a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THESE immediate days are important days in the affairs of G. B., marking as they do the first anniversary of that company's entrance on its own into the domestic selling field. Facing and battling stern competition with its tussle not ended, the short span which is one year has seen this company succeeding in having recognized the fact that it is around. G. B. has had and will have its share of growing pains, but those aches, it would appear, have a substantial chance of becoming less acute as the company steps into its second stanza. . . .

It has had to face the difficulties of organizing a sales staff, of capturing dates, of indifference on the part of powerful circuit buyers, of beating down the unfair handicap of foreign pictures, of introducing stars and players known not at all or known little in this field, of learning something about the requirements of the American exhibitor, of readjustments in its studio organization. Not an easy task whether for G. B. or any other array of initials and one that takes time.

G. B. took its bow here with a product largely fashioned with no very direct glance at what would or would not get over on this side of the Atlantic. The first year brought that phase to its conclusion, saw Mickey Balcon visit the coast, there to effect an interchange of players between his organization and Metro, and a clearer comprehension of the type of attraction which would have appeal to showmen here. The result of the planning will reflect itself in the coming product where the test, in this year or in any other, eventually must be met. . . .

The foreign picture label which is affixed to G. B. has been and continues to be one of its most difficult problems. It is an unfair problem, traceable in part to competition, to exhibitor lethargy and shortsightedness and to box-office experience with much of the product which has hit these shores from overseas studios. One difficulty about the matter centers around the exhibitor himself. Setting himself up as the supreme arbiter of the public's likes and dislikes, lacking the daring to foray into fields that are new, slavishly and often lazily depending upon names that are known but do not always draw, there has been much too much disregard of the freshness in players, in treatment and in style which non-Hollywood product is quite apt to embrace. . . .

Hollywood still leads the world as the mass production center of saleable film merchandise. Year after year, its supremacy continues to assert itself and no doubt that status will continue. But there is the danger of stereotyped goods which is handmaiden to any vast concentration of enterprises such as exists in Hollywood and would exist in any central point turning out the preponderant percentage of world entertainment. There is no attempt to convey an idea that all Hollywood product is inferior any more than it must be construed as an effort to imply all foreign product is superior; there are failings in both. This, however, is an argument designed to point out that, because motion pictures are international, there can be no monopoly on results. . . .

It is our opinion that, tried as the exhibitor and the public have been in years past on the shortcomings of the bulk of pictures made abroad, there is no genuine foundation to the theory advanced and accepted in many directions that the traffic-bearers in this country are death on attractions at large because they do not carry an American label. Quality, no matter from where it springs, has a persistent habit of asserting itself, sometimes handicapped by tradition, sometimes sluggish in achieving its own. A goodly percentage of the talent now employed in Hollywood comes from across the sea to be accepted by the public here in proportion to whatever merit is inherent in that talent. As it goes with personalities, so will it go with pictures regardless of trademarks or country of origin. . . .

There was the time before the war and before American production had advanced toward its majority when the big pictures came from Europe. Veterans will remember "Quo Vadis," "The Life of Christ," "Dante's Inferno," "The Life of Wagner" and "The Last Days of Pompeii." Relatively recently have been the best in German endeavor, such as "Passion," "The Golem," "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" and "Danton." Throttled by the war when laboratories were converted into factories making gasmasks and blocked in efforts to reconstruct finances, overseas production had its moments in the post-bellum period and those moments were not pleasant. It was during this period that Hollywood went into the full bloom to stay that way since. But now, Europe, partially back on its feet and recognizing the power inherent in motion pictures, is going through a renascence. From it there must be expected some notable efforts in picture-making. That product, little or much, is entitled to a place in this sun. Moreover, it will get it. . . .

Cleveland "Dream" Run on Profit Side

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27.—A "Midsummer Night's Dream," playing a two-a-day at the Hanna at $1.75 top, is in the black, according to Warner officials. This is said to be the first roadshow that has made any money here in many years. Officials report that the overhead was covered after the fifth day. The local run is for 10 days. The complete coverage of schools, churches, clubs and organizations by the exploitation department, assisted by Mrs. Georgia Moffett, former code secretary, is credited with the success of the engagement.

"U" Loss $735,756

For the nine months to July 27, Universal Pictures Co., Inc., reports a loss of $735,756 after all charges including depreciation of fixed assets which total $301,120 and after giving effect to deduction from costs and expenses of $197,448 on account of excessive provision for royalties and foreign income made prior to the advent of the current fiscal year.

Japan Talks Quota

Weekend cables from Tokyo, shedding more light on the report that restrictions against foreign pictures were on the way, declared the police board in that city was drawing up regulations making it compulsory for theatres there to show a percentage of Japanese-made pictures on each program.

Court to Rule Today on Plea For Acquittal

ceed. The principal defendants are expected to take the stand and witnesses have been summoned from various sections of the country.

Since Thursday defense attorneys have argued, with the jury absent, that defendants' acts cited by the Government have been lawful. Counsel for Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell Sears, Ned E. Depinet, George J. Schaeffer, Warners, Paramount and RKO have insisted that testimony concerning their clients has been simply a narrative of past events and that the Government has failed to show enough connection between these incidents to establish a conspiracy. Authorities covering similar cases have been cited profusely.

Cites Other Suits

Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, has persistently contended that plenty of facts have been shown to link the defendants. He has quoted from the testimony of a number of witnesses regarding alleged threats made by Warner executives.

Dwight L. Savage, one of the four assistants working with Hardy, has held that while it was perfectly proper for the defendants to choose their own customers, where groups of individuals or companies combined or conspired to control the right to do business courts had held the acts to be unlawful. He cited precedents to show that conspiracies can be entered into at various times.

He declared further that film distribution had been declared interstate commerce by the Supreme Court in the Binderup case. He also insisted that in the suit of the Federal Trade Commission against Paramount-Famous Players Lasky block booking had been declared legal insofar as one company was concerned. The commission in that case, he said, had failed to show concerted action.

In a three-hour argument for a directed verdict of acquittal Thursday afternoon Frederick H. Wood, the man who brought about the downfall of the NRA in the Schechter poultry case, gave a summary of facts that received the closest attention from an audience composed of many members of the bar as well as judges and former judges. Wood was not interrupted, except for one recess and he held his hearers spellbound.

Hardy Virtually Alone

The fact that he virtually stands alone against an eminent and highly paid galaxy of opposing counsel has not been overlooked by Hardy, who, several times, has mentioned this to the court. Last Tuesday he brought the issue to the fore when he stopped in the middle of his rebuttal to answer claims made by defense counsel that they would be at an unfair disadvantage if Harry C. Arthur and Jack A. Partington were brought back on the stand to correct parts of their testimony and to have conferences they had testified to apply to all defendants instead of the individuals present at the meetings.

The prosecutor faced the closely grouped legal representatives as he pointed at them, and declared: "Look at that great and glorious array of defense lawyers seated here, and there's twice as many outside, yet they claim they will be at a disadvantage."

Friday's session had a spark of excitement which was quickly extinguished by Judge Moore when he fined Harold L. Schilz, one of Hardy's aides, $25 for blurting out: "That's a damn lie." Schilz was confused at the time about George S. Leisure's reference to a return by the Government to RKO of a copy of a memorandum, written by Cresson Smith on Aug. 17.

In a 90-minute review of his arguments, Wood contended Hardy and Savage had not controverted him in the propositions of law and that Savage, in substance, had agreed on the application of law while Hardy had relied upon alleged facts which were not in evidence and strained the obvious meaning of the language used in conversations and letters.

Leisure held there was no evidence in the record tending to show Depinet had entered into or had any knowledge of a conspiracy in St. Louis. He claimed Arthur had prevented himself from showing RKO product in the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central as a result of his contract with the receivers of the Fox Theatre which distinctly so provided. Leisure took about 30 minutes for his presentation.

During both arguments, Hardy interrupted to clarify certain points being brought out. The Government had no right to a reply, hence Leisure's rebuttal closed the session at 12:45 P.M. Judge Moore stated he would accept memoranda at his home over the weekend if any were planned for his attention.

The Lighter Side

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 27.—GRAD SEARS is terribly annoyed by the soft coal smoke. The other day he appeared in court with a dark suit and was complaining. He said: "This was a grey suit when I came here."

FRED WEHRENBERG is another disappointed Government witness. After spending practically four weeks in the court waiting to go on, WILLIAM R. BENHAM, one of RUSSELL HARDY'S assistants, discharged him along with all the other witnesses subpoenaed.

LETO HILL, in charge of the St. Louis Amusement Co., which is in receivership, is expected to be a Warner witness when the defense starts its rebuttal.

L. K. BRIN of Milwaukee didn't spend much time in the courtroom during his visit here.

The court seems deserted these days with the various branch managers discharged and permitted to get back to work. SCHWEITZER of Paramount, however, puts in an appearance every morning and lends whatever assistance he can to LOUIS PHILLIPS.

The jury is beginning to complain about the deck of cards it has been putting to extraordinary use during recesses. One of the jurors is thinking of asking the defense lawyers for a new stack of cards, the pictures and numbers on those now in use being somewhat past the recognition stage.

Fox Suit to Check Merger May Be Ended

for William Fox, that not only have no definite plans been made to summon the defendants for questioning, but that it was not unlikely that the entire action might be permitted to lapse. It was added that, among other reasons, the physical condition of William Fox, who is undergoing treatment for a diabetic condition in a Toronto hospital, was a factor contributing to this possibility.

Mrs. Fox's action was instituted in July when plans for the Twentieth Century'-Fox merger were first made known. In addition to bringing charges against the former officers and directors of the company she sought to enjoin Fox from consummating both the merger and a financial reorganization. She succeeded in obtaining a temporary injunction which was later set aside and the merger and reorganization were effected after having been approved earlier by the company's stockholders.

Sale Tax Hearings To Start on Nov. 8

copyright does not involve a sale and, thus, is not subject to the tax.

In anticipation of an adverse ruling from the judicial tax commission before which the hearings will be held, attorneys for distributors are already preparing for an eventual appeal to the appellate division, it was learned. This is being done in the belief that the city will not, itself, abandon its efforts to collect the large sum involved in the first judicial test.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Annie Oakley"

(Radio)

Hollywood, Oct. 27.—The life of the famous markswoman is herewith turned into lively entertainment, although the story probably contains more fiction than fact. Director George Stevens has pepped up the incidents by inserting gags which subtly kid the spirit of the gay nineties and speed the action to several hilarious peaks.

The story starts with Barbara Stanwyck in the title role entering a shooting match with Preston Foster, who is billed as a world champion shot with the Buffalo Bill show. To save Foster's job she throws the contest, later winning his love by telling him when she, too, joins the show. Foster's eyes are ruined when he fights to save the life of Chief Thunder Bird. Without mentioning the accident he goes on with the show and wounds Miss Stanwyck during his trick shooting exhibit. Accused of missing purposely, Foster goes on with the show, is dismissed from the company and not reunited with Miss Stanwyck until Thunder Bird, in a rousing finish, chases him and brings the pair together.

Producer Cliff Reid has chosen a well-balanced cast and mounted the picture with showmanlike production. Moroni Olsen as Buffalo Bill and Melvyn Douglas as his partner give splendid character portrayals. Andy Clyde and Pert Kelton are also well cast. Joel Sayre and John Twist wrote the screenplay from the story by Joseph Fields, and Ewart Adamson furnishes the frequent dialogue laughs.

The subject lends itself readily for exploitation tieups and the picture should be sold without difficulty.

Production Code Seal No. 1,538. Running time, 89 minutes. "G."

"Paddy O'Day"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Hollywood, Oct. 27.—An Irish accent thick enough to cut with a knife added to Jane Withers' stranglehold on the public imagination is the keynote for the showman's angle on this story of an immigrant child making good.

Jane, smuggling her dog into America, is held up at Ellis Island by the death of her mother. Believing her mother to be only seriously ill, she evades the authorities and escapes in a milk can with the officials in pursuit. Her mother's fellow servants try hiding her with the aid of Pinky Tomlin, the bird-collecting nephew of a rich comedy aunt. George Givot brightens the film considerably as a Russian cafe owner with a wild accent but no money until Tomlin is introduced to the glories of night life. Rita Cansino, Michael and Nina Visaroff as immigrant entertainers put Jane in their show. Love blooms smoothly between Miss Cansino and Tomlin until his aunts chase down Jane as the cause of Tomlin's going in for a wild life with Jane eventually finding a happy home. Her wicked streak is gone but an Irish accent and two cute songs help. A new Tomlin song, "Changing My Ambition," is short but effective.

Jane Darwell, Francis Ford, Vera Lewis, Louise Carter and Russell Simpson complete the cast under the direction of Lewis Seiler. The screenplay by Lou Breslow and Edward Eliscu gives Jane plenty of footage. Attractive dances are staged by Fanchon.

Jane Withers' talent in a laugh show is the best exploitation for this one.

Production Code Seal No. 1,665. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Society Fever"

(Invincible)

Hollywood, Oct. 27.—This domestic comedy deals with the trials and tribulations of a large family experiencing new poverty after the death of a wealthy father.

Expensive tastes and lack of business experience bring the family to the verge of eviction after nearly all the furniture has been sold from the mansion. The situation is complicated by the necessity for a formal dinner to visiting nabobs.

Guinn Williams takes top honors as the runaway son who returns with heavyweight manners and a prize fighter's vocabulary. Lois Wilson, Lloyd Hughes, Grant Withers, Sheila Terry, Lois January, Hedda Hopper, Katharine Sheldon, George Irving, Marion Shilling and Anthony Marsh take important roles under Frank Strayer's direction. Maury Cohen produced from a story and screenplay by Karen De Wolf.

Family appeal is the best angle to stress. No production code seal. Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

"Grimm" Top In Cleveland With $4,500

Cleveland, Oct. 27.—"The Return of Peter Grimm" made the best showing in the worst first run week in three months, grossing $4,500, which is $1,500 over the line.

"The Big Broadcast of 1936" came in second with a $10,500 take at Loew's State, where $10,000 is par.

"Accent on Youth" closed with an average $4,000 at Loew's Stillman. "The Gay Deception," with Ted Weems and his orchestra as the stage attraction at the RKO Palace, fell $2,500 short of average, with $12,500 as the take. "The Last Days of Pompeii" also was $2,500 shy of the $8,000 average at Warners' Hippodrome.

Heavy competition of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Hanna and a big opening of the Mayfair Casino, new theatre restaurant, and two rainy nights, combined to hurt business.

Total first run business was $37,100. Average is $40,000.

Paramount Is Not Expected To Fill Board

Vanderlip and Gray May Not Be Replaced

Indications are that no new directors will be elected to the Paramount board to fill the vacancies created by the recent resignations of Frank A. Vanderlip and William S. Gray, Jr., it was officially stated yesterday.

The resignations reduce the board membership to 14, and, although the board is permitted by the company's by-laws to elect directors to fill vacancies, it was pointed out that the original intent of the creditor reorganization groups was to provide Paramount with a "small, but actively working" board. For this reason only 16 directors were elected originally, although the by-laws authorize a board of 18. The two resignations create a situation that is in keeping with this intent of the reorganization groups and and, hence, it is expected that the vacancies will remain unfilled at least until the annual meeting of the company's stockholders next June.

Gray, who is president of Central

The old agreements were extended for 30 days from Sept. 28 and the extensions expired yesterday. Basic details of new operating pacts for the three circuits have been set and will be established in new agreements to be closed before the end of the week, it was said.

Buckley Cuts Down His Theatre Duties

Pressure of new duties at United Artists Dist. Corp. compel Harry D. Buckley, vice-president and general manager of the United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., to relinquish activities in that direction. Joseph M. Schenck, president of the company, has named George Skouras to represent the U. A. interests with full charge of operation of the Rivoli here in New York. John Wright continues in charge of the theatre. Elsewhere, the U. A. string has operating partners.

Dangers of Federal Rule Are Seen By Kuykendall

Government regulation is a danger of increasing proportions unless something is done within the industry to reduce disputes between distributors and exhibitors, declares Ed Kuykendall in the latest M. P. T. O. A. bulletin.

Approaching legislative sessions—national and state—and an increasing number of exhibitor complaints piling up in Washington with the Department of Justice may bring about new laws unless action is taken, Kuykendall insists.

"Vast progress has been made in production," Kuykendall says, "and in exhibition the presentation of pictures, modern design of theatres and steady improvement in comforts and allure show remarkable progress.

"Yet in the dealings between distributor and exhibitor, in trade practices, sales policies and the regulation of unfair competition, whatever painful progress has been achieved during the past 10 or 20 years has been wiped out completely. No progressive steps to improve trade relations and sales methods, to establish and administer standards of fair competition, have been taken and none are seri-

Uptown Dual Adds to K.C. Complication

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 28. — Double bills were started at the first run Uptown Saturday by Fox Midwest. The move comes as a surprise on the heels of a raise in scales at downtown first runs.

The Tower recently added vaudeville and tipped its 25-cent top to 35 cents. Loew's Midland eliminated its 15-cent matinee balcony rate. The Newman has just ended Bank Night and Screeno, and, for the showing of "The Crusades," has raised its scales to 25c-35c-55c.

This adds to the troubles of independent suburbans who are already arguing over Fox Midwest clearance and have just retained the law firm

Report KRS Holds Stand On Bookings

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 21.—No official statement was issued after a meeting of the Kinematograph Renters' Society which considered the booking circuit situation, but it is understood the distributors reaffirmed their previous decision that the recent Gaumont British buy of the H. & G. theatres did not comply with the K.R.S. demand that such deals should include the acquisition of financial and voting control.

Probability of action by G. B. to contest the K.R.S. action is regarded as increased by the fact that the deal for the transfer of the H. & G. houses to the G. B. subsidiary formed to manage them has been completed on terms

About 8,000 Spots Have Duals—Golden

He will continue from there to Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Washington and Philadelphia, and will return to New York on Nov. 7.

Court Denies Defense Plea For Dismissal

Begin Defense Testimony Following Ruling

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 28.—Without giving any reasons, Federal Judge George H. Moore today denied demurrers and dismissal motions filed by the defense counsel last week upon completion of the Government's case. Three consecutive days were taken up with the arguments on various motions and as the fifth week of the anti-trust trial began this morning, Judge Moore overruled each and every one of the petitions.

Following the judicial ruling, Warners started the defense ball rolling by placing Sam B. Jeffries, local Warner attorney, on the stand. Former Senator James A. Reed examined him the entire day and will continue tomorrow. Counsel for RKO and Paramount will be given an opportunity to question the witness before Rus-

Union Merger to Be Pushed After Pact

Efforts to consummate the merger of Local 306, Allied and Empire operators' unions will be undertaken immediately upon closing of the new wage scale contracts between Local 306 and the Skouras and Randforce circuits, it was stated yesterday at Local 306 headquarters.

Basic wage schedules for the remaining independent circuits and smaller houses are expected to be an important part of the merger negotiations of the three unions. Thus, until the merger has been completed, very little more in the way of wage scale negotiations remains to be done. With a basic scale agreed upon the negotiations with individual circuits and theatres could be resumed.

Contracts between Local 306, Skouras and Randforce may be signed within the week. An agreement on a $1.60 an hour scale for subsequents has been reached and only final phases of the new pacts are to be set.

The Watch Committee of Norwich, Norfolk, has banned exhibition in the town of "Bride of Frankenstein," "Mark of the Vampire," and "Hands of Orlac." Announcing this decision, the chief constable stated that the films were regarded as possessing "horrible themes" and therefore to be unsuitable for display to the general public. All three pictures were passed by the British Board of Film Censors, the decisions of which are, however, always subject to revision by the local licensing authorities.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28.—Federal Judge Paul Jones today remanded to the Commons Pleas Court for trial the suits of the Broadvue, Ridge and Cedar Lee theatres against RKO on the ground that the amounts involved are less than $3,000.

The petitioners seek an injunction to restrain RKO from selling "Top Hat" on the 1935-36 contracts and demand delivery of the film on the 1934-35 contracts.

of Ringolsky, Boatright & Jacobs to take whatever legal action it deems possible.

E. Rolsky, I.T.O. president, says that Fox is the only distributor, so far as he knows, which has sold Fox Midwest protection generally. M-G-M has sold a few films and Warners have, too, he says. The independents are talking of an injunction.

Under the terms of a proposed clearance schedule submitted to distributors by independents, giveaways and prizes set back films automatically, but it is predicted that few will give them up with a first run going to duals and with Fox Midwest giving prizes in 15 houses.

Suburbans are in better shape, comparatively, than some of the downtown first runs, according to some observers. One of their advantages is lower advertising rates. First runs pay 75 cents a line week days, 85 cents on Sundays in the Times and Star. Subsequents with contracts pay according to admission price: 60 cents a line for those charging 25 cents or more, and 45 cents for admissions under the 25-cent scale.

Danger in Federal Rule—Kuykendall

ously proposed by any distributor at the present moment. Isn't it just possible that some improvement in these matters is long past due.

"It looks as though the distributors are faced squarely with deciding on their own responsibility which of two courses to pursue. One is to take definite action for the voluntary self-regulation of unfair competition and trade practices through organized effort, the other is to stand pat and stubbornly defend to the bitter end the present trade practices against any and all attacks in the courts, the legislatures and Congress, thereby definitely inviting and risking thoroughgoing governmental control and regulation of their commercial operations."

Kuykendall says that he will call a meeting of the M. P. T. O. A. board immediately upon his return from his present trip to take up possible moves toward securing some form of local industry arbitration.

Opposes Pettengill Bill

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—Ed Kuykendall told 300 exhibitor members of the I.T.O. of Northern California here tonight to oppose the Pettengill block-booking bill, and to support the copyright law amendment to check the Ascap tax. He urged state units to fight legislative activities.

Loss Shows Increase

Heywood-Wakefield Co. reports a loss of $58,981 for the nine months to Sept. 30. This compares with a loss of $46,435 for the identical period a year ago.

Why kid ourselves

We've been in this business a pretty long time. So have you. As one of the leading outfits in the industry, we know just about all the tricks of the trade. So do you.

Then why shouldn't we--when we're talking to you--cut out all the trade ad bunk, all the poetry, the fancy adjectives, the "COLOSSALS" and the "SUPER-SUPER TREMENDOUS" nonsense?

This sort of thing may be swell for outsiders; but inside the business, it's just plain foolish!

After all, you're business men. You want facts: What kind of picture we're releasing; the sort of market it was planned for; how you can make the most money out of it.

All right! We're going to see that you get these facts in our trade ads.

Court Denies Defense Plea For Dismissal

sell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, starts his cross interrogation.

When matters relating to certain knowledge Jeffries had about Skouras Brothers Enterprises and St. Louis Amusement Co. came up, the prosecutor insisted that the documents themselves be introduced and when this was done he objected to them as "immaterial." Hardy stated to the court, "I feel I must insist on trying this case for the Government on the best evidence. It's not a question of time that is involved, but the issues themselves." The court upheld him on this point.

Cites Oral Agreement

Jeffries related Warners' interest in Skouras Bros. Enterprises and St. Louis Amusement Co., in addition to giving a full analysis of the various reorganization plans the company submitted to the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. He also told the court and jury how the bondholders "walked out" on an oral agreement reached with Warners on Sept. 18, 1933.

He testified that at this conference the bondholders' group and Warners had a complete understanding on a reorganization plan which required that Warners put up $400,000 fresh capital for which it would get control of the new company. He said further that David Levinson, attorney for the bondholders' committee, had been authorized to draft the plan agreed upon and although several matters not discussed at the Sept. 18 meeting were included, Warners did not object because they were considered minor.

Reed questioned the witness at some length on the management and ownership of the Ambassador, Missouri, New Grand Central and St. Louis Amusement Co. Jeffries stated that in Feb., 1934, Tom K. Smith was receiver for the three theatres, which were then operated by Spyros Skouras and Clarence M. Turley, who also had possession of the St. Louis Amusement circuit.

Bought from Koplar

He said he had been a director, but resigned in January, 1934. He also related the Blake-Skouras Bros. Enterprises and Shea-St. Louis Amusement Co. receivership suits, adding that Elsie Probstein, one of the petitioners, was a sister of Harry Koplar; that Nat Koplar, another petitioner, was a brother of Harry Koplar, who, he alleged, was behind the moves.

In 1929, Warners owned 5,000 shares of Skouras Bros. Enterprises stock and at the time an intervening petition in bankruptcy was filed, controlled about 96 per cent of the stock. This company owned 51 per cent of St. Louis Amusement Co., Jeffries declared, and Warners afterwards bought from Koplar 14,000 shares in the St. Louis Amusement circuit. Several other purchases of St. Louis Amusement stock were made which gave Warners 40 per cent of the company. Combined with Skouras Bros. Enterprises' interest, the total virtually amounted to 91 per cent.

Dysart, the Warner attorney stated, acquired the Ambassador and New Grand Central by foreclosure in January, 1934, as chairman of the bondholders' committee, which held an original first mortgage on the two properties totaling $4,500,000. Jeffries was not permitted to discuss the mortgage situation on the Missouri when Hardy was sustained in an objection on the ground that the document itself was the best evidence. After a bit of quibbling between Reed and Hardy the ex-Senator then produced certified copies of documents, including the mortgages on the three buildings.

Jeffries then asserted that the first mortgage on the Ambassador and New Grand Central was for $4,500,000, later reduced through payments to $4,050,000. The second mortgage was for $1,075,000 and later reduced to $800,000. The third mortgage was $1,000,000, which Warners held. The first mortgage on the Missouri was for $2,000,000.

Hardy Intervenes

Jeffries said he knew of the setup from Harry C. Arthur's testimony and again Hardy intervened, stating that the first Government witness should have been cross-examined on this.

Reed remarked, "I'll address myself to the court and his honor's wisdom." To which Judge Moore replied, "I don't know about that."

Jeffries said that during the latter part of August, 1933, when the two receivership suits were out of the way, he began to negotiate with the bondholders' committee, recalling a meeting in Chicago that month and a later meeting on Sept. 18 in his office attended by Herman Starr, Abel Carey Thomas, Dysart, Levinson and himself.

The local Warner legal representative then recited some of the variations put into the plan by the bondholders which were not agreed upon at the conference. Warners wanted the agreement to run 15 years and the committee insisted on making it 10. The oral understanding on exemption of accumulated interest on the bonds was for the first two years. The committee reduced this to the first 12 months only. That 25 per cent of the money deposited in a sinking fund be paid to the new corporation annually was not changed. Neither was the insurance provision or setup of the trustees.

Names Provisions

Warners were given four representatives on the board of trustees, Jeffries stated, because it would not put up the $400,000 unless it could have 60 per cent of control. Reorganization expenses, plus the amount of money the non-depositing bondholders would get out of the foreclosure sale price was to be paid by Warners. It was agreed Warners would put up $50,000 in escrow in a bank on account of the purchase price of participating certificates, the balance to be paid on delivery. At first a Chicago bank was named, but this was changed to a St. Louis institution. Skouras Bros. Enterprises guaranteed the old bonds, Jeffries said.

Other provisions included the committee getting 40 per cent of the authorized stock in the new company, an option for Warners to operate the Missouri, for which the company would get a five per cent management fee and that no capital expense should be reduced from the gross receipts in determining net profit.

Jeffries said Levinson never submitted the draft to him, but to Dysart, who personally changed it so that the committee would be in control for 15 years without putting up a penny. Warners, who were to deposit $400,000 with the committee, were to get nothing, he said.

Asked about the Allen L. Snyder bid for the three theatres, Jeffries said he had heard about it sometime in January, 1934, shortly after which he conferred with Dysart and inquired if Koplar was connected with the deal. Dysart replied he was not dealing with Koplar and all negotiations were with Snyder. Jeffries added that on Feb. 19, he saw Koplar, who told him that he would not interfere with Warners trying to get control of the St. Louis Amusement Co. On Feb. 22, the Warner attorney visited Thomas and Starr in New York and was advised Warners were drawing up a new reorganization plan, he asserted.

When Jeffries brought up the question of product to Dysart, the Warner attorney said he was told, "the committee don't care what you do about it and we're not concerned where F. & M. gets pictures. We have their $105,000 and can cancel the lease any week they fail to pay rent."

Denies Expression

"We did not say we would keep F. & M. from getting pictures. We did say that Arthur would not get Warner product and that he may not have enough films for the threee houses," Jeffries testified. He denied Starr called F. & M. "fly-by-nighters." What Starr did say, the witness testified, was that Snyder and F. & M. were not experienced enough financially to carry out so great a responsibility."

Relieving the witness for a while, Reed read to the jury Warners' proposal, dated March 8, 1934, to the bondholders' committee. This, however, was for the Ambassador and New Grand Central, the Missouri being covered by a separate deal. Both were submitted to Dysart by Jeffries on March 15, it was stated.

Under terms of the plan for the two houses, Warner Brothers Pictures guaranteed 50 per cent of the outstanding bonds as to principal and interest, the other 50 per cent to be income bonds paying five per cent annually. Warners, under this agreement, would not get one cent of the properties until all bonds were fully paid, following which the bondholders would own half equity in the properties and Warners the other 50 percent.

Plan Rejected

This proposal differed from the oral agreement in that Warners would not have to put up the $400,000 cash, as the committee thought there was enough money in the receivers' exchequer to take care of the necessary expense of reorganization. Jeffries declared that this plan was filed "in good faith" on March 30, 1934, in the Federal court here. It was rejected along with the Missouri proposal.

The Warner bid for the Missouri was virtually the same as the Ambassador and New Grand Central.

Pittsburgh's Mayor Welcomes MPTO Men

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—Mayor McNair welcomed 52 members of the M.P.T.O. of Western Pennsylvania here today for their convention and told them he was in favor of abolishment of the state theatre tax.

M. A. Rosenberg, chairman of the convention, cautioned members against signing film contracts before they have had them examined and approved by the association.

Louis Senn, New York insurance man, delivered a long talk on the advisability of buying group insurance. Some action is expected on this tomorrow.

The question of Sunday shows, which will be voted on in this state next Tuesday, was not brought up, but probably will be tomorrow.

Abram F. Myers, listed as the chief speaker, didn't arrive but probably will be on hand tomorrow, as will Sidney E. Samuelson, national head of Allied.

Last night the members attended a preview of "Barbary Coast." Tonight they saw the opening of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

To Seek Legal Action

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 28.—Concentration of its program on an effort to secure Department of Justice anti-trust prosecutions in this territory and on the initiation of legal actions in behalf of its members has been agreed upon by Allied Theatre Owners of Texas for another year.

The action was taken following Col. H. A. Cole's report as president at the convention last week. After Cole had told of limits put upon his work by lack of finances a budget of $12,000 was set for the coming year.

Most of the efforts to secure Department of Justice action in past months has been done in cooperation with U. S. Senator Morris Shepard and Congressmen Hatton W. Sumners and Sam Rayburn.

Selznick Moving

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Selznick International will produce at the Pathe lot, beginning physical removal tomorrow. The deal is for one picture but may be extended. Phil Ryan has been named production manager. David O. Selznick is negotiating with William Koenig of Warners to take the post of executive business manager.

Short Subjects

"Starlit Days at the Lido"
(M-G-M)

The Lido in this case is the Ambassador swimming pool and its environs in Hollywood with Henry Busse and his band furnishing incidental music. Reginald Denny is master of ceremonies. Most of the action is by the Tic Toc girls, who sing; Cliff Edwards and his ukelele and a good-looking partner, and two unnamed acts.

It is all done in Technicolor—gorgeously done and sprinkled with "names." Among them are: John Mack Brown, Francis Lederer, John Boles, Baby Le Roy, Frank Shields, Lili Damita, Ben Turpin, Clark Gable, Marion Stephanie, Sally Eilers, Constance Bennett and others. Sally Eilers and Miss Bennett probably wished they had Natalie Kalmus to advise them on makeup when they saw the completed film. It's worth while, however. Production Code Seal No. 913. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Rhythm of Paree"
(Educational)

An entertaining musical comedy subject, this has one song number in particular, "Rhythm of Paree," which is tuneful and lively. Featured in the subject are Niela Goodelle, Earl Oxford and Fred Lightner. The two boys are without funds in Paris, find their way to a swank cafe, enjoy the entertainment and the company of the two members of the cast whom they meet, and are about to be forcibly ejected for failure to pay the check when rescue comes at the last moment. Entertaining to a degree. Production Code Seal No. 0625. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"Hazardous Occupations"
(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Interesting and thrilling for the average audience anywhere is this number of the "Adventures of the Newsreel Cameraman" series, in which the camera records something of the danger which lies in what may seem to be ordinary jobs. Included among them are the bridge workers, steeplejacks, oil field workers and the like, not to mention the job of the newsreel cameraman himself. A good, lively subject. Production Code Seal No. 0514. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Vitaphone Casino"
(Vitaphone)

The vaudeville antics of Paul Dukes with cigars and cigarettes in a sleight of hand turn, the singing of Babs Ryan and her brothers, the dance clowning of Buster West and the Radio Rubes combine to make this short a reasonably entertaining offering that should please most easy-to-satisfy audiences. Production Code Seal No. 0328. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Playgrounds"
(Vitaphone)

The places where America plays from Coney Island to Palm Springs make a novel theme that should be entertaining. Shots of Virginia Beach, Pinehurst, N. C., Lake Placid, Miami and the rest of the resorts are shown with the best features of each emphasized. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 0609. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Mutiny on the Bounty"
(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Spot this as a big and important picture with a wallop, one that takes the harsh code of the sea and with hammer strokes contrasts the cruel, heartless tyranny of navy discipline with South Sea happiness, visualizing throughout the impact of brutalizing forces versus humanity.

Famed in fact and fiction, the dramatic appeal of "Bounty" is deep and primal, sometimes sadistic, thrilling and always interesting. It deals with men and the methods that stalk the scene in the universal concept pictured with magic beauty and power by director Frank Lloyd, whose "Sea Hawk" still lives in pleasurable memory.

Hitlerish Charles Laughton, captain of the Bounty, rules with an iron hand, flogging, stretching and hanging his men. Clark Gable, Laughton's right bower, asks fair, human treatment for the crew. Franchot Tone, a poetic midshipman, is caught between these two forces. After Laughton ladles out insufferable punishment, Gable, with the crew, is forced to mutiny. Laughton is set adrift in an open boat. Gable lands in the South Seas with the crew living and loving in the idyllic manner.

After 49 days in the open boat Laughton returns and Tone, loyal to the navy, boards his vessel and is put in irons. Gable and the crew escape to Pitcairn Island, establishing a colony that is existing even today. Court martialed in England, Tone is found guilty but is later reinstated, cruelty is abolished in the queen's navy but Laughton goes unpunished.

Audiences may be disappointed that Laughton is so lightly handled. As a reprehensible character his great artistic gifts mantle his portrayal with quality. Gable, as a rugged he-man, has an opportunity to display his box-office prowess in romantic scenes with South Sea natives, giving flesh and blood virility to complete the character. Tone, the standard bearer of naval tradition, will be cheered in England.

With 50 speaking roles in the film Herbert Mundin, Eddie Quillan, Dudley Digges, Donald Crisp, Henry Stephenson, DeWitt Jennings and Stanley Fields commit themselves admirably. Production values are the acme of perfection with entrancing seascapes photographed by Arthur Edeson vying with the action and music to achieve rare eye and ear effectiveness. Al Lewin, by a penetrative understanding of the human values involved in handling so gigantic an undertaking, arrives at his maturity as an associate producer though guided by Irving Thalberg.

The screen play by Talbot Jennings, Jules Furthman and Carey Wilson hews to the line of the book by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall.

Discounting its length, "Mutiny on the Bounty" has magnitude, historical perspective, drama and romance applicable today and topped by the drawing power of Gable, Laughton and Tone. Costing nearly $2,000,000, "Mutiny" looks big domestically and in the British Empire should enjoy a prestige and profit second to none. This is a rich contribution to the screen's progress.

Production Code Seal No. 1,531. Running time, 132 minutes. "G."

"Stars Over Broadway"
(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—This contribution to the operatic cycle offers James Melton, a new and pleasing singing personality, in a novel story which enables him to croon popular numbers. Pat O'Brien, a promoter on his uppers, discovers him smashing baggage in a hotel. Taking Melton under his management, O'Brien has Melton schooled for the opera, but becomes discouraged when he learns the education will take an additional five years.

He sets Melton into a night club and on the radio where the singer scores a sensational success which goes to his head. Through dissipation, Melton loses his voice but is started anew on his operatic career by O'Brien after the night clubs and radio sponsors let him go. Romance is furnished by Jean Muir, a singing student who wants to join the O'Brien group. After complications Miss Muir and O'Brien unite while Melton is making his Metropolitan debut.

Marie Wilson, another newcomer, is teamed with Frank McHugh for comedy and romance and scores repeated laughs. Jane Froman, who sings well, appears in a brief role. Frank Fay draws good comedy from a radio announcer's role. One big production number, credited to Busby Berkley and Bobby Connolly, reflects the technique of each. The direction of William Keighly shows an intimate knowledge of

"Time" Cut Stirs Up Discussion in Ohio

CINCINNATI, Oct. 28.—Elimination of 150 feet of the Hitler sequence in the current issue of "March of Time" has stirred general comment. Herman J. Bernfeld in the Cincinnati Enquirer calls it a "direct blow at freedom of speech."

"Censorship," he says, "is usually leveled at passages in feature length entertainment. It should not be directed at cinema presentations or discussions of news events, any more than newspapers or other printed periodicals."

Indianapolis Drive Begun on Bank Night

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 28. — Two arrests have followed a police drive against Bank Nights. Mark G. Margolis, operator of the Rivoli, and Urban Anderson, former manager, have been taken into custody. Charges of operating a lottery have been lodged against them by Prosecutor Herbert M. Spencer.

The drive was ordered by the police after a riot over a drawing at the Rivoli, and warnings were issued to all managers.

Minneapolis Theatre Projects Stir Fight

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 28. — Theatre building projects have become so numerous here of late that they are being called a racket by some. Exhibitors have become alarmed and have formed the Neighborhood Exhibitors' Ass'n to combat license applications.

Some of the projects, it is claimed, are for the purpose of forcing sales, while others represent the hopes of men inexperienced in the show business.

Del Ruth for Set Music

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28. — Roy Del Ruth thinks some way should be devised to provide players with the inspirational music they used to have on the sets before sound came in.

"So decidedly does this music affect the abilities of actors, particularly during scenes demanding intensity of emotion," says Del Ruth, "that sound engineers are seeking a way to furnish it without having it picked up by the microphone."

Looking 'em Over

"The New Gulliver"

(Serlin-Mayer-Burstyn)

From a production viewpoint and recognizing the painstaking effort entailed in achieving the results which the picture displays, this Russian effort, in its particular field, is one of the most remarkable films this reviewer has seen in almost two decades.

From a purely entertainment viewpoint, however, the appraisal must be approached from another angle, for Pushko, the director, in keeping with the concepts of his native industry, reflecting as it constantly does the political philosophy of that nation, has twisted and warped Swift's original "Gulliver's Travels" into Soviet propaganda of the most blatant kind.

The story tells of an outing of a Russian group, comparable after a fashion to a Boy Scout troop in this country, to a nearby island on a small yacht built by its own members' hands. There, a reading of Gulliver is suggested. One of the characters, a 14-year-old boy, falls asleep and awakens in Lilliput, where a modern and very much latter day version of Swift's classic is unfolded by puppets, which move, not by strings, but by animation caught in the camera box.

Where Swift originally had drawn a satire predicated on the reactions of small minds, the treatment here launches into an out-and-out conflict between royalty and the, as usual, oppressed workers with eventual victory for the masses, of course.

The manipulation of the puppets, their well-nigh human gestures and postures, the extreme accuracy in scale and the enormous cleverness with which the inhabitants of Lilliput are handled combine into a sum total of enterprise, ingenuity and charm which are constantly intriguing and arresting.

The understanding is the owners—Oscar Serlin, Arthur L. Mayer and Joseph Burstyn—are pondering a version for general release at a later date. In it, all possible propaganda elements either will be eliminated or toned down. On such a basis and for discriminating audiences, "The New Gulliver" will prove a vast delight.

No production code seal. Running time, 77 minutes. "G."

KANN

Paramount Is Not Expected To Fill Board

Hanover Bank & Trust Co., and was on the Paramount board as a member of the company's bank creditor group, resigned late last week. His action is said to be in line with an original intention of serving on the Paramount board only temporarily because of the pressure of other business. He was elected for a one-year term which would expire next June.

It is also reported that Central Hanover, together with other large Paramount bank creditors, have liquidated all or nearly all of the approximately 50,000 shares of new first preferred Paramount stock and the $4,900,000 of new debentures which were issued to them in settlement of the old bank debt and for this reason felt that their representation on the company's board should properly be diminished. Gray's resignation leaves Charles A. McCulloch and Percy H. Johnston on the board as bank representatives. Neither is expected to resign before the expiration of his term as both have interests in Paramount dating back many years, McCulloch as a member of the board of Balaban & Katz and Johnston as an active figure in Paramount financing prior to the company's bankruptcy.

It was also stated that there is little likelihood of Paramount management officials being added to the board despite the existing vacancies in view of a further reorganization intent to keep management representation on the board at a minimum so that the directorate would not be in the position of passing upon their own management activities.

Vanderlip, a representative of holders of the old Paramount bonds, resigned two weeks ago. His resignation is not regarded as having any relation to that of Gray.

Independent Session Called by Chadwick

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—I. E. Chadwick has called a special meeting of all independent producers tonight at Reliable Studios. Chadwick said the purpose was for a discussion of city licenses and to outline plans to request a revision in license fees as set up by the city council. It was learned, however, the group will also discuss ways to combat future union trouble among independent producers.

This discussion is an offshoot of the recent I.A.T.S.E. and I.BE.W. jurisdictional dispute which cost Maury Cohen of Invincible $4,000 as a result of an enforced one-day production halt. Although Chadwick denied the meeting was called for a union discussion it was learned union representatives will attend.

"Shipmates" Hits $13,000 In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—The business locally last week was reserved almost exclusively for two local favorites. Dick Powell, who was a stage master of ceremonies here for a long time and has since been dynamite at the Pittsburgh box offices, is credited chiefly with the excellent $13,500 for "Shipmates Forever" at the Penn, while Benny Davis, also with an enormous following here, pulled the Stanley up to $18,000, its best takings in some time.

While the Penn and the Stanley were walking off with unusually profitable weeks, the other first run sites weren't faring well. Although "Harmony Lane" at the Fulton concerned a famous native son, Stephen Collins Foster, the picture took a weak $3,200. Switching temporarily to a double bill didn't do the Alvin much good, "Redheads on Parade" and "Fighting Youth" getting barely $4,700, while "The Case of the Lucky Legs" and "Freckles" gathered about $4,600 in five days at the Warner.

Total grosses were $44,000. Average is $40,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 24:

"FIGHTING YOUTH" (Univ.)
"REDHEADS ON PARADE" (Fox)
ALVIN—(2,000), 25c-40c, 6 days. Gross: $4,700. (Average, $5,500)

BLUE BOOK OF PROJECTION

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO GOOD OPERATING AND QUICK TROUBLE-SHOOTING

A new Blue Book by Richardson is always an event of signal importance to the motion picture industry. It is being issued at this time to meet the truly urgent demand of thousands of users of the old Blue Books for an accurate, modern evaluation of the changes and refinements in the art and science of sound reproduction and projection including all the apparatus. Richardson's expert knowledge of the craft he has taught and followed for more than three decades makes this latest treatise, in the opinion of leading authorities, the most comprehensive, most useful projection manual ever published.

700 Pages of Text, Charts and Data

The new Blue Book contains 700 pages and 153 illustraitons—photographs and schematics of every description. It is 6x9 in size with large readable type for easy visibility in the projection room under all conditions. It is entirely original from cover to cover, not a line of type from any of the many previous editions being used. Its low price of $5.25 and its handiness in one volume are among the many innovations.

1 IN ONE HANDY VOLUME
The new Bluebook is complete in one handy volume. It is a great improvement over the former expensive and cumbersome three-volume sets.

2 COMPLETE and UP-TO-DATE
The new Bluebook does a three-fold job: (1) it gives a detailed description of the construction, wiring and functioning of every piece of sound and projection apparatus used in a modern projection room. (2) It gives all the instructions for the operation and maintenance of this equipment and (3) it contains a complete trouble-shooting department as a first-aid in breakdowns.

3 QUICK-FINDING INDEX
An extremely simple but comprehensive indexing system makes the new Blue Book a truly great aid to working projectionists. Whatever problem comes up in the day's routine is covered on the instant with hardly more than the twirl of your thumb. Projectionists of long experience in the projection room will be first to appreciate this remarkable time-saver.

4 QUICK TROUBLE-SHOOTER
And it is, within its 700 pages, a practical trouble-shooter, which alone entitles it to a place in every projectionists tool kit.

Fuller, Mrs. George L. Foote, Mrs. Josephine Griffith, Mrs. Horace Morison, Mrs. Mortimer Seabury and Mrs. Samuel P. Sears.

"Hands Across the Table" proved a surprise. It sent the Metropolitan gross to $26,000, over par by $4,000. El Brendel headed a stage bill.

"The Last Days of Pompeii" was good for $13,000, up by $1,000, at Keith's Memorial. "O'Shaughnessy's Boy" and "It's in the Air," dual bill playing day and date at Loews Orpheum and Loew's State, made money in both spots. The take at the former was $14,000 and at the latter $13,000.

Fox Theatres Met Stock Buy Before Court

Manton Delays Decision After Arguments

Decision was reserved yesterday by Federal Judge Martin T. Manton at the conclusion of hearings on an application for an order directing the receiver of Fox Theatres Corp. to exercise an option to purchase 50 per cent of the stock of Metropolitan Playhouses, the reorganized Fox Met company.

Judge Manton directed attorneys to file final briefs for or against the order by Monday and extended the time in which the option may be exercised from Nov. 2 to Nov. 16. The option provides that Fox Theatres may acquire the stock by payment to United Artists Theatre Circuit of $300,000 or may receive $150,000 for waiving its purchase right. Thus a difference of $450,000 in immediate cash assets which would be available to Fox Theatres' creditors through a liquidation is involved.

The order asking that the receiver be directed to acquire the Met stock is asked by a Fox Theatres stockholders' committee. Gustavus A. Rogers, chairman of the committee, told the court that the $450,000 difference in cash assets meant only six per cent

Twickenham Studio Swept by Big Fire

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, Oct. 29.—A fire at the Twickenham studio entirely destroyed the old floor, the wall of which collapsed on a railway, causing suburban service to be delayed for several hours.

"Broken Blossoms" and "She Shall Have Music," productions now at work, have been stopped, but probably will resume immediately in hired space elsewhere. The new floor was unflamaged, but the recording department was a total loss. Sound engineers are carrying on in portable sound vans.

Ufa's "Faithful" Is Under Ban in Mexico

Mexico City, Oct. 29.—On the ground that its German propaganda overstresses class racial antagonism in Germany, the Government censors have banned exhibition of Ufa's "Faithful Unto Death" in Mexico.

Skouras and 306 Agree on 1-Year Pact

No Contract Signed; Say Randforce to Follow

A one year agreement with Local 306 without a contract has been made for Skouras-operated houses in the metropolitan area, it was learned yesterday. The average wage scale for the circuit amounts to approximately $1.49 per hour under the agreement, which includes vacations with pay for the operators.

It was reported but not confirmed that the Randforce operated houses, likewise, have made a similar one-year agreement with Local 306 without a contract. The Skouras attitude was officially said to be opposed to a long term agreement such as that made by RKO and Loew's with Local 306. It

Estimate $800,000 For Para. Quarter

Third quarter earnings of Paramount Pictures Corp. are estimated at approximately $800,000, or about the same as for the second quarter. First quarter net was $1,472,000 after provisions for about $400,000 quarterly interest on the company's bonds. Estimated earnings for the first nine months are in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. Earnings for the final quarter, usually the best of the year, are expected to reflect the effects of the Paramount studio reorganization which held production at a minimum during the first half of the year.

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 29.— Fred Greene, theatre manager, isn't so sure he is lucky. Greene won an attendance prize at the Lions' Club, but it was a pass to a rival theatre.

K-A-O Quarter Net May Go to $300,000

Keith-Albee-Orpheum receipts for the third quarter were estimated at $300,000 more than for the same period last year on the basis of financial reports presented to the company's directors at their regular quarterly meeting yesterday. Net earnings, also, are showing a "steady increase," according to Herbert B. Swope, chairman of the board, who presided.

Nothing to indicate a prospective disposal by M. J. Meehan of his K-A-O holdings came before the meeting, it was said. Reports that Meehan had received an offer from Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. for his K-A-O preferred, estimated to have a value of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, have been circulated for some weeks past.

Wisconsin Pushing Move on Giveaways

Milwaukee, Oct. 29.—Legal action against giveaways is seen for Wisconsin towns as a result of a recent opinion by the state attorney general declaring that pin-ball machines and other gambling devices, whether operated by charitable organizations or not, are illegal.

District attorneys in various cities have called the attention of their police chiefs to the opinion and are urging prompt action.

Industry 'Blue Book' Turns Out to Honor David L. Loew

By RED KANN

It was a Dave Loew, halting and husky of voice who gratefully and with abashment acknowledged eulogy and good-natured raillery unleashed in his direction from a variety of speakers at the Waldorf last night.

The occasion was a farewell dinner marking his retirement as an officer of Loew's, Inc., to become a partner in the Hal Roach studios with the title of vice-president. It was Will H. Hays, reflecting what must have been the sentiment of the majority there who suggested the function should have been termed a testimonial.

Almost 500 men, combining into what was, by long odds, one of the most representative assemblages of film names ever to foregather in one room for one single purpose, were in attendance. Virtually all companies, from the large to the small, were represented by important executives. Those who could not attend for whatever their reason sent ambassadors or expressed their sentiments by telegraph and cable.

There were, for instance, a message of well wishes signed by 25 unnamed girls employed in Loew's and M-G-M, a cable from Laudy Lawrence and others speaking for Continental

Warners Win Point; Court Shifts Ruling

Testimony on Suits by Koplar Admitted

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Oct. 29. — Warner scored another important victory today when Federal Judge George H. Moore reversed himself and permitted former Senator James A. Reed to introduce testimony relating to Harry Koplar's suits against two companies, in which Warners were financially interested, in rebuttal to inferences brought out by the Government on examination of its witnesses.

Reed was interrogating Sam B. Jeffries, the first defense witness, on the stand for the second day, in connection with a conference which he had with members of the bondholders' committee of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central on Aug. 3, 1933. The ex-Senator asked Jeffries if he had then advised the committee why Warners would not enter into a reorganization plan. The witness answered that he did. He went on to

By RED KANN

THE truth, all of it, about Universal. The company

(1) Has not been sold to Erpi or to anyone else.

(2) Has not optioned control to any individual or group as part of the terms covering a large loan.

(3) Is negotiating with several groups for fresh money which would permit the studio to proceed with a heavy and important production schedule. It would be a loan on terms which would be the company's business and practically nobody else's. As matters such as these run, there is no assurance at all that the negotiations, admittedly hot, will be closed. . . .

"Why kid ourselves?" advertises Bob Gillham for Paramount's sake. "We've been in the business a pretty long time. So have you. As one of the leading outfits in the industry, we know just about all the tricks of the trade. So do you. Then why shouldn't we—when we're talking to you—cut out all the trade ad bunk, all the poetry, the fancy adjectives, the 'colossals' and the 'super-super tremendous' nonsense? This sort of thing may be swell for outsiders; but inside the business, it's just plain foolish! After all, you're business men. You want facts: What kind of picture we're releasing; the sort of market it was planned for; how you can make the most money out of it. All right! We're going to see that you get these facts in our trade ads.". . .

We'd pat Gillham's broad shoulders with friendly and resounding whacks if we could reach them. We would also ask why he stops where he did. Why, the questions might embrace, think the ridiculous and persistent use of superlatives should end with trade copy when their effectivensss in newspaper copy is a fitting subject for query and doubt? One of the standard jokes in the business is the wheeze, old now of course, about the producer who was disappointed because his latest opus emerged as only colossal. . . .

But to get serious about a joke, the lesson which should be in it is the conclusion that years of rehashing superlatives has left the public not merely cold, but dubious and unbelieving to boot. Merchandising copy, by all means. Factual copy with intelligent selling angles, yes. But the old-line, accepted good-better-best copy, no. It is outmoded. It is ineffectual; it is no longer selling copy. . . .

Oil may calm troubled waters, but films, such as have been dated into the Center so far, will not solve the Rockefeller's problem over on Sixth Ave. Anticipating $30,000 as its weekly gross, here are the facts since that house reopened in competition with the Music Hall, a handful of steps up the avenue:

"Here's to Romance," first week, $18,500.

"Here's to Romance," second week, $10,500.

"The Last Days of Pompeii," first week, $15,000.

Quite a loss there, disregarding rent. For the first time, aside from its sketchy beginnings, Radio City is learning the difficulty, and perhaps the foolhardiness, of attempting to operate successfully two picture houses with walls almost adjoining. . . .

Distributors from time to time have velled loudly and lengthily over delays in playdates resulting from the booking method in vogue at the Music Hall and other theatres have ruminated ruefully over the terrific buying power of that theatre. Yet the truth currently is that there is not enough important celluloid purchased by the Van Schmus management to keep the big and little Rockefeller houses lusty. The obvious way out, of course, is to annex more output. Less obvious is the direction in which to turn for it. . . .

O.—Why is J. R. McDonough staying in town instead of repairing to the RKO studio?

A. (Unconfirmed) — Because he is seeking a new contract, his current pact expiring not so many months hence. . . .

Charlie Pettijohn in a recent address before the National Film Carriers' Association:

"The only way that arbitration can be successful in this business is to keep the lawyers out."

Pettijohn is a lawyer. That qualifies him to speak. . . .

Wainwright, Ltd., and Norman Loudon of Sound City, Ltd., in a British production scheme which includes the addition of two further stages to the Sound City studio at Shepperton and an output of features designed for world release by Universal.

The cost of the Sound City extensions is estimated at £130,000 ($650,000). They will be RCA wired and will be 150 x 120 feet and 120 x 100 feet, convertible into one big floor.

Interchange of directors and technicians with Universal City is promised by S. F. Ditcham, managing director of Universal in England, who says the Wainwright productions will measure up with the American product.

The Wainwrights have "The Adventures of Ambrose," with Claude Hulbert and "The Crimson Circle," Edgar Wallace thriller, scheduled for "U" release before the bigger program goes into effect.

A. J. Small's Widow Is Dead in Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—Still another chapter was written in the mysterious case of A. J. Small, theatre magnate, when his widow passed away after a lingering illness, the burial being attended by many representatives of the stage and screen.

Small stepped out of sight 15 years ago, a few hours after he had received a million-dollar check for his theatre holdings throughout Ontario. His disappearance aroused wide attention and the search for him extended into many sections of the United States and even Mexico. A subsequent feature was the legal fight put up by Mrs. Small to have her husband declared dead to facilitate the disposal of the estate.

Later when the Grand Theatre, where he had maintained his office, was razed to make a downtown parking lot, a close watch was kept on the disappearing building for his remains and a steam shovel was utilized to excavate the earth but without result.

HERE'S HOW TO INCREASE RECEIPTS ON BILL POWELL'S "RENDEZVOUS"!

Put a panel into your lobby at once carrying the marvelous critical notices reprinted below about M-G-M's newest hit. Use a flash headline stating: "Here's the picture that Broadway is raving about. Held over 2nd week at New York's famed Capitol Theatre." Then follow with reviews.

DAILY NEWS—A sure hit . . ."Rendezvous" offers the other theatres on the street considerable competition. For Mr. Powell does the unexpected by repeating the hilarious performance he gave in "The Thin Man" with another characterization just as amusing in "Rendezvous"... Anybody who deliberately misses the fun and excitement of the latest Powell film is cheating himself of a good time... Mr. Powell is in top-form, delivering the smart and audacious lines with even more than his usual effectiveness... Miss Russell gives a diverting performance. The picture moves quickly and brilliantly to a highly amusing and fitting end...

N.Y. AMERICAN—A perfect pip of a picture, vastly pleasing in every respect... A thoroughly exciting melodramatic entertainment, the tensity of which is lightened by highly-diverting comedy... It keeps the audience between giggles and gasps from flash to fade-out, with never an arid moment in the fast fun... That sort of thing goes on and on to the very end, where a blood-tingling, hirsute elevating climax is capped by a tag that sends them out laughing... See it, please, and have fun... Also be among the millions who will revel in the "discovery" of Rosalind Russell, who vaults high toward stardom... The girl troupes her way right into your heart and provides another name to be enrolled on the list of your film favorites...By all means keep this "Rendezvous" at the Capitol...

Held Over 2nd Week, Capitol, N. Y. BIG Everywhere!

WORLD-TELEGRAM—It's a laugh-fest at the Capitol this week where debonair Bill Powell has in "Rendezvous" the kind of screen play that's duck-soup for him and in Rosalind Russell, a newcomer, the kind of leading lady who brings out the devil in him... A joyous jamboree... the customers spent most of their time laughing... they just love to laugh and thrill with Bill... the applause is plenty...

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It is a distinct pleasure to record the appearance of a worthy successor to the memorable "Thin Man"... "Rendezvous" must be set down as one of the better photoplays. This highly agreeable picture is amply supplied with high comedy and ably acted.

HERALD-TRIBUNE—Gayly and entertainingly told... The work of Mr. Powell and Miss Russell is engaging... Mr. Powell is excellent, Miss Russell is one of the great pleasures of the film... A lot of fun...

DAILY MIRROR—A smart and lively comedy-drama, reminiscent of the "The Thin Man." A gay cast, gay humor, gay director, it makes heartily pleasant entertainment... William Powell excels at being suave, jaunty and engaging... Excellent supporting cast...

N.Y. TIMES—A humorous and rousing melodrama... William Powell with that sleek banter and that blend of bored nonchalance and razored sharpness that makes him one of our most attractive performers, keeps the entertainment consistently vigorous... Under the able management of William K. Howard, the film preserves its sense of humor without disturbing its air of mystery... With Mr. Powell at his debonair best, "Rendezvous" emerges as a lively and amusing melodrama...

N. Y. JOURNAL—A gay and amusing entertainment... Powell has been given another "Thin Man" type of role... Smartly written and directed, the story builds to an exciting climax... Novel and lively, the film blends suspense with humor and Powell contributes an elegant performance. It's good fun!

N. Y. POST—... A boisterously entertaining picture that is both spirited and amusing... The flavor and dash of the picture are heightened by the excellent playing of the supporting cast. They help to make "Rendezvous" a sure-fire antidote to boredom...

BRAVO!

LET'S GIVE DUE CREDIT TO THE FOLKS WHO MADE IT!

Cheers for Bill Powell, Rosalind Russell, Binnie Barnes, Lionel Atwill, Cesar Romero, Samuel S. Hinds, and all the Cast. Cheers for Director William K. Howard and Producer Lawrence Weingarten. (And a bow to Leo the Lion who's having the year of his career, thank you!)

Warners Win Point; Court Shifts Ruling

explain that the reason was that Warners had all they could do taking care of the Koplar receivership suits against the St. Louis Amusement Co. and Skouras Bros. Enterprises and until these court actions were out of the way the company was not interested.

Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, objected and asked Judge Moore to instruct the jury to disregard this. He was sustained. Following the judicial order Reed and Frederick H. Wood, co-Warner counsel, made five different pleas, contending, in the main, that Warners' acts were not a conspiracy, but done as a result of a condition which existed, that counsel wanted to show the circumstances under which Warners acted and that the moves made were to protect whatever interests the company had here.

All Requests Overruled

All requests were overruled and again Reed made another attempt to convince the judge of the admissibility of such evidence, stating, "To tell a man put on trial he cannot disclose why he did a thing and the purpose of his doing it is not the law.

"I have a right to show that the expressions made were of proof and not malice and I hope you are not going to deny us the right to show the reasons which actuated us in what we did. It is for these 12 jurors to decide whether we did wrong and not the judgment of the court," Reed declared.

Hardy followed Reed, claiming that the case deals with methods employed by the defendants to effectuate this purpose. Wood then said, "What we are saying, in effect, is, did we do the things we did as a result of a conspiracy, or another way, and not as a result of a conspiracy."

"We are asking," Wood added, "that all the facts be offered in evidence and the conclusion will be that we did them lawfully. Motive is not a defense here, but the reasons why we acted are the facts. We can't show the facts unless everything is brought in."

Reed again took the floor and stated, "It seems inconceivable to me that this kind of evidence is not admissible."

Court Studies Matter

Judge Moore called a recess during which he returned to his office to study the matter. When he came back he called Reed and Wood to the bench for a whispered conference. After they were through, Hardy was called, following which the reversal was handed down.

The court, jurors, witnesses, lawyers and spectators were thrown into hysterical laughter during the afternoon session by the comments of Jeffries. Wood also brought laughter when he answered Hardy on a monopoly angle. The prosecutor stated that if a monopoly had prevailed, the defendants should have come to him. Wood replied, "And he would probably have indicted them," meaning F. & M., which the defense has alleged carried on a monopoly in the control of five first runs.

Jeffries rocked his audience, when he was asked to describe the frame of mind Herman Starr was in when the latter was said to have told members of the bondholders' committee, meeting in Thomas N. Dysart's office on March 1, 1934, "We are going to operate our own theatres in St. Louis if we have to acquire them. We are going to exhibit our own pictures."

Answering, Jeffries said, "There's no telling. He may have gone crazy."

Asked by Hardy on cross examination what he meant when he said in direct examination that Starr talked with deliberate and dynamic force, Jeffries replied, "Yes, Starr is a dynamic force and I wish I had more of it myself." He added Star was a straightforward man working honestly and sincerely for his company.

A Round of Laughs

Another round of laughs came when Hardy asked the witness what he meant by describing Starr as aggressive. He answered, "Starr is always aggressive, as you are." Hardy denied he had ever been called aggressive.

Most of the witness's testimony was concerned with denying charges allegedly attributed to Starr by Government witnesses who had attended meetings at which he had been present. The particular testimony referred to was that of David Chasnoff and Frederick Kreismann. The former, on the stand, testified Starr had said, "No one will be permitted to operate those theatres other than Warners and the company is willing to lose a large sum of money to accomplish this."

The latter stated under oath that Starr had made threats to the bondholders' committee and that he, Kreismann, "was tired of hearing them."

After the question of admitting references to Koplar had finally been settled by Judge Moore, the witness gave reasons why Warners couldn't negotiate with the bondholders' committee. He said it was because of the suits pending before Referee Barker, who later made a report describing the actions as "brought to extort money from Warners, that they were blackmail suits and all charges of mismanagement and misconduct on the part of Warners were unfounded, untrue and quite the reverse."

"Hands Were Tied"

The referee found, Jeffries said, that Warners had successfully, honestly and efficiently operated St. Louis Amusement Co. and Skouras Bros. Enterprises.

"Our hands were tied," the local Warner attorney said he told the committee, "in the reorganization of two companies in which we were interested because of the litigation. It was held the suits were brought for the purpose of destroying Warners and this had been confirmed by the court."

The Koplar charges in a petition were also decided in favor of Warners, Jeffries declared. Koplar claimed Warners had paid $200,000 to union help which shouldn't have been paid, but the referee found, it was stated, the companies had a contract with the musicians at the time sound displaced theatre orchestras which had to be paid.

The entire morning session was devoted to a reading of Warners' reorganization plan for Central Properties by Reed and Wood. The brochure was 12 closely printed pages. After the reading was completed, Jeffries explained the difference between this plan and that discussed at Dysart's office on June 6. The witness said that during the interval he had conferred with a group of the largest bondholders and a number of recommendations were made which were favorable to Warners and included in the plan. One suggestion was that Warners only guarantee five instead of six per cent on the bonds which would have left more money available to retire all the bonds.

Hardy Sustained

A second suggestion for establishment of a larger sinking fund to help retire the bonds was likewise approved. The bondholders also wanted some assurance that if Warners made good the guarantee on the first mortgage bonds the company would not wipe out the income bonds by foreclosure. Warners agreed this was fair. Warners, in addition, offered to cancel $1,250,000 worth of guaranteed bonds only to the extent of $750,000. They also agreed that the $750,000 worth of bonds and all unpaid income bonds be put into new first mortgage bonds which should run for 15 years and be retired by application of income out of the property.

When Hardy objected to Reed's questioning the witness in connection with what he had told Harry C. Arthur about Koplar and the trouble Warners experienced with him, he was sustained. This, however, occurred just before noon recess when the prosecutor charged Reed with working up to an impeachment of the Government's first witness. The ex-Senator denied the intent and produced testimony in which Arthur testified he was not informed about the trouble.

Prosecutor Warned

Hardy's method of making objections became annoying to Judge Moore, who stopped the examination and admonished the prosecutor with, "I stated before, Mr. Hardy, that you should make your objections properly. I don't like these interruptions." Hardy apologized in a whispered tone and sat down. Later objections were made with apologetic prefaces.

Jeffries will take the witness stand for the third day tomorrow when Hardy will complete his cross examination and Reed will take up the redirect. Paramount and RKO attorneys will not question the local Warner attorney, it was stated.

Harry M. Warner is understood scheduled to be the second defense witness. He may be followed by Starr or Gradwell L. Sears.

Reports have it that the trial will bee moved over to the new Federal court house the end of the week or on Monday.

Because of Jeffries' poor speaking voice, Warners had secured a microphone and power set to be installed in the witness box. The contraption was carried out this afternoon unused. It is believed Judge Moore would not permit the installation, on the reported grounds that the testimony might be recorded and that films may be taken.

Film Notables Pay Homage to David L. Loew

Metro, a third from "Lord" Sam Eckman in London, a wire from Henry Ginsberg, vice-president and general manager of the Roach organization and a bosom friend of Loew's; a message from E. A. Schiller, ill in Atlanta; from Abe Fischer, the oldest employe in the Loew company; from Bernard Freeman, who represents M-G-M in Australia; from George J. Schaefer, whose word that "government affairs" were detaining him in St. Louis garnered a laugh; from Paul Moss, the license commissioner. While these selected few only were read, Arthur Garfield Hays, the toastmaster, had many more not read through lack of time.

An Intimate Affair

It was a warm and intimate affair. Almost to a man, the executive roster of Loew's and M-G-M, beginning at the top with Nicholas M. Schenck, David Bernstein, J. Robert Rubin and so down the line, was present. In the assemblage, too, was Marcus Loew, 2nd and David Leonard Loew, the honored guest's two sons. On the dais was Arthur Loew who, when his time for speech-making arrived, made no secret of the strength of the blood tie that joins him with his twin brother.

He told of how Dave had proved a constant surprise all of his life; how he had suddenly in his youth turned up as an usher at Loew's West End Theatre; how the apparently retiring and meek Dave in days gone by had become involved in a street fight with the toughest kid in the neighborhood with Arthur, not Dave, to the rescue of the family honor with a broken nose for a reward; how he hoped the Loew family would never have occasion to shudder over a newspaper headline reading "Hollywood Producer Strangles Girl."

"Hal already has a financial genius in Henry Ginsberg. All that Roach comedies now lacks is humor. I am certain Dave will supply the laughs," he said. "This is a tender and sentimental occasion for me," Arthur concluded as he left the "mike" for his seat at a far end of the dais with a suspicion of tears in his eyes.

Howard Dietz Speaks

Compliments, gracious in their directness and humorous in their shafts, flashed back and forth during the evening. From those at the dais who included David Warfield, Nicholas M. Schenck, David Bernstein, Adolph Zukor, Hal Roach, Nathan Burkan, J. Robert Rubin, M. H. Aylesworth, Louis Nizer, Jack Cohn and Martin Quigley, as well as the two Loew brothers, of course, the toastmaster called upon Howard Dietz, following brief introductory remarks by Dave Blum, who with Eugene Picker, carried the work horse burden of arranging the dinner.

Introduced by the toastmaster as one who manages to fill his business hours on the outside but continues to retain his value with M-G-M, Dietz said:

"To get a real slant on this dinner is to compare trading a member of the Giants with Newark. Gladstone once said to Disraeli: 'You will either die on the gallows or of a social disease.' Disraeli replied: 'Not unless I embrace your principles or your mistress.' Well, Dave has chosen Hollywood, the land of cactus trees and Sam Goldwyn. I suppose Dave will emerge wearing loud ties, sweaters for vests and pants that don't match the coats. He'll be invited to parties by Marion Davies or Kay Francis or Lee Francis. He's going to Hollywood, the land where Roach won't disturb him and where Dave will have to find Hal on the polo field if he wants to see him at all."

Zukor Applauded

The pages of personal history were turned back in fond reminiscence by two other speakers. Adolph Zukor, his hair turning white rapidly now, apparently continues to rate tops in the estimation of the New York industry. The applause which greeted him when he arose to talk was outstripped by no other speaker.

"I have known Dave since he was two. We lived on the same street with the Loew family. All of his life Dave has been unassuming.

"Marcus Loew was a born showman. Undoubtedly Dave has inherited much of this from his father. I would venture to say that David, now that he is turning to production, will surprise you in his accomplishments."

"I congratulate the industry on disposing of its first banker, but not on its victory for you have merely gotten a lawyer in his place," began Louis Nizer. "The Loew organization knows the value of lollipops such as the banker who preceded me apparently likes. For years it has been paying film rentals in that currency."

Nizer Serious

However, the bulk of Nizer's address, couched in effective and telling language, was in serious vein. "It is easy to become popular by being generous and at a sacrifice of business rights, but to maintain popularity with no such sacrifice, such as David Loew has achieved, is a tribute to his career," he declared. "But beyond all of that, I should like to refer to his career of character. Many poor men have risen to great wealth, but it is rarer when a man born of wealth succeeds on his own. David Loew might have reflected arrogance, but instead he reflects sweet humility. He might have reflected conceit and aimlessness, and he might have walked down paths hewn for him by another's enterprise, but he has hewn paths of his own. Marcus Loew, where he alive tonight, would be proud of that which his son has accomplished. In honoring David Loew tonight, we honor his father as well."

Other speakers included Hal Roach, Will H. Hays and David Warfield. "If the speeches indicate the brand of humor afloat in the world today, we can still make comedies," Roach said, at the same time declaring "from now on I'm going to work like hell for Dave Loew."

"Louis Nizer, when he spoke of a career of character said beautifully much of what I had planned to say," Hays said.

He told several stories, two of them political, dipped into his early experiences with Adolph Zukor and Marcus Loew and, as he approached his conclusion, remarked:

"I am going to write a history of this business some day and when I do Adolph Zukor and Marcus Loew will be written high into it."

Warfield's remarks, unprepared as they were, proved to be one of the highlights of the evening. He told how he had first met Max (Marcus) Loew in a real estate venture, how he was introduced to Zukor through Loew, of the first penny arcade and the gradual emergence of the arcade into the picture theatre. "Arthur and David were two of the noisiest kids I have ever known. You couldn't hear anything but them when I used to visit the Loews many years ago. I often wondered if they would have any sense when they grew up. Now look at them! They are great executives. I remember when Max Loew introduced me to David Bernstein, in those days a bookkeeper at $13.50 a week. I remember when Joe and Nicholas Schenck entered the business as helpers. Where the hell am I anyway," popped one of his closing remarks. The formally attired throng roared.

"I would be a rotter if I had not tried to make something of life after the advantages that were given me," said Loew as he rose to speak. "I had the advantage of a marvelous mother and father," and as he hesitated, "This is getting to sound like a confirmation speech."

Brother to Brother

Loew said of his brother, Arthur: "There couldn't be two men in love with each other more than we two." Arthur diligently studied the tablecloth.

"In the 19 years I have been with the company, nobody could be fairer or more honest than Mr. Schenck. I am sorry he had to leave before I had an opportunity to say this," Dave continued.

Loew also divulged that the deal by which he now joins Hal Roach was first advanced by the comedy producer some years ago. "I am looking forward to the day when I can learn how to make comedies and perhaps a funny speech as well," he added.

Loew was presented with a large parchment on which were inscribed the names of the guests. Thus came to a close a function unique in the latter day annals of the industry, not because of its size or because of the weight of the names present but because of the patent and sincere ring which marked its course.

Court Is Asked to Confirm U. A. Cases

An application was filed yesterday in the Manhattan Supreme Court by Louis Nizer in behalf of United Artists for an order confirming an award made in arbitration proceedings between United Artists and the Van Park Amusement Corp. of Stapleton, S. I. The abitrators awarded $50 to United Artists as license fee for "Broadway Thru a Keyhole," which was not exhibited by the Van Park corporation under the terms of a contract. The arbitrators were Phillip Hodes, Robert J. Fannon, Morris Sanders and D. Peck. A hearing was set for this morning before Justice Timothy Leary.

A similar application was filed by Nizer to confirm an award made by the same four arbitrators for $280 to United Artists in arbitration proceedings with the New United Theatre Corp. of Brooklyn. The following films and their license fees figured in the proceedings: "A Hundred Years," $50; "Nell Gwynne," $25; "Runaway Queen," $25; "Cardinal Richelieu," $70; "Call of the Wild," $70; "Congo Raid," $40. This matter will also be heard by Justice Leary.

Congressman Sabath today disclosed that while in Boston he ordered the Metropolitan Theatre case turned over to the state's attorney for a more complete probe and possible prosecution.

Rabbi Hits "Time" Cut as Un-American

CINCINNATI, Oct. 29.—"The action of the Ohio censors in cutting from 'The March of Time' those scenes showing Nazi persecution of the Jews, and the training of young German storm troopers, was decidedly un-American," said Rabbi Samuel Wohl in a sermon.

Selznick Plans Stock

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—Selznick International Pictures intends to form a stock company as quickly as possible, according to David O. Selznick.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"In Person"

(RKO)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—RKO has done handsomely by Ginger Rogers' first starring film, providing George Brent as the leading man, light romantic comedy and good songs. The emphasis on a novel plot should start them coming and friends should follow.

Ginger plays a film star suffering from a fear of people after being mobbed by fans. The doctor prescribes a fantastic makeup to get her accustomed to crowds without being recognized. Her effect, in protruding teeth caps and black wig, frightens Brent, but at the doctor's request he consents to take her to a mountain cabin for a rest. A taming of the shrew theme starts with Brent refusing to believe she is a star and making her cook. Hilarious interludes are provided by Alan Mowbray as a conceited chap who discovers the mountain retreat and almost becomes the groom in a shotgun wedding Ginger has arranged for herself and Brent.

The child, Joan Breslau, scores as the matchmaking hillbilly. Grant Mitchell, Samuel Hinds, Louis Mason, Spencer Charters and Edgar Kennedy are featured in a good cast. William Seiter directed for a full quota of laughs. Allan Scott contrived a clever screen play from the novel by Samuel Hopkins Adams. Oscar Levant and Dorothy Fields provided three telling songs which Ginger sings and dances. Brent is unusually attractive in light comedy and seems a wise choice for Ginger's first important film without Fred Astaire. Pandro Berman has produced another money-maker.

Production Code Seal No. 1,537. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

Looking 'em Over

"Invitation to the Waltz"

(Associated British Pictures)

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Specially written by Holt Marvell (Eric Maschwitz, of the British Broadcasting Corp.), author of "Goodnight Vienna," this period romance stars Lilian Harvey.. The cast also includes such good players as Carl Esmond, Harold Warrender, Esme Percy and Hay Petrie.

There is good plot value of the semi-burlesque type appropriate to the type of production, the leading character being an English dancing girl who is asked by the British ambassador to Wurtemburg to influence the impecunious duke to sell his army to the Allies instead of to Napoleon. She is in love with an officer, who is ignorant of her mission and who assumes that she has become the duke's mistress. Napoleon descends on the city, the dancer is captured and the officer faces court-martial for trying to arrange her escape, but Napoleon frees the girl and benevolently arranges for her to carry off her lover concealed in a trunk.

The production has not made the most of the material or of the artists, the general atmosphere being one of staginess. The American appeal of the picture seems likely to be slight.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G." ALLAN

"Music Hath Charms"

(Associated British Pictures)

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A vehicle for the personality and famous dance band of Henry Hall, celebrity of the British Broadcasting Corp., the basic idea is to trace the effect of broadcast music on the lives of some of the millions who listen to it. Typical are a couple tricked by mischievous elders into a breach of promise dispute, a couple of white explorers in danger from savages, the wife of one of the explorers, who almost lets a flirtation go too far. In each case the music, carried over the air, brings about a happy ending.

The episodic character of the film is no drawback; what is, is that some of the episodes are very good and some very, very crude. Under the former head is an extremely funny travesty of a trial in court and a series of episodes of traffic policemen and others carrying on to the rhythm of the theme tune. There are real laughs also in scenes picturing Hall and his band entertaining waifs and strays.

This will want a lot of cutting to be usable in America, but its tunefulness and the real brightness of the best scenes help.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G." ALLAN

Skouras and 306 Agree on 1-Year Pact

was said that the circuit rejected a contract because of its belief that better labor relations could be maintained without one. The Skouras spokesman said that the circuit had never made a labor contract in the past and had never had a strike.

Negotiations for the merger of Local 306 with Allied and Empire operators' unions are now under way and the basic wage scale for the remainder of the metropolitan houses, most of which now employ members of the latter two unions, will be set in the course of these negotiations.

Skouras Planning No Shift in U. A. Spots

No changes in operating management will be made for any of the four United Artists Theatre Circuit houses which come under Skouras operation as a result of a recent agreement with Joseph M. Schenck, George Skouras said yesterday.

The four houses to be operated by Skouras in accordance with the agreement are the United Artists, Detroit; United Artists, Portland; United Artists, Chicago, and the Rivoli here. Pacific Coast theatres in which the U. A. Circuit has an interest, with the exception of the house at Portland, have been operated by Fox West Coast under Charles Skouras for the past 18 months. The U. A. circuit also has a joint interest with Loew's in other houses in the east which are operated by the latter.

Skouras operation of the Rivoli here will not affect film buying or releasing procedure for the balance of the Skouras-operated Metropolitan Playhouses, Skouras said.

New Circuit Awaits Recovery of Brandt

The current illness of Harry Brandt was held responsible for the delay in furthering plans for the organization of the proposed Independent Theatre Circuit, Inc., by Milton C. Weisman, attorney for the I. T. O. A., in denying reports yesterday that the theatre pooling idea had been abandoned by local independents.

Plans for formation of the Independent Theatre Circuit were first announced by Weisman on Aug. 1, and were accompanied by a statement that approximately 72 theatres had signed for the organization and operators of more than 60 additional houses were considering doing so. An election of officers of the new theatre corporation was originally scheduled for Aug. 2, but has not taken place yet. Weisman said that with Brandt's recovery further developments in the organization of the independent circuit could be expected.

Fox Theatres Met Stock Buy Before Court

additional for creditors of the company at this time, as against possible dividends on the Met stock over a 10-year period if the option were to be exercised. He said that with the $300,000 expenditure creditors of Fox Theatres could be paid 22 cents on the dollar at once and, in addition, they could retain an equity in any dividends which might be declared on the Met stock during the 10-year period. He said that purchase of the stock also would hasten the formation of a plan of reorganization for Fox Theatres, under which stockholders might receive $4 or $5 a share on their holdings and creditors might receive new securities equivalent to the full amount of their claims as finally allowed.

Advocate Use of Option

Rogers added that exercise of the option to purchase the 50 per cent stock interest for $300,000 must be good business in view of the fact that Joseph M. Schenck (United Artists Theatre Circuit) had found it worthwhile to pay $425,000 for the other 50 per cent.

Exercise of the option was also advocated by other Fox Theatres' creditors representing disputed claims of more than $1,000,000. The order was opposed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Alvin J. Schlosser and creditors represented by Archibald Palmer, attorney. Palmer contended that Fox Theatres is insolvent and that its stockholders, consequently, had no interest in the estate and were not in a position to sponsor the order sought from the court. He also maintained that there is no prospect of a dividend being paid on the Met stock during the next 10 years, and asked that the stockholders' petition be dismissed.

Accountants Testify

Accountants for Skouras Amusement Corp., which operates about 45 houses for Metropolitan Playhouses, testified that net earnings of the circuit from last Jan. 1 to date are approximately $90,000, as compared with a net of $12,900 for the first 39 weeks of last year. Accountants for Randforce, operators of the remainder of Metropolitan's 84 houses, reported a loss of $44,900 for the period from Feb. 1 to Oct. 12, which included the payment of $30,000 for legal fees for receivership proceedings. This compared with a loss of $84,700 for the same period last year. It was also testified that Randforce had declared a dividend of $300,000 on Sept. 2 out of accumulated earnings since 1933, when the last dividend, amounting to $200,000, was declared. It was explained by Milton C. Weisman, receiver of Fox Theatres, that the Sept. 2 dividend had included $150,000 which was earmarked for retirement of bonds of Metropolitan Playhouses. The remaining $150,000 went to the Randforce operators.

Weisman told the court that Schenck has refused to accept any salary as president of Metropolitan Playhouses. He added that under the Fox Met reorganization plan the combined salaries of all officers of the new company are not to exceed $50,000 annually.

George Skouras, questioned as to whether the value of his company's franchise with Fox Film had been enhanced by the latter's merger with Twentieth Century, replied that it depended upon the pictures which are delivered. Asked about Twentieth's reputation, he replied that some of its pictures were good and some bad. He made the same answer to inquiries concerning Radio Pictures' product.

Keith-Albee-Orpheum, which has acquired 10 per cent of Schenck's half interest in Metropolitan, receives another 10 per cent in the event Fox Theatres does not exercise its option. This would give Schenck an 80 per cent interest in the new company.

Seeks Dismissal of Suit

A motion to dismiss S. Fennimore Hoffman's suit for $50,000 damages will be made this morning by counsel for the receiver for the Fox Theatres Corp. in the Manhattan Supreme Court. Hoffman brought the suit for alleged breach of an agreement dated Sept., 1930, by which he claimed he was engaged to produce a fashion show at the Fox Brooklyn for one week, beginning Oct. 3, 1930.

Hoffman charges that the defendant allowed him to perform on Oct. 3, 1930, but that the defendant interfered with his performance and that he was unable to continue his show for that week.

Penn Sunday Film Fight Near Climax

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—With Election Day less than a week off, picture interests in Philadelphia are conducting an aggressive campaign for Sunday shows, which will appear on the ballot for referendum vote.

Virtually all theatres in town are employing "Vote Sunday Movie" trailers, all designed to point out that films have the same rights as Sunday sports and that they will not interfere with worship because the law forbids opening of any place of amusement until after 2 P. M.

Hays Organization Places Ban on G-Man Film Cycle

An end of the G-Man cycle of films is assured by agreement between the Production Code Administration and producers, it is revealed in the current issue of The Motion Picture and the Family, Hays office publication.

This restriction also applies to films that "portray the activities of American gangsters in violent conflict with the law."

The publication goes to civic leaders, teachers, Better Films Councils and others throughout the country.

The agreement was brought about after Will H. Hays had pointed out the increasing number of this type.

"It was deemed necessary," the M.P.P.D.A. publication states, "to provide guidance for the members of the Production Code Administration in handling these pictures, and the producers unanimously approved the following paragraph, to be added to the present policy of the Production Code Administration in applying the Production Code:

"'Crime stories are not to be approved when they portray the activities of American gangsters armed in violent conflict with the law or law enforcing officers.'"

Pictures in work at the time were exempted from this ruling. These films are: "Confidential" (Mascot), "King Solomon of Broadway" (Univ.), "She Couldn't Take It" (Col.), "We're Only Human" (Radio), "Mary Burns, Fugitive" (Para.),

Warner Says Koplar Asked For $600,000

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—Several attempts were made to obtain $600,000 from him by alleged representatives of Harry Koplar, who, he said, offered to withdraw the receivership suits against the St. Louis Amusement Co. and Skouras Bros. Enterprises if the money was paid, it was revealed today by Harry Warner, second defense witness and one of the five indicted film executives.

Warner was a convincing witness, never raising his voice and speaking in even tones. Several times he used his fingers and hands to demonstrate sound problems to the jury. The sincerity with which he answered the questions fired at him by former Senator James A. Reed and Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, held the jury's attention. The Warner president followed Sam B. Jeffries on the stand,

Schaefer May Take a Para. Theatre Post

Report He Will Become Circuit Partner

George J. Schaefer, vice-president and a director of Paramount Pictures, in charge of distribution, may relinquish his present duties in the near future to take over operation of and probably a partnership in a Paramount circuit, it was learned yesterday.

That Schaefer has been considering such a move was stated on good authority to be a fact, although no definite arrangements or agreement have been arrived at yet. A report, which, however, lacks confirmation, has Schaefer assuming operating charge of Paramount theatres in New England. The company's principal theatre unit there is the Mullin & Pinanski circuit, which might be augmented under Schaefer's direction later by the Olympia circuit, following its reorganization. Credence is added to this report through the fact that Schaefer obtained his early experience in the industry in the New

See Possibility of Gov't Music Rule

The possibility of Federal regulation of the organized music licensing industry through legislation believed to be ready for introduction at the next session of Congress is seen as supplanting the Government's objectives in its monopoly suit against Ascap and may lead to ultimate abandonment of the pending legal action, Motion Picture Herald states in the current issue.

The music industry itself views the recent postponement to Jan., 1936, of the resumption of trial of the Federal action, originally scheduled for Nov.

Local 306 yesterday denied that it had concluded an unsigned agreement with Skouras theatres here which would continue the union in the circuit's houses for another year at an average booth scale for the circuit of $1.49 per hour, as reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday. The DAILY's informant, a responsible Skouras official, stated that such an agreement had been reached, but that no contract with the union would be signed because of the circuit's conviction that better labor relations can be maintained if no contract is made.

Strictly the Tops

After all these years and, no doubt, late at that, this tired reviewer yesterday afternoon happened into what he views as the perfect program. Ending the suspense, if there is any, in a hurry, he tells you at the outset it ran under an hour and was made up of two Mickey Mouses, or is it Mice? and three Silly Symphonies.

"Pluto's Judgment Day," "Who Killed Cock Robin?" and "Music Land" have been reviewed, but, like the poet's brook, their charm and their enormous entertainment value run on and on.

New was "On Ice," or the latest adventures of Mickey and Minnie, Donald Duck and The Goof. They are ice skaters this time, but nothing like their ingenious pranks has been cartoonized until now.

Also new was "Three Orphan Kittens," starring in the brightest of marquee lights Blackie, Whitie and Calico in a symphony of silliness that tickled this spectator to a point where he forgot the gloom and the rain of the day and actually beamed at the stuff. Reaching a point high on a pinnacle of cleverness came the climax when one of the kittens, chasing a feather, starts a pianola going with "Kitten on the Keys" with bouncing and uproarious results which can be best appreciated by seeing the film itself.

Not once, but certainly twice and even beyond.

campaign will be waged in daily newspapers culminating with big space displays on Election eve. Circulars, form letters, personal solicitation are also being employed.

While the measure is expected to pass—and theatre men are already penciling in tentative Sunday bookings—opposition is generating strongly as the campaign draws to a close. Cardinal Dougherty, head of the Catholic diocese, who to date has never officially lifted his ban on picture theatres, imposed during the League of Decency drive, informed the Lord's Day Alliance that he was opposed to Sunday shows. Through his chancellor, Monsignor Hugh L. Lamb, the cardinal declared they would be "injurious to the cause of religion and morality."

Ministers of the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches passed resolutions calling on Warners to oppose commercial Sunday shows. It is expected that church opposition will reach a climax Sunday.

The Board of Jewish Rabbis has taken a definite stand against Sunday shows, in spite of the fact that Sunday is not the Jewish Sabbath.

The publication states that the music industry believes that still other lengthy postponements of a resumption of the Ascap trial will be made after January, with the case ultimately being abandoned by the Attorney General's office. If such proves to be the case, the Government strategy probably is to forestall increased music royalty charges to users until such time as Federal regulating legislation is enacted. This may be accomplished, it is said, with radio and exhibitor cooperation at the next session of Congress and may achieve the Government's original objectives with less difficulty than by pursuing the trial of the pending suit against Ascap.

pending efforts of RKO reorganization factors to settle or compromise the claim.

The largest of the claims to which attorneys for the RKO trustee will present exceptions today are those of Karl Hoblitzelle's Texas enterprises. There are three such claims which were allowed by Thacher for an aggregate of about $7,500,000, but subject to certain discounts. Other claims reported upon by Thacher to which exceptions will be made today are those of Criterion Advertising Co. for $300,000 and those of Gordon Burnett and Mudd & Mooney for $400,000. The Criterion claim was reduced by Thacher from about $400,000. The RKO trustee will contend that the reduction is insufficient and the claimant that it was too great. The Burnett and Mudd & Mooney claims were disallowed in toto and the claimants will contest this ruling.

The complaint sets forth that the plaintiff is the originator and copyright holder of Bank Night, which may also be designated as Savings Night, Silver Night, Cash Night and other similar names. An accounting and an injunction are asked.

Another report, likewise unconfirmed, has Schaefer taking over the operation of the Paramount Northwest theatres, of which the principal unit is the former Finkelstein & Rubin circuit, with headquarters in Minneapolis. The Paramount partnership with Hamm & Charles, under which this circuit was operated formerly, was ended on Sept. 28, and since then L. J. Ludwig and John J. Friedl have been operating the unit under home office supervision.

Schaefer's attitude is authoritatively said to be favorable toward a theatre operating arrangement. If an agreement such as is now in prospect materializes, he would resign from his present office, it is said, but at the same time continue in the Paramount family.

Schaefer is now in St. Louis at the trial of the Federal conspiracy action.

time designated by the last season contracts.

The petitioning theatres were the Broadvue, Cedarlee, Ridge and Doan. The dismissal of the Ridge case was upon the theory that its contract was for the entire 1934-35 product without titles or stars being named. The Broadvue, Cedarlee and Doan contracts, which specifically named the number two Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers picture as "Radio City Revels," were ruled by the court to be split contracts. The designation of the picture by a specified title excluded "Top Hat" because that picture was defined by a production number and release date as a 1935-36 release, it was held.

Warner Says Koplar Asked For $600,000

and he testified for about two and one-half hours. He was followed by A. D. and Charles Cella, the latter not finishing this afternoon.

After succinctly detailing the development of sound and the part Warners and Bell Laboratories played in perfecting the process, Warner related how the company became interested in the local theatre situation.

He was asked by Reed when it was that Warners started negotiations with the bondholders' committee of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central on a reorganization plan. He explained it was immediately after the Koplar suits ended in Warners' favor. Warner stated that although the company had about $4,000,000 invested locally, no attempts were made to make a reorganization bid for the three properties, "because in 1931 the Koplar suits were so numerous I couldn't think of them all."

Objects to Word

"We were accused of all kinds of things in the Koplar suits. During the term of this case," he said, "several attempts were made to get me to agree to pay $600,000 over a period of five years, $120,000 a year, for which the suits would be withdrawn.

"They were not lawsuits. It was a question of how much they could get out of us.

"After I had refused, Koplar's representatives came down to $100,000," Warner explained, "but I wouldn't pay $1 for blackmail and told them I would try the suits even if I had to go broke.

"I issued orders that under no circumstances were Warner officials to have any dealings with Koplar or anyone associated with him," the Warner president testified.

The prosecutor objected to the use of the word "extortion" by Warner, inquiring of the court, "How are we going to meet this kind of evidence?"

Hays' Name Brought In

Frederick H. Wood, associated with Reed on the Warner legal defense, said quickly, "Bring in Koplar and put him on the stand in rebuttal." Again Hardy objected, following which Federal Judge George H. Moore notified Reed he wouldn't permit detailed testimony in regard to Koplar, but would admit it only in a general way.

Despite lengthy arguments by defense counsel to keep the names of Hays office officials out of the record, Hardy was successful in cross examing Warner as to whether he had talked to Will Hays, Gabriel Hess and Charles C. Pettijohn at any time with regard to getting Paramount and RKO product in St. Louis.

Warner not only denied ever having conferred with the Hays men, but also stated he never brought up the subject with George J. Schaefer or RKO executives. He said this matter had been handled by other members of his company. The Warner president also declared he never gave an order for the filing of an intervening petition on behalf of Warners against the bondholders' reorganization plan, adding that this in all probability was handled by Abel Carey Thomas, general counsel.

Warner asserted he had a hard time to convince Spyros Skouras to install sound apparatus in the latter's St. Louis theatres and it was only after "Don Juan" had been shown at the Capitol in 1926 that Skouras decided to go for the new idea. Warner stated he had to rent the Capitol and put on the show himself to prove the possibilities of sound.

It was in August, 1933, immediately after the two Koplar suits had been decided, that he instructed Herman Starr and Thomas to negotiate actively with the bondholders' committee in the hope of salvaging some of the company's losses, Warner asserted. He was informed from time to time of the progress being made, Warner said. In September, 1933, Starr and Thomas telephoned him from St. Louis to relate the good news, that a deal had been struck except for the amount of money the company was to put up, the witness said. When advised $400,000 would be required, he approved the outlay, Warner declared. Shortly after this, he was called again and informed that the plan submitted by the bondholders' committee was different from the one agreed upon and instructions were given to continue negotiations with the hope a satisfactory deal would be reached.

Sears Called In

Sometime in February, the following year, Moe Silver, who was in charge of the Warner circuit in the west, arrived in New York and brought the report of an acceptance by the committee of a 10-year lease with F. & M., Harry C. Arthur, Allen L. Snyder and Koplar. Later this report was confirmed by Thomas, who had been in touch with Jeffries, Warner stated.

When he asked for a report on Warner pictures in St. Louis and found that the rentals were the lowest ever received by the company, Gradwell Sears was called in, he testified.

Sears told Warner he knew the St. Louis territory and he did not favor dealing with a monopoly. He suggested securing a theatre for exhibition of the company's pictures and with Starr left for St. Louis to carry out the plan. A deal was worked out for a short term lease on the Shubert-Rialto which provided for a maximum guarantee of $20,000 and which he approved, Warner stated. The reason for securing the Orpheum, the witness explained, was to have the representation in both the uptown and downtown districts which the company had before.

Warner said this point was made by Starr on March 17, 1934, as he was about to sail for Europe on important business. He said he hadn't time to go into the subject in detail, but approved the idea on the condition the necessary product could be secured. Warner added that films other than Warners were necessary because of the twin bill situation prevalent here and because "each company only makes from six to eight pictures that can stand alone for a week." The Orpheum was then leased at a maximum guarantee of $30,000.

Describes Proposals

The witness then described the proposals Warners made to the bondholders' committee on March 8, 1934, for the three theatres, all of which had been covered before by Jeffries. He admitted purchasing a number of bonds, pointing out some had been acquired before they were defaulted. Warner said the company spent $57,000 on first mortgage bonds on an average of 28 cents on the dollar, and $20,000 for second mortgage securities, on an average of 13 cents on the dollar. The witness was anxious to explain certain reasons for the purchases when Hardy objected and was sustained. Warner did not realize he was talking after the prosecutor objected and apologized, saying "If I went so far, I'm sorry, but I had to when I was accused of something ridiculous on its face."

Upon cross examination by Hardy, Warner denied ever having any intention to corner the picture market and prevent the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central from getting pictures. He vehemently denied ever making attempts to depress the bonds, saying he never sold any, but the reverse was true because he created a market by his purchases.

Jacob M. Lashly and William R. Gentry, representing RKO and Paramount, respectively, asked the witness questions relating to their clients. Warner denied he ever talked to them about the local theatre situation.

As the morning session got under way, Reed offered to introduce certain documents in connection with the Koplar receivership suits to substantiate Jeffries' testimony, but they were ruled out.

Resuming where he left off yesterday, Jeffries again denied statements attributed to Starr by Government witnesses. He testified Warners "failed on a reasonable" basis to close a deal with the bondholders for the three houses, adding, "We were honest in our propositions. They were made in good faith and although we had certain thoughts about the matter, the committee differed with us." He reviewed a lot of previous testimony under cross interrogation by Hardy and emphasized that neither he nor Warners were at loggerheads with the committee, members of which are still "our friends and not enemies."

"In Error" on Testimony

Jeffries asserted, "Even if we got the houses back on normal conditions we would have a problem paying off the $2,000,000 first mortgage bonds."

Much was made by Hardy of the testimony of Jeffries controverting that of Dysart. The local Warner counsel held that Dysart was "in error" on his testimony, that he was sincere in getting out the truth and that his memory was clear "and awfully good on certain points." He again denied Starr had called F. & M. "fly-by-nighters" in Dysart's presence. The subject of testing the witness' veracity became so heated that Reed objected to Hardy's line of questioning, declared "We haven't impugned Dysart's character. Let the Government put him on the stand if he wants to." A bench conference on this point was called and it was agreed to let the jury decide who was telling the truth.

Lashly and Gentry asked the witness questions relating to their clients so that the record would be clear as far as RKO and Paramount were concerned.

Both of the Cella brothers were reprimanded by the court for their insistence on testifying on certain questions to which Hardy objected and had been sustained.

Asked to Define "Can"

Charles Cella was asked by Wood to define the word "can" as used by Arthur in his testimony. The first Government witness had stated Starr told him Warners would take any "can" and lease it in St. Louis. The witness said he never heard the term used in connection with theatres and only found out what it means when one of his hotel managers explained it. He said the Shubert-Rialto was a first class house.

Harry Singer, who represented F. & M. in acquiring local theatres, has arrived from Chicago and will be a Warner witness. Cresson Smith is back in court after a two weeks' absence.

On the Lighter Side

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—HAROLD L. SCHILZ, one of RUSSELL HARDY'S assistants, who was fined $25 for muttering "that's a damn lie" when he misunderstood GEORGE S. LEISURE'S demand for an original memorandum written by CRESSON E. SMITH on Aug. 17, sent all the clippings of the incident in the local newspapers home to his wife. The SCHILZ domain is in a small town near Buffalo. SCHILZ became a father about six months ago and has seen his baby girl only two weeks during all that time.

Spatz-M. & S. Case Hearing Set Today

A motion for an examination before trial will be heard in the Supreme Court this morning by Justice Timothy A. Leary on the application of Jack R. Spatz in connection with a judgment for $13,000 obtained against the Greater M. & S. Circuit, Inc. The suit, alleging unlawful transfers of property and a lease, also names as defendants Knickerbocker Theatres, Inc., Clinton-Apollo Theatre Corp., Emesco Amusement Corp., Greater M. & S. Circuit, Inc., M. & S. Circuit, Inc., 98-108 Avenue A Corp., East Side Theatres, Inc., Elias Mayer, Louis Schneider, Charles Steiner and Bernard Fliashnick.

Spatz states in his affidavit that he desires to know the names and addresses of all the officers, directors, stockholders and parties who are interested in the defendant corporations. He further wishes to know the circumstances concerning the organization of Knickerbocker Theatres, Inc., and the facts on the execution and delivery of a deed dated June 26, 1934, by the 98-108 Avenue A Corp. to Knickerbocker Theatres Corp. He also asks for facts in connection with the delivery of an assignment dated June 27, 1934, by East Side Theatres, Inc., to the Clinton-Apollo Theatre Corp., also about the execution of a deed dated June 26, 1934, by the Emesco Amusement Corp. to Knickerbocker Theatres, Inc.

Seeks All Material

Spatz states that he also wishes to know whether the aforesaid transfers rendered the Greater M. & S. Circuit, Inc., and M. & S. Circuit, Inc., insolvent, and whether the transfers were made to hinder and defraud the rest of the creditors of M. & S. Circuit, Inc. He is seeking to direct the defendants to produce all material, books, papers and records in any wise pertaining to the matters upon which the examination is sought.

He explained that this action is to certify certain transfers of real property and a leasehold which occurred after he and Louis Schwartz obtained judgments in May and August of 1934 against the Greater M. & S. Circuit, Inc. Spatz charges that the Greater M. & S. Circuit, Inc., is the owner of or at least owns 98 per cent of the capital stock outstanding of the 98-108 Avenue A Corp., East Side Theatres, Inc., and the Emesco Amusement Corp.

The defendants deny all the material allegations of the complaint and set forth that the conveyances were made in good faith and for valuable considerations.

Looking 'em Over

"The Ivory Handled Gun"

(Universal)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—Buck Jones is up to his usual standard in this rough and tumble western. There is plenty of guntoting and shooting, horseback riding and hand-to-hand encounters which meet all requirements of the fastidious action seekers. Jones produced the picture himself and has as his leading lady a newcomer by the name of Charlotte Wynters. Walter Miller is again seen as the conniving villain who gets his just desserts.

The plot concerns the renewal of a feud between Jones' father and Miller with the latter taking up where his dad left off. Jones' father gives him an ivory handled gun, telling him Miller has one like it and that the man who gets both guns will forever end the long-lived hatredness between the two families.

Not prone to kill Miller without reason, the hero waits until the villain murders the girl's father, following which he attempts to rustle a herd of sheep. The Wolverine Kid, as Miller is called, almost gets away with the crime and theft, but Jones and his valiant pal fortunately prove to be one step ahead of him.

Gillmore Threatens To Quit Equity Job

Frank Gillmore, president, and Paul Dullzell, executive secretary and treasurer of Actors' Equity Ass'n., threatened yesterday to resign unless the general membership repudiated the policies of the Actors' Forum, liberal faction. Following the council meeting Tuesday, when it was decided to place the matter of appearance in WPA shows before a special membership meeting Nov. 22, Gillmore and Dullzell called the situation "fundamentally impossible."

The officers plan to retire two weeks after a definite poll of membership if the Forum wins. A national referendum may be held if the matter is not clearly settled. The Forum denied it had obtained legislation by the "stampede method" as Gillmore had charged, insisting, "Forum policies have been Equity policies."

Skouras-KAO Action Delayed for Parley

Trial of the suit brought by Skouras Amusement Corp. against Keith-Albee-Orpheum, the RKO 81st St. and Twentieth Century-Fox over an alleged breach of the Skouras franchise with the latter was postponed yesterday to Nov. 27 by Supreme Court Justice Rosenman. The delay was agreed to by all concerned in order to complete negotiations for a settlement of the action, which are now in progress.

The action is based on a contract made by Twentieth Century-Fox this season which permits the RKO 81st St. to play day and date with the Skouras operated Riverside and Nemo, competitive houses which formerly had a week's protection over the RKO house on Fox product.

Court Doubtful on Brooklyn Para. Sale

Federal Judge Robert A. Inch in Brooklyn today indicated that he might not authorize the trustees of Allied Owners Corp. to accept any of the three bids which have been offered for the Brooklyn Paramount and office building. Si Fabian on Feb. 23 last posted $10,000 with the trustees as a guarantee of good faith on his offer of $1,500,000 for the property. He offered to pay $75,000 in cash and the balance in a mortgage over a period of 20 years.

Two weeks ago when the offer came up before Judge Inch for approval Joseph J. Baker, an attorney representing Riker & Co., Brooklyn real estate operators, submitted an offer of $1,750,000, $75,000 in cash and the remainder in a mortgage over a period of 10 years. The RFC Mortgage Corp. was to supply $60,000 of the cash and to be given a first mortgage on the property. On Oct. 23, a third offer was presented by Robert B. Garvis, representing Samuel Strausberg of Brooklyn. This offer was for the same amount, but the mortgage was to run 15 years and the entire amount of the cash payment of $75,000 was to be secured from the RFC Mortgage Corp.

After lengthy arguments yesterday, Judge Inch expressed doubt that any of the offers were sufficient and did not think that the sale should take place at this time. He reserved decision on accepting any one or rejecting all of the pending bids and gave until Friday noon for any of the attorneys to submit briefs.

Para. Renews With Trendle In Motor City

Operating Solo; Leave For W. C. Patterson

An agreement which will continue George W. Trendle as Paramount's operating partner for United Detroit Theatres Corp. was reached yesterday with officials of the Paramount organization.

Willard C. Patterson, general manager of the Detroit circuit and a joint operator with Trendle, is withdrawing from the unit, leaving operations to Trendle exclusively. Patterson holds a contract with Paramount and will be reassigned to some other post at the end of a three months' vacation which he has requested and been granted, Paramount officials said yesterday. Patterson was brought into Detroit operations at the request of Trendle about two years ago, during the reorganization of the former Kunsky-Trendle circuit. With the reor-

Washington, Oct. 31.—A. T. & T. today was granted a second hearing before the Federal Communications Commission on its application for permission to lay a co-axial cable for television experiments between New York and Philadelphia.

A. T. & T. sought a reargument, charging that the commission had usurped management functions of the company in its first refusal. The commission decided to reopen the entire case.

"U" Only Objector To 2,000-Ft. Reel

Indications are that Universal will be the only major company which will not approve adoption by the industry of the proposed new 2,000-foot reel when representatives of nine distributing companies make known their attitudes on the changeover at a meeting at the Hays office tomorrow.

RKO is the only other company whose attitude remains in doubt and officials of that company indicated that despite some objections to a change Radio would probably go along with a majority. Republic Pictures is taking the same stand, while representa-

New Briefs Allowed On Big RKO Claims

Exceptions to Special Master Thomas D. Thacher's report disallowing $400,000 in claims against RKO by W. Gordon Burnett and Mudd & Mooney, based on alleged liabilities of a lease on the Ritz, Birmingham, held by RKO Southern, were heard yesterday by Federal Judge William Bondy, who granted attorneys for the claimants and the RKO trustee two weeks in which to exchange additional briefs for and against Thacher's ruling.

Hearings on exceptions to the special master's report recommending the allowance of $7,500,000 of claims of the Hoblitzelle Texas enterprises, subject to certain discounts, were postponed to a later date. The allowance of these claims in the amounts recommended by Thacher is being opposed by Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lumbard, counsel for the RKO trustee.

Short Runs, New Roadshow Angle in 'Dream' Handling

Warners are roadshowing "A Midsummer Night's Dream" along lines believed to be new in this industry, at least, by holding engagements at top prices to limited runs in all cities except New York, thereby seeking to preserve the draw of the attraction for regular first runs.

Customary practice in roadshow booking in the past has been to maintain engagements for the life of the draw and often beyond in order to build up prestige. In so doing, however, attractions often have experienced sad going when ultimately they began first run dates while subsequent runs have been known to have encountered even a keener disappointment when the one-time roadshow film eventually reached them.

Even in major cities like Philadelphia the Warner plan calls for three weeks only for the "Dream." In Hartford, the engagement at advanced prices was held to five performances with a gross of slightly over $10,000. Lansing, Grand Rapids and Flint will be held to three shows only; Akron to six; Providence to five, and Stamford, Conn.. to a like number.

The plan, it is declared, will be pursued throughout the country. When the picture reaches general distribution, accepted methods of booking will again be used. Harry M. Warner is credited with the limited run scheme.

Starr Denies Charges Made By Witnesses

Official Is Supported By Sears on Stand

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Oct. 31.—Categorical denial of alleged threats and charges attributed to him by Government witnesses was made today by Herman Starr, vice-president of Warners, and completely substantiated by Gradwell L. Sears, vice-president in charge of western and southern sales, who succeeded Starr on the stand. For three days, Sam B. Jeffries, first defense witness, repeatedly had declared the charges were untrue.

Starr, in a straightforward manner, related the various incidents which led up to Warners' decision to take over the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum, the part he played in negotiating and consummating the leases and the numerous conferences he had with members of the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central in an effort to get them

Powers Examination Sought in Note Suit

A motion for examination before trial will be made this morning in N. Y. Supreme Court before Justice Timothy A. Leary by counsel for James H. McDonald, as assignee of British International Pictures, Ltd., in a suit over a $25,000 note against Patrick A. Powers.

The request for a petition for examination before trial also asked that Powers be compelled to produce upon examination all relevant books, papers, and documents to be used to refresh his recollection. The suit arises over a note executed by Powers to the order of British International. The answer admits execution of the note, although it denies any knowledge of its assignment to McDonald, and at the same time various counter claims are set up by Powers by way of an assignment from Powers Pictures, Inc., a corporation now in bankruptcy.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

PRAISING the "Dream" no end in his "Good Morning" column in the Detroit Free Press, Malcolm W. Bingay takes his "hat off to the Warners for having done a grand job both for themselves and Shakespeare." Then, whipping himself into a state of printed self-abasement, he has this to say: "Opinions of anybody about shows are of no consequence, not even mine. In fact, I am about to advocate a law that all critics who express opinions be shot and only reporters—who will report what is actually going on—shall be sent to the theatres, movies and musical affairs." . . .

Bingay, getting deeper into his idea, then continues:

F'rinstance, let us take the current issues of my two favorite weekly smart magazines, The New Yorker and Time. Time's critic says that "A Midsummer Night's Dream" would be just grand if it were not for the poor comedy done by Cagney, Brown, Rooney, et al, in the clown parts. The New Yorker says that the marvelous clowning of Cagney, Brown, Rooney, et al are what makes the film a great hit.

In the same issue of Time, I read from its mature critic that "Porgy and Bess," the new Negro opera, is a magnificent treat, a joy forever. The equally mature and all-wise New Yorker says that it is a flop and the critic is bored to tears.

But the same New Yorker critic proclaims the new musical comedy "Jubilee" as the riot show of the year, not to be missed by mortal man, woman and child, while the critic of Time marvels that so dull, trite and stupid a show could be put together on one stage.

The trouble is that critics think their opinions are more important than the subject about which they are writing. They have an idea producers risk millions to create productions just for the purpose of permitting critics to show how clever they can be making comments.

The average New York "critic" sincerely believes that the real entertainment is not on the stage at all but in the fourth row—center aisle—and that the performance only begins when he sits down to his typewriter.

Producers whose efforts critics —New York or otherwise— praise will disagree. Producers whose efforts critics pan will applaud. And that settles practically nothing. . . .

Handsome is Twentieth Century-Fox's 39-week statement to Sept. 28. Gross income from films "and literature" running at the rate of $779,492 a week strung out over the period covered indicates a $40,533,584 gross on the year with possibilities beyond that, what with more Shirley Temples, another Will Rogers and Darryl Zanuck's first batch of personally supervised attractions and the snappy fall and early winter season in which to play them off. Things are on the up with Messrs. Kent, Schenck and Zanuck. . . .

At Dave Loew's dinner the other evening, Will H. Hays dropped a line into his address which touched on a plan to write a history of the industry one of these days, months or years. Further investigation discloses he is toying with the idea; that he may and again he may not. If he does and if the story over the years can be told in intimate detail, the reading would be fascinating, for not all that happens on the inside is known on the outside. Perhaps, it shouldn't. . . .

Leslie Howard, not Brian Aherne as this space urged, will play Romeo opposite Norma Shearer's Juliet.

This proves the extent of our influence with Irving Thalberg. . . .

Publisher Sues Fox On "January" Rights

A suit over the rights to "Captain January" was filed in Federal Court yesterday by L. C. Page & Co., Inc., Boston publishers, and Laura E. Richards, novelist of Gardiner, Me., against Fox Film Corp. and Rural Pictures Corp. The plaintiff, Page & Co., is seeking a permanent injunction to restrain the defendant from producing and exhibiting "Captain January" and also asks the court to declare invalid an agreement entered into between Laura Richards and Rural Pictures Corp.

The complaint states that Laura Richards is the author of an original novel entitled "Captain January," first published and copyrighted on April 25, 1890, and that she granted to Page & Co. the exclusive film rights. In 1915 Page & Co. and Laura Richards entered into an agreement that any money received from royalties or cash payments from the film rights were to be divided one-third to Page & Co., as publishers, and two-thirds to the author. The plaintiff goes on to say that on Oct. 8, 1923, this arrangement was modified and Page & Co. were given exclusive film rights to her books published by them and that they should pay her 45 per cent of the film earnings. The complaint further states that on Dec. 1, 1923, Page assigned to Principal Pictures Corp. all silent film rights in "Captain January." The petition further states that last August Rural purchased the talking picture rights and she assigned her interest to them on the payment of $13,333.33. The complaint avers that Principal and Rural are subsidiaries of Fox and that Rural has conveyed, or is about to convey to Fox such rights as it acquired. It is asserted neither the agreement of Aug. 28, 1935, nor the written conveyance of the same date was valid. Page asks a permanent injunction.

Ampa Tribute To Eberhardt Memory Paid

A resolution memorializing Walter Eberhardt, press representative for Erpi, who died last Sunday, was adopted by Ampa members at the organization's weekly meeting yesterday, which was dedicated to the one-time Ampa president.

The meeting followed the respectful and contemplative mood sounded by John C. Flinn, who was the only speaker. Flinn recalled having employed Eberhardt in 1923 as a press representative for Paramount, which constituted Eberhardt's introduction to the industry and paid tribute to the personal qualities which endeared Eberhardt to many in the industry. Ampa members stood for one minute in silent tribute and the meeting closed with the reading of a prayer by Rev. Otis Rice of St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

On the dais, in addition to Gordon S. White, Ampa president, and Flinn, were Hal Horne, Ed Finney, Paul Gulick, Ben Atwell and the Rev. Rice.

Resolution as Adopted

Following is the resolution adopted by the meeting:

"Whereas Walter F. Eberhardt, honored past president of the Associated M. P. Advertisers, has for many years given most generously of his best thought, his time and his effort to the service of this association and this contribution which he has made has been one of the most constructive forces in the growth and development of this association. And, whereas we feel deeply the debt of gratitude we owe him for the fine example of his life as well as for his unfailing loyalty to our association.

"Now, therefore, we the members of the Associated M. P. Advertisers, Inc., do hereby give public expression to the profound sense of great loss which we feel in his passing and we do hereby instruct the secretary to convey to Mrs. Walter F. Eberhardt our sincerest sympathy in her bereavement."

Report Ohio Trade Is Best Since 1931

COLUMBUS, Oct. 31.—Conditions in Ohio are better than at any time since 1931, Frances Perkins, U. S. Secretary of Labor, told a Kent University audience. Manufacturing payrolls were 22 per cent greater in August than for the corresponding month of last year. Farm incomes increased seven per cent over July, and five per cent over August, 1934, while bank debits showed a gain of 16 per cent for the first eight months of this year, compared with a similar period of last year.

Another heartening statement was released by Samuel H. Squire, State Superintendent of Banks. An analysis based on reports of 465 state-supervised banks showed total resources of $1,243,355,780 on Sept. 30, an increase of $21,583,808 over June of this year, and $118,027,705 greater than in October, 1934.

Savings deposits on Sept. 30 totaled $529,897,593, an increase of $6,514,206 from June, 1935, and $46,035,971 from Oct., 1934.

Texas Leads in New Houses, States Cole

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31.—More theatres have reopened and more new ones have been constructed in Texas in recent months than in any other state in the union, declares Col. H. A. Cole, who arrived here today with R. Z. Glass, vice-president of the Texas Allied unit.

Glass owns three Dallas suburban houses. Also accompanying them was Charles Hefley, owner of two Dallas suburbans. All three said they would listen to the trial today and fly back tomorrow.

Glass recently filed suit against the 25-cent contract admission clause which was ruled out of the jurisdiction of the Federal Court at Dallas.

Cole is trying to interest special Assistant Attorney General Russell G. Hardy in possible Federal anti-trust actions in Texas, he says.

Hal's Been Writing

When Hal Horne dots his "i's" they're irregular. Some of the dots are commas, some sharp, pointed dashes, some half curved.

That shows what happens when a man doesn't use a typewriter.

would reduce its claims against General Theatres about $3,500,000.

Under the agreement, Hastings said Amerex Holding Corp., formerly Chase Securities Corp., would deliver to the receiver General Theatres debentures in the principal amount of $1,500,000. Percival E. Jackson, representing General Theatres stockholders controlling a small number of bonds, objected to the agreement. Ralph S. Harris was among the counsel for Hastings, and insisted the proposed agreement would be of great benefit to the estate of the receivership. Meyer Kraushaar, New York attorney, appearing for the Sabath Congressional Committee, asked Justice Layton to adjourn the hearing for six weeks in order that he might report the findings of his committee to the court. The court refused the request. The hearing on a plan for reorganization of the corporation will be held in Chancery Court on Nov. 13.

Lesser Loses Move

Jacob J. Lesser lost a move in Federal court yesterday to secure a reargument on his claim for $37,000 in connection with his work on the Paramount Publix reorganization. Lesser was not allowed anything by Judge Alfred C. Coxe in his sweeping cut of fees.

Yesterday Judge Coxe denied a petition for reargument, saying: "I don't think it will serve any useful purpose to hear a reargument of this application. It was not held that an allowance could not be granted to an attorney for individual security holders, but merely that this particular service did not warrant any payment from the general estate. The opinion is particularly clear on that point."

Spain Threatens to Ban Paramount Films

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 31.—Minister of War Robles announced today all Paramount films would be barred from Spain, beginning on Monday, unless the Marlene Dietrich picture, "The Devil Is A Woman," is withdrawn from world circulation and the negative destroyed. Dr. Lucia, minister of public works and communications, declared, "The measure the Government will adopt will depend on the company's action."

Starr Denies Charges Made By Witnesses

to accept Warners' reorganization plan. He also recounted what in his opinion took place at a Chicago meeting with Spyros Skouras and Clarence M. Turley, and attended by Sears, and gave a detailed account of the March 6, 1934 conference in his office with Harry C. Arthur, Jack A. Partington, Abel Carey Thomas and Sears in regard to the so-called "war" in St. Louis. The witness also described the session in his office with J. M. Ulmer, Cleveland attorney, on Aug. 15, 1933. On cross examination he briefly discussed a session held in Russell Hardy's office in Washington in connection with the Warner purchases of bonds in the open market.

The fifth defense witness stated he was 37 and owned 500 shares of Warner common and that the only other interest he had in the company was his loyalty to it. In a review of his history, Starr asserted he left high school in 1919 and after a few unimportant jobs was hired by Harry M. Warner a year later as bookkeeper, being named a vice-president in 1929.

Starr and Sears Delegated

After discussing the four Warner proposals for reorganization of the three local properties, Starr said he had been called in by the president of the company, who had been informed by Thomas of the Snyder-Koplar-F. & M. lease, and told to go to St. Louis and see if he could straighten out the situation with the bondholders. He was accompanied by Sears and first stopped off at Chicago where a spirited session took place with Skouras and Turley.

From there, the two Warner executives came directly to St. Louis where they met Jeffries, who introduced them to Thomas N. Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee. Starr explained, he testified, that Skouras had lost $50,000 in the operation of the three theatres on an annual rental of $175,000. Starr said he tried to convince Dysart of the value of Warners operating the houses because of the production and distribution affiliation. Dysart said, Starr declared, F. & M. could get all the product they wanted, but it was pointed out to him that anyone affiliated with Harry Koplar would not get Warner pictures because the company would not do business with him. The session ended with Starr agreeing to submit another bid in writing.

Looked Over Theatres

When he saw what the situation was, Starr stated, he looked over the available theatres to be rented. With Sears he visited the Empress and Shubert-Rialto, deciding on the latter. A deal was closed that night with Cella & Tate with the understanding Charles Tate, out of town at the time, would approve the lease. This was done and both men returned to New York.

Several days after his arrival in the east, Clayton Bond, film buyer for the Warner circuit, drew his attention to the dual feature situation and the fact the company was not represented with first run uptown and downtown houses as it had been before. A recommendation was then made to take a second theatre, following which Starr said he conferred with Warner and the move was approved on condition sufficient product could be secured. A long distance telephone call was made to Charles Tate to lease the Orpheum. Tate promised Starr first chance, the witness said.

Bond then suggested obtaining RKO and Paramount product. The Warner film buyer was successful in getting an RKO commitment, but unable to reach George Schaefer or Neil Agnew. He turned the Paramount situation over to Starr in view of his leaving on a vacation in a few days.

Hardy Protests

Starr said he managed to reach Schaefer on the telephone and made an appointment for later that day. The witness stated he was told of a Skouras commitment which had until Aug. 1, 1934, to run. After another conversation with Schaefer, Starr testified he learned Paramount product was available and a deal was virtually set without prices or conditions. It was after this the Orpheum lease was consummated.

David Levinson, attorney for the bondholders, at one of the committee meetings accused Starr of "welching" on a deal for the three theatres, the witness stated, because of refusal to accept a lease. Starr said the committee "welched" when instead of submitting to Warners a plan of reorganization, it produced a memorandum.

During his cross examination of Starr, the prosecutor met with objections by former Senator James A. Reed and Frederick H. Wood, Warner attorneys, on the same question. Hardy told the court, "I think I ought to be permitted to take on one lawyer at a time. I can't get a question over when both of them butt right in." The court advised defense counsel that the practice should stop, recalling previous admonitions.

No session will be held Saturday or Monday, it was announced by Federal Judge George H. Moore. Some of the jurors said they had made previous appointments for Saturday. On Monday, Judge Moore has another case which he is anxious to discharge from the calendar. Sultriness again resulted in many of the jurors, lawyers and spectators removing jackets and vests. Many defense witnesses called in from out of town appeared in court. It is understood all will not be called upon to testify.

Among the charges attributed to him and denied by Starr were that he told Skouras there was going to be a nasty fight in St. Louis and that he, Skouras, would be in the middle; that he described F. & M. as "fly-by-nighters"; that Warners would build; that F. & M. and Arthur were the "lambs to be slaughtered"; that he would take over any "can" and run duals at a dime; that Arthur's deal with the bondholders was "a sucker deal."

Remarks Explained

Others were that Warners would "break those Greeks," referring to the Skourases; that the company would destroy F. & M. and seven or eight other lessees in order to get the three houses; that Arthur would have to be sacrificed to teach the bondholders a lesson; that Warners would go to court and try to stop the bondholders' plan; that Warners were prepared to spend considerable money to protect their investment; that no one else but Warners would be permitted to operate the theatres; that threats were made at a meeting in Joseph Grand's office; that the St. Louis situation was discussed with Ulmer; that Warners would corner product and prevent anyone else from getting it; and that it was too bad for F. & M.

Starr explained some of the remarks which he is said to have made and pointed out that the opposite prevailed. He testified that when Skouras had advised him of a 15-year extension secured on bonds he guaranteed personally, Starr asked about the guarantee of Skouras Bros. Enterprises. When Skouras told him nothing had been done, the Warner executive held everyone had been taken care of but Warners. As to berating the Skourases by alleged names, Starr said Thomas told him these exhibitors were tough business men, but he liked George Skouras a lot.

Gentry Examines Starr

Starr admitted he might have said the bondholders' group were trying to perpetuate their jobs by shifting control of the voting trustees from Warners to the committee. He also added that when Arthur came to his office on March 6, the F. & M. executive offered to take over the Rialto or give Warners 50 per cent of the lease on the three theatres. Both were turned down because of Koplar's connection. Starr also denied Warners had a "technique" for dealing with similar situations and that he knew of no appeal made by Warners on Judge Davis' decision to accept the bondholders' plan in favor of the company's. Incidentally, the Circuit Court of Appeals today decided against Warners on this.

William R. Gentry, Paramount counsel, briefly examined Starr in relation to the Schaefer conferences, bringing out the fact that at no time did RKO or its representatives take part.

Sears was on the stand for about an hour. All but two minutes were taken up by Wood on direct examination. Hardy only interrogated the sixth witness on two points. They were his stock and bond interest in Warners. Sears said he owned $20,000 worth of bonds, but "not a quarter's worth of stock."

The Warner vice-president related his part in the company's acquisition of the two theatres, how Warner had notified him of the low rental situation here and his suggestion to take over a theatre as a local show-window. His testimony tallied with that of Starr. He told of the various conferences which he attended in connection with the St. Louis situation and gave the same reasons as Starr and Jeffries for Warners' motives for re-entering the local exhibition field on its own.

Sears on Stand

At intervals, Hardy objected to the testimony of the witness. Wood claimed Hardy's interruptions were for the purpose of giving the jury a haphazard picture of the events. Sears took it all good naturedly.

Sears stated he is 38 and was "mustered" out of the Army when the Armistice was signed. His answer to whether he told Arthur the latter was among the "lambs to be slaughtered" was, "Why do I want to slaughter anyone? I was there to sell pictures." He added that Arthur credited the remark to Thomas and Starr and "probably forgot me, so threw it into my lap."

About 700 features are distributed annually, Sears stated under oath. He also gave as some of his reasons for not wanting to do business with F. & M. and the five houses operated by the circuit, the fact that Warners would not be able to get holdover dates when certain pictures warranted and there would not be proper exploitation. He said a deal with F. & M. would also have been dangerous because of Koplar's affiliation.

Cella Resumes

Cella, who resumed where he left off yesterday, told of the various relations he had with Starr, Sears and Jeffries in connection with leasing of the two houses. He denied there had been any change in prices at both theatres since reopened by Warners. He testified that the admissions were scaled at 25 cents and 50 cents and said he would bring in his records to prove it. This was brought in to prove a price war never existed.

Hardy cross examined the witness and said to the court, "I'm prepared to show the witness's memory is not good and he can't recall all the business he has been in." The prosecutor interrogated him on "bucket shop" activities, which were denied, as well as his ever having been arrested.

Otto Boole, Paramount Detroit exchange manager, and Ralph C. LiBeau, Midwest district manager, conferred with Schaefer between court sessions.

Leto Hill, in charge of operations for St. Louis Amusement Co., is scheduled to be the next witness.

Spyros Skouras and his attorney, William T. Powers, arrived from New York yesterday and returned the same night without visiting the court.

The Lighter Side

St. Louis, Oct. 31.—Upon his arrival from Kansas City, the first thing Eddie Golden did was to visit the court room where the trial is in session. He brought along with him Nat Steinberg and Barney Rosential, local Republic franchise holders, who paid an infrequent visit.

It is expected that the trial will move over to the new $4,500,000 Federal court building within the next week or 10 days. Every piece of furniture is tagged for the process and most of the library is already ensconced in the new home.

Harry M. Warner carries about a half dozen post card pictures of his grandchild. Every time he gets angry, he says, he takes out the pictures, looks them over and immediately changes his disposition. And does he love that child! A chubby youngster and full of the devil, the pictures indicate.

George J. Schaefer was welcomed back to the court room Monday with many handshakes by the numerous defendants, witnesses, lawyers and wisecrackers. He spent most of the day reading the voluminous pages of his testimony which had been recorded during his absence. He says he's set to stay now until the trial is over.

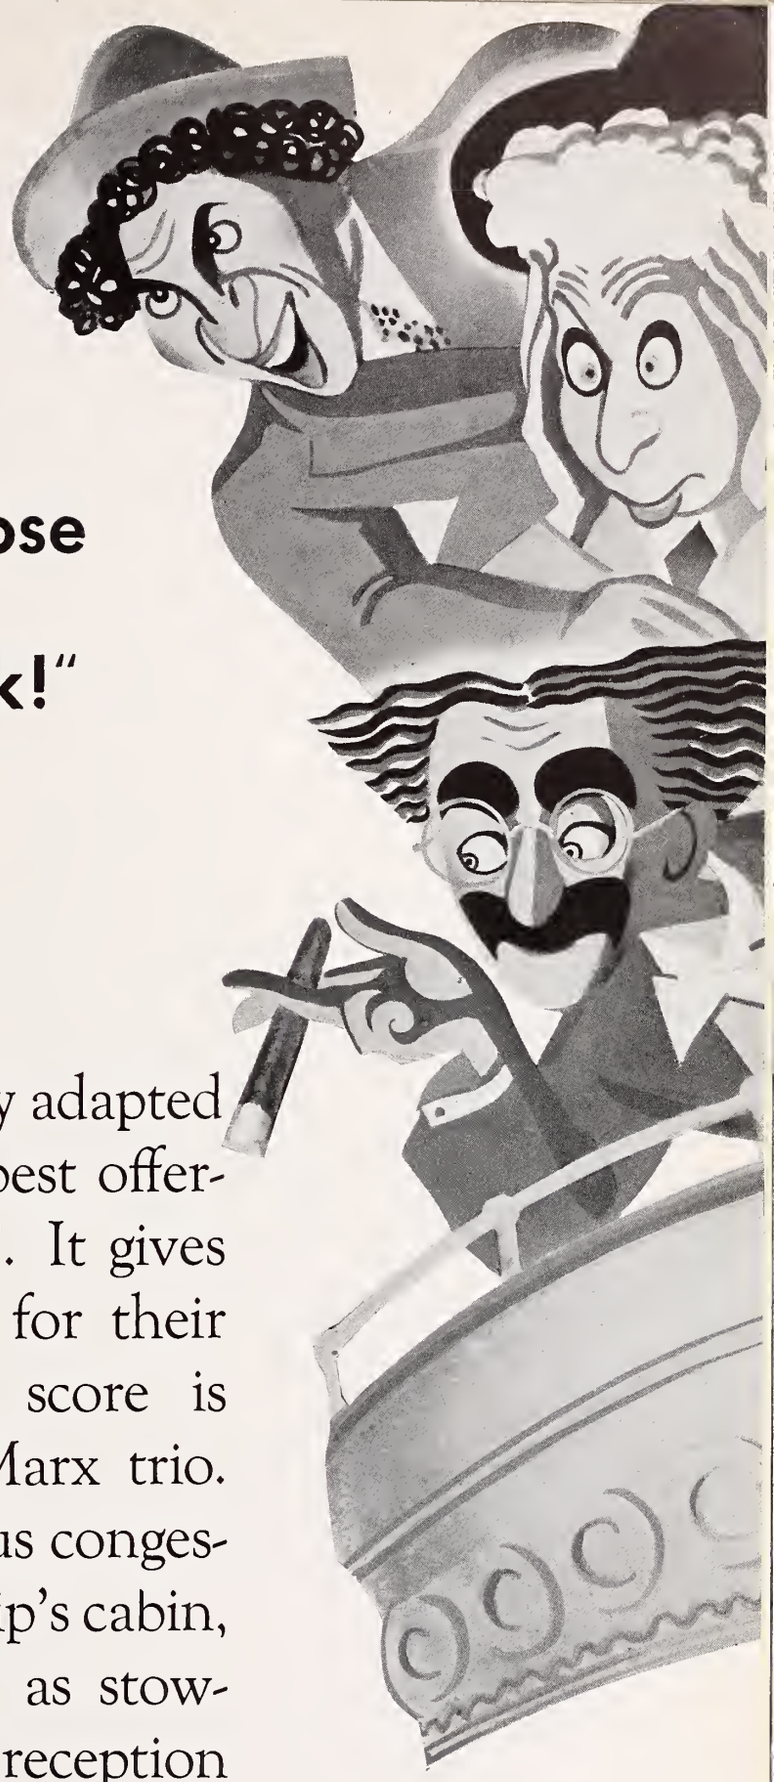
5 CRITICS DIE LAUGHING!

Thank God, they've recovered now! They tell their amazing experience in the following pages. When you read these criticisms, you will agree that America will soon see the most important comedy attraction of years!



(Next page begins it!)

"Such lovely language!"

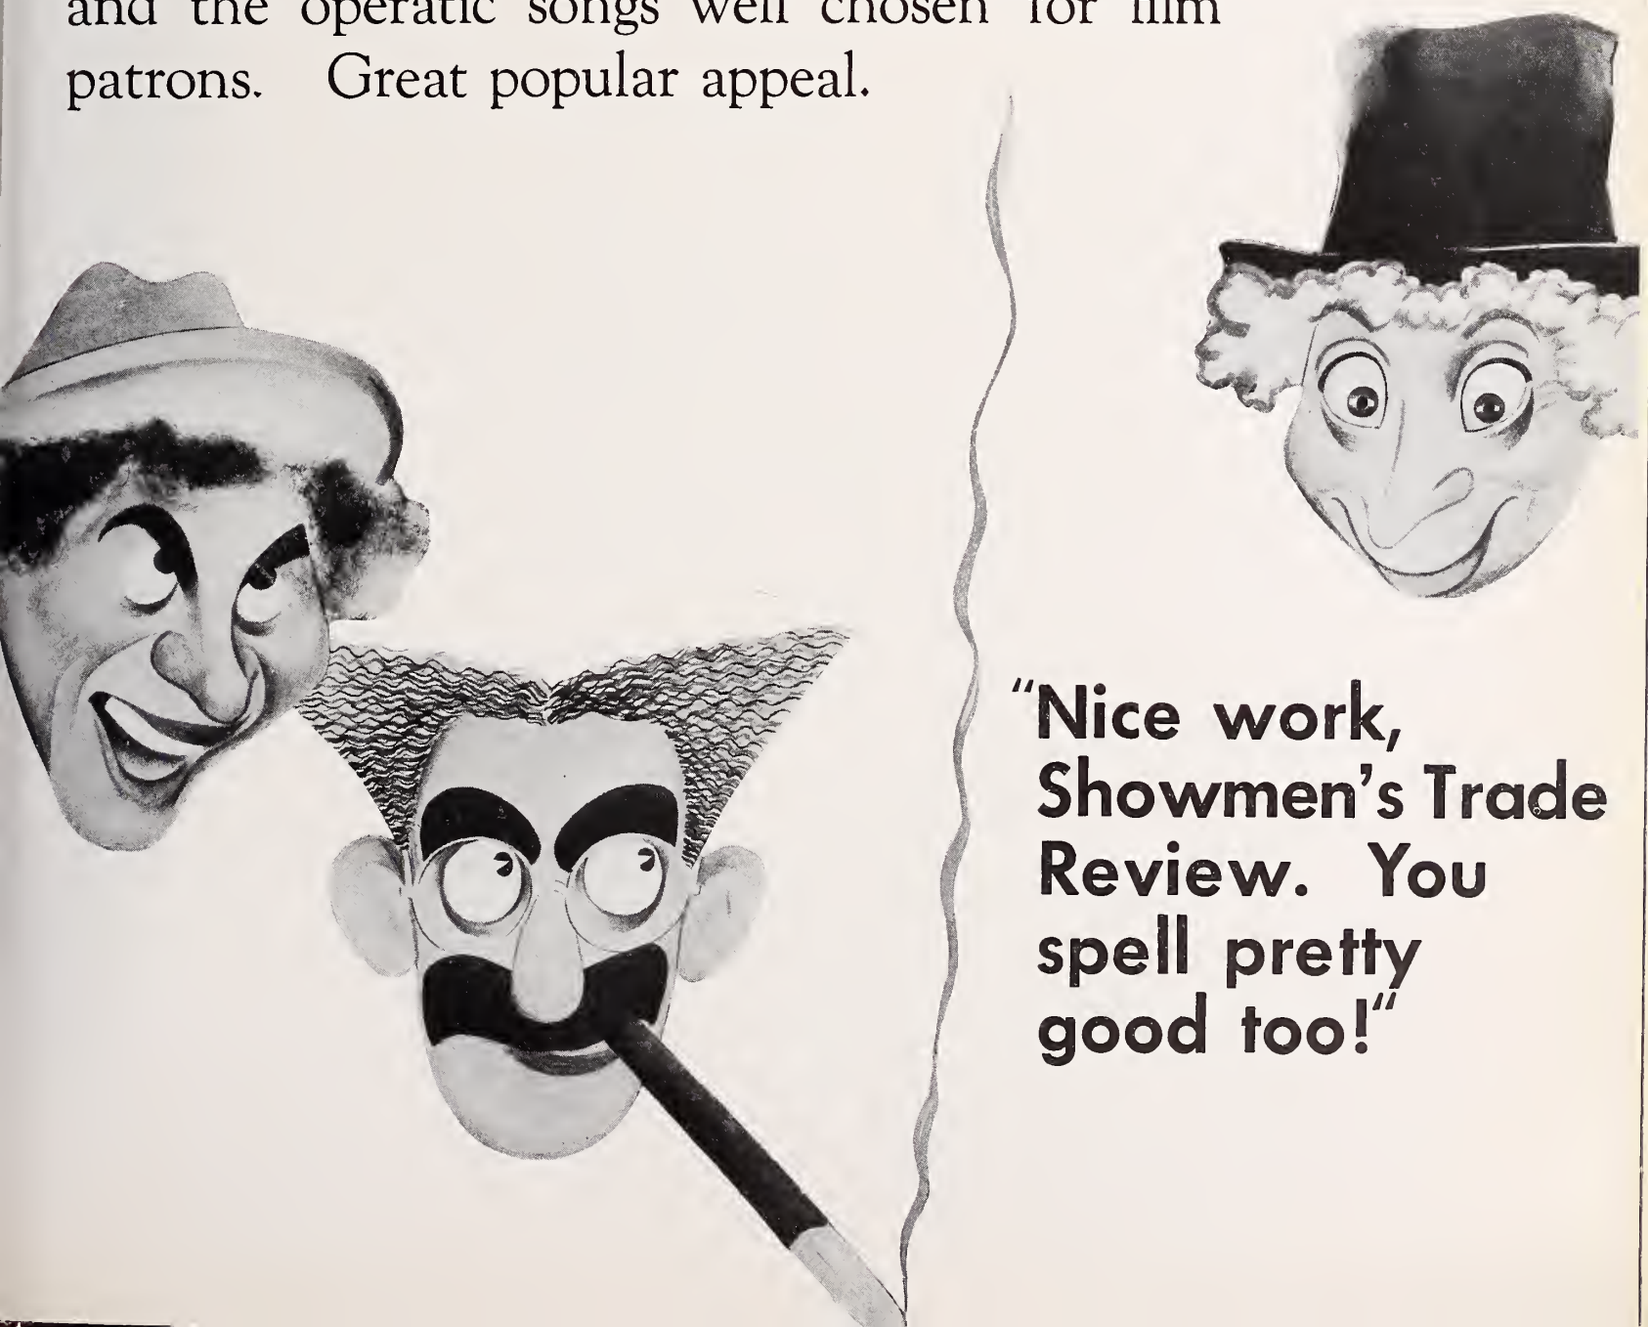
Hollywood Reporter says:

"Night at the Opera" a hit! Marxes hilariously funny! Production and music rate extra high. The Marxian recipe for a cacklefest, with song, rings the bell again with top-notch punch features. There is a grand opera backstage story of exceptional excellence, constantly punctuated by ribaldries of the three comics. The average of good laughs is so high and the musical features so delightful that there is bang-up entertainment for all tastes. M-G-M has given the picture a spectacularly excellent production and spread itself on a swell fiesta on the lower deck of a liner and on a backstage chase while the opera is under way that is as fresh and hilarious as the screen has seen in many a day. The many-sided Harpo is the hero of this episode, doing a flying Tarzan among the rigging in the flies with uproarious results. The opus is high-marked also by Allan Jones, whose singing, personality and good looks make him real box-office. Besides his operatic numbers from "Il Trovatore" he sings two dandy ballads, "Cosi-Cosa," by Kaper, Jurmann and Ned Washington, delivered at the fiesta with the Marx trio accompanying, and "Alone," by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, with his singing team-mate, Kitty Carlisle. In the supporting cast there isn't a weak spot. Miss Carlisle is all that one could ask. Walter King himself is a real tenor. The Marx Brothers, will certainly build themselves into great favor as a result of this fine Thalberg offering.

"How those Variety boys talk!"

Daily Variety says:

Musical farce has been brilliantly adapted to the Marx brothers as their best offering in "A Night at the Opera". It gives the comic trio plenty leeway for their distinctive cavortings. Laugh score is equally divided between the Marx trio. Gags reel leisurely from hilarious congestion scene in Groucho's little ship's cabin, through sea dunking escapade as stowaways break from brig to public reception for phoney aviator heros, topping in wild Tarzanish climax at the opera where the patrons of romance snatch the menacing tenor off the stage to give Jones and Miss Carlisle their chance at fame. Finale is a pip of wild action back stage.



"Film Daily hates it. Ha-ha!"

Film Daily says:

A merry box-office number. Big laugh riot. A laugh fest with all types of audiences. George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind have supplied the comedians with excellent material. One of the most amusing sequences is on board ship,with Chico and Harpo and Allan Jones, stowaways, and manicurists, waiters and others falling over each other in Groucho's small room. Another laugh provoking scene finds Robert Emmett O'Connor, a detective, hunting the stowaways in Groucho's two-room New York apartment, only to find several beds disappearing under his nose. Of course, the biggest riot of laughs is in the final sequence, with the Marxes wrecking the opera. Chico and Harpo play baseball in the orchestra pit and then Harpo gets into the wings, on and off the ground, causing the scenery to fall in front and back of Walter King, who is singing. Direction, Aces.

Showmen's Trade Review says:

Here is a riot of laughter. In addition to the Marx Brothers, the supporting cast is exceedingly talented and their performances are sure to win applause from any audience. The tempo is fast and furious with plenty of new gags and clever wise cracks all the way through. This young singer, Allan Jones, is the hit of the show with his fine singing and pleasing personality. He looks like a new star for M-G-M. The musical background is excellent and the operatic songs well chosen for film patrons. Great popular appeal.

"Nice work, Showmen's Trade Review. You spell pretty good too!"

Motion Picture Daily says:

Great swells of laughter, rippled by windy gusts of giggles at the Marx Brothers, roll through this musical farce. The big moments audiences will repeat around the fireside are scenes in a two-by-four cabin bulging with almost half of the passenger list before a gag ends a maniacal duel of Harpo and a moth which flutters from the flowing beard of an air hero; the masquerade of the Marxes in those same beards ravished from sleeping air heroes and Chico's explanation to a welcoming committee of why the fliers took a boat; a rip-roaring finale at an opera performance with Groucho pursuing a rich widow all over the house, and Harpo going Tarzan trapezing in the flies as the backdrops change behind baffled singers. Tie the roof on tight when this one opens.

"Pay attention to what Motion Picture Daily says!"

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"One Way Ticket"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31.—Departing radically from formula in theme and locale, this improbable dramatic romance is unique in its conception of screen entertainment.

The initial action is set in a penitentiary. Peggy Conklin, the daughter of guard captain Walter Connolly, falls in love with convict Lloyd Nolan. The realistic prison atmosphere, accenting the suspense of unorthodox love in this grim locale, has the girl becoming the innocent but not entirely unaware accessory to the convict's escape. Scenes in a co-ed school and later in an idyllic mountain hideout add to the danger of menaced romance of the now married pair. Moving to the big city the girl works while her husband hides and endeavors, while sympathetic with his ambition to be free, to convince him that he must pay the price of his crime to effect moral regeneration. Trapped in their hideout the girl shoots Nolan to prevent further crime. Nolan, taken back to jail, is solaced that his years in jail will be made happy by his wife's promise to wait.

Name values, not too impressive to the character of the story, plus capable performances, are the dominating commercial asset. The serious note of the story is made potent by the work of the supporting cast, principally Gloria Shea, Nana Bryant and Thurston Hall. Contrasting comedy is handled by Willie Fung and Edith Fellows.

Herbert Biberman's direction endows the yarn with grim but human realism. The story by Ethel Turner was adapted by Vincent Lawrence and Joseph Anthony, with the screen play by Oliver H. P. Garrett and Grover Jones.

Intensive selling of the story value, particularly in houses catering to the family trade, is necessary.

Production Code Seal No. 1,624. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'em Over

"Red Army Days"

(Amkino)

Produced by Lenfilm, in Russia, this new Soviet importation, in pattern with those that have gone before, takes another phase of the Russia that is, and glorifies it for the world to see. In this instance, it is the war tank division of the Red Army which has its moment before the cameras. Woven in is something of a romance, but subordinated to the major thesis, that the Red Army is ready at all times to defend Russia's borders, and the enemy had better beware.

It would seem that the romantic aspect is added merely in conformity to what is generally understood to be the important "he and she" element of a story—or motion picture. The few superimposed subtitle translations of dialogue seem to stress the might of the Russian army rather more than anything else.

The picture's only selling value in this country would seem to be in those situations, metropolitan usually, where there is something of a distinct sympathy for Russia. For others the film will mean nothing, it being otherwise undistinguished as a production.

No production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Moonlight and Melody"

(Educational)

A musical comedy short subject, which has considerable in the way of entertainment. Featured are Buster West and Tom Patricola, for the comedy element, while the entertainment, of the stage variety, in the setting of a musical comedy, has Lucille Page, Rita Rio, and Johnny Johnson and his Hotel Commodore orchestra. West marries Miss Page over the objections of the owner of the theatre, which provides opportunity for the stage entertainment and the laughs. Production Code Seal No. 0625. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"Beautiful Banff"

(FitzPatrick-M-G-M)

Some magnificent shots in Technicolor have been obtained for this subject. A view of Banff from the mountains, snow-capped peaks, "mounties," mountain climbing, reflections of a glacier in Lake Louise and other scenes make it an eye-filling subject. The running comment doesn't add anything to its entertainment content, but the singing of two numbers by a feminine voice lends interest. Very much worth while. Production Code Seal No. 0649. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"The Little Dutch Plate"

(Vitaphone)

A color cartoon that has little originality, this effort makes fair program filler. The ancient story of the villain foreclosing on the mortgage, this time in a Dutch setting on porcelain utensils, replete with the buzz saw episode and everything including the last minute rescue by the hero puts this piece in the ordinary class. Production Code Seal No. 1252. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"West Indies Cruise"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

One of the excellent travel subjects in the Magic Carpet of Movietone series, this takes the screen audience among the islands of the West Indies, to Nassau in particular. Natives at work and play, the architecture of an older day, still standing, and some of the characteristically beautiful scenery of the islands highlight the subject. Production Code Seal No. 0543. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Tunnel" Held at Roxy

"Transatlantic Tunnel" starts a second week at the Roxy today. The stage show is also being held over. The picture is expected to gross $45,000 in its first week.

Bijou to Krellberg

Sherman S. Krellberg has taken over the Bijou on West 45th St. between Broadway and 8th Ave., and, effective Nov. 11, will inaugurate a policy of principally foreign pictures.

Washington's High "Goose" And Big Show

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The fifth anniversary of a policy was celebrated last week and the public reacted to the tune of $22,000 as the Earle presented "The Goose and the Gander" and a sumptuous stage show headed by Paul Ash. House average is $18,400.

Extending one day the run of "The Last Days of Pompeii," making eight in all, RKO-Keith's topped a week's par of $10,600 to take $12,000.

Loew's Fox showed an upward spurt last week, but observers feel that the $20,600 take was not due so much to "It's in the Air" as it was to Major Bowes' amateurs on the stage. The gross was $300 under the average.

"Barbary" on Pink Ticket in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—"Barbary Coast" is playing at the United Artists under a "pink ticket" ban. The picture is the first to get a pink slip in many months.

"Anna Karenina," which preceded the Goldwyn production, was slated for a pink tag, but a final ruling of the censor board changed the order.

Ministers in several churches, according to reports, last Sunday told their congregations that the picture was on the churches' banned list. "Last Days of Pompeii," now showing at the Palace, was publicly given an okay by the ministry, an unusual procedure.

Frisco Hands All Busy

Production Up; 37 Features in Work

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31.—Hitting its stride following a slack spell, production rose last week. Thirty-seven features and three shorts were in work, seven more features and one less short than the preceding week.

Paramount continued to hold the top spot in feature production with eight in work. Columbia had two features shooting, four being prepared for the cameras and five being edited. Fox had four, three and three; Goldwyn, one, zero and one; M-G-M, six, two and 10; Paramount, eight, two and 11; Radio, three, one and three; Roach, one, zero and zero; Universal, three, one and one; Warners, six, one and 11; independents, three, two and zero.

Short subject production varied slightly. Columbia had one shooting, two preparing and three in the cutting room. M-G-M, one, two and four; Radio, zero, one and seven; Roach, onc, one and three; Universal, zero, one and zero; independents, zero, one and zero.

Mexican Row Aiding Coast Independents

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31.—Independent film exchanges here have been realizing a nice profit through short bookings in towns across the border in Mexico. Following the tax levied by President Cardenas of $75 per kilo on American film, major exchanges have almost ceased shipping film to Mexico City for distribution. No tax is levied for films in the country for less than 72 hours, so the independent exchanges have been rushing prints in for short engagements in the open market.

N. E. Group Hits Booking

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Block booking and blind selling, a somnolent issue during recent months so far as the public has been concerned, again got into headlines as the New England Council of Federated Church Women, meeting here, went on record as opposed to these trade practices. The Pettengill Bill was endorsed.

State Dep't. Aids Para. in Spanish Row

Will Await Ruling Upon Dietrich Picture

The State Department at Washington yesterday interceded in the threatened banning of Paramount pictures by Spain as a result of alleged objectionable material contained in the Marlene Dietrich picture, "The Devil Is a Woman."

It was reported that advices looking to a settlement of the situation were cabled by the State Department to the American Embassy at Madrid yesterday and will be taken up with Spanish Government officials today by Ambassador Claude G. Bowers. Definite action is expected this week-end as Spanish officialdom is reported as having set Monday as a deadline by which Paramount has been instructed either to withdraw the offending picture from world circulation and destroy the prints or risk confiscation of its films now being exhibited in Spain and the banning there of its future releases.

Paramount is understood to have withdrawn from the controversy after

Tax Reduction Is Proposed in Spain

MADRID, Spain, Nov. 1.—Minister of Finance Chapaprieta has presented to the Cortes a decree, effective Jan. 1, calling for a reduction from seven and one-half to four per cent of the gross turnover tax on films, and to 1.5 per cent on films made in Spain.

The decree is considered a victory for the Camara Defensa Cinematografica. The measure, if passed by Parliament, is expected to save distributors thousands of dollars in taxes.

Action Is Delayed On 2,000-Ft. Reel

A meeting of distributor representatives scheduled for yesterday to reveal major company attitudes toward the proposed adoption of a standard 2,000-foot reel was postponed indefinitely to await formal decisions from RKO, Universal, Paramount and Republic. The remaining five large companies have already expressed themselves as favoring the changeover.

RKO, Paramount and Republic are said to be prepared to go along with a majority decision. Universal probably will veto a changeover.

Warners and Para. Finish Their Cases

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—Warners and Paramount completed presentation of their cases today, each calling three witnesses, as the fifth week of the anti-trust trial was brought to a close. The session was the liveliest yet held and marked by a spirited argument between Federal Judge George H. Moore and Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney. The latter subjected George J. Schaefer to a protracted memory test.

Warners finished its presentation at 11:45 o'clock, Paramount concluded at 4:50 o'clock. Counsel for RKO will open and close Tuesday when the trial will be resumed after a three-day holiday. Ned. E. Depinet, presi-

Ohio Playdate Suit To Await Wisconsin

CINCINNATI, Nov. 1.—RKO will not urge hearing of a suit against the State of Ohio to test the validity of the law, effective July 16, prohibiting designated playdates, until definite advice is received on the outcome of a temporary injunction suit involving similar action, filed in Wisconsin, according to Paxton & Seasongood, local counsel for RKO.

Meanwhile, defendants have agreed to take no action to try to enforce the law, which Attorney General John W. Bricker declared unconstitutional, and which went into effect automatically without Gov. Davey's signature.

Depositions have been taken in New York.

Sentence Suspended On Lottery Charge

The Winthrop which was found guilty on Oct. 24 of conducting a lottery in staging "Farmer Miller's Kentucky Derby," received a suspended sentence yesterday in Special Sessions. This case has been described by the theatre's attorneys as a test case for chance games in the city. An appeal is pending in the Appellate Division.

Zukor Wins Appeal On His Income Tax

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Deficiency taxes of $207,580 assessed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue against the 1931 income of Adolph Zukor today were disposed of by the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals in a decision holding that compensation addition to Zukor's salary from Paramount Publix for 1929 was not turned over to him until 1932 and therefore should not be taxed in his 1931 account.

Under his contract with Paramount, the board found, Zukor was to receive $2,500 a week and seven and one-half per cent of the net earnings of the corporation. The salary item was not involved in the controversy. The contract provided that the additional compensation was to be held by the trustees "until Dec. 31, two years subsequent to the expiration of such calendar year."

The practice, however, was not to turn the compensation over to Zukor until after the end of the second succeeding year.

Zukor's compensation, additional to his salary, consisted for 1928 of $7.73 in cash and 4,597 shares of stock with a fair market value on Dec. 31, 1928, of $52.726 per share, but on January 2, 1931, when it was turned over to

Last Para. Receiver Report Is Ordered

A joint and final accounting of their proceedings as receivers and trustees of Paramount Publix was ordered of Charles D. Hilles, Eugene W. Leake, Charles E. Richardson, Adolph Zukor and Louis J. Horowitz by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe yesterday.

The judge's order limits the expenses for the preparation of the accountings to $5,000 and excepts reports only on the uncompleted claims and causes of action reserved to Hilles and Leake for further action.

Standard Capital, C. R. Rogers Make 3-Month Pact with Laemmle

A three-months' option to purchase Universal Pictures Corp. was given yesterday to Standard Capital Corp. and a second financing group, dominated by Charles R. Rogers, which head Universal Prod., Inc., newly chartered company, which in turn is an integral part of the new financing arranged for Universal Pictures.

It was emphasized again in high Universal quarters that loyal employees who have "delivered," are in no wise to be adversely affected by the new alignment.

The new financing for Universal, which came following many months of speculation relative to the eventual setup in Universal, was formally closed at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Universal Prod., Inc., was chartered in Dover, Del., on Thursday, with 100 shares of no par capital stock. This company will produce for the parent Universal company, and Rogers, who has several more pictures to make for Paramount on his contract with that company, will be the producing head for all pictures made by the new company.

It is reported that the new financing ranges between $750,000 and $1,000,000.

Standard Capital is headed by J. Cheever Cowdin, president, and Lawrence Fox.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1. — Standard Capital will not be represented in Universal personnel, it was said by Willard McKay, Universal attorney, following an all-day meeting between Standard and studio officials.

Western Pictures To Finance Indies

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—Western Pictures Corp., which finances Harry Sherman Productions, is understood entering independent financing on a large scale. Nicholas Ludington, Jr., is the coast representative of Western, and William L. Fiske is Eastern representative. Ludington has opened offices at the Prudential Studios. With J. Cheever Cowdin, president of Standard Capital, and Lawrence Fox, also a Standard executive, acting as silent partners in Western, it is said here that there is planned a large development of the financing of independents with major release.

Goldwyn's Unit May Have New Year Lull

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—There is a strong possibility that the Samuel Goldwyn unit at United Artists will close down for from one to two months shortly after the first of the year.

The Eddie Cantor film, "Shoot the Chutes," will be completed about Dec. 1. "The Children's Hour" is expected to start about Nov. 15. Scripts are not yet complete on "Come and Get It," "Navy Born" and "Dodsworth," and it seems likely that there will be a lull in production before these three get under way.

Goldwyn may go east about Jan. 1 for a stay.

Studios Place Ban Upon Polo Playing

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—Polo playing by contract players during production is to be barred by major studios as a result of the death of Gordon Westcott.

Justice Timothy A. Leary in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday dismissed the complaint in the $50,000 damage suit brought by S. Fennimore Hoffman against Fox Theatres Corp. The action was based on an alleged agreement of September, 1930, by which Hoffman was engaged to produce a fashion show at the Fox Brooklyn for one week beginning Oct. 3. He charged that the performance was interrupted by the defendant and that as a result he was damaged to the amount of $50,000.

The complaint was dismissed on the default of Hoffman in failing to oppose the motion made by counsel for the receiver of the defendant.

dent of the company, will be the first witness. Whether other RKO witnesses will be placed on the stand to testify will be determined over the week-end. Schaefer, Neil F. Agnew, William Schneider, Louis Phillips and Irving Cohen left by plane tonight for New York, the last two named to return Monday night. Col. Harry A. Cole, R. Z. Glass and Charles Hefley, scheduled to return by plane to Dallas today, postponed the trip until tomorrow, due to bad flying weather.

There is a possibility Clayton Bond and Moe Silver may be called upon to testify after RKO gets through. Both men have been told to stand by for this purpose.

Court and Hardy Argue

Judge Moore's argument with Hardy arose when the latter insisted on discussing certain records after the court had ruled them out. Charles Cella, a Warner witness, had produced documents given him by Warners since the company took over operation of the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto. Frederick H. Wood asked that the testimony and records of the latter theatre be stricken out and Judge Moore held this should be done. The question of the Orpheum data then came up and the court ruled they could be admitted only as to admission prices and not as to daily and weekly grosses.

Following this order, Hardy objected to the introduction of his own exhibits unless they could be submitted for all purposes, which the court again refused, stating a ruling had been handed down. The prosecutor persisted in voicing his objections, asserting, "Your Honor, I've heard myself accused day after day of trying to keep evidence from the jury. Now after the court first held I could introduce this material, it changes its mind and rules them out."

"There is no use in further discussing this, Mr. Hardy, I don't want to hear any more about them. Proceed with the case. I've ruled on it," answered Judge Moore.

A Memory Test

The lengthy memory test to which Schaefer was subject concerned the Paramount executive's recollection as to who was present and what was said and done at a Code Authority meeting in New York on March 12, 1934. Two attempts by Samuel W. Fordyce to cut the cross examination short were of no avail.

Hardy told the court he was "testing the veracity and memory of the witness in regard to the sale of Paramount product to Warners for St. Louis." Schaefer had been thoroughly interrogated on his three-week vacation in the Roney Plaza Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla., and about conversations he had with Spyros Skouras and Herman Starr in connection with Paramount's commitments in this city. The witness was pretty sure of what happened in all three instances, but could not recall the Campi business of that day.

He explained, "The Code Authority and its meetings are not important to me. I'm under indictment here and I'm pretty careful what I say. This trial is important to me and I know what I told those people." He denied he talked to any Authority member about the St. Louis situation.

The prosecutor was given a complete surprise by Paramount attorneys when William R. Gentry put A. A. Tyson, auditor at the Roney Plaza, on the stand to testify. During the examination of Schaefer by Fordyce, Hardy objected to the introduction of a registration card at the hotel, canceled checks and room service checks for the period from Feb. 17 to March 9, 1934. Judge Moore ruled in favor of Hardy when the latter contended they were not the best evidence and if the defense wanted to bring in the evidence "why not get a hotel man here."

Schaefer on Stand

Paramount produced the man, who made a special trip to bring the data here. Schaefer, who said he is 47, was on the stand for two and a half hours. He gave an account of his schooling and stated he first started to work at 17, when he said he joined an oil refining company as stenographer. He said he joined Paramount in the fall of 1920 as salesman. Categorical denials to all charges in the indictment of Jan. 11, 1935, were made by the Paramount officer in addition to all statements attributed to him in Harry C. Arthur's testimony. Schaefer said he had no telephone conversation with Arthur between Mar. 6 and Mar. 10, 1934, nor before April 1.

The conference referred to was the one in which Arthur testified he told Schaefer, "You told me you weren't going to sell Warners in St. Louis." The Paramount vice-president also denied having remarked, "They put the pressure on us because they threatened to upset our Detroit reorganization plans and this circuit is being carried on the books for $14,000,000."

Schaefer said new leasing arrangements with the landlords of the Detroit houses had been completed in 1933 and this group of theatres has been on the books at no higher than $5,000,000. He later testified he had been in Detroit on March 13, 1934, accompanied by Frank Freeman and Sam Dembow, for a conference with George Trendle on the theatre situation in that town.

The first Paramount witness explained his first conference with Arthur and Jack Partington was held in his office on April 1, 1934, when he told them of the Warner commitment entered into on March 28.

He said Arthur had been anxious to get Paramount pictures for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, but he had had to turn the offer down. Schaefer further testified he had told Arthur that if he wanted the company's pictures so badly he should have come to him before signing the lease to see whether Paramount product was available. He admitted trying to help Arthur out with Warners. Unable to contact Harry M. Warner, who was out of the city at the time, Schaefer said he talked to Starr, who told him nothing could be done.

The witness then related the telephone conversation he had with John S. Leahy, attorney for Allen L. Snyder, on April 7. He admitted Leahy had asked him about Paramount product and when the St. Louis lawyer was advised of the Warner commitment, Schaefer was told he was "violating the law" and that this would be taken up with the Department of Justice. The Paramount executive told Leahy he could do what he wanted about it, that Paramount attorneys were never consulted about the St. Louis situation, nor anyone else in his or any other company.

Explains Deals

Initial conferences and correspondence with Warner executives began on March 20 or 21 when he was approached by Starr, Schaefer stated. The meeting was followed by letters between the witness, Abel Carey Thomas and Lester Kreiger. Schaefer explained it was not uncommon, but customary, to make deals in March for the ensuing season, holding that this year hundreds of contracts were signed. The Warner tentative deal was turned over to Agnew, who worked out the arrangement. However, Paramount first got a release from a two-year franchise with Skouras before anything was done, the witness said.

Schaefer testified the Warner deal was "good business." He also gave the same reason for the contract with F. & M. for "Belle of the Nineties" at the Missouri. When Hardy asked him whether it was the fact that the Warner circuit had bought Paramount product and the Paramount circuit had taken Warner films had anything to do with the St. Louis sale, he admitted it had. He also brought out that Warners had been the first to make a bid. The prosecutor pointed out Warners had not had the three houses at the time. Schaefer answered, "Neither did F. & M."

Neither Paramount nor Schaefer ever had bought any bonds in the local theatres, the witness asserted, and the product deal with Warners had not been made for the purpose of "cornering the market"; the St. Louis situation had never been discussed by him with Adolph Zukor, Dembow, Kohn, A. W. Smith or Albert Warner. The witness injected a bit of humor into the cross-examination when he said the reason he recalled clearly having breakfast and arising from bed in the Book-Cadillac, on March 13 was because "it was a customary and natural thing" with him. Fordyce also drew a laugh when he declared to the court, "Someone has stolen my papers," only to learn a few minutes later that they had been on the court stenographer's desk.

Tyson's testimony took about five miutes, during which he admitted the authenticity of exhibits bearing the Roney-Plaza trade mark.

Agnew Testifies

Agnew was the next and last witness. He was on the stand for about a half hour. Like Schaefer, he denied the indictment charges and other allegations. He said he never had told Arthur Warners would probably turn the Paramount deal down because of the stiff prices asked; that he was Santa Claus, or that he ever had disparaged F. & M. or threatened anyone. He explained the reason for turning down Arthur on second runs was because it was felt that if the product played at the Missouri, the St. Louis Amusement Co. and other subsequent houses would be affected. Some of the circuit's houses had been sold on percentage and the revenue would have been reduced if such a scale had been made, he said. He admitted he had told Arthur Warners had until Aug. 15 to sign and that he could not sell away until that date. Silver and Bond negotiated the contract for Warners, he said.

The Paramount sales manager stated he had never told Arthur that Paramount had received $71,000 for its product in 1933. Instead, he testified, the company got $140,000. Hardy, on cross-examination, asked Agnew about three questions. The witness showed signs of nervousness throughout the interrogation.

Denies Allegations

After Cella, Warners put on the stand Miles Alben, home office attorney, who had attended several meetings on reorganization plans for the three theatres. He was examined by Wood on charges allegedly made by Starr at sessions with J. M. Ulmer, Cleveland lawyer; Thomas N. Dysart and Joseph Grand. He emphatically denied all allegations. Hardy asked him one question. That was how long he had been with Warners. He answered, "Since 1929."

Arthur Simpson of the legal firm of Jeffries, Simpson & Plummer, likewise said he had never heard Starr make any threats or charges at meetings in the Grand office on April 5, 1934, and Dysart's office on June 6.

George L. Weigand, treasurer of the St. Louis Amusement Co., was the last Warner witness. He testified to a list of pictures which had played eight first runs since Aug. 15, 1932, to Jan. 10, 1935. There was a total of 422, he said, shown at the Ambassador, Missouri, Fox, State, Grand Central, St. Louis, Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum. The witness said the information had been obtained from ads in Sunday papers.

making known its views to the State Department and will abide by whatever results from the official consultations at Madrid. The company asserts that it has not been informed on what Spain regarded as objectionable in the picture. Dispatches from Madrid said that there was general public protest throughout the country of a scene in which a Civil Guard is said to be portrayed as intoxicated.

It was surmised here that screenings of the picture would be held for responsible Spanish officials and action in accordance with their later suggestions would probably be taken. An industry representative said that Spanish officials in authority have not seen the picture and ascribed the protests to public agitation in Spain.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Happiness C. O. D."

(Chesterfield)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—By giving human touches to a story about the spendthrift children who reform and help their father lift the mortgage on the old homestead, Director Charles Lamont has fashioned a picture which should be acceptable average entertainment.

Donald Meek, as the father who has mortgaged his house to pay the bills of his extravagant children, Irene Ware, William Bakewell and Frank Coghlan, Jr., arouses sympathy and plays the role with the proper amount of wistfulness. Maude Eburne, playing the children's aunt, who has taken the place of their dead mother in the household, brings comedy to the character and also adds pathos at the right moments. The love elements of the story, which first team Bakewell with Lona Andre and later with Polly Ann Young, and pair Miss Ware with Malcolm McGregor, are nicely handled, as is the comedy romance of Miss Eburne and Robert MacKenzie as the bashful suitor who has courted her for years. Coghlan, as the youngest son, shows nice comedy sense in his role and looks like a good bet for the future.

Robert Ellis and Helen Logan, who wrote the screen play, have done a good job, and George Batcheller's production is always in good taste. As homespun entertainment the picture should amply satisfy the smaller spots.

Production Code Seal No. 1,030. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

Looking 'em Over

"Turn of the Tide"

(British National)

LONDON, Oct. 26.—First production of the millionaire-backed British National Films, this certainly provides a refreshing contrast, in the important matter of background, to the average picture made in England or America. The whole of the action takes place in a small fishing village on the Yorkshire coast and both dramatically and pictorially the sea plays an overwhelmingly important part in it. The camera work is excellent in honest-to-goodness storm scenes and in episodes of a lifeboat's salvage of a stranded steamer.

The story is slight with the love interest subsidiary to, and arising from, a feud between an old-established fishing clan and a family of rival fishers from another district. There is almost "documentary" conviction in the characterization of the fishermen and in the picture of a simple community, in which the senior member is opposed to progress, represented by the newcomers' use of motor vessels. He is converted by the logic of events, the village gets a motor trawler and celebrates a wedding.

It would be better audience material if the love story were thrown in rather sharper detail, but there is real sincerity in the picture's detail and the acting is simple and convincing. Certainly it provides a genuine picture of England and of English life, even if drama is, in the conventional sense, lacking.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G." ALLAN

Plan Free Auto Films

General Motors Corp. will stage sound picture programs free of charge on Broadway during the period of the Auto Show, Nov. 2 to 9. The free programs will be given in a specially prepared auditorium on the street level of the General Motors Bldg., fronting on Broadway from 57th to 58th Sts.

"Dream" Run Extended

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—Warner Brothers have decided to hold over "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which will do practically capacity business in its first 11 performances, for another week at the Nixon. The nights have been virtual sell-outs all week, with the matinees building steadily.

Open Anti-Trust Quiz

Taking of testimony in the anti-trust action instituted in Federal Court at Newark by Le Dirk Amusement Co. against Warners, Fox, Paramount and RKO subsidiaries, was begun yesterday with Louis Nizer, attorney for the defendants interrogating Don Jacox, Warners' New Jersey manager. The testimony will be resumed Nov. 15.

F. D. Sets Releases

First Division has set three features and three shorts for November release. The features are: "Murder at Glen Athol," "Dance Band" and "Lady in Scarlet." The shorts are: "Mediterranean Songs," "Craters of the Moon" and "Newslaughs."

Pittsburgh Pushing Sunday Show Drive

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—A vigorous last-minute campaign has been instituted here by circuit chiefs in order to combat propaganda of the Lord's Day Alliance against the Sunday show referendum at the polls Tuesday. More than 250,000 one-sheets are being sent out all over the territory, house-to-house canvasses are being conducted by the film men in order to get an accurate check on sentiment and the screens are showing a series of shorts made by stars on the coast.

Opponents are concentrating chiefly in the small towns.

Expect Quick End To Mexico Dispute

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—It is expected here that the film import tax controversy will be settled quickly as a result of the meeting next week of the mixed committee representing the industry and the Government. It is said sufficient pictures have been contracted for with independent American, British, French and German producers to keep theatres open.

Start New Coast Union

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—The National Association of Cinema Craftsmen, union which dissolved a month ago, is being reorganized under the leadership of Hal Smith, of I.A.T.S.E. Local 695. The organization, now holding weekly secret meetings, is understood laying the foundation for affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

Eleanor Hunt Signed

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—George Hirliman has signed Eleanor Hunt to play opposite Conrad Nagel in his series of eight mysteries for Pacific Prod. The first is "Yellow Cargo," an original by Roger Whately.

Momand, Loew Seeking Trial In N. Y. Court

Coxe Studying Damages In Paramount Case

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—Efforts will be made by George S. Ryan, local attorney for E. M. Loew of this city and A. B. Momand of Oklahoma, to have the anti-trust suits brought by the two against Paramount tried before a Federal judge and jury in New York in the near future, instead of having the cases heard by a special master, it was learned here.

The two exhibitor actions seek an aggregate of approximately $10,000,000 in triple damages. Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe of the Southern District of New York, however, has reserved the right to decide whether or not the suits may be for triple damages or only single damages, as this phase of the two actions is based on disputed claims in the amount of the triple damages filed by the plaintiffs against Paramount in the company's bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings, over which Judge Coxe has jurisdiction. Special Master John E. Joyce, who heard these claims, ruled

MPTOA May Hold No Annual Meeting

Indications are that M.P.T.O.A. will hold no annual convention in 1936, substituting instead a series of board of directors and executive committee meetings, it was learned on Saturday. This is believed to mean that Ed Kuykendall will continue as president of the organization for another year, at least.

Invitations for the 1937 convention of the organization are being received already, with San Francisco in the van. Kuykendall returns to his Columbus, Miss., home about Nov. 20

New St. Louis Tax Aimed at Theatres

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 3.—Theatres are again the target of a bill introduced in the Board of Aldermen. The measure calls for a one-cent tax on tickets running from 25 to 50 cents; two cents, from 51 cents to $1; five cents, from $1.01 to $2; 10 cents, from $2.01 to $3; 15 cents, from $3.01 to $4, and 20 cents, from $4.01 up.

The measure also would make standing room unlawful. The M. P. T. O., headed by Fred Wehrenberg, will oppose the measure.

Circuit Tries Each Theatre On Dual Bills

Twelve Back to Singles; Others May Change

The Loew circuit, which already has swung 12 of its theatres in the metropolitan area from doubles to singles the big half of each week does not propose ending its research into twin bills there, but will change the policies of other houses if the results of a study of individual theatres, ordered from district managers and now under way, indicate such a switch is advisable.

The plan is to submit every Loew house to solo analysis which, in effect, will take the Loew chain, for this policy problem at least, out of the classification of a circuit operation and give it, in effect, separate treatment.

Houses which have gone back to single features are these: Lexington, Ziegfeld, 72nd St., 83rd St., and Sheridan in Manhattan; Pitkin, Kameo and Kings, Brooklyn; the White Plains. Mount Vernon, New Rochelle and the Prospect, Flushing.

Duals Spread Among Pittsburgh Houses

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—Double features are now being played in three first runs downtown, the Warner, Fulton and Alvin. Until a month ago only the Warner had duals.

The Fulton and Alvin are using two features only when one feature doesn't look strong enough to hold up alone. Since this has been true for several weeks now, the policies are practically permanent.

With the Pitt showing three features at 20-cent top and the Variety displaying both burlesque and pictures at 30 cents, competition has become keener than it has been in years.

Ready to Go

Hollywood, Nov. 3. — Its financing deal with Standard Capital and a financial group represented by Charles R. Rogers now set, Universal will immediately fix budgets on the next batch of important pictures on its schedule and start active production.

In the group are "Sutter's Gold," "Showboat" and "Spinster's Dinner."

Willard S. McKay, company lawyer who has been here on the deal, is on his way to New York by air.

Paramount Circuit Agreements Set

Agreements were arrived at on Saturday by which Karl Hoblitzelle and A. H. Blank will continue as operating partners for Paramount of the circuits which they now head.

Details of the new arrangements, including the length of time for which the new operating agreements will run, remain to be set, but are expected to be completed within the next few days. Within the same period, details of the new operating agreement between Paramount and George Trendle for United Detroit Theatres Corp., which went into its final stages last Thursday with an agreement that

Stars Seek Purvis To Oppose Rackets

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—A movement is under way among film stars to have Melvin Purvis, former Chicago G-Man chief, comes here as head of a proposed M. P. Protective League designed for the protection of film players against racketeers. Jack LaRue, a recent victim, is behind the movement.

LaRue has wired a proposition to Purvis and has established headquarters at the Goldwyn Studio.

Defense Finishes with RKO Tomorrow

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 3.—With RKO scheduled to complete the joint defense case on Tuesday, Judge George H. Moore is expected to turn the anti-trust indictment charges over to the jury within the next 10 days, according to a consensus of legal opinion here.

Warners and Paramount finished their presentations on Friday when the court adjourned until Nov. 5. Nine witnesses altogether testified on behalf of Warners and three for Paramount. Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Dist. Corp. and one of the five executives indicted, will testify Tuesday and it is likely Jules Levy and Cresson E. Smith may also be placed on the stand for a second time.

The nine Warner witnesses included

"Tunnel" Broadway Leader at $41,700

"Transatlantic Tunnel" was outstanding in its first week at the Roxy. The take ran up to $41,700 and the feature was held over.

Elsewhere grosses went into the doldrums, due in part to the bad weather of the last half of the week. "Feather in Her Hat," Columbia feature, was extremely weak at the Music Hall on a take of $55,000.

"Rendezvous," at the Capitol, took $36,400. "Shipmates Forever," in the second week at the Strand, reached $16,007. "Last Days of Pompeii" collapsed at $8,500 in its second week at the Center. "Dr. Socrates" and "Here's to Romance" garnered $8,000 at the Palace.

Bishops to Discuss Legion of Decency

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A report on the progress of the Legion of Decency and motion pictures is expected to be discussed by high officials of the Catholic Church at the annual meeting of bishops here on Nov. 13-14 for consideration of church problems. Indications are the Legion report will approve the work of the industry in improving the screen and find the producers are offering numerous films of exceptional character.

It is also understood that the report, however, will recommend that the Legion be kept alive.

October Grosses Fall Off From Late September Peak

October grosses in 30 key cities ran slightly lower than the high point reached during late September, but held to a fairly steady level. For the week ending Oct. 17-18 the total with 178 theatres reporting was $1,563,750. The following week the total, with 180 theatres, was $1,534,575.

Both of these totals are lower than for the week ending Oct. 3-4 when the total, for 178 theatres, was $1,572,310.

The high point of the current season was reached Sept. 26-27 when, with only 164 houses reporting, the total reached $1,655,050.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

NATIONALISM, running high in Spain as well as elsewhere, continues to place hurdles in the path of American pictures abroad and makes progress in production difficult in this country to boot. The Spanish incident swings around "The Devil Is a Woman" to which exception, by Madrid despatches, has been taken because one scene depicts a member of the Civil Guards in high fettle. In other words, drunk. It seems that the Civil Guard either does not fall on its face or, if it does, the awful truth must be kept from a palpitating world. Spain's escutcheon must not be sullied. . .

That, however, is not the point. Knowing full well that the American industry is international in its operations, foreign governments, reaching far beyond their own borders within which their authority cannot be successfully combatted, cleverly enough extend their demands into territory where they have no say and tell American producers offending material must be routed out of all countries to keep national pride on an even keel. . . .

The blow on the jaw which this gives Hollywood is as substantial as it is obvious. Dave Selznick had difficulty with the Mexican Government over "Viva Villa" and was compelled to compromise with a pallid tag for the picture which depicted honey and sunshine below the Rio Grande and some sort of a jellyfish title which explained that, out of all which went before, a new, a happier and a more contented Mexico was born. Sol Lesser and Upton Sinclair had an identical experience with Eisenstein's pictorial indictment of the same country in "Thunder Over Mexico." . . .

Currently, Paramount is in a stew over Humphrey Cobb's "Paths of Glory" which deflates the French war machine during the World War and tells the story of how a division was sacrificed in a futile attempt on a fortified German hill to assure for the French commander an additional decoration. Irving Thalberg has his troubles with the Turkish Government over "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh"; the wearers of the fez, it appears, are extremely sensitive over their record of atrocities inflicted on the Armenians. . . .

Reaching out, as usual, into the realms of striking and vital books and plays, the industry here thus finds itself blocked in the desire to get away from fluff and Pollyanna and to inject iron into its celluloid. This department has had this unfortunate situation on its mind for some time, but, aside from pointing up its injustices, has arrived at no solution. If producing a "Musa Dagh" or a "Paths of Glory" as their authors wrote them meant a ban against them only in the countries about which they deal, the situation might not be hopeless. But these nations, outstepping their rights, threaten to extend such bans to exhibition in this country. No major company can dare risk finding its product completely closed out because of a playdate here. That stymies them. It also stymies the ambitions of Hollywood and much of the future progress of today and tomorrow. . . .

Navy Comes to Rescue

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—The Universal company, making the Frank Merriwell serial, stirred up the U. S. Navy while on location off San Pedro. The company was on a barge shooting a fire scene. Smoke pots were burning, and the flag was flying upside down, an international distress signal. Navy aviators flying over the barge could not see the cameras and reported the ship in distress. When a destroyer steamed over to offer assistance, however, the camera crew was sighted, and it sailed away again.

Theatre Issues Paper

GRAND JUNCTION, Col., Nov. 3.—A four-page weekly newspaper is being published by the Mesa. The theatre management claimed that it was not getting an even break with the opposition house in advertising space in the local paper.

The sheet contains advertising, a film column, and serial story. B. V. Warren, manager for Westland, is editor.

Cooperate on Toy Drive

WILMINGTON, Nov. 3. — Eleven managers will cooperate with the Bureau of Fire in a Christmas toy program that results annually in a one-day collection of 15,000 toys for needy children. The following are on the program committee: A. Joseph DeFiore, Park; Roscoe R. Drissel, Loew's Parkway; Morton Levine, Warner Grand, and A. J. Belair, Rialto. The committee was appointed at a conference in the office of Mayor Walter W. Bacon.

Cincy Club Uses Extras

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—The Cincinnati Cine Club, organized several months ago to produce pictures here, has issued a call for approximately 40 extras for filming a garden scene at Castle Farm, surburban night club. The sequence will be part of the first feature length sound picture, "First Option," made by the company, and will be shown Dec. 3, at the Taft, downtown house, which plays attractions of various forms sporadically.

Open Bidding Sought To Solve Clearance

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—Elmer C. Rhoden indicated he would ask distributors by registered mail to renegotiate Fox Midwest contracts and to open bidding to all local houses on an equal basis for the new season's product, E. Rolsky, president of the I.T.O., declared after his organization, its legal counsel, and Rhoden had conferred Thursday and Friday on the local clearance situation.

Independents, said Rolsky, had pointed out they have not been offered pictures on any basis. Rhoden then invited conferences, following announced plans of the I.T.O. to take its fight on protection into court. Rhoden is insisting upon prior run protection among equally priced theatres whether he or independents get it, but Fox Midwest will not pay the highest rentals and get only day and date bookings, it was indicated by Rhoden, who implies this is the only action he is willing to take. He has declined to consider the clearance plan proposed by independents or any other clearance on an admission price basis.

Independents do not want protection between independents and circuits, but Rhoden's offer now changes the situation according to Rolsky, who will confer with the I.T.O. further and hold an association meeting Tuesday to determine its course.

Hamlin Takes Check For National Claim

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—Payment offered Lee H. Hamlin by National Theatres Corp. on some unsecured claims against one of the bankrupt properties the latter acquired in Federal district court here has been accepted. The checks had been held in escrow.

This does not affect the suit of General Theatres Equipment bondholders, of which Hamlin is one, in which they are seeking to impose a lien on the properties, among them Fox Midwest, Fox Rocky Mountain, etc., for which National Theatres was the successful bidder in a bankruptcy sale here.

Judge Albert L. Reeves has not yet passed on the GTE suit.

RCA Nine-Month Net Up

Increased earnings of RCA for the first nine months of this year brought the net, after expenses, depreciation, interest and taxes, to $2,801,123. This is equivalent after dividend requirements on the seven per cent preferred stock, to $1.95 a share on the 767,275 shares of no-par preferred B.

This compares with a net of $2,177,770 for the first nine months of last year.

"OUR GANG FOLLIES of 1936"

SPANKY McFARLAND is the best M.C. you ever saw!

Jack Harrower in the Film Daily says: A wow!...A riot! This special short should wow 'em wherever the Our Gang aggregation are known and loved. And that's practically everywhere!

Motion Picture Daily says: Hal Roach has produced a swell singing, dancing musical in two reels, using the talents of his famous gang to the utmost for entertainment and laughs. An unusual entertainment, it should get unusual box-office response.

Hollywood Reporter says: Hal Roach introduces an innovation by putting his Our Gang youngsters in a musical short—"Our Gang Follies of 1936." Previewed yesterday, the picture is 18 minutes of laughs.

Daily Variety says: Sure fire! First musical short featuring Our Gang players is an ambitious undertaking, providing 18 minutes of solid entertainment. Spanky MacFarland not only is producer, but sings his own bally, introducing a number of specialty acts. Will click on any program!

Louis Sobol in Evening Journal says: A bow to Hal Roach for unearthing another set of amazingly precocious child stars for his new series of Our Gang pics—the current one at the Capitol is a howl from start to finish.

Variety (Weekly) says: Good enough for marquee playup! Packs a lot of laughs...with a burlesque of the Floradora sextet that brings the show to a screaming finish.

N.Y. Daily Mirror says: A musical revue, impudently satirizing the adult screen musicals and zealously using Hal Roach's usual troupe of talented infant wonders. It's a cute little feature, with laughs, amazing juvenile talent and jaunty melodies.

Jury May Get Case Within Next 10 Days

Sam B. Jeffries, Harry M. Warner, A. D. and Charles Cella, Herman Starr, Gradwell L. Sears, Miles Alben, Arthur Simpson and George Weigand, in that order. This company's presentation took four and a half days.

Paramount put on the stand George J. Schaefer, A. A. Tyson and Neil F. Agnew.

It is likely counsel for Warners may call additional witnesses when RKO finishes. Frederick H. Wood reserved this right when he turned over the proceedings to Samuel W. Fordyce, Paramount attorney, on Friday. Moe Silver and Clayton Bond have been ordered to stand by in the event they are needed. Harry Singer, Ed Dubinsky and a handful of others who had been notified by Warner counsel to be ready are patiently waiting around for a call. A checkup of the testimony was made over the weekend to determine if this will be necessary.

2,700 Pages

Up to the last session, the testimony of 35 defense and prosecution witnesses covered 2,700 pages. There are about 50 exhibits.

As soon as the defense announces "we rest," rebuttal will be started by the Government. It is probable two new witnesses may be called, but Russell Hardy is not sure at the moment whether they will be required. Defense attorneys are also expected to call rebuttal witnesses.

This case may also find sur-rebuttals, or arguments after the presentation of rebuttal, provided Judge Moore allows them. However, this is not unexpected.

Following rebuttal, several days are expected to be consumed by both sides on summations which will officially close the case. Immediately after the criminal case is decided, the Government will insist that the equity hearing go on as scheduled. This has to do with the seeking of a restraining order with the same defendants involved.

All defense witnesses who have testified in the past week have made blanket denials of the alleged threats and charges attributed to Starr, Sears and Abel Carey Thomas. With few exceptions, every Government witness declared the statements were made.

Make Complete Denial

A complete denial of the indictment charges also were made by witnesses for the defense. The gist of the combined testimony was that Warners leased the Orpheum and the Shubert Rialto as their show windows here because they could not get together with the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central on what was presumed to be a fair and equitable plan of reorganization; that the theatres were acquired lawfully and that there had not been any collusion between Paramount, RKO and themselves in effectuating any product arrangements.

On the Lighter Side

St. Louis, Nov. 3.—Some of the exchange managers are wondering how Ben B. Reingold of Fox managed to testify without his usual cussing exercise.

During her brief stay in town, Doris Warner Le Roy spent her time shopping. She was accompanied by Gwen Heller Lang a former Warner home office publicity employe. Neither put in an appearance at the court.

H. M. Warner and Herman Starr have educated Moe Silver to the economic practice of cutting cigars in half during court sessions.

Depinet received a letter the other day from Thomas N. Dysart, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, asking him to join that organization. The RKO head is consulting his lawyers on whether he can introduce this missive as an exhibit.

Ned E. Depinet and Col. Bill Mallard take to golf diversion over the weekend. There's no accounting as yet of the new born patches on the links they played Sunday.

Depinet is always flanked by Mallard and Leisure at the RKO lawyers' table, while Warner usually sits next to Sam B. Jeffries.

Miles Alben of the Warner home office legal staff always manages to sit next to Starr in court.

Warner never reads the trade papers in the morning. He prefers to look them over after court adjourns for the day. You can take his word for it, he reads them religiously and thoroughly.

Spanish Producers Gain, Report Shows

Washington, Nov. 3.—The Spanish film industry has made progress in the current year, according to a report from the Madrid office of the U. S. Department of Commerce. It is estimated in Spanish trade circles that approximately 50 sound films will have been produced by the close of 1935. Greater activity is also being shown in dubbing foreign films. The total is expected to reach 60.

Although in Barcelona and Madrid American films are shown in the original English version with Spanish titles superimposed, dubbing is supported by the demand in the provinces. Increased Spanish production has cut the market for dubbed films.

It has been announced that an American-Spanish company is planning to produce in Spanish at Barcelona. No picture has yet been completed, but several players have been signed.

A studio for production of industrial films has been completed in a suburb of Madrid, but production is not expected to begin until next summer.

To Raze K. C. Shubert

Kansas City, Nov. 3.—Razing of the Shubert, Kansas City's outstanding legitimate house since 1906, and replacing it with a parking station and basement garage is definitely planned, subject to the final approval of the insurance company which holds the mortgage. The plan is expected to be approved within the next few days.

Form 2 Coast Firms

Sacramento, Nov. 3.—Two new incorporations here are: Mission Trails Theatres, a $25,000 firm formed by Sylvan Covey, M. M. Liodas and H. M. Simon of Los Angeles, and Hollywood Spectator, by Welford Beaton, Howard Hill and C. A. Highes.

These three operating contracts are the last of the currently expired Paramount theatre deals to be disposed of at this time. Together with the Wilby-Kincey and Lucas & Jenkins contracts, which were extended to July 1, 1936, and the Hamm & Charles contract for Minnesota theatres, which was relinquished, the Hoblitzelle, Trendle and Blank contracts expired Sept. 28, last. John E. Otterson, Paramount president, held preliminary conferences with Hoblitzelle on a new agreement in Hollywood during September, while S. A. Lynch and Y. that only single damages, without attorney's fee, could be sought of a bankrupt estate. Objections to the report were filed by both Ryan and the attorneys for the Paramount trustees, with the result that Judge Coxe reserved the right to determine whether the judgments could be proved in any amount in excess of the actual damages, if any, found to have been sustained by the claimants.

In endeavoring to have the cases heard by a judge and jury, rather than by a special master, Ryan feels that triple damages and attorney fees may be included in any settlement obtained, it is said. His briefs setting forth his position were forwarded to Judge Coxe in New York Saturday.

Duffy to Alternate Between Two Coasts

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Henry Duffy expects to spend three months of each year in New York under his new arrangement with Twentieth Century-Fox as head of the Twentieth Century-Fox Producing Co.

Although only one play has been closed for, so far, the plans call for original productions of at least five plays a year under sponsorship of the studio. Casting and rehearsals will be done on this coast at Duffy's El Capitan.

The first play, "Autumn," will open in San Francisco for two weeks, go directly to New York, play an engagement in Chicago, and close in Los Angeles. Many of the original stage cast will be featured on the screen. Pictures probably will be made at the same time the shows play here.

There will be no clause in Twentieth Century-Fox contracts requiring screen players to appear in Duffy stage productions, but there will be a clause in contracts of players signed for the Duffy shows giving Twentieth Century-Fox an option on services for the screen.

Duffy plans to continue his own production of New York successes on this coast as before, and also will continue his duties as associate producer with Darryl Zanuck, though he is on leave of absence now from the studio for organization of the new producing company.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Man of Iron"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Offering Barton MacLane in his first leading role, this picture, because of the light story and the absence of a love interest coupled with the fact that the supporting cast lacks drawing names, will not serve as a fair test of the player's pulling power.

MacLane, as an iron worker who rises to be the company manager and then vice-president, gives a vigorous, masculine performance. John Eldridge is in line for the general manager's job when MacLane is promoted to the position and smoothly serves as a menace who stirs up trouble between MacLane and the workers by goading MacLane to neglect his business for his social activities. Eldridge's scheming eventually leads to a boiler explosion in the plant and a strike by the men. MacLane settles these difficulties and returns to his foreman's job as the workers take care of Eldridge.

The direction by William McGann builds nicely to the strike climax and maintains an even pace throughout. The screenplay by William Wister Haines from the Dawn Powell original concentrates on building of character. Dorothy Peterson gives a sympathetic performance as MacLane's wife and John Qualen and Joseph Sawyer do well as the workers. Mary Astor appears briefly as Eldridge's aid, and Joseph King, Craig Williams and Joseph Crehan also contribute effective bits.

As masculine entertainment the picture is satisfactory for dual and smaller houses.

Production Code Seal No. 1,556. Running time 63 minutes. "G."

Governor to Delay Missouri Tax Call

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—Because he feels that "legislation hastily considered and enacted is never desirable and rarely useful," Gov. Guy B. Park is going to "make haste slowly" in calling a special session of the Missouri legislature to make additional appropriations for old age pensions and to change the pension laws.

Park wants first to ascertain accurately the amount the one per cent sales tax will yield, inasmuch as it is from funds created by that tax that pensions will come; and suits testing the constitutionality of the sales tax law have not been tried.

RKO Takes Lincoln, Cleveland Theatre

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—RKO has taken over the Lincoln, a neighborhood house here. This makes the second under the circuit's direct operation, the other being Keith's East 105th St.

The Palace, RKO spot downtown, is part of pool, Warner-operated. Other members of it are the Hippodrome and Allen.

The cruise will comprise the final session of New Jersey Allied's adjourned annual convention. Special passage and hotel rates have been secured by the organization and extensive recreation plans have been completed for the expected large delegation.

No Appeal Planned On "Hat" Decision

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Local exhibitors, who last week lost a suit against RKO to force delivery of "Top Hat" under the 1934-35 contracts, will not carry their case to any higher court, says their legal representative, Jerome Friedlander.

Honor Jenkins Memory

RICHMOND, Ind., Nov. 3.—Forty years ago friends of C. Francis Jenkins of this city turned out to see the first film show here. Jenkins invented the phantescope, believed to be one of the earliest moving picture machines. The inventor's brothers, Will and Atwood Jenkins, have just marked the site of the first show with a bronze tablet. Jenkins died last year.

Reid in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Kenneth Reid, for 15 years with Loew's theatres as manager in Cleveland, Columbus and Akron, is back here as manager of the Dennison Square, belonging to Associated Theatres circuit.

"Shipmates" Top Seattle Money-Maker

SEATTLE, Nov. 3.—"Shipmates Forever" was a strong draw at the Fifth Avenue, the take going to $7,250. As a result, the picture was moved to the Music Box for an extended run.

"Barbary Coast" was also a money-maker at the Orpheum at $6,250, and it was moved to the Blue Mouse.

N. E. Groups File 10 New Trust Suits

Morse & Rothenberg Ask Million from Majors

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—Ten anti-trust suits in which damages of approximately $1,000,000 are sought were filed today by the Morse & Rothenberg circuit against Columbia, M-G-M, Paramount, RKO, Twentieth Century-Fox, U.A., Universal and New Hampshire Theatres, Inc., a Paramount affiliate controlling about 40 theatres in New England, and Shea Chain, Inc.

Conspiracy in restraint of trade is charged. Each suit asks for about $100,000 in damages.

The attorney for the plaintiff is George S. Ryan, counsel for E. M. Loew of Boston and A. B. Momand of Oklahoma City, who last week asked permission of U. S. District Judge Coxe in New York to have a similar suit by these men against Paramount heard by a jury instead of by a special master.

Morse & Rothenberg are acting in behalf of their subsidiaries, Aetna

Nationalized First Division Distribution to Be Set Soon

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—Nationalization of First Division distribution will be completed in about two weeks when Harry Thomas and Al Friedlander return to New York from extensive tours of the country for the purpose of effecting distributing tieups.

Friedlander arrived here today from Kansas City, leaving tonight for Chicago and thence to Cleveland, Buffalo and Albany before returning to Manhattan. Prior to its recent reorganization under Pathe, First Division distribution was carried on by its own 16 exchanges. The tieups now being effected by Thomas and Friedlander will give the company outlets in 30 key cities.

No official advices were received by Paramount here yesterday from either Spanish officials or representatives of the State Department, which is acting through the American Embassy at Madrid on Spain's demand that Paramount withdraw "The Devil is a Woman" from world distribution.

Para. May Make "Carmen" in Astoria

Plans for the production of "Carmen" at Eastern Service Studio are under discussion by Paramount officials here. They believe the film version of the opera could be cast more readily here than on the west coast.

The company has had under consideration for some time plans for increasing its eastern production activity by setting a limited amount of feature work into the Astoria plant. A Paramount official said yesterday that this remains as a possibility although no definite decision has been made yet.

RKO to Start Defense Today At St. Louis

May Call Five to Seven In Shift of Plans

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—Counsel for RKO will start the company's defense tomorrow, the 26th day and sixth week of the anti-trust trials. George S. Leisure and Jacob M. Lashly will alternate in interrogating witnesses.

It had been anticipated that RKO would put in its defense in one day, but a week-end shift of plans will make this impossible. From five to seven witnesses will take the stand, indicating that direct, cross and possibly redirect examination will not be completed before Thursday. Five company executives definitely set to go on the stand are Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy, Cresson E. Smith, Walter Branson and Lou Ellman.

Branson flew in from Chicago this morning. Levy is due by plane from Justice Aaron J. Levy in the Manhattan Supreme Court yesterday granted five applications for appointment of appraisers made by five discontented stockholders. Counsel for Fox Film Corp., against whom the applications were directed, consented to the appointments.

In the case of Ora B. Mead, a stockholder, Justice Levy named Millard H. Ellison, 535 Fifth Ave., William E. Frost, 20 Vesey St. and Morton L. Panken of 1650 Broadway. The same appraisers were named for the other applications as well, namely, Estelle R. Gold, Julius C. Vogeler, Charles F. Eisele.

Loew Sees Multiple Bills Losing Favor

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—"So many theatres are running double and even triple features, I look for the practice to pall upon the public very shortly," David L. Loew said here on his way to the Coast to assume the vice-presidency of Hal Roach studios.

Loew believes "there is certain to be a reaction which will create a greater demand for short subjects." That is one of the chief reasons for the change he is making at this time, he said.

He added that the Roach studios are being enlarged, new writers added, and the personnel increased.

Kirkpatrick at a hearing attended by bidders and 100 residents of the section who hold stock in the company owning the theatre and seven stores in the same block.

The company is in financial difficulties and is endeavoring to reorganize under Section 77 B.

A committee of stockholders bid a yearly rental of $18,000. A. R. Boyd Enterprises bid $20,000 for five years and Mayfair Theatres Corp. offered $19,100. After a conference with attorneys in chambers Judge Kirkpatrick awarded the Stanley Co. the lease for the entire property.

WE MADE HIM EAT HIS WORDS!

When a certain New York big shot heard we were filming "PETER IBBETSON," he groaned publicly, "Another classic!"

Remembering "David Copperfield," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "Bengal Lancers," and other pretty grand moving pictures taken from books, we got just a little bit peeved. So we lassoed that gentleman and took him to a screening of "PETER IBBETSON." It was a censorship print, needed a lot of cutting, and a lot of smoothing. But he came out of the projection room with honest tears in his eyes. "One of the most wonderful experiences I've ever had," he told us.

We tell you this because we think you'll want to give that kind of word of mouth publicity to "PETER IBBETSON." For "PETER IBBETSON", in this newest production, has real beauty, real greatness! It also has what you, as practical business men are even more interested in--an emotional appeal that is definitely BOX-OFFICE. In short, it's another proof that

New York tonight and Ellman is slated to arrive from Denver Wednesday. Ellman formerly was manager of the St. Louis exchange.

No session was held today because Federal Judge George H. Moore was busy on other cases which have been on the docket for some time and which had to be disposed of without further delay.

Gloom settled over the defense group today following receipt of news of the death of H. M. Warner's father.

Confident in their progress thus far, Government counsel say they feel they will not have to put on any more witnesses.

"Based on the evidence already in, the Government may not even put in a rebuttal," said Special Assistant Attorney General Russell Hardy today.

Warners will decide in the next day or two whether or not more witnesses will be put on. Just before completing presentation of Warners' case Friday, Frederick H. Wood reserved the right to call extra witnesses. Paramount, which also finished last Friday, will not enter further evidence.

Final arguments and reading of instructions to the jury are expected to consume about three days, but this may extend a day or two more than this. In any event, it is said, Judge Moore expects to charge the jury in 10 days.

Following the verdict, the equity in which the Government seeks an injunction to end alleged refusal of the defendants to serve the Missouri, Grand Central and Ambasador theatres with films will go on.

Expect Foreclosure Appeal

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4. — Counsel for Warners are expected to ask the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for a rehearing in the litigation involving foreclosure sales of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central theatres for $2,000,000.

The foreclosure was upheld by U. S. District Judge Davis in July, 1934, and the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the decision Nov. 1.

The only change was a stipulation allowing Warners 20 days to determine whether they want to join in the reorganization as the holders of $154,500 in second mortgage bonds.

11 Premieres Planned

Paramount is shaping plans for 11 simultaneous premieres for "So Red the Rose" in the 11 cities which were Confederate capitals during the Civil War. They are Austin, Montgomery, Jackson, Tallahassee, Baton Rouge, Richmond, Winston-Salem, Columbia, Nashville, Atlanta and Little Rock.

Palestine Film Set

"The Land of Promise" a film depicting the rehabilitation of Palestine by the Jews, will have its premiere at the Astor, Nov. 20.

to acquire 50 per cent of the Met stock for $300,000, or to receive $150,000 for relinquishing the option. Stockholders are urging the purchase, but it is opposed by large creditors of Fox Theatres. Judge Manton is expected to rule on the action to be taken prior to Nov. 16, when the option expires. If the option is not exercised Joseph M. Schenck's United Artists Theatre Circuit will receive 40 per cent of the optioned stock for a total interest of 80 per cent, and Keith-Albee-Orpheum will receive an additional 10 per cent, bringing its interest to 20 per cent.

It was also believed here that conferences between the American Embassy and Spanish officials were continuing and that there would probably be no confiscation of Paramount prints by Spain while the discussions were in progress.

News despatches from Madrid late yesterday said that the Spanish Ministry of Labor had extended for one week the time in which it would expect Paramount to withdraw the picture from world distribution and destroy the prints, failing which the ban against further distribution of the company's pictures in Spain would be applied.

N. E. Groups File 10 New Trust Suits

Amusement Enterprises, Inc., and Commonwealth Amusement Enterprises, Inc., which operate, respectively, the Arcadia, Portsmouth, N. H., and the Park, Nashua, N. H. Triple damages are sought under the Sherman anti-trust law.

It is alleged that Maine & New Hampshire Theatres, Inc., not only demand unreasonable protection, but also that the plaintiffs are unable to get film. This condition, the complaint alleges, has made it necessary for the Arcadia to shift to vaudeville. Similar charges are made in connection with the Park, Nashua. Furthermore, it is charged that the Shea circuit sought to buy the Park for a figure below its worth and threatened to have the theatre's license revoked, if the deal were not consummated.

Some time ago the plaintiffs sought an injunction from U. S. District Judge Lowell, but this was refused.

Other exhibitors in this territory are said to be watching these cases closely, due to general unrest over scrapping of clearance and zoning board decisions.

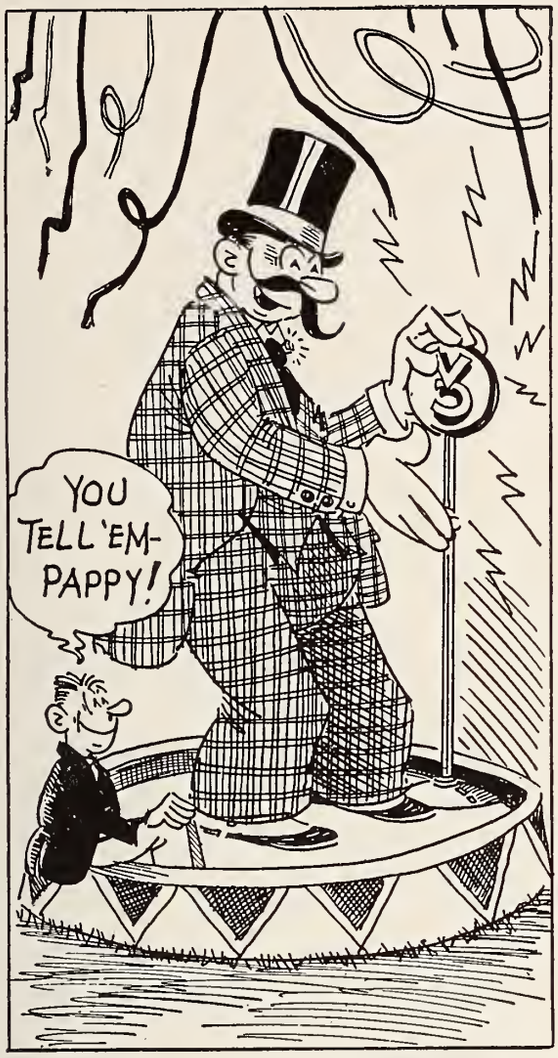
Roxy Advances Hour For Shift in Price

Conforming with other Broadway theatres, the Roxy, starting Thanksgiving Day, will change the hours when matinee and evening price changes go into effect.

Instead of the week-day 25 cents admission switching at 2 P.M., the 35 cents tariff will begin at 1. The 35-cent admission after the last Thursday of the month will be changed to 55 cents at 6 P. M. instead of 7. On Saturday, Sundays and holidays the 35-cent price will be eliminated entirely and at 1 P. M. the evening figure will prevail.

The change hour is being advanced because of the tremendous turnover during these periods, it is stated. The revised scale is expected to result in increased intakes for both matinee and night shows.

Grainger, Bonns Return



James R. Grainger, Universal's general sales manager, is back from a nationwide trip during which he visited the studio as well. "Throughout the country I found conditions more encouraging than on my last trip. The better feeling and the encouraging outlook are reflected in Universal sales which are several hundred contracts ahead of last year at the same time," he said.

Eddie Bonns, the company's short subject sales manager, has also returned from a trip through the South and Middle West. He visited nine exchange centers and reports business up, particularly with good attractions.

Minneapolis Top "Goose" And "Folies"

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—A combination of "The Goose and the Gander" and the "Folies Bergere" revue on the stage, with the latter getting most of the credit, pulled $9,000 at the Orpheum. This tops par by $3,500.

Marx Comedy Off to Big St. Louis Start

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—Opening of "A Night at the Opera" at Loew's State chalked up the greatest first day gross in the last three years with the exception of "China Seas." The Marx Bros. picture garnered around $4,400 and is expected to tally approximately $10,000 before the week is out.

Allan Jones, who appears in the film, made five personal appearances that day. "Mutiny of the Bounty" is slated to sail into the State Friday, but may be delayed a week if the New York office approves a holdover for the current attraction.

Kelleys Back at Iola

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—Ira D. Kelley, Iola, Kans., exhibitor, and Mrs. Kelley have returned from a three-week vacation trip in the east by motor car. While in New York they attended the wedding of their daughter, Margaret Frances Kelley, to Percy W. Gatz.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"So Red the Rose"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Paying tribute to patriotism, courage, faith and sacrifice, this sentimental romance-tinged drama tells the story of a Southern family swept into the turmoil of the Civil War. The drama is poignant to the point of being tragic. Romantic and natural comedy contrasts are of a character that stir sympathetic heart interest. The impressively serious tone, accomplished acting and direction, plus inspiring background effects give the picture a powerful human character.

The menace of war horrifies the Bedford plantation, the peace and happiness of which is reflected by the great love Margaret Sullavan has for Randolph Scott. A friend, Robert Cummings, is killed, then the oldest son, Harry Ellerbe, dies in battle. Scott, an idealist, stays home. Finally, Walter Connolly, the head of the family, joins the cause, suffers injuries and dies. Discarding his ideals, Scott becomes a soldier, leaving the women, Miss Sullavan, Janet Beecher and Elizabeth Patterson, and the boy, Dickie Moore, to face the invaders.

Placating the rebellious slaves, led by Clarence Muse, Miss Sullavan tries to save a wounded Yankee boy from a troop headed by Scott, only to have the maddened Northerners complete the family destruction by setting the mansion afire. With the coming of peace, the women are left to till the soil and Scott returns to Miss Sullavan for a romantic conclusion.

The power of the story, which should have a strong Southern appeal, and the performances give showmen plenty with which to work in developing popular interest. Based on the novel by Stark Young, the screen play by Laurence Stallings, Maxwell Anderson and Edwin Justus Mayer, and the understanding direction of King Vidor preserve the human quality of the original.

Production Code Seal No. 1,173. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

Looking 'em Over

"The Throwback"

(Universal)

With the story concerning a man's vindication of himself in throwing off an inherited stigma, this western has Buck Jones, aided by his handsome horse, Silver, offering the usual and expected amount of hard riding, fast action and general excitement against a western background. The result should be good at the week-end action position and especially pleasing to the youngsters.

In support are Muriel Evans, who carries on the romantic aspect of the story and shows an unusual western heroine ability to ride a horse; George Hayes and Bryant Washburn.

In the nature of prologue material, the early portion of the film shows a small boy as an outsider because of the cattle rustling of his father, his only friend the small girl, Muriel. When his father is killed the boy goes away to another ranch and returns only when grown to manhood. He meets with the enmity of most of the people of the town, who refuse to have the son of a rustler among them. Only Miss Evans sticks by him.

To the tune of the rapid pounding of horses' feet, gunfire and lively action, Jones uncovers the real rustlers, is himself vindicated, and, of course, gets the girl.

Production Code Seal No. 1,161. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Allow Para. Claim

An agreement between Paramount and Joseph H. Cooper, theatre operating partner in the southwest, which reduces Cooper's $79,891 claim filed against Paramount during the company's bankruptcy proceedings, to $69,000 and allows the claim for that amount was approved yesterday by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. The Cooper claim was based upon Paramount's liability under several St. Joseph, Mo., theatre leases.

Stanley Loses in Court

WILMINGTON, Nov. 4.—An opinion against the petition of the Stanley Co. of America, against John Anderson of Wilmington, asking for a correction of an order of distribution of the proceeds of a constable sale, has been handed down in Superior Court by Chief Justice Layton. "Rendezvous," Kansas City, Gets $11,500

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—"Rendezvous" took the big money with $4,300 over a par $11,500 at Loew's Midland.

"Wings Over Ethiopia" and "Hands Across the Table" at the Newman disappointed, and brought in only $100 more than average for the house, which is $7,000.

Disappointing also was "Last Days of Pompeii." With it, the Mainstreet garnered only $6,700, well below par of $8,000. The first experience of the Uptown with double features wasn't very satisfactory. The house took $3,400, $100 below average, with "Harmony Lane" and "His Night Out."

"Boy," Bowes' Unit, $30,000 In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 4.—The Stanley got everything there was to get here last week, collecting a sensational $30,000 with Major Bowes' amateur unit and "O'Shaughnessy's Boy." It was the best six days the Stanley has had since last spring, when "G Men" and the "Folies Bergere" revue were the attractions.

That, in addition to the near-capacity $17,000 "A Midsummer Night's Dream" did in 11 performances at the Nixon, just about drained the town. At the Fulton, "The Raven" and "King Solomon of Broadway" grossed barely $3,000, while the Warner did not do much better, about $3,300, with "Wings Over Ethiopia" and "The Return of Peter Grimm."

Total first run business was $51,100. Average is $40,500.

"Rendezvous" Big Hit in New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4.—With a good portion of the Yale bowl emptied into the Poli Saturday night, and spilling over into S.R.O., "Rendezvous" and "The Gay Deception," scored high at $8,500, up by $2,000 over average.

"Barbary Coast" and "Case of the Lucky Legs" were a good dual, with $6,500 intake at the Roger Sherman, against the usual $4,500. The College combed the large Italian population and other artistic circles and grossed $1,300 over the $2,700 par on "Here's to Romance" and "This is the Life." "Wings Over Ethiopia" swooped way down at the Paramount, on a dual with "The Clairvoyant," doing $1,800 under par, with a $3,000 week.

Phila. Leads Way, Voting Sunday Films

Elsewhere Vote Is About Equally Divided

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—The voters of this city had indicated, at a late hour tonight, that they want motion pictures on Sunday, thus leading the way for the other 275 municipal subdivisions, voting in referenda on the question of Sunday films.

With 28 out of 50 wards reported here, the result was approximately 118,000 for pictures on Sunday, with 31,000 against. This overwhelming "yes" total gave clear indication that the fight, waged here over a long period by picture interests, battling the vigorous opposition of church organizations in particular, had finally met with an unquestioned success.

Elsewhere in the state, with reports incomplete, indications were that the reaction of voters was about equally divided. Among the larger cities voting against Sunday films were: Harrisburg, York, Allentown, Sunbury and Uniontown. Voting in fa-

Ontario Men Await Moves for Tax Cut

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Although the Canadian Federal elections were cleaned up at mid-October, no further action has been taken by the Ontario Government toward modifying the amusement tax schedule, which, since last May, has brought a heavy burden to the theatres of the province.

The promise was made, it is understood, that as soon as the Federal voting was a matter of history, consideration would be given to the adjustment of the tax. The one hope is that the levy will be eased when the Provincial Legislature holds its fall session at the end of November.

Chance Games Sweep Around Loew Circuit

Receipts Are Up With Screeno, Bank Night

Chance games are sweeping the Loew circuit in the metropolitan area, where 33 theatres of this company are now playing either Screeno or Bank Night.

Receipts are reported to have picked up tremendously and the purse games are credited with having a good deal to do with it. The business improvement is said by Loew's officials to be particularly noticeable at the houses playing Screeno, which the circuit began using earlier than it did Bank Night. There are 18 Loew houses using Screeno and 15 having Bank Night. It takes several weeks to get the latter game established and it has been in most of the 15 Loew houses for less than two weeks. Officials expect to find its effect on attendance evidenced within the next few weeks. Definite results from the games observed thus far indicate that the circuit may increase its use of the game still further.

Loew's had only eight houses using Screeno and none on Bank Night during the summer. The game was with-

British Seek Agreement on Quota Policy

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 1.—First steps toward a reconciliation of the divergent quota policies of British exhibitors, represented by the C.E.A., and producers for whom the Film Group of the F.B.I. speaks will be taken when these trade bodies go into conference. The immediate object is not to arrive at agreement, but to see if agreement seems a reasonable possibility, in order to meet the Board of Trade's request for a unanimous trade policy on Film Act revision. At present, exhibitors are solid for a reduction of the 20 per cent quota to 10 per cent, while producers want the quota stiffened by a minimum cost clause. It is thought possible that producers may be willing to yield the principle of a smaller quota for exhib-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE fog which, for weeks, has surrounded the situation at Universal lifts with these tidbits of information, some complete and, frankly, some not:

The loan arranged by Standard Capital, headed by J. Cheever Cowdin, and a group represented by Charles R. Rogers, is for $750,000.

It carries with it a three-month option to purchase control for $5,500,000. Of this amount, $1,500,000 would change hands in cash and as a down payment. The remaining $4,000,000 would be payable in annual instalments of $500,000 over a period of eight years.

When you talk a deal with or for Universal you talk to one man. His name is Carl Laemmle who has controlled the company since its formation over two decades ago. His holdings, as reported to the SEC in February, embrace 1,115 shares of first preferred, 15,702 shares of second preferred, 7,016 shares of common, 58,692 voting trust certificates and 120,126 voting trust certificates on the common.

If the two investment groups determine not to exercise their option, the three-quarters of a million becomes a straight loan which Universal will have to pay off, of course.

The probability is very strong, however, that Cowdin and his people who include individuals identified with Forbes, Morgan and Co. and Rogers have sufficiently gone over the company's situation to place their option definitely in the classification of things they propose picking up.

Standard Capital was incorporated in Dover, Delaware, on January 15 of this year with a capitalization of $1,600,000. Its three voting trustees are George N. Armsby, Cowdin and Lawrence W. Fox, Jr., the latter resident in Los Angeles. Armsby and Cowdin were one time chairman and vice-president, respectively of Bancamerica-Blair Corporation.

Other probabilities include a board chairmanship, if and when, for Laemmle, Sr.; a deal writing out Herbert J. Yates and Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., who hold a mortgage on Universal City which would permit reopening of "U's" own laboratory, one of the best equipped in the industry, which, in turn, would make the company even more self-contained as a unit on its own.

Rogers will be the studio head and that works out in this wise: Out of the loan came Universal Productions, Inc., which will make forthcoming product under a deal with Universal Pictures Corp. It is this picture-making unit which Rogers will head and all of its activities which Charlie will supervise.

The New York end of the organization is expected to remain intact with, perhaps, a direct representative of the new interests on deck. In administration under Robert H. Cochrane, in domestic sales under James R. Grainger—he has sold 7,600 contracts to date—in foreign sales under N. L. Manheim, the new financial blood is understood already to have expressed its satisfaction.

Question: What becomes of Junior Laemmle? . . .

Rarely getting too positive about anything, this watchtower, nevertheless and from time to time, has advanced as its own firm and rock-ribbed opinion that maximums are not always squeezed out of celluloid plums by the fellow who exercises the elbow grease: the exhibitor. The argument has run that booking commitments and competition, as well as circuit and subsequent run situations, have brought box-office product to the end of its first run faster than judgment, if it were more discerning, should allow. Tearing a ham sandwich apart with "Skip" Weshner, first run zone manager for Warners in Philadelphia the other day, this subject entered the conversation because Weshner knew it nestled rather closely to this department's view of the matter. . . .

He told of the current history of "Top Hat" in downtown Quaker Town. This is it:

Four weeks at the Stanley.
Four weeks at the Karlton.
One week at the Palace.
One week at the Victoria, the latter run a day and date booking with six neighborhood keys in the same city.

Ten weeks all told the picture bouncing from the Stanley to the Karlton to the Palace to the Victoria with no protective period between dates. And ten very good weeks at that. If the Rockefellers had geared the reopening of the Center to completion of the "Top Hat" run at the Music Hall, and had moved the print down the street to the smaller theatre, this dubious seer predicts the step would have been a wise one. . . .

The rebuttal, as they say in St. Louis, will argue this might be done with a "Top Hat." Well, why isn't it? It is obvious, naturally, that here was an attraction which was the tops; that it rated extended playing time. Our insistence is that, while anyone can prove he's smart with a "Top Hat," there are others which have and will come along that are likely candidates and that the real showman is the one who is smart enough and daring enough to pick them out. . . .

Thalberg's Genius Tops One Of The Greatest Films Of All Time; B. O. Records Assured

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer now comes to the front with one of the greatest pictures of all time in Irving Thalberg's production of "Mutiny On The Bounty." A picture that will definitely elevate the industry in every country of the world, and, one that is certain to establish new money records through massed attendance and long runs. Its importance far surpasses anything that has been made in years, made possible by the great faith of Thalberg in fine productions and the unlimited backing of this faith by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Twelve years ago Frank Lloyd compelled world-wide attention with his direction of "The Sea Hawk," accounted at the time a milestone in motion picture progress, now with his masterful direction of this great epic drama of the sea, the world has a chance to see what amazing progress has been made in the art of the screen and to witness the maturing of a great talent.

The picture-going public is not so easily startled as it was in 1923, but this masterpiece can scarcely fail to be a universal "must." There is little need to appraise its box office value. Such great pictures sell themselves. And "The Mutiny" has as many strong exploitation angles as a porcupine has quills. Few theater patrons will be willing to miss it.

Heavy Cost and Time Spent Justified

With the full resources of the Metro organization and the production genius of Thalberg behind him; with upwards of $1,800,000 spent and months and months of actual shooting, Lloyd justifies it all. The picture is long, running just over two hours. Much of it is desperately grim, brutal and violent. But it has the epic sweep of the sea itself, "the hurl and the heave and the crash of the combers wind-hounded," and it holds almost breathless interest through every one of its 12,000 feet.

The celebrated book and its sequel, "Men Against The Sea," of which this is a close picturization, is virtually a historical document, the re-creation of one of the most dramatic of all true sagas of the sea. The writing of this Nordhoff-Hall book, which has been read by millions, is itself a fascinating story.

The picture is divided into six strongly-contrasted episodes, not counting a brief prologue showing preparations in England for the Bounty's history-making voyage. First is the long voyage itself around Africa to the South Seas, its progress punctuated by animated maps. The little full-rigged frigate is on its way to gather 1,000 breadfruit plants in Tahiti and transplant them in the West Indies, a two-year job. She is in command of Captain William Bligh, a great seaman but a domineering and merciless master, taking sadistic pleasure in the torture of his men for slight or fancied infractions of his brutal orders.

This terrifying character is magnificently presented by Charles Laughton. Throughout "The Mutiny" he is every inch the master of men, with never a flicker of softening even at his final humiliation at the court-martial in England.

Next in command was Fletcher Christian, master's mate, now admirably brought to life by Clark Gable. This mate too was a great sailor and no weakling, trained to accept the harsh sea code of the period, a born leader. But he cannot stomach the increasing cruelties of his master. He warns of the smouldering resentment of the crew, semi-starved and overworked, only to be as harshly scorched as the lowest.

Thus the growing tension is built up through the months of the long voyage, to brood over the little ship like a black fog, till suddenly land is sighted. They have reached Tahiti.

The first chapter is closed in the nick of time.

In a Paradise

They are in a paradise. The natives, under a friendly chief, welcome them with lavish hospitality. The hardships are forgotten in the protracted shore-leave allowed for the gathering of the plants. Only the mate is kept aboard (except for one brief visit in which he and an island maiden fall in love) and thus his growing sense of injustice is further fanned.

Of the three midshipmen one Byam, admirably played by Franchot Tone, of whom more anon, goes ashore to compile a dictionary of the language and he too succumbs to a lovely native.

Then the voyage to the West Indies. Bligh's brutalities grow past human bearing. Gable leads the mutiny. The crew is about evenly divided and there is a fight, which the mutineers win. The captain and those who want to go with him are turned adrift in an open boat, with food, water and navigating instruments, thousands of miles from a port of call. Byam refuses to join Gable and his mutiny but is held by the mate. The Bounty is headed back to Tahiti.

After almost incredible hardships, marvelously pictured, the indomitable Bligh reaches port and eventually England.

Scenes in Tahiti

The mutineers and Byam reach Tahiti, marry natives and raise happy families. One day an English sail is sighted. Gable hurries most of his men and their families aboard the Bounty and they sail away. Byam, still loyal to the service, stays behind and boards the Britisher, to find Bligh in command, burning with the passion to catch Gable and get revenge. There is a hair-raising chase among the reefs. The Britisher is wrecked but those on board escape.

The Bounty reaches an uncharted and uninhabited island, now famous as Pitcairn, and is deliberately driven ashore under full sail and burned to the waters edge. The party is to start a colony but it disappears from the story and was lost to the world for more than a century. That is another story, and with MGM owning "Pitcairn Island," it is wide open for a sequel with audiences ready made for it.

"MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY" (MGM)

Producer .....Irving G. Thalberg
Associate Producer Albert Lewin
Direction .....Frank Lloyd
Story: Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall.
Screen Play: Talbot Jennings, Jules Furthman and Carey Wilson.
Photography .....Arthur Edeson
Musical Score Herbert Stothart
Cast: Charles Laughton, Clark Gable, Franchot Tone, Herbert Mundin, Eddie Quillan, Dudley Digges, Donald Crisp, Henry Stephenson, Francis Lister, Spring Byington, Movita, Mamo, Ian Wolfe, Ivan Simpson, DeWitt Jennings, Stanley Fields, Wallis Clark, Vernon Downing, Dick Winslow, Pat Flaherty.

Byam is taken back to England, tried and convicted of mutiny on the evidence of Bligh. He is allowed to speak and delivers a scathing indictment of the barbarous code of the sea that wins him a king's pardon and brings about many humane reforms. This is the stirring climax of the story and its intensely dramatic recital by Franchot Tone will bring spinal thrills to anyone, while the British public can almost be counted on to rise from its seats and cheer. This scene splendidly climaxes a finely consistent and manly portrayal. It is Tone's best work to date and marks him up for high credit.

Fifty Speaking Parts

There are some fifty speaking parts in the admirable cast and but a few can be mentioned. Herbert Mundin, as the captain's steward, furnishes the only light touch on the voyage and also delivers laughably on the island. Dudley Digges is outstanding as the drunken but humane ship's doctor, as is Donald Crisp, playing a soul-tortured sailor. Eddie Quillan, a young and tender member of the crew, torn from his wife and baby to serve the king, elicits sympathy with a moving performance. The Tahitian parts are beautifully played by natives, recruited during the filming in the islands. There are several smaller characterizations of high excellence. Ian Wolfe as Maggs, who is tortured to his death, Ivan Simpson as Morgan, DeWitt Jennings as Fryer, Stanley Fields as the hard-boiled Muspratt and Wallis Clark as Morrison, the muscular wielder of the lash, all stand out. Henry Stephenson, as Byam's very British father, and Francis Lister, president of the court-martial, are also excellent.

The screen play by Talbot Jennings, Jules Furthman and Carey Wilson is faithful to the highest standards and evidences meticulous care and fine feeling for the spoken word. The picture is photographed with brilliant distinction by Arthur Edeson. The art contribution of Cedric Gibbons and Arnold Gillespie is notable, and James Havens, with expert knowledge of ships and the sea, has given invaluable guidance in that department. Sound plays a vital part in the telling of this story, as does the background music, and unstinted credit must go to Herbert Stothart for a distinguished score. Add to all this the wise and unflagging supervision of Albert Lewin through many months and the total score is—a masterwork.

The picture, advertised and publicized for months as one of the most expensive ever made, is cheap at the $1,800,000 cost. Its great value to the British market alone would make that expenditure possible.

Exhibitors would do well to clear the booking sheets for additional days and weeks for this picture because it will take a longer run than the ordinary house has ever had, to accommodate the great number of people who will want to see it. It's fine entertainment and a great business builder, attracting, as it most assuredly will, patrons who only come out for important shows.

Not that it MATTERS by Helen Gwynn

Hollywood may have its photographers and autograph fiends, but New York has its photographers, autograph fiends AND colyumists. Colyumists are everywhere not only because the rivalry among them is so great that they must be everywhere at once, but because the late spots need their comment to keep going. The situation is such that undoubtedly a play will be written about it some day because right now things are so amusingly bad, that if you mention the fact that the weather is nice, a colyumist will immediately ask, "Who tipped you off and who's in on the plot?"

However, the night clubs add fuel to the fire. F'rinstance, two of the more popular places are the Stork Club and the Versailles. Lately the colyumists have been hanging around the Stork Club more and as a consequence it's had more publicity and the reason it attracts the boys is because they have a "Hot Seat" in the ace. Defense Rests As Depinet, Smith Testify were satisfied the testimony was sufficient for their purposes and ended interrogations at 4:30.

The Government was prepared to put on the stand this afternoon Arthur, Thomas N. Dysart, Frederick H. Kreismann and Joseph Grand, all of whom have previously testified. Because of the late hour this was delayed until tomorrow. Clayton Bond and Moe Silver did not take the stand for Warners.

Koplar's appearance in court for the first time since the anti-trust trial began six weeks ago caused some excitement. Several times during the session necks were craned for glimpses of the man whose name has been mentioned so often as allegedly inspiring the Government's action.

Deny Refusal to Sell

Both Depinet and Smith denied emphatically they had refused to sell Arthur in St. Louis because of Koplar or anyone else. The RKO president stated that when Arthur came to him to negotiate, the product already had been committed to Warners. He then related the difficulties experienced with Famous Amusement Co., which operated the St. Louis. Depinet also told of the alleged troubles with Arthur when the latter joined Koplar. Particular disagreement arose over collection of weekly short subject payments and inaccurate percentage reports. The RKO head said that when he committeed the pictures to Warners he "sold to the best customer," Arthur having previously given him reason to believe he was dissatisfied. "I also sold Warners because I thought them the best account under the circumstances," Depinet stated. He added that RKO sells to Milton B. Arthur, Harry's brother, in Massachusetts, California, Utah and other places and that there is "no proscription against the Arthurs."

"I don't believe I ever sold Arthur, but I would have no objection in so doing. If the pictures are open in his territory, I would be glad to deal with him," Depinet explained.

Discussed Second Runs

Smith also held that statements attributed to him by Arthur were erroneous. He said Arthur never came to his office in July, but it was the latter part of August and that the conversation pivoted about second runs in St. Louis. The RKO southern and western division manager asserted that when the first Government witness conferred with him Arthur mentioned his intention to reopen the Missouri and Grand Central as second runs. He wanted to know if he could get pictures. Smith said he told Arthur of negotiations with the St. Louis Amusement Co., and would inform him of the status of the deal.

"I did not promise to sell him," Smith testified, "and when Arthur called me a week later I told him RKO was selling to Nelson Cunliff, trustee for the local suburban circuit." Denial was also made that he had told Arthur Warners objected to a second run deal with F. & M. He said, "We conduct our own business and don't ask Warners what to do."

In rebuttal, Russell Hardy brought in the testimony of Smith before the grand jury. The prosecutor wanted to introduce the entire volume in evidence, but this was objected to. Hardy read from the grand jury pages that Smith testified he had not received a direct or indirect offer from Arthur personally. This, Smith declared today, applied only to second runs. The witness admitted he had a conversation with Arthur, who at the time said he was considering reopening the Missouri and New Grand Central, but this he did not regard as an offer, Smith stated.

Dealings with Cunliff

Emphasizing that no direct request had been made to him, the witness held he learned of Koplar's $80,000 offer for second runs from Branson, who was in Des Moines at the time. Smith testified he did not believe the Koplar bid bona fide because, "I don't know how they could have paid this sum when they couldn't pay $60,000 for first runs. I didn't think it was a genuine offer."

The second witness of the day could not recollect his testimony to the grand jury last January. Several times Hardy asked him if he made certain statements and Smith said he could not remember. Hardy pointed out Smith stated to the grand jury he never turned down an offer because it was too high, to which the witness replied he had never received an offer from Arthur. Smith also denied he knew Warners controlled the St. Louis Amusement Co. What he did know was that the company had an interest in the circuit which was being operated by a trustee. All his dealings were with Cunliff, he said.

Depinet revealed he was 45 and in the business 28 years, starting in 1907 as ticket taker and operator for the Dreamland Theatre, New Orleans. From there he joined an independent exchange in the same city as all-around man. He had numerous other jobs until he joined RKO-Pathe in 1931 as vice-president and general sales manager. He recited in detail the experiences RKO had with Koplar in several dealings, the asserted trouble on "Little Women," and how the reductions and cancellations of features and shorts cost RKO more than $20,000.

Arthur Cited Loss

The RKO president explained that although the films were originally bought for the St. Louis when Koplar had it, and the only reason Koplar got it for that house was because Julius Glazer and Aaron Waldheim signed as guarantors, they had been switched with his permission to the Fox, Missouri, Ambassador and Grand Central.

Arthur, Depinet stated, complained of losing $33,000 on RKO product, and, "if we gave him our pictures for nothing he would just break even." He said up to Dec. 8, 1932, RKO had operated the St. Louis. When the circuit lost the house it took the Missouri, which it held until April 30, 1933. On April 1, 1933, a deal was made for RKO first runs with Clarence M. Turley and Spyros Skouras, acting for Tom K. Smith, receiver for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. The agreement provided for a four-month playing arrangement with two yearly options, he said.

Depinet insisted he never made a contract with Arthur. He declared he committed the company's output to Warners on March 29, 1934, after Clayton Bond and Joseph Bernhard had conferred with him. The meeting with Gordon Youngman in connection with the Warner agreement also was explained. Youngman testified in the early days of the trial in relation to the Smith memorandum of Aug. 17, and the Warner pact.

Denies Talking to Arthur

The only time he talked to Arthur about St. Louis, Depinet said, was on the phone after the Warner commitment. The F. & M. head apparently wanted to confirm a report he had heard on the street, the witness said, but he never suggested buying the pictures.

"Even if he did I couldn't have sold him. I couldn't sell twice in the same situation," the RKO chief contended.

Depinet also denied having talked to Arthur in Levy's office because the general sales manager, at the time specified by the first Government witness, was on the Coast. The Warner circuit deal was closed in February, 1934, and ran for 18 months, the RKO head testified, admitting he did not know the exact number of theatres Warners had but estimated something like 300. He further denied allegations credited to him by Arthur and John S. Leahy. Depinet gave his picture of what transpired at the Park Plaza Hotel session in New York on April 7, last year.

He said Leahy advised him the contract signed with Warners was illegal "and apparently wanted me to break it and sell to his clients." In answer to a question put by George S. Leisure, Depinet denied Leahy ever mentioned "Arthur is a long-standing friend," adding he has known the F. & M. head about 10 years and the acquaintanceship "has not been intimate."

"No Rules About Selling"

Between 10,000 and 14,000 contracts are sold annually by RKO, Depinet testified, and so far this season about 9,000 have been signed, 600 of which were closed in March. "We have no rules about selling. We keep our sales force working around the calendar. Our business is like the newsboy who sells his paper every day, including Sunday," Depinet said. After preliminary talks, the RKO president dropped out of the Warner deal, he stated.

On cross examination Depinet said to the best of his knowledge he did not believe Arthur attended the Park Plaza meeting because he did not hear or see him during the half-hour session. Hardy wanted to bring in a contract RKO had made with Montgomery Investment Co. for the Montgomery, St. Louis, on 1933-34 product. This house is operated by Koplar's brother. Leisure objected on the grounds the matter was not bearing on the issues charged in the indictment and involved a subsequent run situation when the question before the court was first runs. He was sustained.

Twice during his interrogation of the witness Hardy called him Levy. Levy was not in town and Leisure called this to the court's attention. The prosecutor apologized, but not before Depinet acknowledged he did not take offense as the general sales manager "is a good friend of mine."

Mystified, and admitting it frankly in open court, Hardy told Depinet that he could not understand why RKO, if it did have trouble with Famous Amusement Co. and Koplar, should refuse to sell F. & M. Leisure again objected and was upheld. Efforts by the prosecutor to argue after a decision was handed down met with orders by the court to proceed.

Procedure Irregular

The procedure was quite irregular today. After Hardy got through asking Depinet cross questions, he began to interrogate the witness on points not covered. Leisure pointed out Hardy had made Depinet a Government witness. In the course of this line of questioning a "sales letter" signed by Depinet and said to have been sent out by the company's advertising department was introduced. Hardy stated this letter indicated RKO wanted to do business with Arthur, but Leisure brought out the fact the letter was addressed to Arthur in New York and F. & M. had other theatres than those in St. Louis.

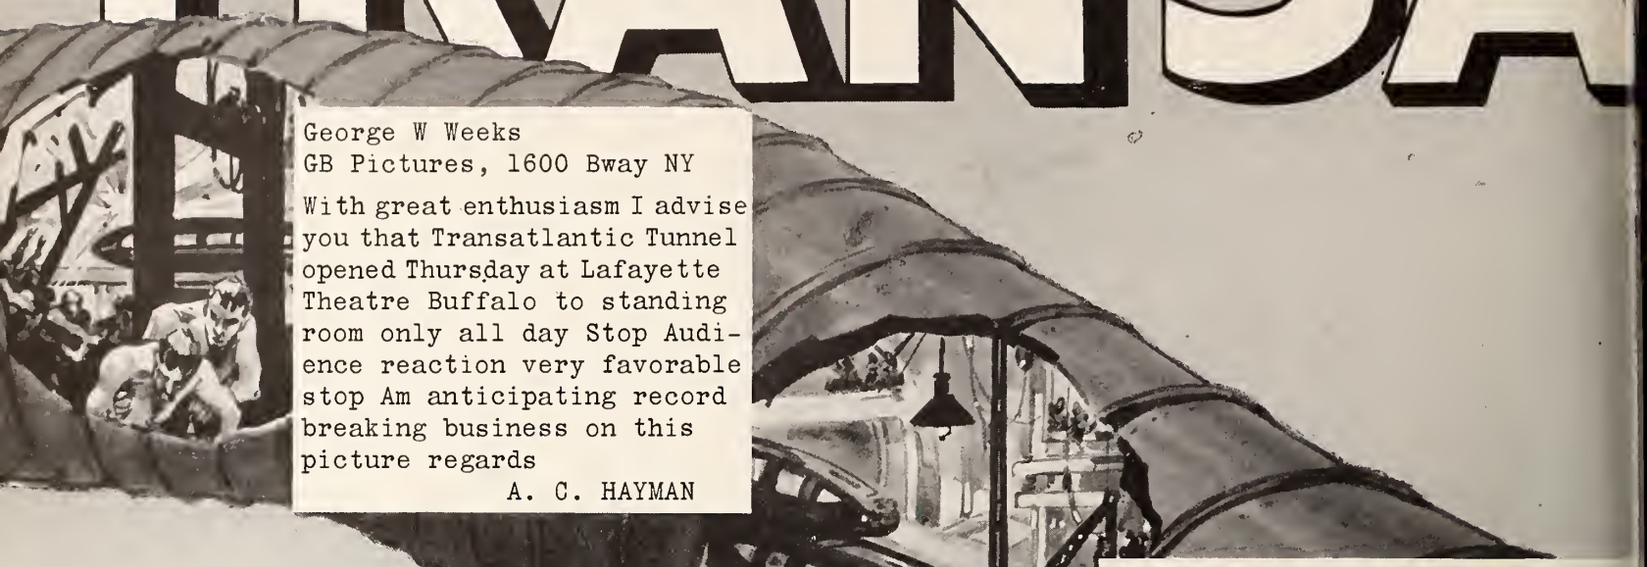
Another irregularity in procedure occurred with the opening of today's session. When the prosecutor refused to admit into evidence the minutes of the Code Authority meeting in New York on March 12, 1934, and a report by the Roney Plaza Hotel of long distance telephone calls made by George J. Schaefer in Miami, Samuel W. Fordyce, Paramount attorney, asked Hardy to take the stand.

"Are you kidding? Do you mean it?" Hardy queried. Fordyce told him he wasn't fooling and Hardy obliged. The Paramount counsel interrogated the Government on its reasons for not admitting the exhibits.

Depinet on Stand Twice

Hardy answered they were immaterial and irrelevant and the only reason he brought up the matter was "to test Schaefer's memory." The Paramount vice-president returned from New York today after a weekend in New York, with Louis Phillips and Irving Cohen. The trio were grounded in Indianapolis and made the rest of the trip by rail.

Latest reports have it the sessions will be transferred to the new courthouse Thursday.



With Depinet taking the stand for the defense, this marks the second time he has been on. The first time he had been subpoenaed by the Government. Hardy will decide tonight on the witnesses he will return to the stand. The total is not expected to exceed four.

Recovery Program Session on Dec. 9

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Representatives of industries interested in industrial recovery were notified today by George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's industrial cooperation coordinator, that the projected meetings for consideration of the problem will begin on Dec. 9. The industrialists will be divided into groups for discussion among themselves, after which general meetings will be held for consideration of the direction to be taken by the Administration recovery program.

Berry admitted that a number of important industries have refused to participate, and others will attend solely to oppose any revival of industrial control which would involve them. Most of Berry's support, it is indicated, is coming from small operators in various industries who benefited by the codes.

Preference shareholders recently withdrew their appeal against the sanction of the reconstruction, under Gaumont British management, of G.T.C., but an echo of this controversy is to be found in the statement in the report that "directors will oppose the election as directors of the three candidates put forward by the opposing shareholders."

One of the allegations of these dissenting preference shareholders was that an offer from Associated British Pictures, in competition with G. B., had not been fairly considered.

Kuykendall also hit at the present method of percentage selling. "It is unfair," he said, "to take seven or eight pictures out of a year's production output and sell them on a uniformly higher basis." Deals should be worked out, he said, on a percentage partnership basis whereby an entire program, including shorts and trailers as well as features, could be contracted for on a blanket percentage arrangement. He leaves tonight for Salt Lake, Denver and other cities.

Waxman Shows Film Beneath the Hudson

A. P. Waxman was host to a big crowd of "sand hogs," engineers, science editors and others, including Col. Charles S. Gleim, engineer in charge of construction in the 38th St. Midtown Tunnel Monday afternoon at a screening of "Transatlantic Tunnel."

It is claimed to be the first time that a picture has ever been screened under a river. In this case realism was added to the scene by the fact that the tunnel, still far from finished, is pretty sloppy.

Holt in New G.B. Post

PORTLAND, Nov. 5.—Archie Holt, for many years manager of F.W.C. houses in the Northwest, has been named by Walter Wessling, division manager, as special representative for G.B. in Oregon and Washington.

William Henry, recently with Universal, is now special territory representative for Republic-Sheffield.

drawn entirely when city police warned exhibitors that it might be in violation of the lottery laws, and several court actions were brought against theatres. The dismissal of these suits, however, induced Loew's to resume the game during October and the results obtained led to its rapid spread throughout the circuit and now includes houses whose competition was not using chance games.

Loew's also reports excellent initial results from its recent return to a single feature policy at 12 key houses in the metropolitan area. The 12 had been running double features as an experimental policy which proved a failure, the circuit officials say, and brought about a return to the standard program. Business at these houses now indicates that the single feature will continue as the permanent billing, it was said.

Phila. Leads Way, Voting Sunday Films

vor were: Warren, Meadville, Linesville, Fort Marion, Fort Allegheny Dubois, Cambridge Springs and Hawley.

The 276 municipal subdivisions, each of which decided for itself the issue in today's balloting, included one first class city, Philadelphia; one second class city, Pittsburgh; one second class "A" city, Scranton; 40 of the state's 44 third class cities; 204 boroughs and 29 townships. The municipalities are distributed through 57 of the state's 67 counties, and represent a total population of 5,850,000.

The question requiring a "yes" or "no" answer, as it appeared on the ballots, was: "Do you favor the conducting, staging, operating and exhibiting of motion pictures, regardless of whether an admission charge is made or incidental thereto or whether labor or business is necessary to conduct, stage, operate or exhibit the same after two o'clock post-meridian, on Sunday in the city (or borough or township) of ———."

In each municipal subdivision voting, a majority vote decided the issue for that locality. A second referendum cannot be held before 1940 in any district that voted the question today. To get the question on the ballot in any district it was necessary to obtain a petition signed by at least five per cent of the number of persons who voted with the dominant party in the last preceding election, or through an order from the municipal authorities.

Vigorous Campaign Waged

The law, authorizing the holding of referenda, was adopted in the last Legislature by a House controlled by the Democrats and a Senate controlled by the Republicans.

The law includes a mandatory penalty of $50 and costs for violation in municipalities where the old Sunday blue law was retained, and a fine of $100 for conducting any other form of amusement in connection with motion pictures on Sunday where the vote was for films.

Church organizations throughout the state put up a vigorous campaign against Sunday films, and were arrayed against circuits which conducted their battle chiefly on the screen. The screen interests, for the most part, however, had declared themselves willing to abide "cheerfully" by the decisions of the majority of the voters.

The campaign of the church interests took many forms, including pulpit appeals, circulation of printed pleas "to keep the Sabbath Holy," house-to-house canvasses by members of church and reform organizations, mass meetings and even parades in many communities.

Rogers' Move To "U" Waits Upon Option

Report Denied Standard Has Already Acted

Charles R. Rogers may have no part in Universal production activities at the company's studio unless and until Standard Capital Co. exercises its option to acquire Universal, officials of the latter company said yesterday.

It was pointed out that the contract entered into between Universal and Standard Capital makes no provision for Rogers' entry into the Universal studio in advance of exercise of the purchase option. It was stated that until that happens any part that Rogers may assume at the studio would be solely through the courtesy of Carl Laemmle. Rogers has two more pictures to make for Paramount on his contract with that company and

Pennsylvania Key Cities Vote for Sunday Pictures

Voters in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Scranton have voted overwhelmingly for Sunday pictures, while in the other of the 276 municipal subdivisions of Pennsylvania the result on the question was about equally divided. The referenda were held in accordance with legislative order, passed at the last session. The general result was found satisfactory to film interests.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—Voters here decided almost two to one in favor of Sunday films, 309 districts out of 410 giving the measure 72,980 for and 35,556 against. Practically all of Allegheny County, with the exception of Wilkinsburg and Bellevue, approved the showings with comfortable majorities. The surprise in this section was the defeat of the measure in Johnstown and Altoona, according to unofficial returns. Both had been expected to vote in favor.

Testimony All In; Attorneys Sum Up Today

Defense Is Again Denied Directed Acquittal

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 6.—All testimony in the anti-trust trials against major companies and their officers was completed today, and both sides will begin summing up tomorrow. Each side will be allowed four hours for closing argument.

Developments came swiftly in today's session. The Government's rebuttal consisted of calling seven witnesses, which required an hour.

When the prosecution rested the defendants moved for the second time for a directed verdict of acquittal, which was immediately overruled by Judge George H. Moore.

Two of the Government witnesses today were not permitted to answer questions put to them by Special Assistant Attorney General Russell H. Hardy when objections were sustained.

Ontario Exhibitors Win a Cut in Taxes

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Exhibitors of Ontario have gained a victory in the tax dispute that has been raging here since last June when heavy increases were made by the Premier. The Ontario Government has decided to revise the schedule.

The cuts are from two to one cent on 15-cent admissions and under, from five to two cents on 25-cent tickets, and from five to three cents on tickets from 26 to 35 cents.

In an organized campaign under the direction of W. M. Gladish exhibitors have asked tax exemptions on all admissions of 25 cents and below. The cuts are a compromise.

Some time ago the Government granted exemptions on tickets of 25 cents and under sold to children.

During the five months the tax was in effect it measured the difference between profit and loss. Exhibitors now feel they will have a reasonable break.

Rogers' Move To "U" Waits Upon Option

no release from the contract has been given.

Reports that Standard Capital already had exercised its option were denied by officials of both that company and Universal yesterday. The latter company said that before the option can be exercised Standard must deposit "a very substantial amount" in a specified bank and this has not been done. It is believed that the deposit referred to is a down payment of $1,500,000 on the $5,500,000 purchase price. The balance would be paid over a period of eight years at $500,000 per year.

Standard officials indicated that the company had several weeks additional study of the Universal books to complete before making its decision for or against exercise of the option. This work is proceeding under the direction of Lawrence W. Fox of Standard's Los Angeles office, where the ultimate recommendation on the option will be made, it was said. The option extends to Feb. 1.

It was also stated that no provision is made in the contract between Universal and Standard which affects the former's reported $1,300,000 indebtedness to Consolidated Film Industries. This indebtedness would be an obligation which would be assumed by Standard in the event of a purchase of Universal and would be met by the new owners as they saw fit. Involved in this obligation is Consolidated's laboratory contract with Universal.

fident from the outset that a successful penetration of this market through an organization of our own was possible. The results to date, however, are exceeding my expectations. Pictures, of course, are the answer."

Ostrer expressed optimism over G. B's. coming product, declaring that the next six releases would be a succession of box-office attractions and naming "Trans-Atlantic Tunnel," now at the Roxy; the new Jessie Mathews musical; "The Hobo," with George Arliss, and a new Conrad Veidt starring vehicle.

The increasing American business, he said, makes increased production for this market desirable, and the company's current American schedule will be augmented, therefore, by six to 10 additional features to be made in Hollywood annually. Negotiations for the production of these pictures are now under way with an independent producer who will probably work at one of the major company studios, Ostrer said. He added that he expects to complete the negotiations before returning to London. The pictures will be moderately budgeted and, while aimed especially for the American market, will also be distributed abroad.

Hollywood production, in many instances, will reduce overhead by eliminating costs of transporting American stars and directors to and from London.

Michael Balcon, G. B. production head, who accompanied Ostrer here, leaves for Hollywood Sunday to complete arrangements for an exchange of stars with studios there and to make a periodical inspection of studio activities.

Pathe's RKO Notes Sale to Be Probed

Pathe president, proceeded yesterday with questioning concerning Kolbe's Pathe activities prior to his becoming an officer of the company. Robert W. Atkins, executive vice-president of Pathe, is scheduled to be the next officer to be questioned. The examination will be resumed on Tuesday.

King said that with a reorganization of RKO pending under the financial direction of Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. the RKO notes which were given in exchange for Pathe assets purchased in 1931 soon might be worth "100 cents on the dollar." He said that Pathe officers would be questioned concerning a report that Henry R. Luce, publisher of Time and a director of Paramount, purchased the RKO notes from Pathe on the recommendation of Atlas Corp.

Jensen Gets U.A. List

SEATTLE, Nov. 6.—U.A. product for 1935-1936 will be shown in Seattle and Tacoma by Jensen-vonHerberg's Liberty and Roxy, according to Leroy V. Johnson, general manager.

The U.A. product for several years has been contracted for in these cities by John Hamrick's circuit. The recent Hamrick-Evergreen merger apparently resulted in United Artists' preference for the independent lineup.

The Liberty is a dual feature house operating at 35 cents top, but it is understood the U.A. product will be used on single feature bills at a slight price boost.

Testimony All In; Attorneys Sum Up Today

would allow four hours for summation by each side former U. S. Senator James A. Reed argued that this was not sufficient and asked for an additional half hour.

George S. Leisure held that because of the complexity of the issues and the numerous defendants involved six hours should be allowed. William R. Gentry said all he needed was an hour "and if I can't convince the jury in that time I can't convince them at all." He added Paramount would be happy to turn over whatever extra time it is allowed to other defense counsel.

No Time Limit Change

Judge Moore then asked how much time would be required by each of the lawyers. RKO requested an hour each for Leisure and Jacob M. Lashly. Reed stated he would require at least an hour and a half for his speech and a like amount of time to Frederick H. Wood. The ex-Senator explained he was not in the habit of making short speeches, to which the judge replied:

"I know a Missouri senator who took longer than you."

"But," Reed rejoined, "He wasn't as interesting."

Hardy then advised the court that if four hours were given the defense it would be "over-generous. The Government only needs three hours and the defense arguments will be taking shots at us."

"They have more brains than we have," the prosecutor continued. "They have about 25 lawyers or a total of 400 years in brains." Gentry came to the rescue and stated, "We will not argue that." Reed then suggested that the Government be allowed four hours, consume three and give the defense the remaining 60 minutes.

Judge Moore refused to change the time limit and Reed declared, "We've been here six weeks and surely we can be here two hours longer. If we are limited to four hours this means that 17 minutes wil be allowed each defendant."

Wood to Start

Hardy pointed out that Wood ably argued summation in the Jacob Schechter case in two hours. Wood came to bat and replied that in the poultry-NRA case the only issue involved was the law.

All arguments were in vain, and the attorneys then repaired to the Judge's chamber for instructions. Tomorrow morning Wood will start summations before the jury, which will return after a half-holiday. He will be followed by Gentry and then Jacob M. Lashly. Hardy will begin his closing arguments after RKO gets through. After Hardy will come Reed, whose speech will undoubtedly highlight the summations.

As soon as both sides conclude Friday, the judge will direct the jury. Present indications are the 12 men will hand down a decision late Friday.

The Government today experienced considerable difficulty in getting over its rebuttal. Many questions were objected to by defense attorneys as not being new testimony, not proper re-direct and as having already been answered. Not one of the seven witnesses occupied the stand longer than 10 minutes.

Directing his attack on the mention of Harry Koplar's name at conferences attended by some of the witnesses and defendants in March, April and June of 1934, the prosecutor interrogated Thomas N. Dysart, Frederick H. Kreismann and Joseph Grand as to their version of the story. Each denied the name was brought up.

Leahy, Koeln Questioned

John S. Leahy and Edmond T. Koeln were queried about the meeting with Ned Depinet at the Park Plaza in New York on April 7. Both testified Harry C. Arthur had been present. When Depinet was on the stand he said he did not recall seeing the first Government witness there. In addition, Leahy testified Depinet never told him "he had a dissatisfied customer in St. Louis."

Arthur was put on the stand to testify whether or not Starr, Sears or Abel Carey Thomas made a statement at the March 6, 1934, meeting at the Warner home office to the effect, "you and the bondholders' committee are to be slaughtered." When Arthur originally testified he stated this was said, while Sears denied it, declaring the expression was Arthur's and not made by anyone in Warners. An objection by defense counsel was sustained and Arthur left the stand.

Gordon New Witness

B. D. Gordon, partner of J. M. Ulmer, Cleveland lawyer, who testified for the Government, was a new witness. He was asked if the purpose of his visit to the Warner home office in 1933 was in connection with a lease on the Capitol, Wheeling, W. Va. The question remained unanswered when an objection was made and sustained. The defense argued Gordon should have been put on after Ulmer to corroborate the latter's testimony. He was in court then and this was not done, it was stated.

Grand was the last witness and the only one to be cross examined. He was asked about Koplar's name being mentioned at a June 6, 1934, conference and before an objection could be made he answered "No." Reed then wanted to know if Koplar's name had been mentioned at many meetings up and down the line. Hardy took an exception to "up and down the line." Grand wanted to answer, anxious to get in a word, but was discharged without achieving his purpose.

After completing the Government's rebuttal, Hardy read to the jury Cresson E. Smith's testimony before the grand jury last January. This had to do with Arthur's offer of $80,000 to RKO for second runs.

On the Lighter Side

St. Louis, Nov. 6.—On the Glen Echo golf links Sunday were Ned Depinet, Gradwell Sears, Cresson E. Smith and Col. William Mallard. The way this foursome plays is nobody's business. Each impersonated the mannerisms of prominent attorneys in the anti-trust trial during the various plays.

Mallard tried to nip a point off the score and Sears immediately put in a call for a Ross checker. Sears with his euphonious "I object, please," was a riot. Smith took "exception, please" on every tee-off and Depinet cleaned up $9 from Smith.

Sears proved to be the best man in the quartet, chalking up a 91 score. Depinet was second with 96, Mallard next with 99, the first time he has ever broken 100, and Smith bowed his head in shame with 106. He blamed it on the borrowed clubs.

Seattle, Nov. 6.—Major Bowes' amateur unit No. 5, appearing here for four days at the Metropolitan, legitimate house, is recording an exceptionally strong business.

The amateurs are playing four shows daily at 60 cents top.

Portland appearances were at a Hamrick-Evergreen film house, and in Tacoma under the Hamrick banner, but a difference of opinion regarding price in this city caused the booking at the Metropolitan instead of at an Evergreen film theatre.

Czechoslovak Film Showings Increase

Washington, Nov. 6. — The Czechoslovakian Board of Censors passed 68 pictures with a length of approximately 226,900 feet during August, according to a report received by the U. S. Twenty-two dramas and comedies were censored, of which 10 were American, five German, two Czechoslovak, and one each from England, France, Italy, Hungary and Switzerland.

Most of the larger houses began their season in mid-August. Twenty-seven features opened in 14 theatres during that month, of which 13 were American, six German, three Czechoslovak, three Austrian, and one each Hungarian and Danish.

New Tax Moves Stir Worry in Nebraska

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 6.—The special legislative session here has film men worried, since some $5,000,000 has to be raised through new tax channels. Latest proposal is the two per cent sales tax which was defeated in the last session.

Theatre box-offices have not been included yet, but they may be. A proposed raise in the gas tax, already carrying five cents per gallon Federal and state, was lost, so the legislators are looking for new fields to harass.

Short Subjects

"Amateur Theatre of The Air, No. 3"

(Biograph-Radio)

This effort is marked by skillful arranging and bears the mark of a sincere attempt to be genuinely entertaining. Expertly cut and edited, there are to be seen an opera piece by a Bronx barber, Latin American numbers by a string quartet, some clever dancing by children, Hope Iris with castanets, barnyard imitations, colored youngsters, tap dancing, a Southern girl's trio harmonizing on "Got the Jitters," and the piece finishes with a minstrel show made up of local youngsters with an interlocutor and all the trimmings. Production Code Seal, No. 0642. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Hillbilly Love"

(Educational)

One of the Song and Comedy Hit series, this is more or less routine entertainment of the kind that has been done often enough before. The two supposedly southern families, the feud, the gun-toting, and shooting, and the hill billy musical numbers make up the subject. Frank Luther, of the fairly effective voice, renders a number or two accompanied by the usual group on banjos and an accordion. Fair entertainment. Production Code Seal No. 0535. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Hollywood Capers"

(Vitaphone)

Beans, the cartoon character, has some amusing and scary adventures when he tries to crash the studios. He sneaks past the watchman disguised as Oliver Hardy, upsets studio routine and winds up being pursued by and outsmarting a mechanical version of Frankenstein. It is a good, appealing cartoon and should be liked by most audiences. Production Code Seal No. 1408. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Where There's a Will"

(Radio)

Spencer Charters plays the rich uncle who is supposed to be dying, and, as expected, he fools 'em. When his relatives come trooping in they do their best to shock him to death by making all sorts of noise and commotion, hoping for the worst. They even go so far as to gather up his furniture, for possession is nine points of the law. Finally in desperation and aware of the cause of the trouble he drives them from his house. The humor in this is dragged out and audiences may find it morbidly funny, in a macabre way. Production Code Seal, No. 1,028. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Molly Moo-Cow and The Indians"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

A bright color cartoon with a pioneer background, this makes for general, appealing entertainment. The cow of the title is a protector of two mischievous ducks who wander away from the covered wagon for a swim. They come on an Indian camp and proceed to have great fun with the drums and feathers they find there. The cow comes looking after them and arrives in time to save a papoose from drowning. Meanwhile an Indian makes off with the two ducks for his supper. Excitement follows as the squaw, grateful to the cow for rescuing her child, saves her from the wrath of the Indian as she attempts to rescue her duck friends and so back to the covered wagon. Production Code Seal, No. 0711. Running time, 7½ mins. "G."

"Way Out West"

(Educational)

The Cabin Kids, five Negro youngsters, with an unusual sense of harmony, entertain in this subject, rendering several numbers with real, and occasionally amusing effect. The Range Ramblers, vocal group, also provide musical entertainment, the whole set in the atmosphere of a cafe of the old west. The subject rates as entertaining diversion. Production Code Seal No. 0518. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Voice of Experience, No. 4"

(Columbia)

Another in the series which will appeal to the morbidly minded. Certainly, due to the tear-jerking and saccharine quality of these shorts, although they are well edited and prepared, they can be hardly classed as entertainment. This one has The Voice saving a man from hanging for the self-defense murder of his father-in-law and accidental killing of his wife. The Voice gets the governor to intervene and there are some mock histrionics as fellow prisoners rejoice and the man is given renewed hope. Production Code Seal No. 0607. Running time 11 mins. "A."

"Ladies Love Hats"

(Educational)

Ernest Truex, diminutive comedian of the stage and screen, has the lead in this comedy, in which he finds himself in difficulty over his wife's desire for a new hat. The local society "leader," disliked by the other women of the community, provides the villain of the piece, which all-in-all is reasonably entertaining comedy of the usual Truex variety. For once, Truex does not come out the loser. Production Code Seal No. 0668. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

M. H. Books Pons Film

Radio's "I Dream Too Much," with Lily Pons, has been booked to open at the Music Hall Thanksgiving Day.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Nevada"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6.—An outdoor action drama adapted from Zane Grey's novel, this fast moving feature combines all the dramatic, comedy, menace, wild riding and conflict essentials that are appealing to western fans and juveniles.

Well mounted and set in typical western country, the yarn deals with a pair of bad men who are anxious to go straight. Saving his ranch for an old cow man, hero Larry Crabbe and his comedy contrast partner, Sid Saylor, come into its possession when the owner commits suicide. Joining a stockman's marketing combine, rustlers led by Monte Blue start getting in their dirty work. Cowboys are being picked off during the roundups and the villainy is so shaded that Crabbe and Saylor are made to appear as the responsible parties. The pair are ostracized by the honest ranchers, and despite their knowledge of their previous records set about upsetting the rustlers' plans.

As love interest there is a vein concerning Crabbe and Kathleen Burke woven in and the picture builds to a climax with Crabbe and Saylor reinstated in the cowmens' graces heading their forces in a wild-riding, gun-roaring battle during a cattle stampede to wipe out the rustlers and bring a happy conclusion to the boy and girl romance.

Though the cast is large the interest is mainly concentrated in Crabbe, Saylor, Miss Burke and Monte Blue. While saving its big punch for the finale, the picture moves with speed and dash with plenty of action counterbalancing the dialogue and Saylor's comedy being effective in holding the story's thread.

Directed by Charles Barton with an eye to embellishing the entertainment and commercial values common to Grey's stories, Garnett Weston's and Stuart Anthony's screenplay assures sufficient romantic interest to balance the thrill, action drama. The photography by Archie Stout of the beautiful natural backgrounds and the riding sequences are a distinct asset to the picture.

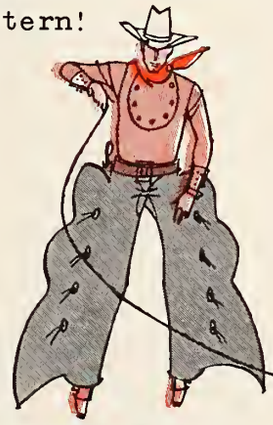
"GEE, I'LL SAY 'HOPALONG'S' A GOOD WESTERN!"

Young Arnold D., 12 years old and ace picture critic of Seth Low Junior High School in Brooklyn, N. Y., gives a rave review of "Hopalong Cassidy." "It's got more action stuff than most Westerns", Arnold tells us,"It isn't all cluttered up with a lot of silly love stuff. And the shooting is swell. That Bill Boyd sure can shoot like nobody's business. And can he rope? Boy, I could see 'Hopalong' all over again."



Arnold gets his first look at 'Hopalong'

And so, they tell us, could Arnold's father and mother. Why? Because everybody is at heart a kid about Arnold's age. And when a real Western comes along mothers and fathers and sisters and cousins and maiden aunts all go for it... which means, as far as you're concerned...a packed house and a busy box-office! "Hopalong Cassidy" and "The Eagle's Brood" are that kind of Western!

Will Cassidy get there in time?

Boy, did you see that horse fall?

QUALITY PLUS

OF ALL the reasons for adopting a new raw film, photographic quality... what the audience sees on the screen... ultimately stands supreme. That explains why the great majority of today's motion pictures are being made on Eastman Super X Panchromatic Negative. Speed, fine grain, versatility... all of these are overshadowed by the fact that Super X gives to the world's screens quality plus. Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N. Y. (J. E. Testimony Is Counsel Target In Summations

Jury Expected to Have Case Tomorrow

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7.—Charges that defense counsel used "an old trick to confuse the real issue," that "every threat made by Warners was carried out," that "Harry Koplar was an arch enemy of Warners," and that "his associates were crooked," that Harry Arthur was a "falsifier and perjurer" and "the oiliest, slickest and smoothest witness put on the stand," that John S. Leahy was "a man of pomp, oratorical power and as fine a bluffer as ever seen" highlighted today's closing arguments by Government and defense counsel. The veracity of opposition witnesses was attacked by each side as they tried to build up the character of their own witnesses.

Summations will be continued all day tomorrow with Saturday set as the day when Federal Judge George H. Moore will charge the jury. The

Defeat Seen For New Code Legislation

Report Berry Conference Called Over Protests

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The defeat of any effort to secure the enactment of new industrial control legislation was predicted here today, with responsibility saddled upon George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation.

Asserting that Berry called his Dec. 9 conference over the objections of other Administration officials, observers pointed out that his switching of the conference from consideration of voluntary codes to discussion of new legislation will turn the proposed rally into a huge protest meeting. Berry's switch came after the volun-

Ohio Cuts Only 34 Of 682 Reels Seen

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—Of a total of 682 reels reviewed by the Ohio censor board in October, 648 were passed, or, in other words, deletions were ordered in only 34 reels.

During the week ending Oct. 31, no eliminations were made in 71 reels.

Aylesworth to Stay

M. H. Aylesworth will not resign the presidency of NBC now or following the reorganization of RKO, because of his impending elevation to the chairmanship of the RKO board, succeeding David Sarnoff, it was stated yesterday by a source close to Aylesworth.

The new RKO chairman was reported ill at his home yesterday, but is expected back at his office today.

W. & W. Houses Quit Detroit's Combine

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—In one of the biggest surprises local film circles have had for some time Carl Buermele of Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, Inc., revealed that the eight theatres controlled by Frank A. Wetsman and Lou Wisper had resigned from the booking combine at a meeting of the board of directors last night.

The W. & W. houses out of the combine are among the most important situations in the city and include the Avalon, Tower, Eastown, Mack Uptown, Linwood-LaSalle, Piccadilly and Tuxedo in Detroit and the Calvin in Dearborn.

This resignation is regard a severe blow to the booking combine. No reason was given for the resignation.

Award Talk, Celebrities, Sea Stories Enliven Ampa

What with talk on a proposal for an industry advertising award, some songs and piano playing by Imogene Carpenter, vivid sea stories by Cameron King, and the introduction by Jack Dempsey of Ernest Hemingway, Gene Tunney and Grantland Rice, Ampa members got an eyeful and an earful yesterday.

The Marquis Henri de la Falaise told of love in Bali and the problems of filming "Legong." Ward Wing, producer of "Samarang" and "Jungle Love," had a few words to say. Lori Barry, writer, who is a sister of Theda Bara, took a bow. Colvin Brown was one of the guests.

King was the dramatic highlight of the day. His descriptions of waves washing sailors off sailing ships and washing them back again, of captains who drank a quart of rum before breakfast, another quart before lunch and a quart for an appetizer before dinner were exciting. When he told of whales as big as ships lolling in the rollers, with birds swooping down on them to pick shells off their backs he had his audience going in a big way.

Gordon White broached the advertising award idea. He said that a letter from Milton Silver to the Quigley Publications had suggested the idea. Some criticism was offered by Martin Starr and Tom Hamlin, so White closed the discussion by asking members to submit suggestions as to whether it should be an annual award, and whether it should be for the best ad and the best copy and for publicity angles. He said that it would not conflict with the monthly Quigley Awards which are confined to exploitation campaigns in theatres.

Dempsey walked in trailed by his group of celebrities in the middle of the discussion and White sidetracked the awards temporarily. Tunney, Hemingway and Rice received a big hand.

Spitz to Make Study of RKO As First Step

Will Get Company Ready For Reorganization

A complete study of RKO operations and corporate setup to ascertain the company's needs and to have in readiness for its emergence from court supervision a unified, smoothly operating organization, will be the first task to be undertaken by Leo Spitz in his newly designated post of president of RKO, he stated yesterday.

The Chicago lawyer, widely known in the industry, said that a reorganization of RKO would follow upon the completion of this task and advanced the opinion that the actual completion and presentation to court of a reorganization plan was still some months away.

"My first job, as I see it at this stage," Spitz said, "is to go over the ground, familiarize myself with the organization, determine in what ways the business can be aided and then

Kohn Quits Columbia Schulberg to Follow

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—Ralph Kohn's executive producer contract with Columbia, which had six months to run, was canceled today at his own request. B. P. Schulberg indicated he will leave Columbia when his contract expires, May 1. Kohn immediately will assume the vice-presidency of Schulberg Prod., Ltd., formed several months ago.

"At the expiration of my contract, Schulberg Prod. will expand operations for an increased number of pictures," said Schulberg. The program will include a series starring Edward Arnold. The action corroborates reports current here for some time that the two were dissatisfied with their Columbia deal.

Griffiths Is Added To Paramount Board

Stanton Griffiths of Hemphill, Noyes & Co. was elected a member of the board of directors of Paramount Pictures, Inc., yesterday, and Frank Freeman, in charge of Paramount theatre operations, was made a vice-president.

Since the resignations of Frank A. Vanderlip and William S. Grey, Jr., there have been four vacancies on the Paramount board. Two of these have existed since the reorganization.

No "Top Hat" Suits Follow Ohio Ruling

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7.—No other exhibitor suits have been filed against RKO in connection with "Top Hat," it has been learned here on good authority.

Four separate test cases to compel the distributor to deliver the Astaire-Rogers picture as one of last season's group were thrown out by Common Pleas Judge Lee C. Skeel in Cleveland on Oct. 30. There will be no appeal.

RKO attorneys considered these cases the toughest of all complaints made, in that four were tried individually. It is admitted numerous complaints have been lodged with the company, but no court cases have been filed, it is stated.

Clubs to Aid Benefit

Night club talent will be featured at the benefit of the American Federation of Actors at the Majestic Sunday night. Latest talent additions are Abe Lyman and his orchestra, the Hollywood Restaurant revue, Nils T. Granlund and his Paradise revue, with Jerry Freeman's orchestra, and Eddie Garr.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—The Motion Picture Division of the Community Chest Drive has subscribed $141,737 toward a quota of $200,000. This is approximately 70 per cent of the quota. A total of $64,784 was raised last week.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

NOTES from a bedside rest: The selection of Leo Spitz ultimately to head RKO emphasizes the influence in that direction which John Hertz may be expected to wield. For Spitz and Hertz, their friendship tracing back to an earlier day in Chicago, have maintained the association through paths which have met in the world of business as well. There was the time when Sam Katz had moved his base of operations from New York to the Paramount studio in Hollywood. Originally asked here by Katz for whom, as well as for the Balabans, Spitz had been attorney, the latter's sphere of influence in Paramount administration grew until it filled the Number 1 spot in that company's affairs. . . .

They spoke well, very well indeed, of Spitz at Paramount during that era. It was told of him that he was an executive of keen perception and of sharp and thorough analytical power; that, through a long and intimate contact as a lawyer for important interests in this industry, he had acquired an appreciative knowledge of its sensitivity and a familiarity with its essential manpower. If he possessed these attributes as an administrator then, it is logical enough to assume he continues to retain them and will bring to his new post at RKO a background in experience which will eliminate halts in reorganization while the chief reorganizer learns what has to be reorganized. His appointment further indicates that the Atlas-Lehman group, now dominant in RKO affairs, is displaying judgment by sidestepping the usual decision of bankers, which is to name an outsider to run a type of business which has never been successfully operated except by an insider. . . .

Conclusions will be jumped at again. Hertz, as Spitz's sponsor, is a factor in Paramount, tied in with the Atlas-Lehman-Fortington group. The impress on RKO's future which the Spitz appointment indicates is Hertz's, plus the joint participation in RKO of his firm (Lehman Brothers) and Atlas, might be interpreted as tying the two film companies together in a working agreement or a merger. As many judge matters in this business, such a construction is almost certain to be forthcoming and at once, too. An intriguing possibility to bounce around conversationally and speculatively, we remind once again of the fallacies in forecasts and the uncertainties which are often inherent in them. . . .

Spitz's first task, by his own word, will be one of general inspection. His formal elevation to the presidency will come with a reorganized RKO. Elsewhere in this edition today you may read how it all came about. Offered the post once or twice before, Spitz finally succumbed. The deal must be a pretty one to persuade resumption of a New York residence when Chicago is his home. . . .

With a deal finally struck between New York's major circuits, which are Loew's and RKO, of course, and Local 306, attention can now be directed toward further accord in labor union ranks. Some see an elimination of competitive cross-currents by a consolidation of Allied and Empire with 306, although such a three-cornered deal carries no assurance another union will not spring up. Some also see a less complex situation locally if the city, through its Department of Electricity, Gas and Inspection, checked into operator licenses already issued. There is one, at least, in the hands of a barber who has never seen the interior of a projection booth. . . .

Jewish Film to Open

"Land of Promise," a sound film with music and narrative, which has been shown in a number of spots in Europe and also before the League of Nations Mandates Commission, will open at the Astor, Nov. 20. Long Reel Details Changed by Council

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—Recommendations for changes in the 2,000-foot reel specifications, as submitted by distributing companies in New York, were approved by the Academy's Research Council at a meeting last night. The changes include reel diameter reduction from 15½ inches to 15 inches, with a minimum reel length of 1,750 feet. With the exception of unusual cases, all reels are to be cut at the studio to reach the theatre between 1,750 feet and 2,000 feet.

Studios are to continue to indicate the projection changeovers at the end of the first 1,000 feet of each reel to provide for theatres not yet equipped with 2,000-foot projection apparatus. The council approved the method recommended by the reel length subcommittee, whereby studios will provide these auxiliary changeovers.

Bondholders to Get New Beecroft Plan

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 7.—With the conclusion of hearings in the Beecroft Building Co. reorganization case, Paul Grubb, special master, accepted a tentative plan, which he indicated will be submitted later to a vote of bondholders.

The plan, which would be effective Jan. 1, 1936, calls for borrowing $80,000 to place with an existing reserve of $60,000 and retire the present first mortgage bonds, and provides for bondholder control of the Orpheum, Strand and Parkway until all obligations are satisfied.

It was declared that as soon as the reorganization takes effect under the proposed plan, the present lease of the Ashley Theatre Corp. could be discontinued and a lease more favorable to the bondholders prepared.

Spitz to Make Study of RKO As First Step

proceed from there. From what I know of the company's affairs its present management has done a good job during the past two years. The company is in good shape and morale is good. I don't know who deserves the credit—maybe it belongs to all—but the fact remains, a good job has been done."

Spitz said that while RKO manpower might require "organizing," he made it clear that he did not mean by this that any "shake-up" was in prospect or that he contemplated bringing any new names into the company.

"I have no one in mind," he said, "to replace anyone. I certainly would not pre-judge a situation with which I am wholly unfamiliar. I know only a few of the RKO men and those are fine, capable executives."

Called from Chicago

Spitz related that although Atlas and Lehman officials, whom he did not name, had spoken to him "once or twice" in recent weeks about the RKO presidency, he "had no idea" of accepting it. He was called here from Chicago for a meeting on Wednesday and at its close discovered that he was the designated head of the company. He said he had not yet been inside the RKO offices.

Spitz will go to Chicago today to wind up his business affairs there and plans to return here about the middle of next week to begin his new duties. He pointed out that the actual emergence of RKO from court supervision is at least more than two months away, as reorganization proceedings require that creditors be given 60 days notice of the intention of presenting a plan to the court, which has not been done.

The Atlas-Lehman Bros. interests which recently acquired one-half of the RCA interest in RKO and an option to purchase the remainder completed the arrangements for the designation of Spitz as RKO president succeeding M. H. Aylesworth. Aylesworth becomes chairman of the board, replacing David Sarnoff, RCA head, who is withdrawing from the company.

No Formal Election Held

No formal election has been held and one may not occur for some time, as the board of directors, which elects the officers, has not been reconstituted yet to include the members representative of Atlas and Lehman Bros. When this has been done, probably shortly in advance of the RKO reorganization, the formal elections of Spitz and Aylesworth to their new posts will occur. For the time being, an authoritative RKO official said yesterday, "titles will not mean much."

"The idea," he added, "is to get the company in line for normal operating procedure as quickly and directly as possible."

While RKO remains under court supervision its board and officers are restricted from taking important action of any kind without court authorization. Active, solvent subsidiaries are not subjected to this direct supervision, but the injunction over the parent body while it is in process of reorganization explains why "titles do not mean much" at this time, it was pointed out.

Spitz has been attorney for Balaban & Katz, Paramount theatre subsidiary in Chicago, for many years. In 1932, when Paramount was nearing its financial crisis, Sam Katz brought John Hertz, then a B. & K. director and now a partner in Lehman Bros., into Paramount to aid in the financial reorganization of the company. Hertz became chairman of the Paramount finance committee and brought Spitz with him into the organization. The latter rapidly added to his duties and authority in the organization as Katz became increasingly interested in production. With Katz's resignation, Spitz assumed most of his duties. Hertz resigned from Paramount early in 1933 and Spitz a few months later. It is generally believed that Spitz was sponsored by Hertz for the new RKO post.

Option Not Exercised

Hertz is a member of the Paramount board, as is Floyd B. Odlum, head of Atlas. Charles McCulloch, Chicago banker and a director of Paramount and B. & K., is also a close friend of Spitz's. Odlum and Hertz, or their associates, are destined for places on the board of reorganized RKO.

The Atlas-Lehman combination has not yet exercised its option to purchase the remaining half of RCA's interest in RKO. This option, however, extends for two years and it is accepted as a foregone conclusion that it will be taken up in the near future. RCA's holdings were comprised of 1,259,463 shares of RKO common, or 48.6 per cent of the total outstanding, and $9,786,655 of the 10-year RKO debentures, or 84 per cent of the amount outstanding. The Atlas-Lehman half interest in these holdings was acquired for $5,000,000.

Defeat Seen For New Code Legislation

tary code plan was seen to be doomed to failure because of labor's objection to the inclusion of wage and hour provision on the ground that no means of enforcement had been provided.

A regular meeting on Dec. 4 of Secretary of Commerce Roper's advisory business council, is expected to bring forth a pronouncement of the views of industrial leaders on further business control which may profoundly affect the deliberations of Berry's conference, although it is denied that the subject has been scheduled for consideration. Berry's effort to revive codification is viewed in Washington as a bid for prominence in the Roosevelt administration. Undertaking the task after others had declared it hopeless, his success in getting support for new legislation would make him the logical man to administer any new law passed.

Failure will result in his passing out of the picture, as have Johnson, Richberg et al.

It is asserted, however, that a majority of those who will come to the conference next month will voice loud objections to further control, setting the stage for the rejection by Congress of any such legislation proposed by the President. By adopting labor union massmeeting methods when other officials were trying to build up support by working quietly, it is charged, Berry has tacitly accepted responsibility for success or failure of the effort.

Paramount Pep Club To Resume Activity

Activities of the Paramount Pep Club, Inc., will be resumed. A decision to this effect was reached yesterday at a meeting of the board of governors at the Astor Hotel.

Testimony Is Counsel Target In Summations

long-awaited verdict is expected to be handed down shortly after the jurors are given to understand the law. Following a conference in his chambers yesterday, Judge Moore extended by 60 minutes the four-hour limit for final arguments. During the short court session yesterday, the judge twice refused to grant additional time despite exhortations by defense counsel.

Because of the Missouri law, the only one of its kind, the Government was given the right to open and close. Frederick H. Wood had been expected to start the ball rolling this morning, but instead was second.

Hardy Speaks 3 Hours

Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney in the anti-trust trial, spoke for three hours; Wood, one, and William R. Gentry, one. George S. Leisure wound up today's session after a 20-minute talk, but will resume tomorrow when he will be followed by Jacob M. Lashly, co-counsel for RKO. Former Senator James A. Reed will finish for the defense.

Hardy talked in a calm and deliberate manner, reading from notes scribbled on small pieces of paper. Several times Wood and Leisure objected to declarations made that were not in the record, following which Judge Moore cautioned the Government counsel to confine himself to the testimony in the case.

Wood, in his forceful and characteristic style, was considered the best speaker of the day. He was stopped once when Hardy objected to the use of the word "crooked." The Warner attorney replied, "I call anyone crooked who sends in false statements."

In contrast to the seriousness of the two lawyers who preceded him, Gentry delighted in levity, relating two humorous stories and explaining, "the name of Schaefer in German means shepherd and this is a case of 'a wolf in sheep's clothing.'"

"Marco's real name is Marco Wolff, so there you are," Gentry explained.

Leisure Is Brief

Leisure talked in a serene and direct manner, taking his time despite the lateness of the hour. He concentrated his brief summary on "the unfair inferences Hardy drew from a letter Ned E. Depinet wrote to Warners," declaring if "Depinet has been charged with an improper act I'm still trying to find out what it is."

The RKO counsel said Depinet had three choices: one, to stay out of St. Louis; two, sell to F. & M.; three, sell to a nationally known circuit such as Warners. "When Warners were sold," the counsel stated, "Depinet did what any man in this jury would have done." He had just reached the topic of Arthur's alleged telephone conversation with Depinet when the session was adjourned.

Reviewing his case, Hardy covered all of the ground encompassed in his opening statement and in his arguments for denying the demurrers and dismissal motions filed at the close of his presentation. He stated the Dept. of Justice is not required to bring about conviction of innocent persons.

"The defense has met every issue but those in the case," the prosecutor held, and "sometimes they put me, Koplar and Arthur on trial." He then talked about "gigantic corporate clusters" and said that "Warners, Paramount and RKO represented 50 per cent of the production of the fourth largest industry."

Comparing the chances of F. & M., which he described as a small concern, fighting against Warners, which he said had great size and power, was like "Ethiopia against Italy." "Because of the limited supply of films and agencies controlling them, the restraint of trade could very easily be made possible," Hardy added. He asserted that the early activities of Warners were shown by a conference between J. M. Ulmer of Cleveland and Warners in connection with a lease on the Capitol, Wheeling, W. Va.

Describes "Technique"

"What has Herman Starr to lose? He has the strongest reason for diluting and denying the testimony," the prosecutor said. "Miles Alben," he added, "is a subordinate of Starr's and what would happen if he contradicted his superiors?" He then described the so-called "technique," which he held was "to purchase defaulted bonds, control the pictures and use great size and power." In purchasing the bonds, Warners created one of the strongest weapons for trying to get the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, Hardy declared.

When Warners in 1933 started to bid for the reorganization of the properties with the bondholders, they had no competition, the prosecuting attorney said, but later Wood contradicted this, stating Skouras Bros. were bidders at the same time, according to Thomas N. Dysart's own testimony.

Cites Testimony

"I think the facts in this case will show the defendants did not act fairly," the Government attorney declared. He then pointed out certain portions of the testimony given by his witnesses in connection with phrases allegedly used by Starr and Sam B. Jeffries, developing the issue that most of the men were not interested in the case and had no reason to testify to anything but the truth. He pointed out Dysart was a reluctant witness and "he leaned backward to assist Warners, he knows in the end he may have to deal with them. He had to propitiate them and had nothing to gain by testimony prejudicial to them."

Hardy characterized Starr's leasing of the Shubert-Rialto, after making a threat the day before, as a short lease. "They never intended using the theatre for pictures, but wanted it to use as a menace against the bondholders." Wood refuted this statement later, bringing out the fact that in Charles Cella's testimony, the latter said, "Starr laid the cards on the table," admitting Warners were negotiating for the other three theatres and if they did not get them they would continue as tenants for five years. Wood said yearly options were included and in the Orpheum lease Warners did not include the two-month provision.

Describing what had presumably occurred at a meeting in Starr's office on March 6, 1934, Hardy said, "They're not even satisfied from day to day as to what they testified."

"How Abel Carey Thomas loved the Skourases? Yet they didn't know which one he loved. Starr said it was George, Sears said Spyros. I leave it to you to decide," he said to the jury.

Meetings Brought Up

Other meetings and alleged conversations were then brought up, following which Hardy read to the 12 men Thomas' letter to Schaefer, dated March 27, 1934.

"They haven't been open, frank and candid about telling you the truth and facts in the matter," the prosecutor stated. "Certainly Schaefer knew what was going on when he said in the letter no one else could bid or get the pictures, and it's written in every line of the letter," he said.

"This is the only purchase of pictures ever made by Starr on March 21. Starr said he closed the deal because Clayton Bond went on a vacation, yet Depinet saw Bond between March 19 and March 29," Hardy said.

Leahy's telephone conversation was then discussed. Hardy said Schaefer testified he didn't consult a lawyer on the Warner contract although he told Leahy he did. "Do you remember Schaefer's incredible lack of memory?" he inquired of the jury. "Why didn't he tell you what happened with Starr on March 21?"

Bernhard Letter Read

Joseph Bernhard's letter to Depinet was then read and Hardy emphasized the sentence beginning, "I am confident you will pledge your wholehearted support." The letter shows, the prosecutor stated, "Depinet had not been open, frank and truthful. He hasn't told you what occurred up to the time of the letter, but it is evident in every line," Hardy said. "No one knows what these men did and no one told you what they did or said."

When Hardy reached the so-called conversation Depinet is said to have had with Arthur, he asked, "Is the motion picture business a racket?" He referred to Arthur's testimony wherein he said Depinet told the first Government witness he had been in the racket long enough and knew what to do. The prosecutor also stressed the testimony of Leahy and Edmond T. Koeln, who said they saw Arthur at the Park Plaza meeting with Depinet. The RKO president denied this, stating he couldn't recall Arthur's presence.

"Is Depinet reliable? Did he tell you everything?" the prosecuting attorney asked. "He hasn't told all about the Bernhard conference." Hardy described the various letters as "promises among conspirators," which didn't provide terms, but gave wholehearted support to sustain them in this situation. He said Jeffries' testimony reminded him of forcing a horse over a jump. Hardy held that all the witnesses testified Koplar's name had been brought up at different meetings, but three Government witnesses emphatically denied this.

He also contended Warners had been offered the Allen Snyder lease twice and turned it down, "yet they claim they were being driven out of St. Louis and someone had a monopoly."
